Midhat Pasha, formerly a power in Turkey as leader of a reform party, brought about the deposition of Sultan Abdul Aziz. Prince Murad then was proclaimed sultan. Five days later the ex-sultan committed suicide, a fact which was proved by nineteen doctors. Ten days after this tragedy Sultan Murad became insane and was deposed and Abdul Hamid ascended the throne. Midhat was banished, but was received with so much favor in Europe that the sultan became nervous and recalled him and appointed him governor of Syria. Here he did much good, but found himself called upon to resign in 1880. He next became governor general of Smyrna, but shortly afterward he was arrested with Mehemet Rushdi Pasha and others on a charge of being concerned in the murder of Abdul Aziz. The trial dragged on for months, and Midhat, with others, was condemned to death, but on the intervention of the English government his sentence was changed to imprisonment for life. Midhat was sent to Taif, in Arabia, where many attempts were made to poison him, which were frustrated by his servant. One night, however, he was dragged from his room by some of the sultan's officials and strangled.

TUESDAY, AUG. 2, 1904.

AT THE CALL OF EMPIRE

Discussion Towards Widening Scope of Canada's Militia.

Principle That Our Forces Should Be at All Times at the Service of the Empire Meets With Hearty Support In the House of Commons—Government Backs Down to Permit a Conference For Agreement.

Ottawa, Aug. 2.—When the House went into committee on the militia bill and Sir Frederick Borden moved the following amendment.

"Whenever the Governor-in-Council places the militia or any part thereof on active service anywhere in Canada for the defence thereof—if Parliament be then separated by an adjournment or prorogation that will not expire within ten days, a proclamation shall be issued for a meeting of Parliament within fifteen days, and Parliament shall accordingly meet and sit from the day appointed by such proclamation, and shall continue to sit and act in like manner as if it had stood adjourned or prorogued to the same day."

Sir Frederick explained that this clause was copied from the English law.

For the Empire.

Messrs. W. F. Maclean, Sproule, Gourley and Robinson opposed the principle of the bill which prevents the Government sending the Canadian militia out of Canada except for the defence of Canada.

Sir F. W. Borden argued that the law was copied from the English law and had been approved by the British authorities.

"Britons First," Says Hughes.

Col. Hughes said that, while it was true the militia of England could not be ordered out of England for service, there was a provision that they could be sent abroad if they volunteered. That was what was wanted in Canada. "And be sure of this," said Col. Hughes, "If it comes to a question of obeying an order of the Governor-in-Council or the order of the King-in-Council, it will be the Imperial order that will be obeyed in this country. We are Britons first." Col. Hughes then moved the following new clause, as embodying his idea:

"The Governor-in-Council shall, subject to the conditions of the Imperial service, accept the services of Canadian militiamen who volunteer to serve the Empire on active service in any part of the world, and shall have authority to equip and place them at the disposal of the Imperial authorities whether Parliament be called, or is in session, or not, and may incur the necessary expense towards that end."

After further debate, Hon. W. S. Fielding suggested that the debate on the contentious clause should be discontinued in order that an effort might be made to reach an agreement. This suggestion was accepted and the House proceeded to consider the less objectionable clauses.

Ride Accident Compensation.

For compensation for the death of any person, or for any injury to his person or property arising from the use of any rifle range under the control of the Department of Militia for target practice carried on in accordance with the regulations; provided that there shall be no claim for compensation for death or injury due to negligence on the part of the person killed or injured, or when such person at the time was present as a spectator or took part in the rifle practice, or was in some official or other capacity connected therewith.

Earlier in the day the bill to amend the General Inspection Act was passed, after considerable debate.

Algoma Dropped.

On the bill to amend the Dominion Elections Act, Mr. Fitzpatrick said the Government had decided to drop Algoma from the list of those constituencies where elections will be held at a later date than the general elections. This means that all the constituencies of Ontario will choose members on the date of the general elections.

Some discussion took place on the bill to amend the Postoffice Act, and the third reading was withdrawn to permit a clause aimed at the advertising of supernatural powers by people and extravagant patent medicine cures being further considered.

A number of railway re-votes of railway subsidies were announced by the Minister of Railways and the House adjourned.

Judge Britton's Report.

Ottawa, Aug. 2.—The report of the Treadgold Commission, extending to over a hundred pages with an appendix containing three thousand pages of evidence and a large number of exhibits, was laid on the table of the House yesterday. On the whole it is favorable to the Government and defends the concessions granted to the Treadgold syndicate.

No Ultimatum.

Berlin, Aug. 2.—The Foreign Office here denies a report from Caracas that the German Minister has presented an ultimatum to the Venezuelan Government demanding the immediate payment of the interest on the indemnity stipulated in the protocols signed by Herbert W. Bowen, representing Venezuela, in February, 1903, under penalty of the withdrawal of the German Minister on Aug. 4.

Celebrated Emancipation Day.

Windsor, Aug 2.—The streets were filled yesterday with colored people of this town and the surrounding country, who come here to celebrate Emancipation Day.

The Stage Mirror.

Whenever a looking glass appears in a scene in a play above a fireplace, in a sideboard or a cabinet one is almost sure to hear somebody ask his or her neighbor why the glass has been smeared with whiting or soap or something that dulls its surface completely. All sorts of reasons are hazarded or suggested. Sometimes it is stated that it is done for luck, at others that they did not intend to leave it dirty. The real explanation is, however, a simple one. The glass is dirtied to prevent the illusion of the scene being destroyed, as it certainly would be if the audience saw in it the reflection of themselves or, worse still, the reflection of the people in the wings carrying on the business of the stage.

A Case of Necessity.

"My son," said the parson to a small boy who was digging, "don't you know that it is a sin to dig on Sunday except in case of necessity?"

"Yes, sir," replied the youngster.

"Then why don't you stop it?" asked the good man.

"'Cause this is a case of necessity," replied the young philosopher. "A feller can't fish without bait."

As He Interpreted It.

"How many commandments were given to Moses?" asked the Sunday school teacher of small Bobby.

He could not remember, so in order to prompt him she held up her ten fingers.

"Oh, I know!" he exclaimed triumphantly. "Two handsful."

Oddfellows Excursion.

Mr Frank Wise, N.G., of Otonabee Lodge, and Mr. J. W. Jordon, have gone to Lindsay to-day in the interests of the excursion to Rochester on August 18th. This will be one of the finest trips of the season. The steamer North King has been chartered for the occasion and the special Grand Trunk train which starts at Lindsay leaves Peterborough at 10.45. The rate for the round trip will be $1.30, good for three days. Excursionists may remain over Sunday by paying single fair from Port Hope to Peterborough on return. Every arrangement is being made for a pleasant trip.

The Locklin Regular Shape.

While effecting a leakage at the lift-lock yesterday afternoon, the pontoon failed to reach within a few inches of the upper level, and for a time it was feared that something was wrong with the movement. The operator, to be on the safe side, discharged the water from one of the pontoons, and lowered both pontoons to the lower reach. It was found on examination and trial that the irregularity resulted from the lowering of the water in the upper reaches caused by running logs through the Nassau dam. Last evening the stop logs in the dam were replaced and the cylinders pumped up, and everything found in good order. It is regretted that those from a distance, who were there to view the lock, were disappointed in not seeing it work, but no doubt these happenings will often result in handling a new thing, and as it all contingencies are provided against.

of getting my trunk from the station. It seems that people are too religious here to draw a trunk on Sunday. You know after travelling all day on the cars in this hot weather a fellow doesn't care to separate himself from his baggage for any longer than was really necessary. However, I got my trunk up this morning twenty-four hours after it reached the depot, so I suppose I shouldn't kick too much."

IN THE REALM OF SPORT

ANOTHER FOR THE T.A.S.

Defeated I.C.B.U., of Toronto, by the Score of 12—3.

The T. A. S. lacrosse team added another to their already lengthy string of unbroken victories, when yesterday they defeated the Irish Catholic Benevolent Union team, of Toronto, by the rather unequal score of 12—3. The latter team were at a disadvantage, several of their men being unable to come down and for whom had to be substituted inferior men. When it is stated that this team is now tied for first place in the intermediate series of the Toronto Lacrosse League, it will be seen that all the more credit attaches to the T.A.S. for their victory.

There was a good attendance at the game, a large number of the spectators being supporters of the Toronto team, and who had come down on the Old Boys' excursion. The players of the visiting team are a gentlemanly lot of players, who put up a good game of lacrosse, but owing to the weight and superior playing of the locals, they were outclassed as the score would indicate. The utmost harmony prevailed throughout the game, which statement is borne out by the fact that not a player was as much as warned for infringement of the rules.

During the first quarter the ball was never out of the visitor's territory and after a few minutes play McCoy made a shot which went past the net, but McGrath secured the ball and scored on a pretty shot. The second goal was scored by Derocher the goal keeper at the time being invisible. The third and fourth were scored by F. McCoy and Judd respectively, the quarter ending with the score 4 to 0 for the T.A.S.

The second quarter was a repetition of the first, the visitors score in this period being represented by a cipher, and for the T.A.S. Donovan put the ball through twice, F. and L. McCoy once each, and Parnell once, the ball being at the visitors end the greater part of the time.

In the third and last quarter the visitors scored their three goals, and apparently played a much better game in this quarter, keeping the T.A.S. quite busy at times, McDonald, Smith and Sauvex scoring for them, and McGrath, F. McCoy and Parnell each scored one for the locals.

As to the playing of individual players of the teams, no one can be singled out for particular mention. All played the game to the best of their ability and each deserves equal credit.

Referee Glover had practically nothing to do, but, as is usual, whatever decisions he made, were satisfactory to all concerned.

Surprise the Doctors

Most doctors are astonished at the results obtained by Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for eczema, salt rheum and itching skin diseases which are often considered well nigh incurable. By word of mouth from friend to friend the exceptional merits of Dr. Chase's Ointment have gradually become known until it is now standard the world over and has a record of cures unparalleled in the history of medicine.

Imported Horses and Cattle.

Several of the most prominent breeders of horses and cattle in Canada at present are in England, one having recently returned from the trip, which was undertaken for the sole purpose of procuring stock for show at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, August 29th to November 10th, and for the improvement of their well known stables. The exhibits of these gentlemen alone would offer an interesting horse show, and when combined with the hundreds of other entries in all classes, will complete the finest display of horse and cattle ever seen in Canada. Among those whose direct and recent importations will be shown are Robert Beith, M.P., of Bowmanville; Thomas Graham, of Graham Bros., Claremont, J. M. Gardhouse, of the Highfield stables, and William Smith, ex-M.P., of Columbus. Among the cattle breeders, Hon. John Dryden, Minister of Agriculture, and Robert Miller, of Stouffville, will show for the first time their recent purchases in England. All the exhibitors agree to keep their entries on the grounds during the full period of the Exhibition.

ville; Mike Clancy, Elwood of Toronto; Logan Lauduman, C. Bolan of Owen Sound; Sea Foam, Mitchell of town; Percentum, Graham, Toronto; Golden Cocade, Patterson of Toronto; Hupo, Wilson of Hamilton. The winners of the first heat were Mike Clancy first, Michaelmas second, Percentum third, Golden Cocade 4th. The three good ones in the second were Mike Clancy 1st, Percentum 2nd, Michaelmas third, and this was the order of the money. The half mile was done in fifty seconds, which is a running record for the track.

The wise ones say that Jubilee made a racing record of 2.17 for the track in her stepping of yesterday.

It was the intention to have a barrier for to-day's running events in order to cut out tedious delay.

The starter in yesterday's races was Sid Pammore, of Orillia; the judges, Fred Peake of Campbellford and W. Leahy of Lakefield, the timers Alex. Elliott and W. Callahan.

Josh Billings of Detroit was in charge of the booking privileges.

The events to-day consist of a 2.29 class pace and trot, a 2.24 class pace and trot and a 3-4 mile running race.

DIED.

REHALLY—On Monday, August 1, 1904, Herbert Rehally, son of Mr. John Rehally, aged 24 years.

The funeral will take place from St. Joseph's Hospital on Wednesday morning, August 3rd, at nine o'clock and proceed to St. Peter's Cathedral, thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

BROTHERS COMING HOME

EDWARD M. TAYLOR, OF ST. LOUIS WHO FORMERLY RESIDED HERE

He Will Await Here the Arrival of His Brother From New Zealand

The Woodstock Sentinel-Review of August 1 has the following interesting reference to Mr. E. M. Taylor, an old Peterborough boy:

Edward M. Taylor, a well-known commission merchant of St. Louis, Mo., spent yesterday and to-day in the city and this evening he will leave, in company with Mr. Waud, manager of the Molsons' Bank, for the quarters of the Rice Bay Fishing Club, where he will be a guest of his friend, James Canfield. Mr. Taylor is a native born Canadian, Peterborough being the scene of his boyhood days. When but a young man he went to the west and for forty-four years he has been a resident of St. Louis, and like many other Canadian boys who went west in the sixties, he has prospered and grown with the country. Before returning to his home Mr. Taylor will visit Toronto, Port Hope and Peterborough. In the last named place he will await the arrival of his eldest brother from Wellington, New Zealand, whom he has not seen in nearly fifty years. The brother referred to was at one time a resident of Ingersoll and will no doubt be remembered by some of the older residents of that town as "Ned" Taylor.

Speaking to the Sentinel-Review Mr Taylor said that he was amazed to find the change and growth that had taken place in Woodstock since he last visited it forty-four years ago. He thinks it one of the cleanest, brightest and most prosperous looking little cities he has ever visited. The abundance of shade trees he very much admired, and clear, sparkling water that flows from every tap he thought to be the greatest blessing that nature could bestow. He said if the people of St. Louis could procure such water in such quantities it would be worth millions to the city. Concluding his conversation Mr. Taylor said: "Yes, Woodstock is an ideal city in many respects and it must be a pleasant place in which to spend a few weeks, but I would advise people to arrange their arrival for some other day than a Sunday. When I stepped off the train on Sunday morning I was surprised not to find a hack or a bus or a vehicle of any kind and I had to work my way up town the best way I could; and this is no easy job, particularly when one does not know where he is going and has no means of finding out. It was a case of going it blind. However, I finally got located at one of the hotels and then came trouble number two—no means

POLICE COURT

Two Men Fined for Bathing without Suits—House of Ill-Fame.

At the Police Court this morning, before Jas. Stevenson, J. P., a woman was charged with keeping a house of ill-fame on Reid street. The case was enlarged for eight days and she was allowed out on her own bail.

Two young men were fined $2 for swimming in Little Lake without bathing suits. This will perhaps serve as a warning to the many who do such things in such a public place.

The Demand Keeps Up.

Almost every mail brings one or more orders for copies of the Daily Review Lift Lock edition. It may serve as an indication of the interest that is taken in this magnificent piece of engineering work, the lift lock, that many of the calls for copies come from people living along the line of the Erie canal. Requests come in from engineers of the States, as well as from citizens generally. Over 400 copies have been supplied to persons engaged in one capacity and another with the canals of New York. Many of the letters contain complimentary remarks from those who have seen copies and write for additional numbers, speaking of the thoroughness with which the subject was treated, the accurate and comprehensive character of the details and the excellent illustrations. There is no doubt that Peterborough has gained a lot of good advertising out of the opening of the lift lock, the completion of which has directed attention to the work. If the demand keeps up we shall be compelled to put the pages to press again.

The Review has in preparation a handsome booklet of generous size, giving ten or twelve plates and views of the lift lock and some information as to its cost and proportions. The work will be handsomely printed on fine enamelled paper and handsomely covered, in neat design.

Medicines You Can Trust

There are no family medicines that have such a firm hold on the confidence of the people as those of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous physician and receipt book author. The superior skill as a physician and the intelligence of character for which Dr. Chase is everywhere known stand as a guarantee for his medicines, on every box of which are found his portrait and signature

An Ennismore Birthday.

Last Saturday was a red letter day in the life of Miss Kate Holland, daughter of Mr. Dan Holland, of Ennismore, being her birthday. The occasion was marked by a tea, to which many friends were invited and came and had a very pleasant time, and brought numerous presents as souvenirs of the day.

PARK STREET CHURCH.

Ald. Jas. Batten preached with much acceptance on Sunday morning, his subject being "The personality of the Spirit." The Rev. A. H. Brace preached in the evening, when the ordinance of baptism was observed. The hand of fellowship will be given to those recently baptized at their first communion on Sunday next.

Brevities.

—The Rev. E. A. Langfeldt of St. Luke's, will conduct the services at Chemong Park pavilion next Sunday at 3 o'clock.

—A Sunday drunk was severely fined this morning by Jas. Stevenson, Esq. He was fined $5 and costs, amounting in all to $9.50.

—The Canadian Machhine Telephone Company have opened a temporary office in the market arcade lately occupied by Mr. J. J. McBain.

—The other evening, when an engine was being run into the engine house at the G.T.R. station it was allowed to run too far and went through the side of the building, knocking quite a hole in it, but the engine was not damaged to any extent.

Young women may avoid much sickness and pain, says Miss Alma Pratt, if they will only have faith in the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Judging from the letters she is receiving from so many young girls, Mrs. Pinkham believes that our girls are often pushed altogether too near the limit of their endurance nowadays in our public schools and seminaries.

Nothing is allowed to interfere with studies, the girl must be pushed to the front and graduated with honor; often physical collapse follows, and it takes years to recover the lost vitality,—often it is never recovered. Miss Pratt says,—

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel it my duty to tell all young women how much Lydia E. Pinkham's wonderful Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was completely rundown, unable to attend school, and did not care for any kind of society, but now I feel like a new person, and have gained seven pounds of flesh in three months.

"I recommend it to all young women who suffer from female weakness."—MISS ALMA PRATT, Holly, Mich.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

Taking a Look INTO AUGUST
A Lively Forecast

August is the month to make a dollar do duty for two at the Golden Lion. As the ranks of the summer goods get thinner, the prices get slighter and slighter.

Saving is rampant all over the store. Here is a woman buying a skirt that she has been longing for for two months, and it costs her half what it would two months ago. Here is a prudent one buying three Shirt Waists at their reduced prices and tucking them away for next summer.

That is the "why" and the "how" of August bargains here.

The low prices make it very easy for you to finish out the Summer with a new hat and other Dress Accessories, for there is a sharp cut in every department of Fair's.

If we're not making money we're making friends. Doing lots of business with little money in it, but clearances are absolutely necessary. That's how we look at it. The extraordinary bargains we will offer this month will attract many friends permanently to the store.

It costs quite a little to pack and store away odds and ends that accumulate at the end of a season's business, and it ties up a lot of capital, too.

Is it any wonder, then, that this progressive store wants to save all such items of expense, and that we are willing to lose our profit for the sake of a clear stock and the ready money?

Now is the time. This is the month that the price tickets speak loudly at FAIR'S.

JAPANESE CONTINUE VICTORIOUS

They Capture Shantaikow, an Important Defence.

JAPS OCCUPY YGANTSEULING

Tokio, Aug. 3.—It is reported here that after three days of desperate fighting the Japanese have captured Shantaikow, one of the important defences of Port Arthur.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 3.—General Kurepatkin reports that the Japanese have occupied Ikhatuen (east of Liaoyang) and the Yangse Pass (30 miles east of Liaoyang).

Tokio, Aug. 3.—After two days' fighting General Kuroki has defeated the Russian forces in two separate actions fought at Yushulikzu and the Yangse Pass. The Yangse Pass, or Yang Se Pass, is situated 30 miles east of Liaoyang. The Russian army engaged there is generally known as the eastern army, and was commanded by the late Lieut.-Gen. Count Keller, who was killed by the explosion of a shell.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 3.—It is officially announced that the Russians have fallen back from Yangse Pass, but are holding their positions on the Saimatsza road, and at Haicheng Monday.

Liaoyang, Aug. 3.—After a fierce battle the eastern Russian force has evacuated Ygantseuling (six miles west of Motien Pass).

OUTFLANKED BY NODZU.

Newchwang, Aug. 2.—Gen. Fukushima arrived here this morning, having marched up from Port Dalny. The Japanese here are confident that the reported capture of Haicheng by their troops is true. They say the Russians there probably were outflanked by Gen. Nodzu.

OKU CAPTURES HAICHENG.

Newchwang, Aug. 2.—Rumors are current in Chinese quarters that General Oku captured Haicheng yesterday afternoon. They cannot, however, be verified.

NEARING HAICHENG.

Haicheng, Aug. 2.—The battle raged the whole day July 31 along the southern and eastern fronts. The Japanese advanced with overwhelming forces, flanking the Russians on their right. The losses of the Russians, however, were slight. The Seventeenth Siberian Regiment drove the Japanese out of one position.

KUROKI HAMMERS THE ENEMY.

Tokio, Aug. 2.—Gen. Kuroki has administered a severe defeat to the Russian forces which defended the Russian east flank at Liaoyang, winning separate actions at Yuskuliksu and Yangse Pass. These two places are 26 miles apart, but the two actions were fought at the same time. The Russians held strong positions. The thermometer registered over 110 degrees Fahrenheit and the soldiers suffered cruelly from heat exhaustion.

At Yuskuliksu the Russians had two divisions of infantry and some artillery, and they resisted the Japanese assaults vigorously. Both attacks were begun at dawn Sunday, July 31. At Yuskuliksu the Japanese carried the Russian right and left wings, but on account of the strength of the main Russian position they were unable to press the attack. The two armies rested Sunday night, facing each other. At dawn on Monday the Japanese resumed the attack, and by noon they had dislodged the enemy and had driven him four miles to Leoholing.

At Yangse Pass also the Japanese were successful. The artillery opened on the enemy and the infantry moved forward from Makumen. The attack on this place was made at 1 o'clock on Sunday, and by nightfall the Japanese were in possession of a majority of the Russian positions, altho the enemy had resisted with determination. The Japanese force passed the night in battle formation and another assault was made on Monday at dawn. By 8 o'clock Monday morning Yangse Pass and the surrounding heights had been captured.

Gen. Kuroki explains the slowness of these actions by saying that the difficult topography of the battlefield made it impossible to secure good artillery positions, and the great heat fatigued his troops.

The Russian force at Yangse Pass was estimated at two and one-half divisions and four batteries of artillery. The enemy retreated toward Tangheiwan. Gen. Kuroki reports the capture of some field guns, but the number is not given. The Japanese casualties are being investigated.

SAKHAROFF'S REPORT.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 3.—Gen. Sakharoff, under date of Aug. 1, reports obstinate fighting in the direction of the Saimatsza-Liaoyang road, July 30 and July 31, the Russian vanguard retaining its position until Aug. 1, when it retired to Yangse Pass.

During a reconnaissance in the direction of Fengwangcheng, July 30, Gen. Sakharoff reports that two officers and 34 men were wounded, and on July 31, during a reconnaissance in the direction of Laokhautsia, two officers were killed and one officer and twenty men were wounded. The same day, when the Japanese occupied the pass between Yanshukan and Houtsiatsee (25 miles from Liaoyang), five officers and 40 men were wounded.

Gen. Sakharoff also says: "The enemy is acting undecidedly on our south front."

WHAT HAPPENED AUGUST 2.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 3.—The Japanese and Russian reports seem to agree on the main points of the military developments up to Aug. 1, but both stop short at the interesting point, namely, regarding what happened on Aug. 2, when it is possible that a decisive struggle was going on east and south of Liaoyang.

It is evident that the Russians abandoned Yangse Pass, falling back on Liandiansian, a strong defensive position in the hills 24 miles southeast of Liaoyang. Gen. Kuropatkin admits that there were heavy losses along the Saimatsza-Liaoyang road, July 31. The official account indicates that altho the Russians withdrew their advanced posts, Kuropatkin hoped to be able to hold his main positions even in the face of the superior Japanese force, and that he evidently expected heavy fighting along this line, probably about Anping. This battle possibly was proceeding Aug. 2.

Meanwhile a serious enveloping movement of three Japanese divisions was maturing around the Russian left at Haicheng, where there already was heavy fighting on July 31.

WHY THEY WERE SUNK.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 3.—In a lengthy telegram to the emperor Vice-Admiral Skrydloff relates the doings of the Vladivostock squadron under Rear-Admiral Jessen.

With the cruisers Rossia, Gromboi and Rurik, Admiral Jessen left Vladivostock July 28. After sinking a small Japanese vessel the cruisers held up the British steamer Camara, but let her go.

A Japanese coasting steamer was next met, but "as most of her 50 passengers were women, we determined to release her."

Two Japanese schooners were sunk.

Then Admiral Jessen fell in in quick succession with the British steamer Arabia and Knight Commander. "The Knight Commander only stopped after the fourth shot," the admiral reports. Her cargo being railroad material, "undoubtedly contraband for the belligerent party, and not being able to bring her to the nearest Russian port, owing to her not having enough coal, without manifest danger to the squadron, we sank the Knight Commander, after taking off all her crew and removing her papers."

Two more Japanese schooners laden with salt were then sunk.

ST. PETERSBURG GLOOMY.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 3.—The feeling at the war office here was distinctly gloomy this morning. No official telegrams had been received by the general staff from Gen. Kurepatkin, who was communicating direct with the emperor, but from private sources at the front it already was apparent that Simoucheng (fifteen miles south southeast of Haicheng, at the junction of the Fengwangcheng Siuyan roads), had been lost. Gen. Stakelberg's outposts having fallen back to Haicheng.

Toronto Man Sentenced.

St. Thomas, Aug. 3.—Edward Hill, who was arrested the other day, was before Magistrate Glenn at the police court yesterday morning on the charge of stealing a straw hat from Roy Calcott. He was allowed to go on suspended sentence, but for entering the residence of Wesley Sutton and stealing $5 cents, he was sentenced to five years in the Kingston Penitentiary. Hill claims to be a native of Toronto.

Free Church Men Win.

London, Aug. 3.—The case of the general assembly of the Free Church of Scotland and others versus Lord Overtoun and others was decided in favor of the applicants by the Privy Council yesterday.

Muraviefi Is to Be.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 3.—It is reported in well-informed circles that M. Muraviefi, the Minister of Justice, will succeed M. Von Plehve, late Minister of the Interior.

WHAT POLICY?

A member of the Laurier Administration, Mr. Rodolphe Lemieux, the Solicitor-General, has recently been giving his views in London on the Imperial preferential trade. Are we to understand that this is the official announcement of a change of policy on the part of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his colleagues. This is not an open question on which Cabinet ministers can hold different opinions for the Government has, or professes to have a settled policy in regard to the matter. It enacted and still maintains a preferential tariff for the United Kingdom and other parts of the Empire. At the conference in London in the coronation year Sir Wilfrid asked for some reciprocity in return for the preference thus voluntarily given and offered to make the terms still more advantageous to meet any corresponding favour for Canadian goods.

In spite of this we now have a member of the administration publicly combatting the idea of an Imperial preference and even going so far as to threaten the secession of Canada if it is pressed. According to our system of government by an administration responsible to Parliament and the people the Premier bears the responsibility for this utterance as much as if the words had come from his own lips, till he repudiates his colleague, dismisses him from office or procures his public resignation. One member of an administration cannot threaten to break up the Empire if the avowed policy of the Ministry is carried out.

Do Sir Wilfrid and his colleagues still favour preferential trade, within the Empire or have they adopted this new policy of opposition even to the length of secession if it is carried out. The country has a right to an unmistakable declaration as to where the Government stands on this question and which of their discordant views is to be looked upon as their policy.

Mr. Tarte says that Sir Wilfrid Laurier's treatment of Lord Dundonald will cost him thousands of votes.

Sir Frederick Borden, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and their organs having raised the cry that Lord Dundonald is a foreigner, dragooning the French-Canadian, denials of these slanders are said by them to be an appeal to racial prejudices.

The Globe still refuses to name the page in Hansard giving a report of a debate in which Conservatives showed that they were acquainted with the contents of Lord Dundonald's suppressed report. The whole thing was invented by the barnacle organ.

Changes in the direction of the secession threatened by Solicitor-General Lemieux are embodied in the new Militia Bill. The defence is that the proposed words mean much the same as the old. If so why make the change? It is an attempt to pander to the views of the Bourassas who will claim to have made a move in the direction of independence.

Col. Pinsult, Deputy Minister of Militia, writes to the Canadian Military Gazette, cancelling the advertisement, contract and begins his communication:

"Sir,—I am directed by the hon. the Minister of Militia and Defence to inform you, etc."

The Minister denies that he authorused such a letter. Which is telling the truth, Col. Pinsult or Col. Borden? One of them must necessarily be telling what the Globe calls a "thumping lie."

Even after his departure the Globe pursues Lord Dundonald with dastardly misrepresentation. After inventing the "thumping lie," to use its own phrase, that he demanded $50,000 for constructing fortifications along the whole frontier, it now, without withdrawing this calumny, calls upon Lord Dundonald to deny a minor falsehood. If the Globe wants to know what was in the General's suppressed report, let it desist from its conspiracy with Sir Frederick Borden to conceal this document from Parliament and then to lie about its contents.

THE JACKSON APPOINTMENT.

Liberal Condemnation of Sir Rich. Cartwright's Reward for Crime.

In voting disapproval of the appointment to a Government office in Leeds, Eng., of J. B. Jackson, the Ingersoll lawyer, whose work in the South Oxford provincial election case was, to say the least, of a very suspicious character, D. K. Erb, M. P., gave expression to the views of the Liberals of his riding, and we hope of the country. It was one of the few acts of the present administration that has not met with public favour. Mr. Jackson may be a very efficient officer, as Sir Richard Cartwright says, but his record is not such as should entitle him to service under the crown. The friends and admirers of Sir Richard Cartwright, and they are numbered by the thousands in the Liberal party, must regret that his splendid career was marred by such a recommendation. Sir Richard is strong in his friendships, as he is in his views, and he doubtless was loth to believe that Mr Jackson had intended anything improper in his relations with the man Chambers, but those who believe that appointees to the public service should be above even a suspicion of guilt, could not take such a lenient view of the case. It was, therefore, well that one Liberal member, by his vote, recorded disapproval of the appointment. It may have the effect of preventing similar appointments in the future.—Stratford Beacon, Liberal.

How It Spreads.

It made the cure of a case of Piles that was considered hopeless.

The news spread and although this was only two years ago the demand prompted Dr. J. S. Leonhardt of Lincoln, Neb., the discoverer, to prepare it for general use. Now it is being sent to all parts of the world.

It will cure any case of Piles. There is a month's treatment in each box. Sold for $1.00 with absolute guarantee,

It is for sale by druggists.

FAREWELL TO DUNDONALD.

Our Chief Cities Show Popular Appreciation of Lord Dundonald.

The departure of the Earl of Dundonald from these shores to his native land, may be fittingly described as a march of triumph, a celebration of moral worth and high character by the masses, and recognition by the people of a soldier who did his whole duty in the department of public life, to the activities of which, in this country, he bore his Sovereign's commission and command. The capital of the Dominion, and our three largest cities Montreal, Toronto and Quebec almost rivalled one another in zeal and enthusiasm, to show the esteem in which their citizens held the late major general commanding our forces. No similar honor has ever before been bestowed upon an officer, on his retirement from office. Almost as one man, the country arose and protested against the action of the government in dismissing from his command, the great captain, whose rank in the list of Britain's heroes stands at the very head of the roster. In honoring Lord Dundonald Canada has been true to herself. The subject of these demonstrations can point with pride to their spontaneous character, and in his heart of hearts, he cannot fail to treasure them, and to hold them in remembrance. "Parting," says the poet, "is such a sweet sorrow," and from many lips the phrase was heard from our streets as the gallant soldier drove to the wharf to join his ship. All the way down he was cheered by the people, whose salutes he acknowledged again and again, and the city was enlivened by a monster display of flags, banners, mottoes and streamers. Of such a send-off he may well feel proud. It was a significant and touching tribute of farewell. —Quebec Chronicle.

PROROGUES SATURDAY

Result of Conference Between Leaders of the House.

Debate on Militia Bill Diverted Into New Channel—Col. Tisdale Challenges Wisdom of Several of the Changes Proposed By Sir Frederick Borden, Who Declares the Act Was Pleasing to Imperial Authorities.

Ottawa, Aug. 3.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier and R. L. Borden held a conference yesterday afternoon, at which it was decided to rush the remaining business of the session. The two parties will co-operate to bring about a prorogation next Saturday or Monday at the latest.

Debate on Militia Act.

The debate which raged all day Monday over the bill to amend the Militia Act was diverted into a new channel yesterday. Col. Tisdale proposed a number of amendments. These in effect challenged the wisdom of some of the most imporatnt changes in the act, notably the abolition of the office of G.O.C., the appointment of a military council and an inspector-general, and the subordination of the chief officers of the militia to the civil head of the department in the matter of command and discipline.

Col. Tisdale argued that the old act was preferable to the new one, a contention which Sir Frederick Borden energetically disputed. Sir Frederick declared that the old act was unworkable, and that the adoption of the new system not only promised satisfactory results in Canada, but was a source of gratification to the Imperial authorities.

Mr. Borden argued against the abolition of the G.O.C., and referring to the Minister's whole scheme, asked if we were not taking the name of the Imperial army scheme without any of the substance. The new scheme was only an experiment in England.

Col. Sam Hughes made a long argument to show that Canada's defences are not what they should be.

Mr. Logan of Cumberland demanded a change in the act that would take out of the hands of magistrates the exclusive right to call out the militia in case of riots. This point started a brisk discussion, and it was finally decided to let the bill stand over to give the Minister of Justice a chance to state his opinions.

Poor Bargain, says Haggart

The resolution authorizing the purchase of the Canada Eastern Railway by the Government for $800,000 was considered by the House last night. Mr. Emmerson claimed that the deal was in the interests of the I.C.R.

John Haggart showed that the road, though 136 miles long, earned last year only $116,000. Its net earnings were a little over $2,000. The road was in a bad state of repair, poor ties, poor rails and wooden bridges. The Government would have to at once make large expenditures to put the road in order. Mr. Haggart said it would pay the country to pitch the $800,000 into the sea and let Alexander Gibson keep the road.

Hudson Bay Fishers.

On the bill to amend the Fisheries Act by providing for the licensing of whale fishing, Hon. Mr. Prefontaine informed the House that the privilege applied only to Canadian waters had been received as follows: From Quebec 22, Nova Scotia 17, New Brunswick 1, British Columbia 11. The Government had received no applications for whaling privileges in Hudson Bay. In reply to Mr. Gourley, the Minister said there was some discussion going on at the present time with the Imperial Government as to some parts of Hudson Bay, but there was no doubt as to our jurisdiction in the bay proper.

Chance For Our Fruits.

Ottawa, Aug. 3.—A report from Commercial Agent Jackson, at Leeds, yesterday, says that there is a good opening for Canadian fruit in England. The apple crop and plum crops have been a failure.

DECLARE STRIKE BROKEN.

Most Packers Have Largest Live Stock Receipts Since July 18.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—Declaring the strike broken and that the working force has been recruited by more than 1,000 men and women, many of whom had deserted the union cause, the packers yesterday began operations with the largest receipts of live stock that have reached the stock yards since July 12, when the strike began. There were 15 cars, carrying 25,000 cattle, 35,000 hogs and 17,000 sheep, in the day's shipments from the west.

Assertions that the strike is broken were scouted by the strikers as absurd.

Thieves Use Chloroform.

Beamsville, Aug. 3.—Monday night burglars entered the house of Jacob Hoffman, about two miles south of Beamsville. Going straight to the room occupied by Mr. Hoffman, they chloroformed him, tying a handkerchief soaked with the anesthetic over his face. While he was unconscious from the effects of the drug the intruders made a most complete job of the ransacking of the whole house. Until Mr. Hoffman recovered from the effects of the drug the robbery was not discovered. A lady's gold chain, $25 in bills, four cans of fruit and a half dozen cigars were taken.

To Resist Introduction.

Winnipeg, Aug. 3.—The C.M.A. has announced that it will resist the introduction of American goods into the west.

CONSTIPATION, PAINS IN THE BACK

Caused Keen Distress at Times--Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills Made Thorough Cure.

Mr. Jas. H. Harvey, baker, 641 George street, Peterboro, Ont. states: "I was troubled very much with constipation and pains in the back. At times the pains were sharp like a stab in the back with a knife and caused me great suffering.

"I heard of many being cured by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and decided to try them. I am pleased to say that they soon helped me, and I used them right along until cured. I never have pains in my back now and only occasionally take a pill in order to keep my bowels regular."

NOTABLE BUILDING AT ST. LOUIS

The East India building, externally, follows the design of the famous mosque of Itimad-ul-Dowlah, at Agra, India. It is square in form with buttressing minarets rising from the ground at each of the four corners, the domes of which are of green or weathered copper color.

Three of the facades are alike namely, a large central archway, with three smaller arches on each side, over the first and last of which are projecting oriel windows of slender columns carrying arches with sloping eave-like roofs, covered with the same weathered copper as the minarets. This touch of color, together with the teak wood colored doors and lattice work, are in strong relief to the pure whiteness of the rest of the structure.

The ornamental designs in relief on the building, both externally and internally, are reproductions of the geometric figures to which Mohamedan architects are restricted by their law, which forbids the representation of any living creature.

The arches enter the wide corridors, which, in turn, are divided from a central court by a series of arches on each of the four sides. A balcony overhangs this court all round, whence another series of light arches rise, carrying a clere story. The sides of which are practically all glass. This gives floods of light and air and makes the building among the coolest in the Exposition. The roof, like that of most Oriental structures, is flat, and commands interesting views of the beautiful garden surrounding the French building, the Floral Clock and the Government Life Saving Station.

In the interior, rising gracefully from the centre of the court, is probably the largest, handsomest and most costly piece of wood carving ever seen at an Exposition. It was executed expressly for the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, taking sixty-five artists two years to complete. It is a reproduction of a Jain temple—a sect in Hindoo religion. This temple is thirty-five feet in height and is twenty feet at the base, being in point of size one-eighth of the original, which is of white marble and located at Palitana, Central India. In every detail the work has been entirely done by hand.

The government of India, treating this Exposition in a practical manner, has confined the display to the articles shown, and to tea, which comes into this country free of duty and which therefore may be shown and served with practical results. A similar effort was made at the Columbian Exposition at Chicago in 1893 with such markedly good results that India tea (prior to that time practically unknown in America) has become an important factor in the tea trade in the East and in Canada. The India Government's policy is consequently not experimental, as it is simply following here the same system which proved so successful at Chicago, with the additional advantage that since that time the Tea Planters of India, desirous of securing a wider market, have undertaken successfully the manufacture of green teas such as are mainly used in the middle west.

All over this beautiful building, which is redolent in every line and suggestion of the gorgeous East, in the corridors, under the arches, in the shadow of the Pagoda, on the balcony, within the oriel windows, are scattered here and there without seeming order, tables where cosy parties may seat themselves, and surrounded by all Oriental luxury and served by solemn, turbaned, East Indians, partake of the delicious and refreshing tea, the original home of which is on the slopes and spurs of the lofty Himalayas. Richard Blechynden, who has spent many years in India, and who has represented the tea planters of India in this country for the past twelve years, is the Commissioner. Fred. C. Williams, a well-known resident of New York City, is Assistant Commissioner.

CULVERWELL'S REQUEST

THAT LINDSAY CANCEL BURLEIGH FALLS MORTGAGE.

Wants to Carry Out a Scheme for the Development of the Property

(Lindsay Post.)

The Finance Committee of the Council met Saturday to deal with Mr. J. A. Culverwell's request that the $1,-000 mortgage held by the town against Burleigh Falls power be cancelled in order to enable him to carry out a scheme for the development of the property. Both Mr. Culverwell and Mr. R. J. McLaughlin, who opened negotiations at a special meeting last week, were present. Aldermen Storer, O'Reilly and Robinson were absent.

Mayor Southeran said he did not feel like giving up the mortgage without receiving an equivalent. Referring to the $400 advanced to pay expert Wright, of Toronto, His Worship said the sum had been paid on the understanding that it was to be repaid by Mr. Culverwell when the Fenelon power was brought to Lindsay. The town was out that amount, although not owing to any fault of Mr. Culverwell's planning.

The reference to the deal elicited some heated remarks from Mr. Culverwell, in whose breast the memory of that affair still rankles. He also pointed out that to bring the Burleigh power to Lindsay would cost about $.0 000 more than to take it to Peterborough, and to balance that the citizens of Lindsay should be willing to do something. The Council could give him a contract for the surplus over the fixed number of 60 street lights, and could also give him the contract for the waterworks power to operate the waterworks pumps. These contracts should be given at the price charged by the present Power Company, but he was willing to do better for private takers.

Mr. McLaughlin was heard, and after some further suggestion Mayor Southeran said it had been suggested that if Mr. Culverwell could see his way clear to give the town $1,500 of stock in his company (the Central Ontario Power Co.), in lieu of the mortgage, the town would be safe in cancelling the lieu. Mr. Culverwell was satisfied to do this, and the other members of the Council thought it an admirable way out of a difficulty that might block the securing of the power for Lindsay.

The agreement will be properly executed in the course of a few days.

In Our Grandfather's Youth

Paralysis was almost unheard of in the youth of our grandparents, and now nearly every newspaper contains a record of someone being stricken with this dreadful form of helplessness. Paralysis is in reality a starving of the nerves, and can always be prevented by the timely use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, a preparation which has no rival as a creator of nerve force.

SERVANTS ALL

And the People Have the Last Word to Say.

Referring to the unpardonable offence committed by Lord Dundonald, in appealing directly to the people of Canada, the Winnipeg Free Press says: "Despite the enlightening discussion of the past month, Lord Dundonald is still densely ignorant of the limitations of the office which he formerly held. He appears to find it impossible to get through his head the fundamental fact that he was simply the employee of the Canadian Government and no more privileged than any other civil servant to appeal to the public from the decision of his minister." But any civil servant has a right to appeal to the public. He risks his job in doing so, but if he is willing to risk his job who is to say that he has not a right to do so? "Despite the enlightening talk" and much talk that is not enlightening, some people seem to be densely ignorant of the fact that the Government itself is but a servant of the people. No one disputes the Government's right to remove Lord Dundonald; least of all does Lord Dundonald dispute that right; but surely nobody can dispute the right of the people to review the acts of the Government, or the right of the public servant to be heard in his own defence. Lord Dundonald offended the Government, the Government took its revenge; it is still the privilege of the people, it is the duty of the people, to give judgment on the question of dispute. Lord Dundonald has had his say, the Government has done its stunt; but the last word is with the people.—Woodstock Express, Indep.

method and the ability to do as he says. Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their names and addresses. He wants to hear from men who have strictures that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic trouble, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, stricture or gleet. Impotency, too. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but liberates all the complications, such as rheumatism, kidney or bladder trouble, nervousness, nervous debility, etc. The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money until he has done you good, when you are cured. He thinks that you will willingly pay him a small fee, would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interests of every man who desires in this way to write the doctor confidentially and say your case suits him, and if he accepts your case for treatment it is equivalent to a cure, as he does not undertake any case considered incurable except for treatment; and, remember, if he does accept your case you may pay when you are cured. PROGRAMME OF THE CONSERVATIVE PARTY.

Tories Have Become the Tools of the Orange Lodges—A Party to Worth What Its Principles Are Worth—Men are But Secondary

"Today the vital forces of the Conservative party are concentrated in Ontario, the only province in which it has a majority. Toronto is the Mecca of Conservatism, and the chief Tories and Orangemen are their prophets, Messrs. Borden, Casgrain, Tarte, Monk and Pelletier receive the word of command from the lodges of Ontario.

"In Ontario there are 250,000 Orangemen and they have just raised their war cry.

"Sir Wilfrid Laurier has been outrageously attacked by the Orangemen of Ontario. Such is the fate of Sir Wilfrid.

"It is by representing the Catholic religion, a hostile religion, a religion of intrigue, a religion which must be removed from the statute book and Parliament, that they declare emphatically to the Orangemen and Freemasons that Sir Wilfrid Laurier is Catholic, and that he in the first place must be removed.

"For they say yonder (referring to Ontario) that as long as Sir Wilfrid Laurier is Prime Minister, Rome will crush us.

"By the apotheosis which they are conferring upon Lord Dundonald, the Imperialist, the militarist, they seek to accomplish the political ruin of Sir Wilfrid, whom they desire to lower and to destroy if possible. Why?

"In order to place Canada under the iron rule of a permanent army, under the rule of the sword, under the rule of an army obliged to espouse the quarrels of Great Britain completely and throughout the four corners of the earth.

"Sir Wilfrid is too much of a 'Canadian' to think of anything but his country.

"That is his second crime; he is not sufficiently Imperialist.

"He is too much the friend of amity and peace to risk the loss of conflict with another nation, and he regards as absurd the expenditure of $25,000,000 or $30,000,000 in order to build forts and equip soldiers.

"It is his third crime, he is not sufficiently militarist.

"We vigorously denounce the treaty of alliance between the Conservative leaders in Ontario and the Conservative leaders in Quebec, and since the fanatical Orangemen, Conservatives Tories, and others have raised the cry or race and religion, we will proudly give them their answer.

"We are French-Canadians; we are Catholics, and we are not ashamed of it.

"We will have no fear of the result on election day when it comes.

"Will the organizer, L. P. Pelletier, take warning?

"His speech at St. Ours has been noted by the people of our province.

"It drips with treason, like every-

Letter From Andree.

Case Was Dismissed.

Stratford, Aug. 3.—King vs Mrs. Wilson. The defendant was charged with attempting to poison some cattle belonging to her neighbors, Mrs. Hodge and Mrs. Vivian, of Mitchell, by sprinkling Paris green, mixed with salt, on the roadway near her house at the west end of the town, where the cows were feeding. Judge Barron found the defendant not guilty and the case was dismissed.

Swallows and Microbes.

Swallows and other migratory birds invariably shun those places which are in the slightest degree infected by noxious microbes. Thus they are never to be found in districts where cholera, yellow fever, the plague and other epidemic diseases prevail. The districts which they select as their temporary homes are in all respects the most healthy that can be found. It is evident from this that persons who are afraid of catching cholera or other infectious diseases ought not to live in places which are shunned by these birds.

A Useless Verdict.

"Yes," said the old traveler, "I was on a jury in California once. It was a murder trial. I didn't want the fellow hanged and so stuck out against the other eleven for nine days, locked up in the jury room, when they gave in, and we brought in a verdict of 'Not guilty,' and then I was ready to stab myself with spite."

"What about?"

"'Cause the mob had hanged the prisoner on the very first day we were locked up."

Enjoy What You Can.

To be soured by poverty or to be hardened by it is a mistake—an error of thought. Instead of enjoying our life we are cramping ourselves. It is as if we were set at a feast and sullenly refused to enjoy a few dishes because we could not reach everything on the table and make ourselves sick, like foolish children that we are.

A Telling Stroke.

The hare easily caught up with the tortoise. "Well, old man, you're not much of a runner," he sneered.

"No," admitted the tortoise, "I'm not. I think I'll try for the crew. You see, I'm quite at home in the shell."

A Distinction.

"Can a man patent a scientific discovery?" asked the commercial person.

"It isn't usually done," answered the scientist. "But some of them ought to be copyrighted as literary productions."

CAPTAIN AND CREW WERE NOT NEGLIGENT

So Found the Coroner's Jury Which Enquired Into the Circumstances Surrounding the Drowning of the Late Olive Kidd--Recommend More Secure Fastenings.

Capt and crew not negligent

We, the jurors sworn to inquire into the death of Olive Kidd, find that she came to her death by accident, falling off the steamer "North Star," on the night of July 25th, 1906, and we fully exonerate the captain and the crew from negligence in the matter, as passengers are not allowed on that part of the boat. We respectfully recommend that more secure fastenings be provided for the railings, both fore and aft, and that notices be put up forbidding passengers to be in these places.

The above was the verdict returned by the Coroner's Jury empanelled to enquire into the death by drowning of Miss Olive Kidd, from the steamer North Star while it was returning from a moonlight excursion, under the auspices of the Charlotte-st. Guild, on the evening of Monday, July 24th. Prior to meeting in the Council Chamber the jury examined that part of the steamer's bow from which Miss Kidd fell overboard. It is surrounded by a railing of 3-4 inch pipe, supported by stanchions, on the top of which are sockets through which the pipe passes. A section of the railing is removable to allow passengers to embark, and this is immediately in front of the cabin, and held in place by a keeper, on the side of the cabin. It appears from the evidence that Miss Kidd had hold of this section when it gave way, and her support being gone, she fell into the water. Steamboat inspectors gave evidence to the effect that it was not absolutely necessary for a steamer engaged in passenger and freight traffic to have a railing on the bow or stern other than what would be necessary to keep the freight or the crew from falling off, and that passengers should not frequent such parts of these boats. They pointed out that responsibility rested with the captain and crew if proper warning was not given. Evidence was taken also from several who were on the boat at the time the accident occurred, and from their statements it appears that no great weight was put upon the railing by Miss Kidd, and that it collapsed very suddenly, whereas, on the other hand, evidence was given to the effect that a hammer was required to drive the railing into place when the boat left the dock. Mr. R. E. Wood conducted the examination for the Crown, and Mr. G. W. Hatton for the steamboat owners.

Mr. W. R. Davis, of Kingston, was the first called to give evidence, and upon being sworn, he said:—"I am Government inspector of steamboat hulls and equipment. I inspected the North Star on the 20th of July, at Peterborough. I examined the upper railing and that at the stern, but there was no railing in place at the bow, which was clear except for a small wooden rail three or four inches high. I knew there was a protection for the bow, but I understood it had been removed to facilitate the handling of freight. I knew the manner of construction of the boat. Mr. W. C. Harris is, I think, the registered owner, and he was present at the time, but nothing passed between us this year about the railing at the bow. In other years I had inspected that part. I drew the owner's attention to the fact that the rail was not what it ought to be, but knowing that he wanted it so that it could be taken off to help in handling freight, and not being a part frequented by passengers, we did not want to be too hard on him. The railing was of pipe, supported by the standards, at the top of which were ties, through which the railing was passed, whether in sections or continuously, I cannot say. It was supposed to be put up sufficiently strong to prevent freight or the crew from falling overboard. As far as I know the railing closed at about two or three feet from the cabin. This portion of the boat should be forbidden to passengers, and the captain and mate are, I consider, the men responsible for the proper management of the boat. If an accident happened, I should think they would be the ones responsible. On a small boat such as this there has to be a certain amount of room for freight. Very often a warning notice is put up, but we keep pegging away at the owners of boats to such an extent that we hardly know what to do. A steamboat equipped and fitted out for passengers and freight, having a dangerous part, should be properly guarded. I don't think it was my duty to see that the railing was properly fastened. There is nothing in our law that requires us to do so when other parts of the boat intended for passengers are properly equipped, as is the case with the North Star. Such a boat must have a place for heavy freight. I think I made a close inspection of the railing on top of the cabin. I would not be surprised at a statement to the effect that the rear railing was not in good condition, but it was all right when I inspected it. At the time of our inspection I notified the captain verbally to put a railing on the outside of the stairs leading from the cabin to the deck at the rear, but I do not know whether it was put in or not. If the North Star was a strictly passenger boat we might insist upon it having strongly protected ends. Being also a freight boat we could not reasonably insist upon this. When I inspected the steamer there was a piece missing from the rear railing. This I instructed the owner to make good. There is an entrance to the boat in the centre, and it is not necessary for passengers to enter at the ends, nor are the latter portions of the boat proper places for the people to congregate.

Even in passenger boats we find it difficult at times to see that orders are properly carried out with regard to the strengthening of weak parts, and we are particularly emphatic with regard to railings. We are doing our best to bring about conditions making for the greatest possible security. We see that a boat is safe for traffic, equipped for service, and there is no one to see for a twelve month whether the law is carried out or not. My district is from Kingston to Montreal, and I have about two hundred boats to look after. I will guarantee that if a boat is not according to the certificate it is because orders have not been carried out. This is a particular case, and the boat was left that way to accommodate the freight service of the boat.

To Mr. Hatton—This is my fourth inspection of the North Star. I have never said that the railing on the boat was safe for passengers, but if it was in the same condition as last year it would be sufficient, considering the duty required of the boat. The stairs at the stern which I refer to, is more for the service of the crew, and not for general traffic. The crew of this boat would consist of an engineer, captain, mate and deck hand, and I understand the North Star was properly manned. It is not so that I withheld the certificate, and I don't think I would be justified in doing so. The reporter of the Kingston Whig made a mistake on this point. It is difficult to manage a moonlight excursion, and if the crowd entered upon the bow in violation of all precautions, the captain would hardly be blameable.

Mr. Thos. Donnelly, of Kingston, who was once a Government inspector of hulls and equipment, deposed that he inspected the North Star when she was first built and for two years afterward. I remember how the boat was protected fore and aft. There was a small iron railing set in stanchions about 28 inches in length, set in a foundation of oak, and surrounding the bow and stern. At first they fitted quite firmly, though being removable. From the rear stanchion to the cabin at the bow was a movable section of pipe, one end being held in the socket and the other is flattened and fits into a keeper in the cabin. This part of the boat is not intended for passengers, but for freight, and the railing prevents the latter or the crew from falling over. The stern should also be forbidden to passengers, and the crew should warn them accordingly. On large boats there are certain portions of the deck forbidden to passengers and warnings are put up, but it is not so customary on small boats.

To Mr. Hatton—If the railing at the time of the accident was the same as when I inspected it I would consider it safe. If the captain had warned people several times on this night he would have done his duty. I am examiners of masters and mates for the Dominion Government and gave Mr. Harris his certificates. I consider him a careful and excellent navigator. I have known him since 1899. The bow of such a boat would not be safe for children unless there was something to prevent them from getting under the railing. Children of thirteen or fourteen should not, I think, be allowed there without a warning at least.

Miss Letitia Elliott, deposed: I was on the Young Men's Guild moonlight excursion. I was on the bow of the boat at the time of the accident. The male quartette was on the bow—Mr. Frye, Mr. Jolliffe and two others—and some girls whom I know—Marian Lyle, Ruby Clegg, Olie Kidd—and others whom I was not acquainted with, who were sitting on boards laid above each other on the deck. I did not see the accident and do not know what Miss Kidd was doing. I think some one was speaking to her from the upper deck. She was sitting on the right hand side of the boat, coming up the river. To Mr. Hatton—I am certain Miss Kidd was on the right hand side of the boat and I heard the splash. I afterwards saw the place where she fell off and the railing was gone. I had been on the bow about twenty-five minutes, but received no warning not to go there. The male quartette and several others were on that part of the boat and it was pretty crowded.

Marion Lyle deposed that she was on the bow of the boat with the last witness at the time of the accident. There were two men sitting right behind Olive Kidd when she went overboard. She was to my left when we were coming up the river. I was looking toward the east, Miss Kidd was sitting down; I don't know what she was doing, but I noticed her as she was falling into the water. I heard a man say that someone was overboard. Miss Kidd was sitting on the timber head about a foot from the railing and facing the water when I last noticed her on the boat, less than five minutes before the accident.

To Mr. Hatton—There was a man behind Miss Kidd and he was about to get up and she moved. This was shortly before the accident.

Mr. Robt. Dormer deposed: I am one of the male quartette spoken of, and had not been long on the bow of the boat before the accident happened. The boat had gone down about six miles and the accident happened about ten minutes after the boat turned. I saw a young girl who I thought was Miss Kidd place her hands on the railing and go over into the water. The rear part of the railing next the cabin was missing after the accident. It was there before, and the front end of the second section of railing stuck out over the water. I did not see or hear her speaking to anyone, nor do I know what she was doing before the accident happened. I think she was talking to Mr. Morris, who of two or three men was the nearest to her at the time of the accident. The boat immediately stopped and search was made but without success.

To Mr. Hatton—I cannot say whether or not she had any weight upon the railing. I saw the rail I refer to put in place at the dock and noticed it previous to the accident. It was on the left hand side of the boat I was not forbidden to go on that part of the boat. The moon was bright.

Miss Beatrice Laney, deposed: I was near Olive Kidd on the night of the accident. I saw her sitting on the timber head and I think she had one or both hands on the railing in front of the stanchion about a foot away and her hand slid down until she had no support and went into the water. I could not see the other section immediately in front of the cabin. I thought it swung back and remained there until it was put in place again. At this time I was on the deck above Miss Kidd. She had spoken to me a few minutes before; probably seven or eight minutes.

To Mr. Gray and Mr. Hatton witness stated that Miss Kidd had her hand on the section of railing nearest to the cabin. I do not think what Mr. Dormer said is correct about her taking a step and laying her hand upon the railing.

Mr. R. N. Jolliffe deposed:—I was on the bow of the boat on the night of the accident; had been there 15 or 20 minutes. There were in all fourteen or fifteen there after the boat turned. There were a few there going down. The quartette was the farthest out in the bow. I did not see the accident.

Mr. Robt. Reid was on the boat on the night of the accident and was in the wheelhouse with the captain. He said—"I heard him warn the people on the bow several times—at the dock, crossing the lake and at the locks—but could not see whether any left that part of the boat or not. I was in the wheelhouse at the time of the accident. I cannot say that people were in the bow all the time but they were there off and on. The captain could see the people quite readily but would have his business to attend to. I heard his mate warn the people. The mate and myself put the railing in at the dock and had to hammer it in. This was the part missing after the accident.

Mr. R. J. Kidd, deposed—I was on the boat on the night of the accident. The body of my daughter was found about a quarter of a mile, it is considered, below where the accident happened, and just about 60 hours afterwards. There was a clot of blood on the side of the face and it appeared bloated. I helped to take the body into the boat. I do not think there was much hammering to get that rod into the boat, nor did it appear hard for the sections to be removed. I noticed this after the accident.

ODDFELLOWS' EXCURSION

Enjoy a visit to Uncle Sam and take a trip across Lake Ontario to Rochester with Oddfellows of Otonabee Lodge No. 12. on the Civic Holiday, Aug. 13 Good for three days. Price only $1.80. Excursionists may remain over Sunday by paying single, railway fare, 95c, from Port Hope on return. 1d

PERMISSION GRANTED

By Government for 57th. Regt. to Visit Barrie.

In the Militia Orders issued yesterday the 57th Regiment, of town, is granted leave to visit Barrie from the 2nd to 5th of September, inclusive.

Arrangements for the trip are now complete, as announced by Lt.-Col. J. W. Miller on Sunday, after the church parade, and everything points to a good time in the pretty northern town. The regiment will leave here on Friday evening, September 2nd, and return on Monday evening, Sept. 5th.

It is likely that orders will be issued immediately for the holding of a few drills previous to the trip, as the "troop" is to be performed, and the regiment must sustain the good reputation they already hold.

A BANANA FAMINE.

The Fruit Stores Appear Unable to Get an Adequate Supply.

There is at present a famine of bananas in town and the people who live on this fruit may expect to be going around gaunt and hollow-eyed if the situation is not immediately relieved. The vendors explain that even in Toronto there is a dearth of bananas, and that is a somewhat remarkable condition at this time of the year, when they are generally very plentiful and cannot be sold quickly enough. Minocolo Bros state that they have not been apprised of any failure in the crop, but that the supply does not appear to be equal to the demand, and it is also their opinion that someone may be trying to corner the market. It is an extraordinary thing to see no bunch of big yellow beans hanging from a string in front of the fruit stores. stores. There is every other kind of fruit in great plentitude. It is expected that a fresh supply of bananas will arrive in a few days.

Card of Thanks.

I wish—and Mrs. Kidd joins with me—to most heartily thank the many kind friends who unhesitatingly gave of their time and attention in searching for the body of late daughter, Olive. We also appreciate the untiring efforts put forth by Captain Harris to further the object of the search. To the very many kind friends who sent floral tributes and expressions of sympathy we are most deeply grateful.

Sons of England's New Trip.

The Sons of England have gallantly joined hands with the Daughters of England in a joint excursion on Civic Holiday, August 13th, to Lindsay, Sturgeon Point and Bobcaygeon. Special arrangements have been entered into with the G.T.R. for an early train to leave Peterborough at 8.25 a. m., so as to connect in Lindsay with the fine steamer Esturion for Sturgeon Point and Bobcaygeon. The tickets are only a dollar for adults, and 50 cents for children. This is not a new alliance so far as the parties of the first and secon parts are concerned, but it's a new trip for them, and it's going to be a "Rule Britannia" one.

Each August brings the Civic Holiday. Each Civic Holiday the Foresters' Excursion to Toronto and Niagara Falls. You'll miss the trip of the year if you do not take it. Only $2.05 to Toronto. $2.20 to Niagara Falls. See posters and programmes. 1d

—"That's the first time the Guards ever 'went up in the air,'" said one of the officers who has an Irish name, as the boat descended from the lift lock.—Ottawa Free Press.

—The collection which is being taken up at St. Joseph's Hospital now amounts to $1,425.00. This sum will doubtless be considerably augmented when the returns are all in.

—At the police court this morning an assault case came up before James Stevenson, J.P. After hearing the case he decided to reserve his judgment until to-morrow morning.

—James E. Clarke, jr., has purchased the O'Hara property in Fraserville, and will rent his farm and retire for life. Mrs. O'Hara leaves at once for Ireland.

—An excursion party came up by boat from Keene to-day, but were unable to go over the lift-lock, as it was their intention. The boat had to be lowered again, and the boat returned down the river.

—There will be a practice of George street church choir on Thursday evening at eight o'clock sharp, when it is desired that every member be present. Miss Winnifred Dobbin will preside at the organ for a few weeks until a permanent appointment is made.

—Typographical Union, No. 248, of Peterborough, will hold their annual excursion to Jubilee Point on the afternoon of August 15th. The committee having details in hand have arranged that members of the union and friends and the business staffs of the several offices will participate. No doubt an enjoyable day will be the outcome. The local papers will go to press early so as to clear up things and leave the afternoon.

—The Bobcaygeon Independent says, "A distinguished party of American engineers passed through on Saturday, the guests of Mr. R. B. Rogers, who took them on the Calumet by courtesy of Mr. Boyd. New York State recently voted one hundred millions for the improvement of the Erie canal, and these gentlemen are from the Advisory Board on the construction. Their visit was mainly to inspect the lift lock at Peterborough, as there are several places on the Erie where similar lifts might be operated advantageously. They were greatly pleased and surprised with the varied beauty and extent of the Kawartha Lakes and much gratified with the hospitality and good fellowship given them during their visit."

SECOND DAY'S RACING

STRAIGHT HEATS IN PACING AND TROTTING EVENTS.

Minnie Keswick and Rob Roy Carry Off the Winning Honors—Keenly Contested Running Race.

The second day's racing at the Driving Park was in the opinion of a good many even more interesting than the first. The fact that Monday afternoon was a half holiday had helped to swell the attendance on opening day, but there was a fairly large crowd Tuesday, and the events were exciting. There were three events, the 2.29 class pace or trot; the 2.24 class pace or trot and three-quarter mile running race. The entries for the first were Ernie Hunter, owned by Abbott, of Coldwater; Minnie Keswick, owned by Curtis, of Lindsay; Nellie Bay, by Hambly, of Gananoque; Jim Watson, by Grey, of Barrie, and Headlight, by Acton, of Gananoque. For the 2.24 class there were Commodore K., owned by Dennison, of Coldwater; John R. Gentry, by Brooks, of town; Rob Roy, by Powell, of Orillia, and Robt. Henry, by Brown, of Niagara Falls. Only five horses entered the running race, and as a barrier was used, little difficulty was experienced in getting them away. The starters were Michaelmas, by Brewer, of Toronto; Demanton, by McGinnis, of Toronto; Mike Clancy, by Elwood, of Toronto; Logan Landuman, by Boland, of Owen Sound; Golden Cascade, by Paterson, of Toronto.

The first heat of the 2.29 class was very exciting. Ernie Hunter had the pole, with Nellie Bay second, Minnie Keswick third and Jim Watson fourth. Headlight was drawn. Ernie Hunter maintained a lead until the third quarter, when coming down the home stretch Minnie Keswick put on a fine spurt and finished by half a head. It was very exciting. The horses, with the exception of Nellie Boy, were all very closely bunched. The time was 2.24 1-2.

In the second heat Minnie Keswick took the lead from the first and held it until the finish, at no time being in danger. Hunter took second place in the first quarter, but Watson stepped into second place and held it. The horses were all well bunched in the fourt quarter, when Nellie Boy created some excitement by stepping in lead of Hunter for 3rd place. The time was 2.24 1-2.

The order in the first quarter of the third heat was Keswick, Watson, Hunter and Nellie Bay. There was little change in the order during the remaining three-quarters, but it was a very pretty race, the Lindsay horse having plenty of speed and stepping out from the bunch in a fine finish. The time of the final heat was 2.26, and the money went: Minnie Keswick, 1st; Watson, 2nd; Hunter, 3rd; Nellie Boy, 4th. The Lindsay horse has made a very fine record in the races, winning her events on both days in straight heats. Following is the summary:—

Jim Watson, b.g.	3	2	2
Ernie Hunter, b.g.	2	4	3
Nellie Boy, b.m.	4	3	4

The 2.24 class also furnished great excitement. The honors went to Geo. Powell's Rob Roy, which won handily in straight heats. This speedy gelding had the pole at the start, with Connors' Blucher 2nd, John R. Gentry third, Commodore K fourth, and Robert Henry fifth. The finish of the first quarter was the same, except that Gentry took Blucher's place at second, and on the end of the first half the horses drew very close, and in the third quarter Gentry looked to be giving Rob Roy a pretty good race for first place. On the home stretch Blutcher showed his metal by stepping in for second place, and won it by a fairly good margin. The time of the heat was 2.24 1-4.

In the first and second quarters of the second heat the order was Rob Roy, Blutcher, Henry, Gentry and the Commodore. At the close of the first lap, however, the Niagara Falls horse stepped into second, and for the remainder of the heat gave Rob Roy an interesting time of it. Commodore K also sprung a surprise by finishing third, with Blucher fourth and Gentry fifth. The time was 2.24 1-4.

It was a race between Rob Roy and Henry for first place in the third heat, but Powell's horse was more than equal to the occasion. In getting away Commodore K's sulky met with an accident, the left wheel being smashed to such an extent that the rubber tire came off, and just at the finish the wheel collapsed entirely. A keen contest took place between Rob Roy and Henry for first place on the home stretch, but the Orillia horse had the wire cinched, and the race ended as follows:—Rob Roy, 1st; Robt. Henry 2nd; Blutcher 3rd; John R. Gentry, 4th and Commodore K. This was also the division of the money. In the last heat it looked from the spectators' pavillion as if Rob Roy see-sawed Henry on the home stretch. The explanation given to the judges was apparently satisfactory, and the finish was announced accordingly. Following is the summary:—

Rob Roy, b.g.	1	1	1
Robert Henry, b.g.	4	2	2
Blucher, blk. g.	2	4	3
John R. Gentry, blk. s.	3	5	4
Commodore K, g.g.	5	5	5

Time, 224 1-4, 2.22 1-4; 2.24 3-4.

The three-quarter mile running race was very exciting. The barrier as a starter is somewhat of a success when compared with the flagging process, which kept the people waiting on the first day. It was hardly satisfactory to Demanton, however, for the bunch was away before he, in his frisky mood, had got a good look in. The first heat finished with Michaelmas first, Mike Clancy second, Golden Cocade 3rd, Golden Landman 4th, and Demanton 5th. Clancy made a fine bid for first place, and in fact, held it for the first half, but evidently could not hold the gait. In the second heat Demanton got a fine start and led the bunch for more than a quarter, when Michaelmas came third, and the Owen Sound horse fourth. This was also the division of the money. The summary:—

Demanton	5	2
Mike Clancy	2	3
Logan Landuman	3	4
Golden Cocade	4	5

Time, 1.16 1-2, 1.16 1-2.

The events for this afternoon promise to be the most interesting of the three days' meet.

PRISONS OF SILENCE.

Where Convicts Ever Wear Shrouds and Sleep Beside Coffins.

Entombed in a grim castle on the outskirts of Lisbon are some of the most miserable men on earth. These are the inmates of Portugal's deadly prisons of silence. In this building everything that human ingenuity can suggest to render the lives of its prisoners a horrible, maddening torture is done. The corridors, piled tier on tier five stories high, extend from a common center like the spokes of a huge wheel. The cells are narrow, tomb-like, and within each stands a coffin. The prison garb is a shroud. The attendants creep about in felt slippers. No one is allowed to utter a word. The doors are unlocked, and the hal. a thousand wretches march out, clothed in shrouds ..nd with faces covered by masks, for it is a part of this hideous punishment that none may look upon the countenances of his fellow prisoners. Few of them endure this torture for more than ten years.

A Five Days' Love Story.

At the present time we are always talking about the rush and hurry of the twentieth century. Are we really so rapid as we think we are? Certainly few girls of fourteen have anything like the amount of experience and emotion in many weeks of life that Juliet, Shakespeare's heroine, had crammed into five days and a half.

The time is thus apportioned: On Sunday the ball took place, and on Monday Romeo and Juliet were married. On Tuesday Juliet took the draft, and on Wednesday she was placed in the tomb. On Thursday Romeo returned, and on Friday the hapless pair committed suicide.

The Japanese Baby.

The Japanese baby's head is shaved in a curious fashion, and never, under any circumstances, does the mother or baby wear a hat or bonnet. Nor does he wear shoes, even in the coldest weather, but his shaven head and his pink toes peep out from the mother's garments, and he rides pickapack, strapped on tightly, happy, chubby, smiling always and dressed, when he is allowed to get out of the binding garments, in the most dainty of kimonos, all embroidered and painted and decorated with the designs which are supposed to typify the final trade or occupation of the infant.

Amusing a Boston Baby.

Mrs. Beanster—Mr. Johnson, won't you please amuse the baby for about five minutes? Mr. Johnson (not of Boston)—I'm afraid I don't know how, Mrs. Beanster. Mrs. Beanster—Just talk a little. She always finds your western grammatical peculiarities so amusing.

His Mistakes.

"I pity the man who can't learn anything from his own mistakes. Now, that's one thing I can do," said Bragg.

"Ah! You're always learning something then, aren't you?" replied Knox.—Exchange.

One radical difference between a boy and a girl is that the girl can get enthusiastic about a treeful of cherry blossoms without thinking of the cherries.

A Mean Bank.

"Madam, you've already overdrawn your account."

"What's that?"

"You haven't any more money in the bank."

"The idea! A fine bank, I think, to be out of money because of the little I've drawn! Well, I'll go somewhere else."

A Philosopher.

Rivers—What do you do when you wake up in the night with jumping toothache? Brooks—I try to be thankful it isn't galloping consumption.

Trying to Forget It.

Mifkins—Hello, old man! What do you think of that cigar I gave you last night? Bifkins—Don't ask me to think. I'm trying to forget it.

Let those who complain of having to work undertake to do nothing. If this does not convert them, nothing will.

The Englishwoman's Latchkey.

Talking about the British aristocracy, a woman who has met it on its native heath tells me that the feminine section of it never stirs out without a latchkey. We carry latchkeys over here, but we don't do it in the British way. The American woman ties her key in the corner of her handkerchief or hides it under the mat or puts it into her purse along with cold cream recipes and car tickets and samples. The Englishwoman parades hers. The woman who knows her tells me that she has seen latchkeys set with precious stones and fastened to long chains. She has seen them gilded and strung from belts; she has seen them with pins on the back of them, worn as brooches. She tells me that the Englishwoman would no sooner leave her latchkey at home than her husband would his bath. The thing is possibly new to the Englishwoman and, being new, is paraded. With us over here it is an old story. Possessing the reality, the symbol is of small moment to us. We are content to leave the latchkey under the mat.

A Philosopher as a Fisherman.

Herbert Spencer once won a curious wager. He was staying for a fishing holiday in the house of Sir Francis Powell, the president of the Scottish academy, and while angling for trout he happened to drop his eyeglasses into a deep pool of the river. In the evening he related his misadventure to his host and the guests, and said that he was prepared to bet that he would recover the pince-nes from the bottom of the pool. His friends declared that this was an impossible feat, but Herbert Spencer still offered to make the bet. His challenge was accepted by one of the visitors. Upon the following evening Spencer returned to the house with the missing eyeglasses. He had fastened a strong magnet on the end of his fishing line and fished for the glasses until it came into contact with their steel rims.

Floating Targets of the Sea.

Even the French and British warships that patrol the Newfoundland coast during the fishery season do not escape the danger of icebergs, crowded with men and carefully navigated though the vessels are. The ice masses serve a novel purpose for the fleets all the summer through, being used as targets for big gun practice. When a specially formidable one drifts along past St. John's a cruiser slips her moorings and runs to sea after it, pelting it with projectiles until she fires away her allowance. It is one of the sights of St. John's, the endless procession of icebergs of every size and shape that drift by day after day, charming the eye and cooling the summer atmosphere. Sometimes they ground in the harbor mouth and prevent ships entering or leaving.—F. T. McGrath in McClure's.

Palestine.

When one thinks of the great events that have taken place in the Holy Land, the multitude of cities, villages and towns, the countless millions who have been born there and whose bones now lie in its rock ribbed hills, the small dimensions of Palestine are almost startling. West of the Jordan, where most of the historic events took place, there are only 3,800 square miles, including all the geographical divisions now called Palestine. Including the land both east and west of the Jordan, the total area is 9,840 square miles. The length of Palestine from north to south is about 150 miles. It varies in breadth from twenty-three to eighty miles.

Wanted None of His Art.

At a dinner in London, Theodore Watts-Dunton said: "It isn't generally known that Turner, the painter, and Dr. Augustus Pritchard once lived together for a year in Cheyne row. The painter and the physician had a fine garden, and they took a good deal of pride in their flowers. But the garden gate did not work well, and one day Turner, because it wouldn't open, pettishly gave orders that it be nailed up. It was thought that this odd act would enrage Augustus Pritchard, but, on being told of it, all he said was, 'Oh, well, I don't care what Turner does to the gate, so long as he doesn't paint it.'"

Colds.

Every one knows when he contracts a cold on the chest. Not so with cold in the kidneys and bowels. The kidneys, however, are the weak point in many men and women nowadays, and they may be well protected by wearing a roll of white flannel, which should be about a foot wide and go twice around the waist for winter and once for summer. Try it, reader, if you have any tendency to bladder or kidney trouble.—Exchange.

The Encore.

"That's it!" exclaimed Mrs. Bascom at the concert as the singers came out again in response to an encore. "Make 'em do it over again until they get the thing right."

On Trial.

John—How many servants do you keep? James—Keep? We don't keep any. About two a week come to try us.—New York Tribune.

INVESTING MONEY.

Be Sure of Your Scheme Before You Risk Your Savings.

Don't tie yourself or your money up. Don't risk all your savings in any scheme, no matter how much it may promise. Don't invest your hard earned money in anything without first making a thorough and searching investigation. Do not be misled by those who tell you that it is "now or never" and that if you wait you are liable to lose the best thing that ever came to you. Make up your mind that if you lose your money you will not lose your head and that you will not invest in anything until you thoroughly understand all about it. There are plenty of good things waiting. If you miss one there are hundreds of others. People will tell you that the opportunity will go by and you will lose a great chance to make money if you do not act promptly. But take your time and investigate. Make it a cast iron rule never to invest in any enterprise until you have gone to the very bottom of it, and if it is not so sound that level headed men will put money in it do not touch it. The habit of investigating before you embark in any business will be a happiness protector and an ambition protector as well.—Orison Swett Marden in Success.

BITING THE THUMB.

In "Romeo and Juliet" the servants of Capulet and Montague begin a quarrel by one biting his thumb at the others. Commentators have regarded this act as an insult, quoting the following passage from Decker's "Dead Term:" "What swearing is there, what shouldering, what jostling, what jeering, what biting of thumbs to beget quarrels!"

Sir Walter Scott, however, in a note to the "Lay of the Last Minstrel," says, "To bite the thumb or the glove seems not to have been considered upon the border as a gesture of contempt, though so used by Shakespeare, but as a pledge of mortal revenge." It was thus accounted to be a solemn assurance that at the proper time the sword should settle the dispute or purge the offense.

Something of the sort may have prevailed among the Romans, for it is thought that the Latin polliceri, to promise, is derived from pollex, the thumb.

In cases of diphtheria onions in the form of a poultice and a sirup are said to have an almost magical effect. The poultice in this case is made of the raw onion pounded to a pulp and bandaged around the throat well up to the ears, changing as often as the mass becomes dry. A poultice of the same on the sole of each foot reduces the fever. The mucilaginous properties of onion juice make it specially soothing to the inflamed mucous membrane and therefore acceptable in case of whooping cough, croup or diphtheria. An excellent way to make the sirup is to cut the onion into slices, sprinkle plentifully with sugar and press between hot plates and a heavy weight until all the juice is extracted.

Mirror, Crystal and Sword.

The three symbols of the imperial house of Japan are the mirror, the crystal and the sword, and they are carried in front of the emperor on all state occasions. Each has its significance. "Look at the mirror and reflect thyself," or, in other words, "Know thyself," is the message of the mirror. "Be pure and shine" is the crystal's injunction, while the sword is a reminder to "Be sharp."

The Search For Success.

This is my advice to young men seeking for success: Fix your eye on England, fix it on Alaska, fix it on the moon, collect beetles, desire iron tickets, demand lost boot laces, die for dead cats—do any of these things and you may have your will. But do not fix your dreams upon success, for the bones of those dreamers are wrecks along the shore.—G. K. Chesterton in London News.

Usually.

It is usually the young woman who wouldn't have the best man in the world who snaps at the first offer, and the man who is the most cynical about matrimony is pretty sure to propose to the first woman who gives him an opportunity.

Flint and Steel.

Mrs. Highmore (with cold dignity)—To what am I indebted for the honor of this visit? Unexpected Caller—To your careless servant, perhaps, madam. I dare say she forgot that you were not at home.

The Truth.

"Mr. Hardup must have used a great deal of flattery to win the heiress."

"No; he simply told her the truth."

"Indeed?"

"Yes; he said he couldn't live without her."

Spiteful.

Miss Oldgirl—I don't like the color of my hair. Miss Youngthing—Don't let that bother you, my dear. It can't be long now before it turns gray.

Hair Raising.

Just when the mutilation of the dead by tearing the skin from the head began will never be known, for the origin is lost in the midst of ages, the record extending back beyond even the mythical period of man's existence. In the book of Maccabees it is recorded that at the termination of one of the battles of which that bloody history is so full the victorious soldiers tore the skin from the heads of their vanquished foes. This would be evidence that the custom of scalp taking was one of the indulgences even of those people of whom we have record in the Bible.

Be it as it may, it is an established fact that the custom is a universal one, so far as savage man is concerned. Whether ethnologists can build a theory of a common origin of man from this or not, or whether this can be taken as an evidence that the Indians are the descendants of the lost Israelite tribes because of their habit of securing mementos of hair from their fallen enemies, is something time alone will develop. Be that as it may, it is a fact that all Indian tribes, to a certain extent, scalp their enemies who have fallen in battle.—London Globe.

Curious Fact in Natural History.

An incident which will be interesting to naturalists is told in a recent number of the Scotsman. One of the foresters in the employ of the Marquis of Lothian was returning from his work when he noticed a wild duck flying from a larch tree. On close examination he observed a common brown owl looking down from what appeared to be a nest in the cleft of the tree about thirty feet from the ground and apparently near the place from which the duck had flown. Curiosity prompted him to climb to the place, which he did with great difficulty. The owl on his approach flew off, and to his surprise he found in the nest two eggs—an owl's and a wild duck's. It is not uncommon for both owls and ducks to build their nests high up on trees, but it is unheard of for one nest to be appropriated by both birds.

A Clever Minister.

"To the town of Norridgewock, in Maine," said a clergyman, "a strange minister once came to preach. He preached duly, and after the sermon was over he mingled with the congregation, expecting that some one would invite him to dinner. One by one, however, the congregation departed, offering the hungry minister no hospitality, and he began to feel anxious. Where was he to eat? As the last deacon was leaving the church the minister rushed up to him and shook him warmly by the hand.

"'I want you to come home and dine with me,' the minister said.

"'Why, where do you live?' said the deacon.

"'About thirty miles from here.'

"The deacon reddened. 'Oh, you come and dine with me instead,' he said."

A Gypsy Prophecy.

An English magazine relates a curious instance of gypsy prophecy. The third Earl of Malmesbury, as Lord Fitzharris, was riding to a yeomanry review near Christchurch, when his orderly, some distance in front, ordered a gypsy woman to open a gate. The gypsy woman quietly waited till Lord Fitzharris and his staff rode up, when she addressed them, saying, "Oh, you think you are a lot of fine fellows now, but I can tell you that one day your bones will whiten in that field." Lord Fitzharris laughed and asked her whether she thought they were going to have a battle, adding it was not very likely in that case they would choose such a spot. More than forty years later the field was turned into a cemetery.

A Country of Linguists.

Almost every native of Iceland, even the peasants and fishermen, can speak at least one foreign language besides his local Danish dialect. Some years ago it became a fad to study languages, and now a person speaking only one tongue is looked down upon as extremely ignorant. English leads; then come German and French. Papers in these three languages are read extensively in Iceland and may be found in all the village reading rooms.

The Head and Feet.

The connection between the head and feet is well known. A hot head is ordinarily relieved by a hot footbath. So cold feet tend to congest the brain and other internal organs. Sometimes cold feet are caused by tight lacing or tight fitting shoes. But it is as much a suicidal act to hasten death by compressing the lungs or the feet as by compressing the neck with a rope.

A Serious Decision.

Beatrix (aged six, after remaining in deep thought for quite two minutes, addressing her mother, who has been choosing frocks for her)—Mummy, dear, before you buy the frocks, I've thought it all over, and I think I'd rather be a boy.—London Tit-Bits.

Confined to His Room.

Benefactor—How is your husband now, my dear woman? Poor Woman—I am sorry to say, sir, he is confined to his room. Benefactor—Could I see him? Poor Woman—Possibly, sir, if you applied at the county jail.

The Leopard and the Kid.

To illustrate how perfectly he had the animal under control Professor Bach of Berlin once put a live kid in the cage with a leopard. Then the professor fixed his glittering eye on the savage beast and willed that he should remain quiescent. There was something wrong with the thought transference, for the leopard immediately changed his spots, and so did the kid. A bleat, a growl and a crunch, and the illustration was ruined.

Milk and Bright's Disease.

A physician suffering with Bright's disease and weighing 155 pounds began to restrict himself exclusively to a milk diet, taking one quart at each meal, or three quarts daily. Soon no traces of his former ailment was perceptible. He gained thirty pounds in flesh, and this notwithstanding constant attention to professional duties both day and night.—Chicago News.

An Experienced Opinion.

Father—Daughter, Algernon Von Spook wants to marry you. Daughter—What! That man! Why, papa, I wouldn't have him. He hasn't any sense. Father—Of course not; of course not. You don't suppose he would be wanting to get married if he had, do you?

Got It.

"Fact is," said the one man, "I married because I was lonely as much as for any other reason. To put it tersely, I married for sympathy."

"Well," said the other man, "you have mine."

DOWN LADDER TO DEATH

Six Men Dropped Dead in Succession Without Warning.

Most Disastrous Mine Accident New Ontario Has Ever Had Occurred on Tuesday Morning at Shakespeare Mine at Webbwood—No Chance of Rescue—Manager MacMillan, a Victim, Only a Week in Office.

Sault Ste. Marie, Aug. 3.—So far as loss of life is concerned the most disastrous mine accident New Ontario has ever had occurred yesterday forenoon at the Shakespeare Mine, near Webbwood, east of here. Six men are dead as a result of it, including the manager and chief mine engineer. Their names are:

N. MacMillan, Soo, mine manager; Peter Reid, Little Current, mine engineer; John Walters, John Disby, Webbwood, miners; Peter Grant, Marstay, miner; Edward Latour, miner.

The heavy casualty list was caused by fumes gathering at the bottom of the mine shaft, following upon a blast. The shaft is 10 feet deep and perpendicular. Ladders are used for ascending and descending. The men who went down to their death in the morning either did not know of the condition of the shaft or thought there had been sufficient time following the explosion for the fumes to pass out.

Dropped Dead in Succession.

Evidently these were so heavy that they would not miggle with the air, and the moment the men descending the ladders entered the portion occupied by the fumes they were overcome without even an opportunity to give a word of warning to their fellow workmen following. It was just a succession of men dropping dead off the ladders to the bottom of the shaft all unknown to those on the surface. When the fate of the miners was learned shortly after there was the greatest consternation among those about the mouth of the shaft, the terribleness of the situation being intensified by their inability to attempt a rescue.

No Chance of Rescue.

If there had been any opportunity whatever of getting the unfortunate men out it would have been grasped eagerly, but there was none, and the only thing to do was to wait until the gases in the bottom of the shaft had dispersed. The bodies were taken out yesterday. Coroner Dr. Flaherty will hold an inquest into the cause of death. He inquired yesterday of the advisability of that course and was instructed to proceed. The inquest will likely be held to-day, and Mr. Kehoe will go down to represent Crown Attorney J. J. Kehoe for the Crown.

Manager Only a Week in Office.

Immediately after the receipt of word of the accident, J. B. Miller, a prominent member of the company owning the property, former Manager Captain McKenzie and Joseph Webb went from here to Webbwood. The people of the Soo are taking a deep interest in the particulars, as Mine Manager MacMillan was up to a few days ago a resident of the town. It was only a week ago that he was appointed to the position. He formerly managed the Mikado mine in the Lake of the Woods district, and had previous experience in South Africa. He leaves a wife and two children, who went from here to Webbwood last Wednesday to make their home with him.

Fell 90 Feet, May Die.

Toronto, Aug. 3.—Early yesterday morning a young Englishman named Arthur Wheeler, employed in Hon. S. J. Davis' tannery at Newmarket, was brought to the Western Hospital suffering from internal injuries received in a fall from a building. The man was wheeling a barrowful of cement on a building 20 feet high, lost his balance and fell. His condition is critical.

OVER A PRECIPICE.

Chancellor Burwash Hurt in An Accident in the Northwest.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 3.—Chancellor Burwash and Dr. John Burwash of Victoria University, Toronto, with their wives and Miss Burwash, had a miraculous escape in a runaway accident on a steep hill at Calgary, near P. Burns' ranch, last evening. The party were driving a pair of broncbos in a democrat, when the horses became unmanageable on the hill, and carried them over a precipice. The ladies and Dr. John Burwash jumped and saved themselves. The chancellor went over with the vehicle under the horses' heels. He was badly shaken up, and had nine stitches put in his hand. Dr. John Burwash had his shoulder dislocated by jumping.

Heavy Man Drowned.

Kingston, Aug. 3.—George Zeigler, sr., a retired brewery employe, went to Lake Ontario Park yesterday forenoon, and in the afternoon his lifeless body was found in the water. He was a heavy man. It is thought that, as he suffered from spasms from weak heart, he had been subjected to one and had fallen face down into the water.

Ontario Woman Drowned.

Fire Island, N. Y., Aug. 3.—Ada Oughtred, whose mother's home is at Onondaga, Ont., and a man named Pemeroy Washington, were drowned here yesterday. Their bodies were recovered.

Took Fit and Drowned.

London, Aug. 3.—John Selkirk, aged about 20 years, employed as an elevator boy at the Masonic Temple Building, while fishing at Hunt's dam yesterday afternoon, was seized with an epileptic fit and fell into the water and was drowned.

Burned to Death.

Penetanguishene, Aug. 3.—On Friday afternoon a little 6-year-old child of Mr. Johnston, who lives over a general store, was burned so badly that she died on Saturday. Her little body was burned almost to a crisp from the knees up.

Jumped to Death.

London, Aug. 3.—Arthur Stonehouse, a fireman on the Grand Trunk Railway, received fatal injuries by jumping from his engine Monday. He died here yesterday morning.

Kicked By a Horse.

London, Aug. 3.—While attempting to catch a horse in a pasture Benjamin Beres, a young farmer, of lot 13, concession 10, London township, was kicked in the forehead. His skull is crushed in, and the doctors who operated on him say that he cannot recover.

Suicide in a Shed.

Berlin, Aug. 3.—George Kalb, aged 40, was found dead, hanging by the neck from a cross-piece in the shed at the King street Mennonite Church, yesterday afternoon, having evidently been hanging there several hours when found by Frank Litfin.

Duchess Slightly Hurt.

London, Aug. 3.—Consuelo, Duchess of Marlbore, was thrown from a horse Monday evening in Blenheim Park and considerably bruised and shaken.

Mrs. Paget Fell Down Shaft.

London, Aug 3.—Mrs. Arthur Paget, wife of Major-General Paget, Scots Guards, was injured Monday night as a result of falling down the elevator shaft of her London residence. Her thigh was fractured and her knee injured.

WILL JUST GIVE ADVICE.

Presence of Colonials on Imperial Defence Committee Does Not Impose Obligation in Any Way.

London, Aug. 3.—(C. A. P.)—The House of Commons yesterday passed the supplementary vote of £2,960 for salaries for the new permanent staff of the Defence Committee.

Sir John C. R. Colomb declared that the establishment of the Defence Committee did more for the safety of the Empire and for economy and efficiency than any steps taken by any Government in the past.

Premier Balfour, speaking of the measure, said that one very great merit of the committee was that it had no executive authority. This was especially valuable from the point of view of its relations with the Defence Committee and with the self-governing colonies of the Empire, over which no office in Britain exercised control. When any problem of defence came up which touched the colonies nearly, or when the colonies took a closer interest in the problem of Imperial defence as a whole, he hoped "we might have the advantage of their assistance in our councils."

He was perfectly certain the self-governing colonies would never allow any representative of theirs to come to the Defence Committee if the committee with that addition had the smallest authority to impose obligations either financial, political, military or naval, on the colonies they represented. With a Defence Committee so constituted as this was, they could give advice and the advice would likely be taken by the home departments.

Canada Able to Supply.

London, Aug. 3.—(C.A.P.)—London firms have received a message from Canada, stating that sufficient beef stock is ready for shipment to fill any gap in American consignments.

Has Neuritis.

London, Aug. 3.—(C.A.P.)—General J. W. Laurie, Conservative member for Pembrokeshire, is suffering from neuritis, and will not attend Parliament further this session. He sails for Montreal by the Lake Champlain.

Considering It.

London, Aug. 3.—(C.A.P.)—Sir H. Vincent has been asked by the Premier to postpone his question with reference to a colonial conference on the fiscal policy.

The Standard says it is inferred from this that the Government is considering the suggestion made by Mr. Chamberlain on Monday.

Charged With Murder.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 3.—Mr. Robert Telford, arrested on Saturday in connection with Miss Hattie Bowell's death, appeared in the police court yesterday morning. The charge was amended to one of murder, to which the accused pleaded not guilty, and the case was formally remanded till to-day. Joseph Martin strongly contended for bail for the accused, but his application was refused. A warrant has been issued for David McHarg, who is said to have been responsible for Miss Bowell's condition. He is reported to be in Portland, Ore. McHarg was commercial traveler for a local firm

Cordasco Deported.

Montreal, Aug. 3.—As a result of Judge Winchester's investigation into the importation of Italians, which cursed Montreal last spring, they changed their methods of engaging these foreign laborers. Antonio Cordasco, "King of Italian laborers," who was shown at the investigation to have made such handsome profits out of employment of Italian immigrants for the C. P. R., has been deposed, and Mr. Spencer, of the C.P.R. staff, will, in future, look after the Italians for the road.

RAILWAY BANDITS.

Three Canadians Among Victims in a Daring Train Hold-Up.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—Four highwaymen, all heavily armed, and two of them wearing masks, Monday night held up the passengers on the Illinois Central's Chicago and St. Louis express train, known as the "Diamond special," on the outskirts of Chicago, as it neared Matteson, Ill. The robbers secured all the money and valuables, worth about $1,000, carried by the thirty passengers in the two Pullman sleepers, stopped the train and escaped in the darkness. William Teolen of Lansing Mich., and Leonard Christmas of Ottawa, Canada, who were beaten on the head, were able to walk from the train, but Toolan was in a dazed condition. Among the other passengers who were robbed was W. H. Lavelle of Toronto.

L. V. Combs, conductor of the train said he was positive that the men who robbed them were former railroad employes.

Lavelle Had $50.

Toronto, Aug 3.—William Lavelle of 597 West Queen street, one of the passengers in the holdup, left on Monday morning's train. He had with him about $50 in cash, and was going through to St. Louis to see the fair and visit his uncle. It was his first trip of any great length. He is 24 years of age.

$33 From Two Canadians.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 3.—Among the victims of the Diamond Special train robbery were Leonard Christmas of Ottawa, Ont., who was wounded in the head by the bandits and robbed of $22, and his companion, A. W. Bowles of St. Mary's, Ont., who was robbed of $10.

Christmas yesterday made the following statement: "I was in the smoking car. Two men came and said: 'Throw up, throw up, your hands.' I started to throw them up and saw one man move toward me. I struck out at him and was hit by a revolver in the hands of the other robber. I tumbled over against a seat and rolled back into the aisle at their mercy."

SOLDIERS PILLAGE THE MARKET.

High Prices For Merchandise Causes Turmoil in Hayti.

Port Au Prince, Hayti, Aug. 3.—The most serious disorders are anticipated here. The population is very much excited by the continuous rise in the price of all merchandise and a band of soldiers yesterday made an attempt to pillage the central market and the shops in that vicinity.

Other troops and police immediately intervened, and re-established order. All the stores in Port Au Prince, however, are now closed.

During the day a number of Syrians were stoned in the streets, two of them were wounded and their stalls, surrounding the central market, were destroyed by soldiers.

Medicines You Can Trust

There are no family medicines that have such a firm hold on the confidence of the people as those of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous physician and receipt book author. The superior skill as a physician and the intelligence of character for which Dr. Chase is everywhere known stand as a guarantee for his medicines, on every box of which are found his portrait and signature

Why Not Have a Raffia Hat?

It is not such a tedious, difficult matter as most people suppose to make one of those pretty raffia hats that are so popular just now. Of course elaborate designs may be attempted, but the plain woven hat looks as pretty when worn as the more fancy ones. These woven ones may be made in a couple of evenings and are very pretty made up in the wide sailor or trio corner shape and trimmed with bands of velvet or ribbon. The raffia, which comes in black, red, green, brown and natural shades, is on sale at the Review Office, which is open every evening.—2d.

IN THE REALM OF SPORT

BOATING.

In the regatta at Lake Rosseau on Civic Holiday F. M. Delafosse, of Lakefield won seconds in the Iran's single skiff races, and was with the winners in the canoe fours, and with the seconds in the tandem canoe.

CANOEING.

In the regatta of the Orillia Canoe Club on Monday, Reginald Blomfield, of Lakefield, well-known here, took firsts in the men's singles in the stern foremost, in the flip race and with Simpson, of Toronto, in the upset double. He is a great paddler and has made a fine record.

SWIMMING.

H. F. Strickland, a former resident of Lakefield and well known here, and was one of the nine entries the handicap swimming race across Toronto Bay. He made the best time, doing the distance in 50 minutes. C. H. Land with a handicap of 43 minutes, did it in 87 minutes, and W. C. Kettlewell, with a handicap of 17 minutes, did it in 63 1-2 minutes.

BASEBALL.

Oshawa defeated a team on Monday for a purse of $50, and today's World contains an offer to play any other amateur teamp for $100, Lindsay or Cobourg preferred.

FOOTBALL.

BOWLING.

The sun took on a very yellow tinge at Brookside Lawn yesterday and at last to the somnolent fascinated weary eyes of Grand Duke Alexis Kerr and his volunteer fleet of Kuropats—cawed-off Paderewskis, it seemed composed of nothing but a gay assemblage of the yellowest kind of yellow sunflowers, a flower that unknown generally to mankind, vies with the ox-eyed daisy and the red pickling cabbages for modesty. The Yellow Peril downed the Cream-of-Tartar Russ to the modified Byranic tune of 13 to 8.

On three occasions only were the off-skis permitted to emerge into the sunlight and then only for the briefest spasmodic homeopathic glimpses of the same and in perambulators at that.

The nit-skis had mined the lawn with lemonade. This distracted Togo Johnsings attention and he made some very erratic blockade running and made Nodau Moore so indignant that he failed in certain flanking movements, hence permitting the Siberians to get into the open as aforesaid.

Oku Kerneghan's name is changed to O. K. Kerneghan (subject to digression in future.)

Field Marshall The Yang-Ste-Kiang Kurockey Frost was a Lift Lock picture, as, with one eye on the lemonade and the other vainly endeavoring to encompass as much of the horizon as was not hidden from view by his feet—which were not cold—he directed operations against the Siberians. The Grand Duke's latest cable address is Mud-Ken.

The Yellow Peril await with unruffled equanimity the next onslaught of the remaining, 1,689,646 combinations possible against them.

DEATH OF DAVID BREEZE

ONE OF THE OLD RESIDENTS OF THE TOWN PASSES AWAY.

His Death Occured at His Summer Cottage, Stony Lake—Lived in Peterborough Since 1861.

Sad news was that received from Stoney Lake to the effect that Mr. David Breeze, one of the old residents of Peterborough, had died at his cottage there. Mr. Breeze had been ill for some time and had been removed to his summer residence in the hope that the change might make an improvement.

Mr. David Breeze was born in Newton, Montgomeryshire, Wales, in 1844. After the death of his father there, his mother moved to Canada, and with her children settled in Belleville. In 1861 he came to Peterborough and served his apprenticeship as tinsmith with Mr. Jas. Stevenson, and after fifteen years embarked in business for himself, succeeding admirably. In 1868 he married daughter of William Condon, one of the early settlers of Douro. Mr. Breeze was a familiar figure in Peterborough, where he was highly esteemed, and those who knew him will greatly regret to learn of his death.

Further particulars will be given morrow.

MR. DENNISTOUN CANED

By the Members of Young Men's Bible Class.

Mr. R. M. Dennistoun received something of a shock this afternoon, which, while it involved a caning, was not of a very disagreeable character by any means. For some seven years past he has been the teacher of the Young Men's Bible Class in St. John's church, and about three o'clock this afternoon its members waited upon him, and as a mark of their great appreciation presented him with a handsome gold headed cane. In reply he expressed his gratitude for the very kind words and the gift.

AN AUGUST WEDDING.

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized on Monday afternoon, at 69 McDonnell st., the residence of Mrs. Thompson, the principals being Miss Annie Elizabeth Haig, daughter of Mrs. John Chase, Campbellford, and Mr. John Smith of Campbellford. The bride was attended by Miss Wynnie Hankinson, and the groom by Mr. Geo. Haig of Campbellford, brother of the bride. Rev. Dr. Torrance performed the ceremony about 3.30. After an enjoyable wedding supper Mr. and Mrs. Smith left by the evening Grand Trunk train upon a wedding trip to Toronto, Detroit and other western cities prior to returning to their home in Campbellford. Among the many handsome presents received by the bride was a silver water pitcher from Grafton & Co., with which firm she had been employed.

NEWS FROM KEENE.

What the Improvement Society and Other Organizations Are Doing.

The moonlight excursion on Wednesday, July 27, per Str. Rainbow, to Idyl Wyld, was well attended and everyone had a good time. As usual the balance over expenses goes to the K. I. A.

At the last meeting of Court Otonabee, 1319, I.O.F., the Rev. D. D. McDonald was elected delegate to the H. C. meeting in Peterborough on Aug. 17 and 18.

Mr. Anderson and friends are spending a week at Poma-dush-koda-yong cottage.

Mr. John Braden paid a flying trip here on Monday last.

Rev. Mr. Eshoo, a returned native missionary from Persia, and elder brother of Dr. Eshoo, so well known here, gave an interesting address to a large audience in the Presbyterian church on Tuesday evening last.

The excursion of the Keene Improvement Association on Wednesday last per Str. Rainbow to Nassau, via lift lock, was well attended, as the limit of 100 was reached last week. So many applications for tickets have been made since the limited number was sold that it is very likely that another will be run over the same route at a later date.

Keene L.O.L. meets in the I. O. F. hall on Wednesday next, Aug. 10.

The Reading and Recreation Club is almost organized as a constitution has been adopted and when the rules and regulations are finally settled we willl be in a position to go ahead.

The cow nuisance still prevails.

MANUFACTURE OF SUGAR

A Proposition before the Cold Storage and Provision Co.

A meeting of the shareholders of the Peterborough Cold Storage and Provision Company was held yesterday for the purpose of transacting important business, and to consider a proposition having in view the manufacture of sugar by the company. No definite steps were taken yesterday, but it is expected that some definite [illegible] by the end of the week. A number of Toronto capitalists have interested themselves in the proposition, and should it be successful action towards the operation of a sugar factory here will be at once taken.

WHAT SORT OF MILITIA.

Politics Not Defense to be Leading Motive in Future.

The Liberal Montreal Witness says:—

"Every officer who commanded the force since Confederation to the present time, with the exception of Sir Edward Selby Smyth (and Gen. Middleton.—Ed. Review.) got into hot water by resisting the interference of politicians in the performance of his duties, and all of them left the country in disgust on that account. This is not a pleasing chapter in Canadian military history to recall, but its oppositeness needs no emphasizing when read in relation to the case of Lord Dundonald. It is easy to say that politics should be kept out of the militia, but till the whole headquarters system is radically reconstructed, or the country learns a severe lesson, there is little hope of improvement. Perhaps a Canadian G. O. C., obedient in all things to the presiding mini-ter, will suit the place, but what sort of a militia shall we have?

EASTERN LIVE STOCK SHOW.

To be Held in Ottawa From March 6th to 10th.

At a meeting of the directors of the Eastern Ontario Live Stock and Poultry show held in Ottawa a few days ago it was decided to hold the next show in Ottawa from March 6th to 10th, 1905. The show will be run on much the same lines as in previous years—the exhibits consisting of horses, beef and dairy cattle, sheep, swine and poultry. Liberal prizes, such as will bring out large and excellent exhibits, will be offered in all classes.

The new building erected for this show by the city of Ottawa is nearing completion. For the purposes of a fat stock show the plans of this building are excellent; the needs of both exhibitors and visitors having been carefully considered. Its size is such that under the one roof is provided adequate accommodation for all exhibits as well as a large auditorium in which the judging will take place and lectures will be given on practical subjects of interest to the farmers.

The prize list is now being prepared and will shortly be distributed to all who send their names to the secretary, A. P. Westervelt, Toronto.

RESULT OF FREE TRADE.

Half a Century of Cobdenism and the Pauperism Produced.

It is not long since Mr. Moseley's labor commissioners reported to their various unions. The commission, it will be remembered, was made up of representatives of the principal British trades, who were brought out to the United States by Mr. Moseley to study American industrial conditions. Almost without exception the reports of these labor delegates showed that wages in the States are higher—in most cases very much higher—than the wages paid in England, and that taking all things into consideration the condition of the worker in the United States is better than the condition of the British workman. This testimony from practical British workmen should be almost sufficient to convince one that a protective tariff cannot be so very ruinous to the interests of the worker.

Then there is the recent terrible statement of the official leader of the British Liberals. Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman asserts that there are in Britain about twelve million persons who are on the verge of starvation—almost a third of the total population. If it is proper and pertinent to enquire what the tariff has done for the American worker, it cannot be improper or impertinent to enquire what free trade has done for these millions of British workers who live in close touch with absolute destitution. If half a century of freedom from tariff protection has produced such a result or has failed to prevent it, perhaps it would be as well for us to stick to our protective tariff for a while yet.—Hamilton Herald, Indep.

—Mr. R. H. Turner to-day received from Woolwich, England, a medal of which he is justly proud. It is the token of his service in South Africa, and has three bars for Cape Colony, Transvaal and South Africa. The badge is of red, blue and orange, and upon the edge of the medal proper is inscribed, "R. H. Turner, Canadian M.R."

Hydraulic Lock.

Mr. W. B. Rogers, superintending engineer of the Trent Canal, has received complimentary and appreciating letters from Mr. E. A. Bond, Chairman of the State of New York Advisory Board of Consulting Engineers for the Improvement of State Canals, and Col. T. W. Symons, a member of the Board. These experts express themselves in the highest terms of the hydraulic lift lock, and the use made of concrete in the construction. They ask for photographs and plans of the lock, which it will be remembered they visited and thoroughly inspected recently.

A New County Map.

The Review has issued, for general distribution, a new edition of its well known map of the County of Peterborough. The map has been re-drawn and brought up to date and is the most accurate map existing of the county. It is of convenient size and yet legible and handy for reference. Copies may be had by calling at the Review Stationery Store, or will be sent by mail on receipt of 5 cents in stamps to cover postage.

Strategy of the Cuckoo.

The Indian fruit cuckoo, which, like all members of the cuckoo family, lays its eggs in the nests of other birds and thus avoids the trouble of hatching them, is said to exhibit most interesting strategy in dealing with crows, which are its enemies. Whereas the hen, an inconspicuous speckled gray bird, conceals herself in the foliage, the cock, remarkable for his brilliant black plumage and crimson eyes, places himself on a perch near a crows' nest and makes a great noise. The crows immediately rush out to attack him, and he takes to flight with them in pursuit. The hen meanwhile slips into the nest and deposits an egg. Sometimes the crows get back before the egg is laid, and then the intruding hen cuckoo gets a trouncing.—Youth's Companion.

Origin of the Picture Postal Cards.

The originator of pictorial post cards was a Frenchman, M. Besnardeau of Sille-le-Guillaume, in the department of La Sarthe. To this gentleman occurred the happy thought at the time of the war with Germany that, as there were 40,000 conscripts, most of them somewhat illiterate, in the camp of Conlie, he might as well sell them cards instead of paper and envelopes. He did so, illustrating his cards with pictures of cannons and shells, quickly cleared out his stock and responded to the continuing demand by issuing a second series, with spaces on which soldiers were invited to write the names of any battles in which they might have taken part.—Westminster Gazette.

JAPANESE GAINING VICTORIES

Kuropatkin Prepares to Flee to Harbin.

AWFUL CARNAGE REPORTED

Sensational Piece of News That 20,000 Japanese Were Slaughtered in Port Arthur Battle--At Simoucheng 1,500 Russians Lie Dead--The Czar Receives Alarming News.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 4.—According to a message received from Harbin, Gen. Kuropatkin has ordered the removal from that place of all useless civilians, in order to provide the greatest possible accommodation of winter quarters for the Russian army.

Czar Gets Alarming News.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 4.—The correspondent of the Associated Press hears that Emperor Nicholas has just received a telegram at Peterhoff, containing alarming news. It is also reported that Viceroy Alexieff, who had gone to Harbin on his way to Vladivostock, returned to Liaoyang Tuesday, and conferred with Gen. Kuropatkin regarding the situation.

Russians Pay Promptly.

Liverpool, Aug. 4.—The owners of the British collier Fenton Hall, which was detained at Port Arthur from the time of the first attack made by the Japanese until early in March, and which suffered damage during her detention, have received compensation from the Russian Government. The speedy settlement of the claim by Russia has greatly gratified shipowners here.

Windfall For the Japs.

London, Aug. 4.—It was rumored on the stock exchange yesterday that the Japanese discovered $25,000,000 in an abandoned Russian camp.

Couldn't Retake Motien Pass.

Motien Pass, Manchuria, July 17.—(Via Seoul, Corea), Aug. 4.—The Russians, in their second unsuccessful attempt to re-take Motien Pass early on July 17, were forced back to their original position, after five hours of severe fighting. They suffered heavy losses, compared to the Japanese casualties. The Japanese think that their casualties amounted to about 200. The Russian casualties are undoubtedly much greater than in the former engagement.

JAPS LOST 20,000.

Story of Three Days' Assault on Port Arthur From Russian Sources, But It Is Discredited.

Che Foo, Aug. 4.—A desperate three-days' assault on the inner defence on the northern and eastern sides of Port Arthur has failed. A Russian states that the earth trembled under the terrific cannonading, which began July 26 and ended during the night of July 28, when the battle ceased. A Chinese who has arrived here on a separate junk confirms the Russian's statement that the Russian killed and wounded during the assault number between five and six thousand. The Japanese in their repeated assaults against the eastern forts on the hills through barbed wire entanglements and over mines displayed fanatical bravery. They were mowed down by the hail of shells and bullets and the explosion of mines under their feet. Their losses are estimated at 20,000. The Russian declares that the Russians held all the eastern forts leading to Golden Hill and that the Japanese, shattered and exhausted, retired to the eastward.

Togo Shelled the Forts.

As related by the passengers from the two junks, the Japanese advance, which began from Kwokan before daybreak July 26, was directed against Kikwan, Kinkitun, Kinkishan and Pichtoushan forts, lying near shore. The Russian outposts were driven back. In the meantime Admiral Togo shelled the forts at long range, but the return fire of the forts kept his ships at a safe distance, rendering the co-operation of the fleet ineffective.

On the morning of July 27 the Russian fleet steamed out, keeping under the protection of the Golden Hill guns. The Russian vessels did not fire on the Japanese and soon returned to their anchorage. The assault on the northern side of the city occurred July 27. The Japanese left at Hoikun, advanced on the Russians at Shimahying, but were repulsed. The junks were within hearing distance for three days after leaving, but no more firing was heard.

The Russian hospitals at Port Arthur are said to be swamped. Thousands of wounded are lying in houses and shops of the Chinese, the owners having been evicted, with the exception of one, who acts as caretaker of each place. Medical attention is adequate.

Russian Consul's Confirmation.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 4.—The first Russian report of the storming operations at Port Arthur has just been received from the Consul of Russia at Che Foo, dated yesterday. It says a general attack began Saturday, with the Japanese in immense force. There were two days of a bombardment of unprecedented violence. The Japanese at the time of sending this despatch, the Consul adds, had everywhere been repulsed with great loss. The Japanese casualties possibly reached 20,000, but the Russian losses were insignificant. The Consul further reports that the Russians have an abundance of ammunition.

1,500 RUSSIANS DEAD ON FIELD.

Tokio, Aug. 4.—The Japanese defeated the Russians at Tomucheng (Simoucheng) and drove them toward Haicheng in a sharp fight which began last Saturday and ended on Sunday. The Russians left 1,500 dead on the field and lost six guns.

The Russians occupied a range of high hills north of Tomucheng (Simoucheng), which were strongly defended with covered trenches, a fortress and covered emplacements, which consumed months in constructing. The Japanese seized a range of heights to the southward on Saturday. They began the attacks at daylight on Sunday. The Japanese left wing encountered severe opposition. The Russians were gradually reinforced and their artillery was increased to 31 guns. The Japanese, who were also reinforced, renewed the attack at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and drove the Russians northward. The Japanese right, exposed to a severe artillery fire, was forced to halt. The Russians, who were reinforced, assumed the offensive at 5.30 o'clock in the evening, but were repulsed with a heavy loss. The Russian artillery prevented the Japanese from pursuing, and during the night the Russians withdrew toward Haicheng. The Japanese casualties were about 400.

Gen. Kuroki has telegraphed that in the two days' fighting at Yangtsuling and Yushuling his losses were six officers killed, sixteen officers wounded and nine hundred and fifty men killed and wounded.

RUSSIANS ABANDON HAICHENG.

Kuropatkin's Troops Retire Along the Road Toward Anshanshan.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 4.—In a despatch to the Emperor, dated August 2, Gen. Kuropatkin says:

"Our troops have retired from Haicheng along the road toward Anshanshan. The movement was accomplished in perfect order as the enemy did not disturb us. The terrible heat has caused many sunstrokes, and measures have been taken to diminish the equipment the troops have hitherto been obliged to carry by transporting it in supply carts. There is no serious news from the eastern front."

Kuropatkin's Armies Concentrating.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 4.—General Kuropatkin's armies are now concentrating upon Liaoyang, falling back respectively upon Anshanshan, Liandiansian and Asping. These three points form a ring of closely-knit defences around Liaoyang and enable General Kuropatkin to risk a general engagement.

THURSDAY, AUG. 4 1904.

A GASPING MINISTER

In the further discussion on his Militia Bill Sir Frederick Borden made a very poor showing in his defence of his self-aggrandizement at the expense of the efficiency of the service. He claimed that he must have supreme and absolute control of all the details of the military branch. Fancy a medical officer of little experience undertaking against the advice of his expert staff and of regimental commanding officers, to decide on the officers best fitted and qualified for promotion, or even what private should be made a lance corporal. If some Fisher or political heeler of that calibre objected, he certainly would not allow a Tory from the rank and file to get his stripes, if some good Grit, but inferior soldier, coveted them. To take the edge of criticism off this absurdity, he declared that a certain amount of decentralization is to be brought about. We know from his own explanations and those of Sir Wilfrid Laurier what this means—that the Minister responsible for the corruption of the particular district is to prostitute the service of our King and country into a political machine, and give or withhold appointments or promotions for the benefit of the party. With the disregard for truth which he is so notorious he had the effrontery to challenge any one to show that in any respect he had misused his position as Minister to advance the interests of any of his political friends. What about his coercing a D.O.C. into offering the rawest bargain to a colonel commanding a regiment that his retention in the service or his removal should depend on his nominating for promotion an unfit officer with a pull? What about his giving this man, foisted by a partisan friend into the regiment from the medical branch, and having only two or three years' experience as a combatant officer, the command of this regiment? What about his trying to discipline Col. Ponton for criticising his management or his withholding for months the promotion of Major Hamilton Merritt to the command of the Body Guard, until frightened into doing his duty by the stir made by the Dundonald affair. What does he call his dismissal of that distinguished general for the sole crime of protesting against the interference of a corrupt politician, having no concern with the militia with his officers in the execution of their duty? How would he describe his base truckling to the corrupt work of the disreputable Sydney Fisher in dragooning the colonel in command of the 13th Light Dragoons by the threat that the regiment should not be organised unless he could choose the officers in the party interest, or in his culminating outrage of forging an alteration in a recommendation signed by Lord Dundonald in order to keep from the service a gentleman who had dared to expose the electoral corruption of this interloper? How does he explain the murderous emergency rations, which in case of necessity would have cost our brave volunteers their lives?

The command of the Militia is in future to be in commission—two Bordens and five colonels under the thumb of Sir Frederick Borden.

The Toronto Telegram says:—

The Globe's cry that the chief could run the fire department if meddling aldermen would only keep their hands off comes like an echo to its hysterical appeal to meddling Ministers to keep their hands off the militia."

Mr. Justice Britton's report put briefly is that the Treadgold concession was so unpopular that it would be dangerous to attempt to carry it out; that it was so bad that half a dozen important stipulations should be included in all future concessions; and that Sifton was all right.

In discussing militia appointments the Liberal Montreal Witness says:—

"So long as fitness for the service is not the sole consideration, the sin of corruption is at our door, and the public service will be more or less pervaded by incompetency, indolence and insubordination. In military service insubordination is the greatest of evils, yet how can a commander hope for due submission from a man who has behind him a Minister who values him in some political capacity?"

"The Statesman has ever been loyal and true to Liberalism and hopes to so continue, but its future support of the present Government is conditional on the proper conduct of the leaders. If there are many more such appointments as the Jackson, of Ingersoll, one its support cannot be retained. We should have been greatly pleased if the worthy member for West Durham had stood firmly and manfully against the action of the Government when the matter was under consideration in the House of Commons."

In Our Grandfather's Youth

Paralysis was almost unheard of in the youth of our grandparents, and now nearly every newspaper contains a record of someone being stricken with this dreadful form of helplessness. Paralysis is in reality a Starving of the nerves, and can always be prevented by the timely use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, a preparation which has no rival as a creator of nerve force.

A BAD REPUTATION

Sir Richard Cartwright has Disgraced himself by his Confession.

"Newspaper discussion," says The Globe, "both leads and follows, both reflects and inspires, the thought and habit of Parliament, but the reputation of a public man rests more largely with the press than with any other agency. His character is in his own keeping, but his reputation is often made or marred by newspaper report and comment." This is true as a general thing; but there are times when the public man places it beyond the power of the press to either mar or mend his reputation. Take for instance Sir Richard Cartwright's defence of the Jackson appointment and all that it implies. Sir Richard has deliberately sacrificed his own reputation and has left nothing to be added by the press. Sir Richard's worst enemies in the press can do no worse than report his own words; his best friends can do no better.—Woodstock Express, Lodep.

Medicines You Can Trust

There are no family medicines that have such a firm hold on the confidence of the people as those of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous physician and receipt book author. The superior skill as a physician and the intelligence of character for which Dr. Chase is everywhere known stand as a guarantee for his medicines, on every box of which are found his portrait and signature

A DRAGOONED OFFICER

A D.O.C. Plotting to make a Corrupt Bargain with a Colonel.

Col. Otter's course in regard to this affair is in many respects rather remarkable, and while not affecting in any way the appreciation of Canadians generally of his services in the field both to Canada and the Empire it will cause a feeling of regret that he has allowed himself to be made a dupe of by politicians. His action in arranging with an outsider for the extension of Col. Gregory's term of command and on the conditions on which he did so, is most extraordinary. The politicians know better than to make such a proposition to Lord Dundonald as Col. Otter agreed to. There is this, of course that might possibly be said in extenuation of Col. Otter's course that he possibly thought he was acting in the interests of the regiment in question for he appears to have held a very high opinion of Col. Gregory as commanding officer and to have thought it important for the regiment's welfare that he should be retained in command for two more years at least. There is nothing, however, which will justify his going over the head of the General Officer Commanding in the matter of appointments, as he has admitted doing in this case. His letter repudiating the idea that politics were allowed to enter into the affairs of the 2nd Dragoons may, as the Mail and Empire says, be due to his sense of discipline.—Winnipeg Telegram.

Surprise the Doctors

Most doctors are astonished at the results obtained by Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for eczema, salt rheum and itching skin diseases which are often considered well nigh incurable. By word of mouth from friend to friend the exceptional merits of Dr. Chase's Ointment have gradually become known until it is now standard the world over and has a record of cures unparalleled in the history of medicine.

BROKE THROUGH A ROOF

150 People at Winnipeg Fair Fall 25 Feet Into Stable Below.

Roof Turned Over on Its Occupants and Fell on the People Causing More Serious Injuries Than Would Otherwise Have Resulted—Fourteen Were Taken to the Hospital in Ambulances—Injuries Were Fractures.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 4.—A serious accident occurred at the Dominion Exhibition here last evening about 7.30. A crowd of about 150 had gathered to enjoy a free sight of a side show in an enclosure next the stable. Although repeatedly warned of their danger, they took no heed, and at last, without a moment's warning, the roof broke through and precipitated half of the crowd to the floor, a distance of about 25 feet.

In its descent the roof turned over and fell on the people, causing more serious injuries than would have otherwise resulted. About fourteen were taken to the hospital in ambulances, while several with minor injuries were able to walk away.

A partial list of those injured is as follows: George Walker, Charles Forrester, E. Barrington, Willie Russell, Mumford Loidell, Curtye, A. L. Codman, Waldie R. Miller and McWalters of Winnipeg; Jas. Goodyear, Joliette, N.B.; Braden, Cape Breton; Speelman of Seattle, and a boy named Soper from Calgary. The latter is very seriously injured about the back. Most of the other cases were fractures of the limbs.

The hospital tent on the grounds ministered to the immediate wants of the sufferers and it is not expected any fatalities will result.

Head Crushed Under Wheels.

Drumbo, Aug. 4.—A young lad, Harold Wismer, son of Henry Wismer, Dundas street, Woodstock, was killed yesterday forenoon on the farm of John Ort, near this place. Mr. Ort was drawing in clover, and the boy fell off the load. He struck the whiffletrees, starting the horses. The wheels passed over his head and crushed his brains out.

Buried Beneath Sand.

Ottawa, Aug. 4.—Hubert, the seven-year-old son of H. C. MacBride, architect, of London, Ont., was killed last evening in a sand-pit on Cartier street. The boy was playing with a number of companions underneath an overhanging bank of sand, when it gave way and he was caught and buried under about four feet of earth. He was at once dug out, but was beyond help when reached. The boy and his mother were on a visit to Mrs. Clarke of Centre street, Ottawa.

Talented Nurse Drowned.

New York, Aug. 4.—Miss Ada Oughtred, a trained nurse, of Onondaga, Ont., and Dr. J. D. Ashby, acting bathing master, were drowned while bathing in the surf at Babylon, N.Y. Neither could swim. It was Miss Oughtred's 27th birthday. She was employed as superintending nurse in Muncie's Sanitarium, three miles from Babylon.

Hand Shot Off.

Red Deer, Alta., Aug. 4.—While hunting a lynx, John, the 13-year-old son of Mr. McKee of Snake Lake, had his right hand shot off at the wrist.

Expensive Undertaking.

Business Man—Well, my dear, I have about made up my mind to sell out my business and go out into the country and buy a hundred acres or so and be a farmer for the rest of my life. Business Man's Wife—Oh, John, how lovely! But are you sure we can afford it?

RUSSIA PARTIALLY YIELDS.

Consents to Waive Right of Sending Ships Through the Dardanelles During the Present War Only.

London, Aug. 4.—In order to avoid complications which might have the effect of extending the area of war Russia has made a partial concession to Great Britain in connection with the Dardanelles question. Replying to British representations regarding the closure of the Dardanelles to vessels of the volunteer fleet intended for warlike uses as well as warships, Count Benckendorff, the Russian Ambassador to Great Britain, it is learned, has advised Foreign Secretary Lansdowne that his Government consents to waive the right to send ships through the straits during the present war, but at the same time Russia makes no concession in relation to the general principal involved and reserves to herself the right to take such action as she deems proper when the war with Japan terminates. The British Government would like a complete settlement of the principle, but Russia does not propose to negotiate on this subject if avoidable while the war is in progress.

Beyond the preliminary communication from Count Benckendorff to the effect that Russia will make a response to the British protest against the sinking of the British steamer Knight Commander by the Vladivostock squadron when the report of Admiral Jessen reaches St. Petersburg, the Foreign Office here has received nothing on the subject.

Tempting Fate.

Kingston, Aug. 4.—Canon Starr of Kingston and Rev. C. A. Seager of Toronto had a lively experience while running the Long Sault Rapids on a raft, near Cornwall Island. The dam or crib on which they were sailing was completely wrecked, and for a time their lives were endangered, as they were in the midst of bobbing and bouncing pieces of timber.

"Yes," replied the lobbyist gloomily, "nothing but praise."

Caused Keen Distress at Times—Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills Made Thorough Cure.

Mr. Jas. H. Harvey, baker, 641 George street, Peterboro, Ont. states: "I was troubled very much with constipation and pains in the back. At times the pains were sharp like a stab in the back with a knife and caused me great suffering.

"I heard of many being cured by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and decided to try them. I am pleased to say that they soon helped me, and I used them right along until cured. I never have pains in my back now and only occasionally take a pill in order to keep my bowels regular."

OUR SPECIAL OTTAWA LETTER

Interesting Notes and Comments From the Dominion Capital

THE WEEK IN PARLIAMENT

Political Intrigues in the Militia Jackson K.C. Approved and Rewarded. Sir R. Cartwright an Accomplice in Subornation of Perjury. Ottawa Condemns Fisher and Supports Dundonald.

THE WEEK IN PARLIAMENT.

This present session of Parliament is rapidly drawing to a close. The week resulted in the despatch of a lot of business and the members are anxious to get back to their homes. Another week will probably see the end of the last session of the present Parliament.

The resignation of Col. Gregory was made the subject of criticism of the Government's action in offering politics on the militia. It was shown by the correspondence brought down that political intrigues are being worked in all directions in the interests of men who have a pull. In the course of his remarks, the Minister of Militia undertook to say that all militiamen, whether in or out of uniform, are responsible to him for their opinions. That means that men who have strong opinions are to be brought in constant conflict with the party in power. It is a policy that should be turned down hard.

Sir Richard Cartwright defended the appointment of J. B. Jackson to the responsible position of Canadian agent at Leeds. This man was caught red handed in some of the worst crimes ever revealed in an election trial. Jackson was publicly denounced as a criminal, yet he was sent to Leeds by the Federal authorities. The crime of perjury was glossed over by the Minister of Trade and Commerce. The opposition moved a resolution having appointmen s on the grounds of efficiency and character; it was defeated 70 to 47.

On the estimates for canals, it was shown that since the Liberal party came to power, the cost of operating the canal system has gone up some hundreds per cent. Many useless officials have been appointed, and many of these have actually no duties to perform.

Supplementary estimates to the amount of $11,830,270 were brought down This makes the total estimates for the session $76,671,244, the highest by many millions in the history of Canada.

Several minor Government measures were dealt with and advanced.

LIBERALS LOST TO DECENCY.

No good citizen, no matter what his political opinions may be, will find cause to rejoice in the defence and exculpation of that notorious scoundrel, J. B. Jackson, who was appointed Canadian agent at Leeds in reward for his services in the South Oxford election protest. Jackson was denounced by the presiding judge in unmeasured terms. He was branded as a criminal. He was told to his face that he was the companion of jail birds. Mr. Justice Street was moved by the outrageous revelations to observe that in his whole experience he had never seen anything so bleak. But with a full knowledge of the facts before him, Sir Richard Cartwright gave this individual a position that should be occupied by an honest man and fixed the salary at $2,000 and expenses. In Parliament Sir Richard rose in his place and eulogized this judicially condemned jail bird from blame. The Minister of Trade and Commerce went further and expressed his pleasure that a man had been found who was willing to commit crime in the interests of the Liberals. Coming from Sir Richard Cartwright this is a little too much. This parlor never loses an opportunity to denounce the corruptions of the Conservative party when they were in power. He is most venemous in his attacks. But there never was under any party in this country such an exhibition of out and out corruption as that furnished by this same minister. It is inconceivable that a person could be found who would so demean himself as to defend Jackson. But when that total is discovered to be the person of Sir Richard Cartwright it is enough to make honest men think that there is no possible hope for the political future of Canada. If Sir Wilfrid Laurier, knowing the facts of the case does not dismiss Sir Richard, the Liberal party is indeed lost to all sense of duty and decency. Jackson, too, should be recalled at once and a respectable man sent to replace him. Imagine a respectable Canadian in Leeds being forced to do business with a man of Jackson's type It is repulsive to think of it, and yet it is in his hands that the Government have placed such extensive powers.

OTTAWA'S ANSWER TO FISHER.

In the Capital, where of all places in Canada the Liberal party should make its influence felt, Hon. Sydney Fisher and the Government received an answer to the declaration that the militia of this country is to be converted into a political machine. It came from all classes. It was like the eruption of a volcano. The civil service had been warned not to cheer Lord Dundonald. The military bands were forced to refuse to play at his farewell. These things must all be considered in sizing up the situation. Lord Dundonald was openly and repeatedly insulted by the Free Press, an organ in which Sir William Mulock has a large interest. The demonstration was denounced as a Tory trick. It was referred to as an Orange parade. Some 20,000 people assembled in spite of all this, and his horses to be removed. Lord Dundonald was triumphantly hauled to his train. In the distinctly French-Canadian quarter, from many a window handkerchiefs were waved at the man who relieved Ladysmith. Cheers came from every foot of the line of march. It was such a scene as Ottawa never before witnessed. And as for Mr. Fisher his name was received many times in that march with derision. At the station men fought their way through the assembled thousands to shake hands with the man who refused to sacrifice his honor. There were there Liberals of the highest standing in the community. The nephew and partner of Minister Edwards, the Senator for Ottawa and one of the most intimate friends of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, was among the throng. There, too, in this "Orange gathering" were many of the prominent Roman Catholics of the Capital, French-Canadian and English speaking. These are the men who made the farewell to Lord Dundonald an historic incident. That is the condemnation of Fisher. It was complete. It will long be remembered as one of the memorable events of Ottawa. If the people of the rest of Canada take the same view, the days of the Liberal party in power are numbered. That the electors are taking this course may be the salvation of the Militia forces; but it be hoped that such will be the case.

DUNDONALD'S PARTING INJUNCTION.

Lord Dundonald left behind him a warning that should not be lost on the people of Canada. Just previous to his departure from Ottawa, addressing the assembled thousands gathered to do him honor, he said: "Men of Canada keep your two hands on the Union Jack." Later he informed his listeners: "Men of Canada, I repeat, keep your two hands on the Union Jack."

At Montreal, where the reception of His Lordship was in keeping with that of Ottawa, he spoke as follows: "Of one thing I feel certain, you have both hands on the Union Jack. If any man tries to cut your grip, away, the militia will stand by you."

These are significant utterances. They were made by a man who preferred principle to office. The day Lord Dundonald left Ottawa the Minister of Militia laid it down as a rule of the militia that members of the force, even though they be on the retired list, in or out of uniform are amenable to the head of the militia. This means, if it means anything, that no member of the militia may express a political opinion, without the consent of the Minister of Militia. It means that the political liberties of all who join the militia are swept away. It means that in future all Conservatives should refrain from joining the Militia, until the Minister of Militia states that he is not the sole director of the political opinions of men who undertake the defence of their country. Talk about militarism! That is it with a vengeance. It is no wonder that Lord Dundonald sounded his warning note. Let the people stop this policy before it has gone too far. Let them show the Minister of Militia that they, and not he, are the rulers of the militia of Canada. It can only be done with the ballot and the militia of Canada at the next election should give the Minister of Militia his answer in no uncertain language.

SOME PRIVATE CARS FOR MINISTERS.

The Government is to add still another to the long list of private cars in which they and their families and family friends travelled from end to end of the continent last winter. They have taken possession of the car expressly built for the Duke and Duchess of York, on the occasion of their visit to Canada. Now they propose to expropriate the one used by the Governor General and that will be replaced by a new car. It will be remembered that during the first year of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's premiership, he refused to travel in a private car. He was none of your aristocrats, but a plain every day democrat. All this quickly changed and the private car habit has become a disease. During last winter one car was sent to California with the family of a leading Intercolonial official. Sir William Mulock had the "Royal" car to Mexico. Mr. Sifton had another down in the Southern States. Mr. Fielding and his friends had a junketting trip in the same direction. At Christmas, a private car was sent to Winnipeg to bring down Mr. Sifton's father to Ottawa for a holiday. Of course the country paid for all this. But there seems to be no limit to the thing. With another private car added to the list it will bring it up to six, independent of the Governor General's new railway conveyance, and another to be built for the use of the Railway Commission. This of course means that more ministers will be able to get on the road at the same time and the bills will be correspondingly larger. Still, as long as the people are willing to hand over the cash, the ministers will feel justified in building more and more cars. But from the present look of the political atmosphere the private car habit is likely to cease before many months.

MAKING THE MONEY FLY.

The "growing time" is with us as never before. The Liberal party came to power pledged to reduce the expenditure by several million dollars. Same $82,000,000, they declared, would suffice to carry on the affairs of Canada. Since the session opened they have asked Parliament to vote over double that amount for the ordinary purposes of government. The following estimates have been submitted this session by the Finance Minister:

Main estimates	$62,595,335
Supplementary estimates ...	11,830,270
Further supplementaries ...	1,585,639
do do	37,1000
Total	$76,671,2444

SMALL POLITICAL POTATOES.

The course pursued by the Liberal party in respect of the farewell to Lord Dundonald was unworthy of any public body of men. The citizens of Ottawa, irrespective of party, decided to make the homegoing of the distinguished soldier an epoch in his life. The services of the military bands of the Capital were sought but the Government refused point blank to allow them to parade. Those of the bandsmen who held positions in the civil service were threatened with dismissal if they dared to show any courtesies to their late commanding officer. This meant bread and butter to the musicians, and after accepting engagements, they were forced to cancel them. Outside bands were brought in and Lord Dundonald received a send off such as no other man ever was tendered at the Capital. This was but a fitting answer to the narrow minded men who could not even be courteous to a man, who, in every sense, is a thorough gentleman and a brave soldier. The people are the masters of the ministers who tried to make things unpleasant for Lord Dundonald. They have shown that they do not approve of the childish actions of these, who for the time being, can assume the role of petty tyrants.

How Restored to Vigor

Be Honest With Yourself.

If you have been a victim to the follies and indiscretions of youth, consequent losses in manhood or the power to enjoy life, if you have lost the power (call it what you will) to make you as a man, healthy, complete, strong, vigorous, and have a reserved force which you can call upon when you need it, if you have tried CURES which have failed, then don't read further, for we cannot help you. But if you are a man who is honest with himself and with us, and will write us a true statement (strictly confidential) of your case, we will tell you how you can be cured, and then cure you.

Cure Yourself at Home.

If there is no responsible specialist near you, write at once to Dr. Goldberg, the noted specialist, for he has the assurance of the highest authorities and boards of medical examiners and state boards of medical examiners that he will cure you in the privacy of your own home. It does not matter what is wrong, as he can be taken in hand without detection.

If you have stricture, prostatic trouble, sexual debility, impotency, nervousness, varicocele, blood poison, hydrocele, emissions, loss of parts, lumbago, pain in the back, kidneys, rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, etc., write the doctor and if he accepts your case after treatment it is sent free in a plain sealed package. Don't neglect this chance to be cured, and remember you may

Pay When You Are Cured.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interests of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor at once and avail himself by your case before him. He sends the method, as well as his book, free on the subject, containing the 16 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him

Dr. A. Goldberg, 832 Woodward Ave., Room 177, Detroit, Mich., and it will all be immediately sent to you free, in a plain sealed package.

There is nothing like Sunlight Soap for Household Utensils.

When you have to use hard water it is not an easy matter to wash household utensils. To do good washing you should have good soap and soft water (rain water). If you use hard water you must have good soap, and the best soap you can get is Sunlight Soap because it softens the hard water and makes a copious creamy lather. Use Sunlight Soap for all household purposes and the results will surprise you.

LEADING CEREALS

Their By-Products. The Uses and Value of Mill Feeds.

A leading Nova Scotia farmer points out that the average man buys the different kinds of mill feeds without knowing the grade he is buying, the value of each, or the kind of stock to which it should be fed. In this connection it may be said that numerous experiments have been made in Europe and America in order to ascertain the money value of various feeds, according to the nutrients they contain, but the results have been so conflicting that Prof. Henry concludes, in his standard work, "Foods and Feeding," that at present it is impossible to state the value of one feeding stuff in terms of another from calculations based upon the nutrients contained in each. The value to the farmer of these purchased feeding stuffs depends largely upon the cost of roughage and grain with which they are to be fed. Mill feeds are so subject to adulteration that several American experiment stations devote a great deal of attention to making and publishing analyses of the various brands. Some brief notes on the more common feeds are all that a newspaper article will allow.

Wheat.—Wheat is a suitable feed for all kinds of live stock, if fed with judgment. Shrunken and damaged wheat can be fed to advantage, as it may be nearly or quite equal to the best grain for this purpose. For fattening stock wheat is considered worth about ten per cent. less than corn. The by-products of wheat in common use are bran, shorts, middlings and low grade flour. Bran is recognized as one of the very best feeds for dairy cows and sheep, and for horses not at hard work. On account of its coarse and fibrous nature, it is admirably adapted for mixing with corn, peas, and other highly concentrated feeds, but for the same reason it is not suited for feeding in large quantities to hard-worked horses or young pigs. The distinction between shorts and middlings is not always clearly marked, although the former is supposed to be re-ground bran, and the latter the finer particles of bran with some flour included. The poorer grades of shorts often contain the sweepings and dirt of the mill and are not satisfactory for feeding. Middlings are especially useful for feeding pigs, along with skim milk or corn. The lowest grade of flour, frequently known as "red dog," usually contains the germs of the wheat, and on account of its high protein and fat contents is a valuable feed for cows, hard-worked horses and growing pigs. The better sorts of low grade flour are similar in construction to the best grades and cannot often be fed at a profit.

Corn.—Corn is the best of all the cereals for fattening stock. It is used very largely in the manufacture of starch, glucose, beer, spirits, etc. and consequently has a long list of by-products. In the processes of manufacture the starch is removed, and the remainder of the grain is sold under the name of gluten feed, which is well suited for dairy cows and fattening stock. Gluten meal is gluten feed without the hulls and germs of the corn and is very rich in protein and fat. It is a capital feed for dairy cows, but on account of its concentrated nature, should be mixed with bran or oats. Corn germ is very rich in protein and oil; after the oil is pressed out the residue is known as corn oil meal or corn oil cake, also a valuable feed. Corn bran is relatively low in feeding value. There are numerous other "corn feeds" on the market, but they vary greatly in composition and value, and should be bought only under a guaranteed analysis.

Oats.—The feeding value of oats is well known. Oat hulls, oat dust, and oat feed or shorts are the chief by-products of this grain. Oat hulls are of little value for feed, but are often mixed with corn meal, etc., and the mixture sold as ground oats. Oat dust consists chiefly of the minute hairs removed from the kernel in the preparation of oatmeal. It has a fair feeding value, especially if broken kernels are present, and there is not too much mill sweepings. Oat shorts or oat feed varies greatly in composition, although the better grades show a feeding value similar to that of oatmeal.

Barley—Barley is a first class feed for pigs and dairy cows. The by-products, brewers' grains and malt sprouts, are largely fed in some sections. Brewers' grains are simply barley from which the dextrin and sugar have been extracted. The wet grains are not desirable for general use, but the dried grains are easily kept and are rich in protein and fat, ranking with bran and oil meal as a feed for dairy cows. Malt sprouts are a cheap and excellent feed for cows, but they are not greatly relished, and only two or three pounds a day can be fed.

Peas.—Peas are very rich in protein and are among the best feeds for growing animals, dairy cows and pigs. Pea meal is too concentrated to be fed alone. There are no by-products in general use.

Oil Cake—Oil cake meal is a by-product of the manufacture of linseed oil. It is a very rich and healthful feed, particularly for fattening cattle and sheep. Its high protein content makes it valuable for feeding in moderate quantities to dairy cows, along with corn silage.

Cottonseed Meal.—Cottonseed meal is a by-product in making cottonseed oil. It is richest of all the concentrates, but varies greatly in quality. It is not suitable for pigs or calves. Good cottonseed meal, which is a bright lemon-yellow in color, and has a fresh, pleasant taste, may be profitably fed in reasonable quantity. If combined with other feeds. Not more than three or four pounds daily should be fed to dairy cows.—Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

LAST DAY OF THE RACES

2.50 CLASS WAS VERY INTERESTING AND FINISHES WERE CLOSE

The Horses, Mango, Bought by Jas. Allen of Town before the Race—The Hurdle Race an Easy One.

Yesterday was the last day of the race meeting here, and the weather could not have been improved upon. The attendance was fair and the races were exciting. The free-for-all race had to be withdrawn, and only the 2.50 class and 1-2 mile hurdle races were left. In the 2.50 class there were entered Maud Keswick, b.m., owned by Mr. G. Fitzgerald, town; Donna Bell, b.m., owned by Dr. Johnston, town; Pearl Wilkes, ch.m., owned by Mr. Acton, Niagara; Headlight, b. h., owned by Mr. Acton, Niagara, and Nettie Wright, from Gananoque.

In the first heat Maud Keswick got the pole and kept ahead all the time. Most of this heat a sheet could have covered her and Nettie Wright, who kept a close second, and only finished a length behind. Pearl Wilkes kept third place, and Headlight showed a wonderful burst of speed, but it was too late. The time was 2.26-1-2.

In the second heat Maud Keswick broke just after getting away, but gathered herself nicely and was just getting into line when she lost her feet again. Nettie Wright was leading and Pearl Wilkes followed her closely. Maud Keswick was finishing strong when she again broke, and only finished in third place. The time was 2.24 1-2.

In the third heat Nettie Wright led all the way. Pearl Wilkes followed closely for a short distance, but fell away and was passed by Maud Keswick. The finish for second place in this heat was very interesting, Maud Keswick winning by a few inches. The time was 2.24 1-2.

In the last heat Nettie Wright again took a long lead. Maud Keswick closed up and then fell away. Pearl Wilkes passed Maud Keswick, who again fell away and finished in third place, with Maud Keswick in second place, with Maud Keswick in was 2.24 3-4. Following is the summary:—

Nettie Wright, Gananoque.....	2	1	1	1
Maud Keswick, Fitzgerald, Peterborough...	1	3	2	3
Pearl Wilkes, Acton, Niagara...	3	2	3	2
Headlight, Acton, Niagara...	4	4	5	4
Donna Bell, Johnston, Peterborough...	5	5	4	5

The next race was expected to be very interesting, but it did not prove so much. Four horses were entered in the half-mile hurdle race, Rathlin, owned by Mr. Northgraves, Toronto; Fellowship, owned by Mr. Maher, Toronto; Mango, owned by Jas. Allen, Peterborough, and Narod, owned by Mr. Alexander, of Owen Sound. There was only one heat in this race and the time made was 2.49. Rathlin got away with a nice start, with Mango a close second. Narod passed Mango at the three-quarter post, and gradually closed on Rathlin. Mango died at the mile, and Rathlin finished about two lengths ahead of Narod. Fellowship was never in the race and finished third. Following was the finish:—

Rathlin, Northgraves, Toronto ... 1
Narod, Alexander, Ottawa... 2
Fellowship, Maher, Toronto... 3
Mango, Jas. Allen, Peterborough.. 4
Time, 2.49.

After the first heat in the 2.50 class, the horse Mango was auctioned off by Auctioneer Gardiner, and was purchased by Mr. Jas. Allen, of town, for $111. It took the first mile nicely, but could not stand the pace.

MEN BADLY HURT

Thrown out on the Chemong Road last Evening.

Last evening shortly after seven o'clock, a rather serious runaway occurred on the Chemong road, near Milburn's hill, about two miles from town. Two young men from town, Messrs. Wm. Willard and Michael Fallen, who had been at Chemong in the afternoon, were returning. They passed the bus several times, and apparently worried the spirited beast they were driving so much that, when they reached Milburn's hill the horse ran into the ditch and upset the rig, throwing the occupants out. After kicking itself free from the buggy it dashed down the road and the attention of the occupants of the bus was attracted and they went back to investigate. They found both men lying on the road, Willard with his right ear badly smashed and his skull fractured, and Fallen badly shaken up. Dr. Boucher, who happened to be in the bus, was called and he did all he could to help them. It was found on examination that Fallen wasn't badly hurt, and a farmer driving past took him home, but Willard's injuries were so serious that the doctor hastened to town and sent the ambulance for him, which took him to Nicholl's Hospital, and he is resting nicely to-day. The doctors are unable to tell just the extent of his injuries, and his case is considered a very grave one.

TAX COLLECTOR REPORTS

Mr. W. J. Green, tax collector, reports that the returns at his office, up to and including Aug. 1st, amounted to $75,242.42. This of course is the first instalment, and seems to point to the fact that the people have a very satisfactory amount of wealth when it is considered that the above amount is $2018.81 more than was received for the same period last year. It should also be remembered that the rate of taxation in this year one half a mill lower than last year. A consideration of these facts reveals growing and prosperous conditions in this town.

IN THE REALM OF SPORT

FOOTBALL.

BASEBALL.

The T.A.S. baseball team left this morning for Lindsay, where they will play the Midland League team there this afternoon. If Quinlan can pitch the same ball as on Saturday the team will give a good account of themselves. Following were the players:—H. Latermouille, Quinlan, A. Latermouille, Treanor, Brady, Callahan, Deroucher, Craig and Fitzpatrick.

The Young Quakers defeated All Saints' Guild team by a score of 12—1. Batteries for the winners, Quinlan and Wilson; and for the losers, Pilling and Thornton.

BOWLING.

The three rinks that went to Port Hope yesterday went down to defeat. The Port Hopers treated our men very hospitably and extended every courtesy, but showed no mercy on the bowling green—which, of course, was expected. Our boys are very grateful for their kindness, and look forward to an early opportunity to return the compliment.

The following are the scores:—

LACROSSE.

At a meeting of the C.A.A.U. executive held last night in Montreal, six C.L.A. teams were professionalized, as follows:—Chippewas and Tecumsehs, Toronto; Brantford, Orillia, Fergus and St. Catharines. The Capitals, of Ottawa, were also put in the same running, they having played with the Tecumsehs.

"Barney" Gordon, of hockey fame, who was professionalized on his playing in Pittsburg, is in the lacrosse game again. He played with Stratford against Mitchell, and the latter club have protested him.

CUT YOUR WEEDS

By-Law Compels you to do so before they Seed.

Our attention has been drawn to the obnoxious weeds that have been allowed to grow around the town, and are now scattering their seeds all over the ground. Perhaps people do not know that there is a by-law to compel them to cut these weeds before they cast their seeds; but they will be sure of it when they get a summons to appear in Police Court and explain their negligence.

Not only should these weeds be cut before they are allowed to spread, but the appearance of our already pretty town would be greatly improved. On some streets in town the weeds are very obnoxious, and some up higher than the pavement.

FOOT GUARDS PLEASED

WITH THEIR TREATMENT BY THE 57TH. OFFICERS AND MEN.

(Ottawa Citizen.)

The Governor'General's Foot Guards returned yesterday from their two-day trip to Peterborough. All pronounce the holiday to have been the most pleasant they have had in many years, and all express the desire that they may in the near future reciprocate the kindness shown them by the members of the 57th Peterborough Rangers. The trip was full of interesting features.

Nothing could have been finer or more worthy of note than the care of the G.G.F.G officers that all of the regiment should have the most enjoyable time possible. A spirit of fraternal good will pervaded all ranks which, with the cordial welcome extended by Peterborough soldiers and citizens, made the holiday one long to be remembered.

Change of food, air and water were responsible for several cases of sickness in the regiment, which were promptly relieved by the careful attention of Surgeon-Captain Kidd, whose thoughtfulness evoked many expressions of gratitude. He was assisted in his good work by Staff-Sergeant Pegg and the members of the bearer section, who exercised a solicitous care for their sick comrades. For some of the more severe cases rooms were procured at the best hotel in the city, and also berths on the sleepers, some of the officers giving up their own berths for the purpose.

The n.c.o.'s of the Guards are loud in their praises of Sergeant-Major Brittain and the sergeants' mess of the 57th. They kept open house at their rooms on Simcoe street and served free refreshments to their comrades during the whole of the stay, besides chartering a steamer for a pleasant river trip. Color-Sergeant Cottrell and Staff-Sergeant S. Sharpe were the popular sergeant-major's able assistants. Sergeant-Major Alfred E. Brittain is every inch a soldier. Tall and straight as an arrow, he is a fine figure either in uniform or civilian's clothes, and is one of the best drilled men in the Canadian militia. He has spent six years in the R.C.R., was drill sergeant of the 10th Royal Grenadiers for five years and has been senior n.c.o. of the 57th for four and a half years. He was drill sergeant of B company on the coronation contingent.

The regiment received a Dandonald send-off. All Peterborough and half the country turned out to bid good-bye and the local bands serenaded the travelers till out of hearing.

Captain J. C. Davidson, chaplain of the Rangers, spent two of the busiest days of his life seeing that the Guards enjoyed themselves. He was very successful and won the gratitude and respect of all.

Captain Rothwell is an ideal quartermaster. He showed in the Peterborough trip that he knows how arrangements should be made and also how to see that they are carried out.

"Tell me, sergeant," said a popular lieutenant to an ambulance sergeant, "what is aqua pura anyway? Is it very bad for the system?" "I don't know, sir," was the reply, "but those 57th sergeants put some of it in the drinking and it fixed me." The emphasis in unsteady tones was upon the "me."

A squad of fine looking sergeants of the Second Field Battery took in the trip, while the Ottawa Bearer company was represented by Q.-M.-Sergeant J. Stack and Sergeant Compounder Storey.

Sergeant-Major Mahoney, the popular and efficient senior warrant officer of the corps, forgot drill for the trip and enjoyed the holiday as much as the youngsters, with the church parade excepted, however, for at that function he told them off, dressed them into line and turned out as fine a looking regiment as there is in Canada.

—Toronto Globe: John English gave himself up to Detective Harrison yesterday after escaping from the lock-up at Omemee, where he was arrested on a warrant sworn out in this city. English is accused of stealing the proceeds of the sale of three photographs from Johnston & Co., by whom he was employed. He will be taken to-day to Omemee to stand trial on the charge of breaking jail. Chief Constable A. Clemmett is coming for him.

FAMILIAR FIGURE IN PETERBORO PASSES AWAY.

Came to this Town in 1861 and was Successful in Business—Lived Formerly in Belleville.

In the death of Mr. David Breese, which occurred about half-past eleven yesterday morning at his summer home on Glenwood Island, Stoney Lake, there has passed away a gentleman who was prominent in business circles here for over thirty years, and one highly thought of by all who knew him. The illness which brought on his death was consumption, and since June last his vitality had been ebbing slowly. It was on the 22nd of that month when he was removed from his home at 695 Bethune street, to his summer residence at Stoney Lake, his friends feeling that the change would be beneficial. He was a man who greatly loved a sojourn to the lakes, and he was an excellent yachtsman, and so experienced in matters pertaining to boating and hunting, as to be regarded as an authority upon these matters. The death of David Breese will cause great regret among many visitors to Stoney Lake, for there he was a most familiar figure and his geniality made him many friends.

The late David Breese was born in Newton, Montgomeryshire, Wales, in 1844. His father lived and died there. Mr. Breese was the youngest of three sons, and these are now all deceased. After the death of his father, his mother emigrated to Canada with her children and settled in Belleville. The elder sons of the family had been engaged in a woollen mill in early life and they soon found employment at their trade after arriving in Belleville. In 1861, Mr. David Breese left Belleville and coming to Peterborough served his apprenticeship as tinsmith with Mr. James Stevenson, where he wrought for fifteen years and then began business for himself on Hunter street. Mr. George Hutchinson, of town, was associated with him in business for some time; later the firm name was Breese and Bain, and still later his brother-in-law, Mr. Alfred Jones, became a partner, the store being located at this time on Hunter street. Of late years he had been an inspector for the Peterborough Light and Power Company. Mr. Breese began business life without assistance, and by industry and economy laid the foundation for prosperity. His wife, a daughter of the late William Condon, one of the early settlers of Doure, whom he married in 1868, is living, and by her and an adopted daughter, Miss Maud Breese, his death will be deeply mourned.

The late David Breese was a member of George street Methodist church, and also of Peterborough Lodge of Oddfellows. The brethren will have charge of the funeral, which will take place to-morrow afternoon from the family residence, Bethune street, to Little Lake cemetery.

PETERBORO PEOPLE BIT

At Another Advertising Scheme, Alleged to be a Fake.

It is said that some Peterborough bit at the following advertisement appearing in some Canadian papers, and which was, it is alleged, the bait used by Rochester sharpers to fleece applicants who applied to it:—

"Wholesale house desires honest young man for permanent travelling position in Ontario, experience unnecessary if a hustler, $18 weekly and expenses. Jobbers, 783 Powers, Rochester, N.Y."

Those who answered the advertisement got replies from Rochester on letter paper, bearing the name of the National Jobbing Company. As a rule the recipient was considered just the man to take charge of the office as manager, and an attractive prospect was held out to him, but a deposit of $50 was required as a guarantee.

Judging from the complaints made to the United States P.O. department, several fifties have found their way to the "company," from people on both sides of the line, but the promised lucrative positions have not shown up in return. Now comes the news from Rochester that an order has gone forth to the postal authorities there to hold all mail from the National Jobbing Company, mark it "fraudulent" and return it to the postmasters at the sending offices for delivery to the senders.

Under these instructions 250 letters were detained in Rochester on Sunday, and large numbers on Monday and yesterday also. So it would appear that there are a multitude of young fellows most desirous of entering the service of "jobbers," in spite of the vagueness of the designation given in the advertisement.

Many Toronto people have been caught, or almost caught, and Rochester advises say that among other Canadian cities represented in the correspondence now held, or by complaints lodged with the United States post office, or Chief of Police Hayden, are Hamilton, London, Brockville, Brantford, Peterborough and Guelph.

FINANCIAL MEN PLEASED

WITH THE PROSPECTS OF THE STAR OF THE EAST GOLD MINE.

Two Prominent Gentlemen were here from Pittsburg—Remarkably fine Showing of two Pounds of quartz.

The Star of the East gold mine, situated in the township of Barrie, in Frontenac County, is attracting considerable attention from prominent financial men by reason of its richness. Recent visitors to the mine were Mr. Russell, President of the First National Bank, Pittsburg, Pa., and Mr. Dowler, President of the Home Loan Association, Pittsburg, Pa. Their visit was made this week, and they left for Buffalo this morning. These gentlemen are interested in other mining property, and it is therefore most significant when they express themselves well pleased with the outlook of the Star of the East mine. With its easy access and the amount of ore on hand, they express the opinion that it is one of the best paying mines they have yet visited. Their purpose is to take a large block of stock.

Mr. Smith, one of the chief agents of the Star of the East Gold Mining Co., reports that two pounds of pulverized quartz from the last shot at the bottom of shaft number one has made the best showing of any he has yet seen. This fact further emphasizes the richness of the mine.

Brevities.

—The Board of Works will meet tonight.

—The case of assault which was enlarged until this morning, was dismissed without costs.

—Rev. J. E. Trotter, of Port Hope, former pastor of Murray street church, will occupy the pulpit for the next two Sundays.

—A complaint has been received by the Chief about people bathing on Smith street. Why does not the Council take the hint and provide baths?

—The fire brigade had a run to 11 Wantoott st. about 11.30 this morning, but their services were not needed. A fire had burnt a hole in the summer kitchen and was easily extinguished.

—Lindsay Post—At last meeting of Council Mayor Southeran laid before the Aldermen Mr. J.A. Culverwell's gift of half of the first ticket issued over the newly opened C.P.R. line between Lindsay and Toronto, reference to which has already been made in these columns. On motion the Clerk was instructed to transmit the ticket and accompanying letter to the secretary of Victoria County Museum.

POULTRY-RAISING RANCH

HERB KENDRY'S VERY FINE OUTFIT NEAR CRAWFORD'S GROVE.

An industry with a most promising future, and one that has reached an advanced stage of development, is that which Mr. Herb Kendry has latached upon a plot of fifteen acres of ground situated in North Monaghan immediately north of Crawford's Grove. It was in January last that Mr. Kendry purchased this property with the purpose of using it for a chicken ranch, and the equipment there to-day and the success that is apparent in well-directed operations, seem to point to very fine results in contributions of plump pullets to the always ready poultry market. As a beginning it was proposed to raise some 2000 chickens this summer, and already it appears that this is going to be easily accomplished. When the farm was first purchased the only building upon it was an old barn. To-day there are buildings in all about two hundred feet long, devoted to the different departments of the poultry raising business.

A more desirable location could hardly have been obtained. The lay of the land is such that the weather could become as tearful as possible and there would be no likelihood of flooding, the water finding ready course to the river which runs alongside. Some five acres are sown in buckwheat and other crops are being grown for winter feed. There is an adequate amount of room for the colony houses and the place indicates an enterprise that presages success.

A visit to the ranch affords opportunity to observe the evolution of a chicken almost from the unsuspicious looking egg to the time the pullet is ready for the market. There are at present three large incubators in use, each with a capacity of over three hundred eggs. Each of these has been set six times, and the seventh setting is now just chipping. The machine hardly beats the hen out, but it can do business on a much larger scale. The eggs begin to chip on the nineteenth day. On the 22nd day the little chickens are taken out and removed to brooders, of which there are fifteen on the ranch, and several of which are already looking after large flocks. The brooder of course takes the place of the maternal hen, and the chickens appear to be quite as contented as if they had life-long acquaintance with the feathered article. Attached to the brooder is a covered runway, in which the chickens may obtain their share of exercise. After three or four weeks the chickens are removed to colony houses, which are built on somewhat the same principle and with similar purpose as the ordinary chicken coop. There are ten of these houses on the ranch, scattered over different parts of meadow. It is possible to move them from place to place, so that no location is decapted for such a period as to become stale. The ten houses at present on the ranch contain one hundred good-sized pullets each, and these, after the fattening process, will be ready for the market. At present there are fifty pairs of fine pullets fattening in the pens for the market, and they will be shipped in a day or so. The birds are kept in closed quarters where it is impossible for them to obtain exercise of any kind, but where they acquire flesh rapidly and soon acquire all the qualities of first-class marketable poultry. The life of the chicken, though short,—probably not more than twelve weeks at the outside—appears to be full of the best attention and everything calculated to make a chicken happy in this vale of tears. The first lot of poultry from the ranch will go to the Davis Company of Toronto, and there is also a good market in Montreal waiting for a supply. It might be interesting to note here that during the past winter the King Edward Hotel, in Toronto, was kept supplied with eggs from this farm. It is found that the barred Plymouth rock gives the best results for every purpose. There are at present eight pens containing one hundred and twenty-two breeding hens. The intention is to increase this number to 300 for next season, and to increase the incubator equipment by three or four machines. Some 5,00 chickens will be raised next season. This points to a policy of expansion and it can easily be seen that a most profitable industry will undoubtedly be established.

But the raising of chickens is not the only business of the ranch. The raising of squabs or the plump, unfledged young pigeon, has been undertaken on a somewhat extensive scale. A very large number of brooders occupy a separate building, which has been fitted up with nests, and already there is quite a bevy of young birds. This is probably the first squab-raising ranch in Ontario, if not in Canada, and good returns may be expected from the sale of this class of poultry, so greatly in demand by the large hotels. It is the Philadelphia squab which is being raised on this ranch, a species for which there is a ready market, and good prices.

Upon the ranch is also a good-sized duck pen with two fine flocks. The pen is situated near the river, and every condition exists for success in raising ducks.

Some attention is also being given to the breeding of deer-hunting dogs, there being a very fine kennel of young harriers which in few months will be famed by the men who get after the fleet-footed denizens of the forest in the fall.

Everything is kept in apple pie order on the farm. The houses are clean and the buildings generally are kept systematically. Already the attention of men prominent in the poultry raising business has been directed toward it, and they will undoubtedly see there an example of successful poultry raising, an industry which should have greater prominence in this country.

ices tightly draped over a fitted lining are decidedly Louis XV., and the same can be said of the front panel, which may be seen in many prints of the period carried out in an entirely different material from the gown. The twisted and knotted ribbons also belong to this same period.

Velling is by long odds the most popular spring and summer fabric. Every conceivable shade is used, from white to deep plum. The delicate cadet blue is especially smart when combined with green. A great deal of velle is also being made up into blouse tailor mades. The skirts are much shirred over a tight fitting foundation.

There is just now a craze for a peculiar tint of green, and this is especially chic made up over white silk, which gives a changeable effect.

Now it is for both the face and hat veil to be en suite, and they must in addition harmonize with the dress and hat with which they are worn. The rainbow (or ombre) veil is a novelty, shading from light to dark, the light portion covering the hat, some of them shading from a dark blue to green and others from a pale cream to a rich orange.

A Useful Tiger.

"Snakes and hyenas are strange pets, but strangest of all is a full grown tiger, and such a pet had Major Mansell-Playdell," says A. Mervyn Smith in his book. "It used to be chained up just in front of the door of his bungalow. The major had a method of running up bills with local tradesmen, but there was great difficulty in getting payment, as none of the bill collectors was venturesome enough to cross the guardian at the door. It was a great joke of the major's when asked to pay his bill to reply: 'Have you sent your bill? Your man has never presented it at my house.' Brutus, as the tiger was named, seemed to know what was required of him. When chained before his master's door he would lie with his head between his forepaws and watch the gate. If a stranger entered he would lift his head and breathe heavily, and this was enough to scare the most venturesome of bill collectors."

To Preserve the Color of Flowers.

A way to preserve the colors of flowers when pressing them is to immerse the stem of the fresh plant in a solution of 31 grains of alum, 4 of nitre and 160 of water for a day or two, until the liquid is absorbed, then press the plant in the usual way, sift some dry sand over the flower and submit to a gentle heat for about twenty hours.

The Uncertain World.

"This is the most uncertain worl' that ever I was in!" said the deacon.

"You think so?"

"I know it. Only the other day the parson sighted a harricane fur off an' run ter a storm pit an' pulled the lid on an'—what do you reckon happened?"

"The Lord knows."

"Harricane changed its mind—turned into a airthquake an' come mighty nigh swallered him whole!".

WHAT WOMEN ARE WEARING

Belts Are Most Varied—Undersleeves of Net and Chiffon.

Belts are most varied in shape and make, but the folded kid and suede belts are very becoming. The newest are wide at the back and sides only, while they crush down to nothing in front.

lish the wide cuffs. Evening sleeves and lace berthas to match are also to be found in up to date shops.

A great deal of violet is being worn this season in all its tones, from the palest to the deepest.

The present trend of fashion tends to present a full wide appearance instead of the narrow clinging look formerly so fashionable. The smart black gown is always desirable, and some of the prettiest models are in black chiffon cloth trimmed with lustrous appliques and a judicious touch of cream white.

The combination of ecru lace and white material is voted very smart by leaders of fashion.

Quillings of ribbon are used on mousseline de soie gowns, and are seen also on evening dresses of fine net and point d'esprit.

Cream material is more popular than ever. Its neutral tint makes it very practical, for it can be given an entirely different aspect by the addition of a few touches of color.

White flannel, heavily embroidered in wool thread, will be much worn at the seashore and the mountains.

The picture shows a blue mull gown with a wide yoke. It is trimmed principally with bands of shirring.

for smarter occasions there are the wide oriental satin and taffeta pointed bands and sashes.

Plain and spotted pongees will be well to the fore this summer, and so also will plain and embroidered linens, both in pure white and in the natural tints.

Pompadour muslins are the rage of the hour. They are made up over soft silk slips of the color of the figuring. All kinds of Louis XV. designs are smart, no matter in what material they appear.

The dressing jacket of today is a garment that commands great attention. A veritable chef d'oeuvre was of pale cream liberty satin, on which were embroidered maize colored flowers of velvet, the lining consisting of soft draperies of accordion plaited chiffon.

The Meanest Men.

It is believed the original meanest man was the husband who gave his wife a Christmas present of a pair of suspenders. An early holder of the title was the gentleman who always occupied the last seat in the last car in order to save the interest on his money until the conductor got to him. One of the most brilliant of the long line was the man who took candy from a child in the street. — Chicago Inter Ocean.

Strategy of the Cuckoo.

The Indian fruit cuckoo, which, like all members of the cuckoo family, lays its eggs in the nests of other birds and thus avoids the trouble of hatching them, is said to exhibit most interesting strategy in dealing with crows, which are its enemies. Whereas the hen, on inconspicuous speckled gray bird, conceals herself in the foliage, the cock, remarkable for his brilliant black plumage and crimson eyes, places himself on a perch near a crows' nest and makes a great noise. The crows immediately rush out to attack him, and he takes to flight with them in pursuit. The hen meanwhile slips into the nest and deposits an egg. Sometimes the crows get back before the egg is laid, and then the intruding hen cuckoo gets a trouncing.—Youth's Companion.

THE HAGIOSCOPE.

"In spite of the close blood relationship," said an American who had visited England, "we are frequently reminded in England that we are foreigners. It crops up often in the ordinary conversation.

"An English friend whose guest I was took me around to see his native village. We entered the church.

"'Whereabouts is your pew?' I asked.

"'We sit over there by the hagioscope,' he answered, as though a hagioscope were some common object like a table or a candlestick. My friend noticed the blankness of my face, so he repeated:

"'Over there, just below the hagioscope.'

"'Would you mind telling me what sort of an instrument it is that you call a hagioscope?' I asked meekly.

"The Englishman looked hurt; but, with a sigh, he explained:

"'We have them in nearly all the old country churches. Do you see that small glass window through the wall beside the altar? That was made at the time when lepers were at large and they attended church services. They were of course not allowed inside, so they stood outside and saw and heard the services through that hole, which is called the squint window, but more often the hagioscope.'"

DO IT TODAY.

Tomorrow May Be Too Late and Then You Would Be Sorry.

If you have a flower to give, give it today. One throb of gladness is worth more to the living heart than a wealth of costly blooms laid, however tenderly, above the dead one.

If you have a kindly visit to make, make it today lest another step in and lay his quiet hand upon the longing heart and still forever its fret and pain and power of glad response. In the city of the dead, in the silence of the grave, hearts are never lonely any more. They have no need or need.

If you have kisses to bestow, let the dear living lips their sweetness know today.

If you've smiles to give, give them today. Living eyes are often hungry. Though their game be seemingly so calm, so quiet and mayhap so proud, the smiles may be a touch of heaven for them. If they are closed in death, tomorrow your fondest smile would matter naught.

If you have a helpful, hopeful, loving word to say, say it today. It may keep some heart from breaking, some soul from falling. No word or cry can break the soul tomorrow—if death whispers then—to earn that hear today. —Exchange.

The Hindoo Idea of Wit.

An English lady reformer of uncertain age who visited India to deliver a lecture told the audience that she would be happy to answer any question, upon which a fat babee came to the front with "How old are you?" "Oh, no," she replied; "I don't mean questions of that sort; only ones connected with the subject of the lecture." "Are you forty?" continued the babee, nowise abashed. "No, I won't answer such a question," was the reply. "Are you fifty?" continued her tormentor. "Oh, no; I told you I won't answer such questions." "Are you sixty?" "Oh, no, no, no; I'm not sixty," the lady responded precipitately.

A shikarri out partridge shooting was seen in fits of laughter, slapping his thighs in the ecstasy of his glee. On inquiring the cause of his hilarity, he hurriedly said: "Hush, sahib! That cooly," indicating one of the beaters, "has just been bitten by a green snake, but he thinks it is only a thorn! Don't tell him or he'll be frightened and stop beating."—From General Gerard's "Leaves From the Diary of a Soldier and Sportsman."

The Jade Jokai Loved.

To Prove what Anti-Pill, the Great System Treatment will do for you, Every Reader of this paper may have A Sample Bottle sent Free by Mail.

Derangement of the stomach is responsible for much sickness and suffering. Every organ of the body depends upon the stomach for its nutriment and strength—If the stomach is not working right the blood carries to the liver, heart, nerves and kidney tissues impure, foul matter.—They become weak and unable to perform their work—become clogged, diseased, and throw out their distress symptoms. Now you may get stimulative, temporary relief by the taking of a kidney, liver, nerve or heart specific, but the cause remains—The stomach is at fault, and so long as it keeps loading the blood with impurity—waste, so long will the blood transport and deposit disease breeding elements in the weak places—When you feel sick, help the stomach first. A well stomach means a well body. Anti-Pill, the Great System Treatment, is a new discovery that has a marvelous influence in regulating system ailments. Address, Wilson Pyle Co., Niagara Falls, Ont., for free sample. Regular size, a month's treatment, 50 cents at Druggists.

"Well, confess it I must. I have a sweetheart, for whose sake I have been faithless not only to my wife, but to my muse also—a sweetheart who has appropriated my best ideas and whose slave I was and still am. Often have I wasted half my fortune upon her and rushed blindly into misfortune to please her. For her sake I have patiently endured insult, ridicule and reprobation; for her sake I have staked life and liberty. Now, if she had been a pretty young damsel there might have been some excuse for me, but she was a nasty, old, painted Apostasia of a beldame, a flirting, faithless, fickle, foul mouthed, scandalmongering old liar, whom the whole world courts, who makes fools of all her wooers and changes her lovers as often as she changes her dress. Her name is Politics, and may the plague take her!"

The author of a book on the Kaffirs of South Africa says: "The women are, on the whole, in favor of polygamy. Sometimes a woman who has a dozen other 'sisters,' as they call fellow wives, will go to a woman who is the solitary wife of a man and ask her if she does not feel lonely. No one can visit a large kraal—such, for example, as the king's kraal in Swaziland—where there are hundreds of huts, and not feel that there is a certain charm in the social life of the place. It is a sort of college life, and frequently my thoughts have reverted to my old varsity days, and it has struck me that if one could imagine a set of men living in the old court of Trinity surrounded by wives and children, with a social circle in which every one was related to every one else, one might get some idea of the sheer joy of life amid 1,000 relations."

THURSDAY, AUG. 4 1904.

SEVERAL BILLS KILLED

"Assessors of Innocents" to Permit Prorogation Saturday.

No Naval Militia Yet—Civil Service Bill Also Withdrawn—Advertising Censorship Relieved For a Time—The Militia and Postoffice Bills Passed—Liberals in Power Pulse to Premiers of Economy an Opposition.

Ottawa, Aug. 4.—When the House met yesterday morning the Prime Minister remarked that as there seemed to be a general desire for prorogation at the end of this week the Government would drop a number of bills from the order paper until next session. The items thus laid over till 1904 are Sir William Mulock's amendment to the Civil Service Act, Mr. Prefontaine's Naval Militia Act, Mr. Fisher's bill for the inspection of seeds and the incorporation of seed growers' associations, and the two bills to place the harbors of Port Arthur and Fort William under harbor commissions.

Union Label Bill, Too.

E. F. Clarke asked whether provision had been made for the passage of the Union Label Bill this session.

The Premier regretted that it had not been possible. This measure must stand till next year along with some other important public bills.

The Postoffice Bill.

The Postoffice Bill was given a third reading, Sir William Mulock dropping, at the Opposition leader's request, the clause which prohibits the carriage through the mails of newspapers containing fake medicine advertisements about miraculous cures. This clause will be brought forward again next year.

The Militia Bill was next called for a third reading. The clauses providing for calling out the militia in times of riots, etc., were re-cast on motion of the Minister of Justice. A long discussion followed, but the matter had not been disposed of when the House rose at one o'clock.

Troops For Riots

The militia bill was taken up again in the afternoon and received its third reading. The clause governing the calling out of the militia to suppress riots was amended. The clause as amended provides that the militia may be called out by the mayor and two magistrates, by a county court judge, by a district court judge or by a judge of the Superior Court.

Liberals False to Promise.

Mr. Bell placed before the House at the conclusion of his speech a resolution which was as full of "regrets" as one of Kuropatkin's reports from the seat of war. It regretted that notwithstanding the promises of the Liberals in opposition, the taxation per head had increased from $5.57 per head in 1897. The taxation last year was $8.87 per head. It regretted that the taxation this year would probably reach $9.52 per head. It regretted that the total expenditure for the year 1904 exceeded the expenditure for 1897 by $23,000,000. The final regret was that, "notwithstanding the promises of the Liberal party in opposition to reduce taxation and expenditure, the Government is maintaining a policy of high and steadily increasing taxation and expenditure and is thus setting an example of wasteful and extravagant management of a character which must work serious injury to the people and interests of Canada."

Mr. Fielding's Reply.

Hon. W. S. Fielding replied with a choice collection of arguments, based on the trade returns of the past seven years. It was a kind of redex of the budget debate.

On a vote of 90 to 46 Mr. Bell's resolution was defeated. The House then went into committee of supply and made good progress.

New Cartridge Factory.

On an item in the main estimates Sir Frederick Borden announced, in reply to a question that an English concern would establish at or near Ottawa a cartridge and powder factory. The Government would purchase from five to ten million cartridges a year and take a certain number of tons of explosives required by the cartridge factory at Quebec or as otherwise required. The capacity of the concern would be considerably above, probably double, the minimum. This would mean a expenditure for the current financial year were brought down last night by the Finance Minister. They amount to $:197,450. Canals account for $107,000 on capital account and $10,800 chargeable to income.

Under Sunday Law.

Ottawa, Aug. 4.—After a long discussion, the Senate last night passed the clause making railways wholly within the province subject to provincial Sunday observance law. The bill to amend the railway act, which contains this clause, was read a third time and passed.

MR. GAMEY AT NEWINGTON.

Mr. Whitney Also Spoke For Stormont County Conservatives.

Ottawa, Aug. 4.—A big demonstration was held at Newington yesterday under the auspices of the Stormont County Conservative Association, when 3,000 people heard J. P. Whitney, R. R. Gamey and others discuss political issues. Mr. Gamey repeated his story. Considerable interest centred in the attendance of Mr. Whitney, this being his first appearance, it is said, on a platform with Mr. Gamey. Col. McLellan, A. Broder, M.P., and others spoke. No reference was made to the Dundonald incident, except that Mr. Whitney expressed pleasure at meeting so many "foreigners." The gathering was an unqualified success from the standpoint of attendance and enthusiasm.

DECLINE TO ENDORSE IT.

London, Aug. 4.—(C.A.P.)—A protectionist manifesto is being extensively signed by business men throughout Britain. It declines to endorse the Chamberlain policy, so far as it embraces protection, on the ground that it increases the cost of production, but supports a policy having as its fundamental basis a moderate tax on food, provided that differential duties be imposed by the colonies in favor of British goods. It recommends that an Imperial conference be summoned in order that the nature of the trade and the advantages the colonies can offer to and receive from the motherland may be clearly understood.

Lord Rosebery's Suggestion.

London, Aug. 4.—(C.A.P.)—Lord Rosebery, in a letter to The Times re the proposed colonial conference, says there should be a clear basis for the conference drawn up in conjunction with the colonies, the basis to be agreed to by both parties. Lord Rosebery adds his firm conviction that, unless the conference be desired by the colonies and assembled on a plain basis arranged beforehand and freed from party taint, it may do more harm than good.

Greets Rosebery's Letter.

Mr. Chamberlain, writing to The Times, welcomes Lord Rosebery's letter as indicating another change of front, which may carry him back to his patriotic attitude of 1888, when he was ready to die for the cause of Imperial Federation. He (Mr. Chamberlain) had not made the suggestion for a conference before, as it seemed desirable to test the opinion of the country on an offer, which, he still maintained, was made by the colonies at the conference of Premiers. He entirely agreed with Lord Rosebery that the wishes of the colonies must be an essential condition, but was afraid Lord Rosebery was imperfectly informed concerning the real issue. To suggest a conference on preference while rigidly excluding any reference to taxes on food, would be to present in the circumstances, a childish and almost insulting proposition.

WILLING, IF ASKED.

Hugh Lumsden Gives Evidence As to G.T.P. Engineering Position.

Toronto, Aug. 4.—Judge Winchester yesterday concluded the enquiry into the employment of alien engineers on the G.T.P. railway, with an examination of Hugh D. Lumsden.

Joseph Hobson, chief engineer of the G.T.R., testified at the last session of the enquiry here that he had brought Mr. Lumsden and Charles M. Hays together in regard to the former's application for a position on the new road. The salary offered was $4,000, but Mr. Lumsden declined the position before any mention of the salary had been made.

Mr. Lumsden stated yesterday that he had had no conversation with Mr. Hays in reference to a position on the G.T.P., but he had been offered a position as assistant to Mr. Hobson on the G.T.R. at the salary mentioned. Mr. Hobson had evidently confused the two roads.

Asked if he would have accepted the position given John H. Stephens as chief engineer, at $7,500 per annum, Mr. Lumsden said he probably would have accepted it if it had been offered him.

Mr. Lumsden outlined a list of public works on which he had been engaged, including a number of sections on the C.P.R., the Crow's Nest Pass and other roads. In all, his experience he had never found it necessary to engage United States engineers, and had had very little experience with them. The salaries paid by the G.T.P., he considered high, and if Mr. Hays had offered him anything in connection with the location or construction of a transcontinental road, he could have secured a release from the C.P.R.

Mr. Lumsden was not cross-examined, W. H. Biggar, the company's counsel, not being present.

Judge Winchester will begin his report as soon as the evidence is printed at Ottawa.

KRUGER DIED FORGIVING.

Ex-Transvaal President Greater at Death Than in Life.

Cape Town, Aug. 4.—A letter from Dr. Muller, who was at the deathbed of ex-President Kruger of the Transvaal, says that shortly before his death Mr. Kruger said: "I no longer hate the English. It is a pity there was a war, but I believe that everything will come out right in the end."

Calmer at Port Au Prince.

Port au Prince, Hayti, Aug. 4.—The situation here was calmer yesterday, but the population is still excited, and all the Syrian stores are closed.

Man's Worst Enemy.

Wherever you see ten people together, ten average people of all ages, you may say: One of these ten will die of consumption. In the long run you will be more than justified in your prophecy. It will be nearer one out of every nine born into the world. We are horribly afraid of cholera and all bowel diseases, of diphtheria and of scarlet fever. Add to these the annual deaths from measles (measles is far from being harmless) and the sum total is not half of what the great white plague claims. Only pneumonia approaches it as a slayer of men.

Piles To prove to you that Dr. Chase's Ointment is a certain and absolute cure for each and every form of Bleeding, Blind and Protruding Piles, the manufacturers have guaranteed it. See testimonials in the daily papers and ask your neighbors what they say of it. You can use it and get your money back if not cured. 60c a box, at all dealers or EDMANSON, BATES & Co., Toronto.

THE DROWNING ACCIDENT

Mr. Kidd Gives his Reasons for Considering the Verdict Inconsistent.

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—I was very much surprised to see the sweeping verdict of the jury empanelled to enquire into the circumstances governing the drowning of my daughter. I would like to draw your attention to the evidence of Inspector Davis, who stated very positively that the bow of the boat was not intended for passengers, and that it was the duty of the captain and his assistants to see none were allowed there, either by locking the door leading to the bow or having a man stationed there for that purpose. Neither of these precautions were taken. I have made full enquiry and have yet to hear of a single person (excepting the young man Robert Reid, who was in the wheelhouse with the captain), who heard one word of warning from the captain or anyone else, regarding the danger of sitting out there. Again, even had there been a warning given to a few who happened to be in the bow in the early part of the evening, what about those who had not heard the warning and were not aware they were violating the rules of the boat by stepping through an unlocked door. Is it not the duty of the captain to insist that the rules of his boat be recognized and compel passengers to stay inside? Yet in the face of all this the jury brings in their verdict fully exonerating the captain and crew from any blame in the matter, and follows up with recommendations that more secure fastenings be provided for the railing, and also notices be posted up forbidding passengers from being in those places. Does this not appear rather inconsistent? If there is no blame to the captain or crew, why recommend these changes? Again, if passengers are not allowed in these places why do they recommend that the railing be made more secure? This part where the child fell off is the regular entrance getting on and off the boat, and would it not appear reasonable that after the railing was closed a passenger would feel secure and not be afraid to lay their hand on the so-called protection, or what is to prevent an accident when nearing the wharf, and, as is usual, passengers crowding to the place of exit, if they have no better protection than this miserable structure on the North Star?

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for space to explain what I consider an inconsistent verdict.

PETERBORO DEPICTED

An Illustrated Account of our Town in the National Monthly.

The National Monthly of Canada for August has an illustrated description of "Peterborough, the Water-Power City." There are portraits of some of our leading men, Messrs. Jas. Kendry, M.P., J. R. Stratton, Provincial Secretary, G. M. Roger, mayor, T. F. Matthews, H. LeBrun, Robt. Fair, Peter Hamilton, Ben Shortley, W. H. [illegible], Richard Hall and C. B. Macallister. Among the views are the Post Office, the Customs House, the Collegiate Institute, the Y.M.C.A. building, St. Joseph's Hospital, St. John's and St. Paul's churches, the American Cereal Company, the Central Milling Company's works, the Geo. Matthews pork packing establishment, the Peterborough Cordage Factory, Wm. Hamilton foundry, the Auburn woollen mills, the Waterworks power house and dam, the Electric Light power house and dam, some of our streets, parks and private residences, and several views of the lift lock. The description is as follows:—

HISTORICAL.

In the year 1818 a small party of immigrants passed up the beautiful valley of the Otonabee river as far as the township of Smith, then recently surveyed. In the next year a mill was erected at what is now the Cereal Co's dam. Here a town site had previously been reserved. The place at this period was called Scott's Plains. The population then consisted only of the miller and his associates, while the surrounding townships contained some five hundred settlers.

In 1825, the Hon. Peter Robinson, assisted by the British Government, brought out a large number of Irish immigrants. These took up land in Emily, Douro, Ennismore and Otonabee townships, increasing the population over four times. In this year the town was laid out and the first store opened.

In 1828, Sir Peregrine Maitland, Governor of Upper Canada, visited the settlement and the name of Peterborough was chosen for the town, out of compliment to the Hon. Peter Robinson. A dam, bridge and saw mill were completed about this time.

In 1827, the first school was built, the foundation of the old Grammar School. Agriculture also began to show signs of increasing prosperity, and the nucleus of a market was formed, which has grown to immense proportions.

In 1861 the town received another substantial increase in population, consisting largely of mechanics from Great Britain. The population now numbered about five hundred.

In 1833, attention was attracted to the facilities for navigation offered by the remarkable water system of this fertile countryside. A steamboat was built to ply between Peterborough and Rice Lake. The assistance of the Government was obtained for the development of inland navigation, with the result that locks were built at Hastings and Peterborough. This was the initial step in the construction of the Trent Valley Canal, still uncompleted.

In 1837, a contingent of two hundred patriots marched the whole distance to Toronto to assist in suppressing the rebellion. In this year also the pioneer newspaper, the Backwoodsman, was issued. The population had now reached about eight hundred. The erection of a court house was begun the next year.

In 1856 the Midland Railway to Port Hope was completed. This was put through to Lindsay in 1862. The Grand Trunk Junction was built in 1879, and the C.P.R. in 1883.

INDUSTRIAL.

Much of the initial growth and prosperity of Peterborough was due to the lumber business. This industry began to decline during the seventies, owing to the depletion of the timber limits. This depression was of short duration. Fine geographical position, excellent transportation, and, above all, abundance of water power, have combined to make Peterborough a most desirable location for industries. Several large manufacturing firms have already located here, and others are bound to follow.

ELECTRICAL DEVELOPMENT.

The picturesque Otonabee, in its course from the southern arm of Stony Lake to Rice Lake, offers unusual opportunities for the generation of electric power. This fact is fully appreciated by the progressive citizens of Peterborough who already have at their disposal a generous supply of electrical energy. This supply of power, which is practically inexhaustible, is obtained from a number of dams constructed in Peterborough and the vicinity and is sure to prove a still further attraction to industries.

MUNICIPAL FACTS AND FIGURES.

Peterborough has a well-deserved reputation as a healthy and pleasant place to live in. High and dry situation, excellent waterworks, and an efficient sewage system contribute largely to this result. The population at present is 15,000 or over, the village of Ashburnham, situated just across the river, having been recently incorporated. The assessed value of realty in the town is $5,497,189; the surplus of assets over liabilities $135,223; and the rate of taxation for municipal and school purposes 19 mills on the dollar.

PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS.

A Collegiate Institute, Business College, and nine Public Schools supply the ordinary requirements of education. There are also twelve churches representing the leading denominations. Other public buildings are the Post Office, Customs and Inland Revenue Offices. Education is still further rounded out by a well-furnished public library. Journalism is ably represented by such influential publications as the Times, the Examiner and Review.

PARKS AND SUMMER RESORTS.

Peterborough's park system exemplifies the belief of her citizens in the "utility of the beautiful." There are two large parks and several smaller ones, two of them situated centrally all contributing greatly to the beauty of the residential section. A recent by-law, ordering the removal of overhanging signs, shows a desire for civic improvement which is worthy of imitation.

Several popular summer resorts are within easy reach. These are at Balsam, Cameron, Sturgeon, Stugog, Pigeon, Buckhorn, Stony and others of the great chain of lakes bearing the Indian name of Kawartha which signifies "Happy homes and bright waters." These beautiful watering-places, with their picturesque scenery and opportunities for sport, promise soon to outstrip in popularity the famous resorts of Muskoka.

TRENT VALLEY CANAL SYSTEM.

Our description would be incomplete without reference to the Trent Valley Canal, which promises to become of national importance. This system takes advantage of the natural waterways extending from Midland on the Georgian Bay to a point near Lake Ontario, with which it requires only a short stretch of excavation to complete the connection. The completion of this canal would place Peterborough on a direct line of communication between the Georgian Bay and Lake Ontario. The importance of this means of transportation from the upper lakes can hardly be overestimated. This canal also directly drains a country which produces annually some fifteen million bushels of grain and over 200,000 tons of hay. The hydraulic lift lock at Peterborough is sixty-five feet high. Vessels are raised this height and sent on their way in eight minutes.

This magnificent structure, which is the largest of its kind in the world, was formally opened on Saturday, July 9th, in the presence of a great concourse of people from the surrounding country. A large Parliamentary delegation from Ottawa was also present, the leading members of which delivered speeches, showing the high estimation in which the work is held, and its excellent prospects for the future.

The lift lock has been eight years under construction, and has cost in the neighborhood of $750,000. The purpose of the lock is to overcome, in one operation, the difference in levels mentioned above, thus effecting a considerable saving in time. Seventy-six thousand barrels of cement were used in building the concrete substructure.

A vessel desiring to be lowered sails out into a pontoon of water supported by a huge piston. The weight of water in these so adjusted that one pontoon descends and the other ascends in the same manner as a pair of scales when used in weighing.

The work, which is under the control of the Department of Railways and Canals, has been under the direct supervision and management of Messrs. R. B. Rogers, of Peterborough, Superintendent of the Trent Canal, and W. J. Francis, C. E., hydraulic lock engineer.

TRANSPORTATION BY RAIL.

In the matter of railway communication Peterborough is very happily situated. The town is the centre of a six-pointed star, whose rays, represented by railway lines, branch in six directions. The Canadian Pacific main line gives direct communication with Montreal and points east, also with Toronto and the west. Two branches of the Grand Trunk extend south-west and south-east, respectively, connecting the town with the main line, and giving easy access to the lake ports of Belleville and Port Hope. Another branch of the Grand Trunk runs in a north-westerly direction to Midland, noted for its fine harbor and great smelting works. Another shorter line runs northwest to Lakefield, the terminus of Kawartha Lake navigation.

GENERAL REMARKS.

In a country of great possibilities and abundant industrial opportunity, no other town, probably, has greater advantages than Peterborough. The town is beautifully situated, a fact which is sure to weigh with those who are attracted by the splendid business opportunities it has to offer. Its situation seems almost ideal with regard to future developments in navigation. It is surrounded by a country rich in natural resources. Its citizens, also, seem wide awake to their opportunities.

That it shares these advantages in common with many other Canadians towns and as a consequence of the rising tide of prosperity in Canada, is no detraction from its merits.

In conclusion, we would say that the facts seem to justify the conclusion expressed by one of the Rothschilds in 1900, that the Peterborough district would one day become one of the great manufacturing and industrial centres of the continent.

CANADIAN CAPTURES

The North British Agriculturalist has the following editorial:—

The Canadian contingent have made some notable captures lately. Some few weeks ago a number of them, headed by Mr. Henderson, of Lawton, Coupar-Angus, made a raid on Highbury Moor Green and captured Mr. Chamberlain, who at once agreed with them that the scheme of the free importation of store cattle from Canada fitted in exactly with his scheme of a tariff on foreign products, with free and unrestricted importations from the Colonies. The capture of Mr. Chamberlain by the "Canadian" contingent meant practically the capture of Birmingham, and now we learn that last week the Birmingham Chamber of Commerce had this Canadian cattle question before them, and they unanimously "recommended that a representation be addressed to the President of the Board of Agriculture, urging upon the Government the desirability of amending the Diseases of Animals Act so as to remove the embargo on Canadian cattle." The "Canadian" men also assert that they have got assurances, to the effect that the Prime Minister has also come to recognise the force of their contention as to the absolute freedom of Canada from contagious disease, and the desirability of again permitting the free importation of Canadian stores. It is hard to believe this, but if the Canadian men have got their scheme embodied as an integral part of Mr. Chamberlain's scheme of Imperial Fiscal Reform they will certainly have to be reckoned with.

SURRENDER FACING THE RUSSIANS

LOST OVER 1,000 IN KILLED

In the Engagement of July 30 and 31 --Battle in Progress North of Haicheng--If the Russians Are Defeated They Will Have to Move or Quit.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 5.—A rumor is current here that a battle is in progress north of Haicheng.

Tokio, Aug. 5.—The Russians began abandoning Haicheng, Aug. 2. The Japanese entered Haicheng without resistance at noon yesterday, and the Japanese occupied Newchwang the same day.

London, Aug. 5.—A despatch to a news agency from Anshanshan (halfway between Haicheng and Liaoyang), says: "The Japanese advance is being continued with great energy against the southern army. The Russian main forces continue their retirement northward, but the cavalry has checked the Japanese threatening flank movement."

Must Move West or Surrender.

Newchang, Aug. 5.—Field Marshal Oyama, commander-in-chief of the Japanese forces in Manchuria, and General Kodama, chief of staff, left Kaichowye, and have established headquarters in the field with the army.

Gen. Kuroki with one hundred thousand men is now behind the Russian forces; Gen. Oku with an army of 50,000 men is on their front, while flanking them on the left is Gen. Nodzu with his division of 30,000 men.

If Gen. Kuropatkin is defeated in this battle he must either move westward or surrender.

The foreign military attaches are with the second army en route for the front to witness the battle. The Japanese troopships are expected here to-day.

At Their Last Line.

The Russian troops at Port Arthur have been driven back to the last line of their defences. The Japanese attacking force has three hundred and fifty guns in action.

Oku Reports.

"General Oku reports that the enemy is retreating northward continuously since Aug. 2. On Aug. 3 our army occupied Haicheng and Newchwang, thirty miles northwest of the open port of the same name."

To Bring Up Supplies.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 5.—The fact that there is no further news from the front beyond Lieut.-Gen. Zassulitch's account of the fighting at Simoucheng on July 31, bears out the Associated Press' explanation that the Japanese are halting to bring up supplies; especially ammunition, of which a modern engagement entails an extravagant expenditure, and without which it would be impossible even for a victorious army to follow up its success.

Lost Over 1,000 Killed.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 5.—General Sakharoff reports that 39 officers and over 1,000 men were killed or wounded in the engagements of July 30 and July 31. Six guns were abandoned.

"According to the report of the commander of a Cossack regiment, which reconnoitered the Valley of Dapoutma during the battle, as well as organized the delivery of ammunition and the removal of wounded, three divisions of Japanese were observed moving through the town of Haputma.

"Our losses on July 30 and 31 have been up to the present estimated at 39 officers and slightly over 1,000 men killed or wounded."

Full Expenses Any Way.

Tokio, Aug. 5.—The Japanese are hourly awaiting tidings of a victory at Port Arthur with more interest and eagerness than heretofore displayed during the war. From a political, strategical and a sentimental standpoint, the position of the Russian fortress and naval base is considered of paramount importance by the Japanese.

It is known that the Japanese troops about the besieged city is gradually tightening. The Japanese guns are pouring fire into the diminishing circle, and it is felt here that the critical hour is fast approaching. But the public here is ignorant of the hour when the final assault will be made, and also of the details of what has already been done around Port Arthur.

It is believed that the fire from the Japanese batteries will compel the Russian fleet to leave the harbor and accept battle from Admiral Togo.

No Acute Stage Looked For.

London, Aug. 5.—The controversy over the sinking of the British steamer Knight Commander is not expected either in British Governmental or Russian diplomatic circles here to reach an acute stage, both Governments having adopted a conciliatory attitude.

Seized Part of Cargo.

Vladivostock, Aug. 5.—The prize court has decided to confiscate such portion of the cargo of the Portland and Asiatic Line steamer Arabia (captured by the armored cruiser Gromoboi of the Vladivostock squadron), as was consigned to Japanese ports, namely, 5,900 pounds of flour and the railroad equipment, this portion constituting less than half the bulk and weight of her cargo, the remainder consisting of 142,500 pounds of flour consigned to Hong Kong. The confiscated portion of the cargo is now being unloaded. So soon as this is completed the steamer will be released.

Having disposed of the Arabia case, the prize court will now take up the cases of the ships sunk, four Japanese schooners, a Japanese steamer, the Thea and the Knight Commander.

CHAMBERLAIN'S PLAN.

Wishes to Do For the Farmers What the the Government Has Proposed to Do For the Manufacturers.

London, Aug. 5.—(C. A. P.)—Mr. Chamberlain, speaking at Welbeck to an immense gathering, largely composed of agriculturists, said he wanted to extend to agriculture a similar advantage to that which the Government proposed to the manufacturer.

He proposed a two shilling duty on corn and on flour, such a duty as would ensure that the milling of wheat would be done in Britain. He would put 5 per cent. duty on meat, dairy products, preserved milk, poultry, eggs, vegetables and fruits. These duties might slightly raise the price of the articles affected, but that would enable the farmer to increase his production. The duties he proposed would be paid by the foreigner.

His policy was Imperial. The changes he proposed would enable them to reciprocate the offers from the colonists beyond the seas. It was impossible to produce all our requirements at home. Would you not rather buy from friends who stood by you in time of trial and stress than from foreigners? In war the colonists showed they were kind to us and one nation with us. In peace they want to draw closer to the Motherland they prefer to deal with.

They proved their sincerity by offering us a preference on everything that we produce, and that we send them. They ask the trade we now give the foreigner, and, in return, they will take more of our manufactures. They can supply us with all the corn and meat we require, and cannot produce ourselves.

Peter White Host.

Ottawa, Aug. 5.—Hon. Peter White of Pembroke entertained his employes, the employes of every enterprise with which he is connected, and, in fact, all the town of Pembroke and hundreds from North Renfrew, to a monster picnic at Golden Lake yesterday. Four special trains were required to carry the crowds out of Pembroke. Tons of provisions were provided. Mr. White paid the entire expense of trains and provisions, and in addition paid every employe his day's wages. It is estimated that 4,000 people enjoyed his hospitality. Mr. H. Dunlop, M.P.P., was present to shake hands with his constituents. There was no speaking or games. It was a big feast in the open air at a picturesque picnic resort.

After One Year.

Rome, Aug. 5.—The first anniversary of the election of Pope Pius X. to the chair of St. Peter was observed at the Vatican yesterday. The Pope declared himself tired and sickened at the political wrangling with which he has had to contend since his elevation to the head of the church.

A BUSINESS FREAK.

The Laurier Government So Described by Its Railway Policy.

The Montreal Gazette says:—

"For fear of public ownership the Laurier Government, in Parliament, refused to consider a proposition that the profitable Canada Atlantic Railway should be added to the Intercolonial system. It rushed, however, to pay $6,000,000 in order that the unprofitable Canada Eastern may be taken over and made a burden on the treasury. The Laurier Government is a business freak."

FRIDAY, AUG. 5, 1904.

GAMEY VS. STRATTON.

Once more the Provincial Secretary returns in his paper to the abuse of the member of the Legislature, who exposed and proved his corruption. A flagrant absurdity is the charge that the Conservative party has "exploited" Mr. Gamey. Why, Mr. Gamey is a Conservative duly elected as their representative by the Conservative majority of Manitoulin, so why should he not work with the Conservative party? As Mr. Stratton thinks fit to revive this matter he makes it necessary to restate the actual circumstances. Mr. Gamey proved before a commission selected by the criminals, on conditions fixed by the criminals, that Messrs. Stratton and Ross, with the approval of their colleagues, were guilty of the heinous offence of endeavoring to seduce him from his duty to his constituents by corrupt means. By their own writings and the admissions of their accomplices, he proved even to the convincing of the improperly selected commissioners, that Messrs. Stratton and Ross had been guilty of transferring to him the local patronage and withdrawing the petition against him as corrupt inducements for his desertion of his party and his constituents. As to the money bribe, the utmost that Mr. Stratton can boast was that the charge against him individually was "not proven." But Mr. Gamey did prove that he refused to leave his signed agreement with Mr. Aylesworth till he got the promised money, that immediately afterwards the Premier had the document stored away in a private receptacle and that he had the money as covenanted. He also proved that the Sullivans, the personal friends and agents of Mr. Stratton, had been sent to him, to threaten him with the same weapon as had been used against Mr. Sutherland, member for South Oxford, by Sir Richard Cartwright's friend, Jackson, K.C., the hiring of false witnesses.

Mr. Stratton also talks of Mr. Gamey's contradictory stories in the witness box. Well, Mr. Gamey was not guilty, like Mr. Stratton, of perjury. That the Provincial Secretary committed this offence in at least one instance is certain, for he swore that he wrote to the member for Manitoulin as "my dear Gamey," in consequence of Mr. Blake's letter to "my dear Fey," which was written some months later. We will leave it to our readers to estimate his degree of truth, when he swore that he had no knowledge of the officers of the party association, some of whom were his pals, or of the campaign fund which he administered in the absence of the Premier. Neither was Mr. Gamey guilty of inviting a witness to commit forgery and perjury, as Mr. Stratton was guilty of doing in the case of a member of the Globe staff, thus placing himself on the level of Jackson, K.C. The evidence was so crushing that Mr. Stratton had to mutilate the report sent to his paper that he might conceal the facts from his readers.

According to the Provincial Secretary, curiosity brought crowds to see and hear Mr. Gamey. This may have been the motive in some cases, but when they came and heard the member for Manitoulin's plain and evidently truthful statement, they were convinced that he was telling the truth and that Mr. Stratton was a corrupt man. So much was this impressed upon Mr. Stratton himself that he has never dared to face Mr. Gamey on the platform, but has always run away when there was any danger of his having to undergo this ordeal.

It now appears that the Globe does not really approve of the suppression of Lord Dundonald's report. It now pretends that it calumniated the general to obtain from the department a statement of the facts.

The Ministerial organs are grumbling because the Conservatives are sending out campaign literature. They say nothing of the fact that at least two Ministers have been found guilty of embezzling public money by paying civil servants to prepare campaign documents.

The enemies of Lord Dundonald have in their possession documents proving him innocent of their calumnations and persist in concealing them. One cannot expect any honesty or fair play from the hero of the emergency rations, the Minister who had had to eat his own fellow words on the spot at least three times in the House lately.

EMERGENCY RATION MEN.

Sir Frederick's Colleagues Like Him Favor Adulterated Foods.

In reply to Mr. Smith, of Wentworth, the Minister of Inland Revenue announced on Monday that the manufacturers of the sixty samples of jams and jellies recently found by the official analyst to be adulterated, are to be punished. And what is the punishment to be inflicted? Why, the manufacturers of the doubtful food are to be obliged to pay the cost of collecting the samples.

The criminal code of Canada says that the makers of adulterated food shall be punished. If the adulterated food be injurious to health, the penalty provided is severe, but even if the adulterated food be not injurious to health the code provides a penalty. And the penalty to be imposed upon the men who have made these adulterated jams and jellies for Canadians to eat is the cost of collecting the samples analyzed. Probably they will have to pay all of a dollar apiece.

We wonder if the Hon. Mr. Brodeur really thinks that this punishment is sufficient to act as a check upon the adulteration of prepared food products in Canada.—Hamilton Herald, Indep.

In Our Grandfather's Youth

Paralysis was almost unheard of in the youth of our grandparents, and now nearly every newspaper contains a record of someone being stricken with this dreadful form of helplessness. Paralysis is in reality a starving of the nerves, and can always be prevented by the timely use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, a preparation which has no rival as a creator of nerve force.

AN INDEPENDENT VIEW.

"Labor as they may to minimize the spontaneity of the popular outburst in favor of Lord Dundonald, the fact remains that the incident has stirred the people as no other incident has for many a day. Everyone admits that he did not take the constitutional method of bringing his grievance before the public, but they see at the same time that he had nothing whatever to gain by adopting the course he did. He well knew that he was sacrificing his position. It must be clear to everyone that his course was dictated by the very best and most patriotic motives. The people love a daring, bold, self-sacrificing man, and Lord Dundonald's action has therefore appealed to their best sentiments. To see him maligned and dragooned by the party press, and to see these organs calling upon the people to refrain from participation in farewell demonstrations, has angered a large number of people to such an extent that they have gone out of their way to impart a warmth and enthusiasm to the demonstrations that would not be in evidence if the Liberals had been less vengeful.

"The Government has handled the question very badly all the way through, and richly deserves all the damage that may come to it over the subject."—Winnipeg Tribune, Indep.

Medicines You Can Trust

There are no family medicines that have such a firm hold on the confidence of the people as those of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous physician and receipt book author. The superior skill as a physician and the intelligence of character for which Dr. Chase is everywhere known stand as a guarantee for his medicines, on every box of which are found his portrait and signature.

Surprise the Doctors

Most doctors are astonished at the results obtained by Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for eczema, salt rheum and kindred skin diseases which are often considered well nigh incurable. By word of mouth from friend to friend the exceptional merits of Dr. Chase's Ointment have gradually become known until it is now a standard the world over and has a record of cures unparalleled in the history of medicine.

YACHTERS GO TO DEATH

Seven Persons Drowned Near Bear Island, Nova Scotia.

Yacht Struck a Bar and There on Board, Eight in Number, Were Transferred to a Small Tender, Which, Being Overloaded, Capsized, and All But One Where Such Theory of the Disaster Is Covered.

Halifax, N.S., Aug. 5.—One of the most appalling disasters in the history of yachting on Annapolis Basin took place early yesterday evening, by which seven lives were lost in calm water during broad daylight, and only one of the party was saved.

The party, which started on a fishing excursion early in the morning in the yacht Onida, were: Capt. Charles Hersey of Digby, a man named Viditz, his wife and child, Bear River; George Leach, manager of woollen mills at Nashville, N.J., Mrs. O'Reilly, of New York and her two children.

At 4 in the afternoon they were making for Bear River Station, nine miles from Digby, at which point they were to be met by a buckboard and taken to Bear River Town. Near the southeastern point of Bear Island, near the mouth of the river, the yacht touched the bar at a point where it is possible to walk ashore at low water.

At the time of striking, the tide was full, and the captain, knowing it would be impossible to get her off for some hours, decided to take the party ashore in the small tender. This boat was not suitable for carrying more than four or five, but no doubt realizing that they were late for their engagement, and that more time would be lost in making two trips, all eight got into the little boat, which capsized before a great distance had been covered.

Two hours later, the driver of the waiting team looked over the Basin and saw the boat with one man clinging to it. Three of the seven bodies—Leach, Mrs. O'Reilly and her 12-year-old son—were floating in the vicinity and recovered.

Drowned at Pembroke.

Pembroke, Aug. 5.—While bathing with some other boys in the Indian River here yesterday afternoon, Lavey Dunlevy, the 12-year-old son of Martin Dunlevy, was drowned. The body was recovered almost immediately, but life was extinct.

Drowned at Alliston.

Alliston, Aug. 5.—William Cassidy, a young man, 25 years of age, was found drowned in the mill-race here yesterday morning. It is supposed to be a case of suicide.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

Man on Wheel Struck By Electric Bolt Dies Instantly.

Sault Ste. Marie, Aug. 5.—During a severe thunderstorm, which passed over this place yesterday afternoon between 5 and 6 o'clock, John Kennedy, a carpenter, was returning home on his wheel, and, while passing the home of Mr. McKenzie on Wilton street, received a stroke of lightning which killed him instantly. Standing inside the door of McKenzie's house were four children, who were all rendered unconscious from the same bolt. All but one has recovered. The house of Mr. McKenzie was badly shaken up. John Kennedy leaves a wife and family of small children, and also a brother, who lives in Marmora.

Baby Killed in Runaway.

Belleville, Aug. 5.—A fatal runaway accident occurred near the village of Sterling, 14 miles from this city, Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Bidwell Windsor, had driven a young horse from her home to her father's, close by, and had gotten out of the buggy to tie the animal, leaving her baby in the rig with her 12-year-old daughter. The horse became frightened and ran away, knocking Mrs. Windsor down and stunning her. The infant, a little girl, was thrown out of the buggy, receiving injuries which caused its death shortly after. The girl had an arm broken and was severely bruised.

Lost One Leg.

Port Dover, Aug. 5.—C. Van Dracklin, of Simcoe, who visited Port Dover with a party of excursionists yesterday, had his leg amputated and was severely injured otherwise by falling between the cars of a moving train.

Indian Chief Hurt.

Hamilton, Aug. 5.—Chief Hill of the Six Nation Indians, Tuscarora, while on his way to Aldershot yesterday to bring his wife home from a berrying expedition, was thrown out of his wagon, and was dragged along the street with the lines wound around his wrists. He was so badly hurt that he had to be taken to St. Joseph's Hospital. Another Indian brave, Jacob Bowlees, who was with him, was also hurt.

Both Legs Taken Off.

Toronto, Aug. 5.—B. G. Bey, a bridge inspector on the C.P.R., was run over at Black Creek, between Toronto Junction and Woodbridge, yesterday morning and both legs taken off. He was also wounded in the head. He was brought to the Western Hospital about noon, but was suffering from the severe shock, so that the surgeons were unable to operate. It is not known how the accident happened. Bey is a foreigner, with headquarters at Montreal. He has been working with a gang of bridge-builders at Black Creek, near where the accident occurred.

Hurt in Hamilton.

Hamilton, Aug. 5.—Thos. Rogers, 2 Harvey street, had his foot crushed by a street car yesterday afternoon on Birch avenue. He was riding on the step of one of the big open cars. His foot slipped through a hole cut through the step and was caught by the wheel when the car swung around the turn. He was taken to Dr. Parry's surgery.

Implements of Warfare.

There is a story of a privateer's crew of forty to fifty men capturing a Turkish galley with 500 seamen and soldiers on board by means of a swarm of bees judiciously thrown among the unspeakable ones. However this may be, there are enough authentic instances of strange methods of attack to provide amply sufficient material for the casuist in doubting what is fair and what unfair in war. Burning naphtha, boiling lead, birds, carcases of men and horses, Chinese stinkpots, besides the implements already mentioned, have all been used for offensive or defensive purposes in actual warfare.

Freak of the Lightning.

In 1844 a fishing smack off one of the Shetland isles was struck by lightning during a fierce storm. The bolt first struck the mast, which it splintered completely. It then passed to a watch in the pocket of a man sitting close to the mast and completely melted it. The man not only was uninjured, but he did not know what had taken place till he took his watch from his pocket and found it fused into a mass.

Windmills.

"I never knew till now why this was such a windy country," said the bright little girl traveling through Illinois.

"And have you discovered why?" asked her father.

His Method.

Mrs. Newpop—Why don't you stop whipping the child? You make it holler. Mr. Newpop—I'm licking it to make it stop hollering.

Cause For Sorrow.

Brown—Croker's down with brain fever. The doctor says if he recovers his mind will be a blank. Green—I'm sorry to hear that. He owes me $10.

That they are sinners few are willing to deny; that they are sinning few are ready to admit.

Well Known in Peterboro

Is Mr. W. E. Talbot Who Was Cured of Piles by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mr. W. E. Talbot, of Talbot Bros., Tobacco Merchants, 362 George st., Peterboro, Ont., states:—"It is from a desire to help other sufferers that I offer a statement of my experience with Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for Itching Piles. I was for a long time troubled with this unpleasant and torturing disease and though I tried very many treatments remained uncured until I came across Dr. Chase's Ointment. It was highly recommended to me, and I find that every word of praise is true. I can truthfully say that I am completely cured and knowing the misery that the ailment produces, I am anxious for others to know of the surprising virtues of Dr. Chase's Ointment."

THE TRENT WATERWAY

SUPPLY.

House again in Committee of Supply.

Canals—Trent canal—construction, $100,000.

Mr. Cochrane.—When you left the chair at six o'clock, Mr. Speaker, I was referring to the fact that when the hon. member for South Lanark (Mr Haggart) was Minister of Railways and Canals and the Conservative party was in power, we had the opposition of a good many members of the present Government to the carrying out of this Trent Canal scheme. We were accused of dilly-dallying and of insincerity in connection with that work. When the Liberals were in Opposition one of the members of the present government proclaimed in sonorous tones that it was a burning shame and disgrace to tax the farmers of the country and bleed them white in raising $25,000,000 a year to govern 5,000,000 people.

Sir William Mulock—Considering the government.

Mr. Cochrane—Yes, considering the government; but while we were raising $25.0 a year the present government is raising $70,000,000 in taxes from the people, and they are frittering away the money. The late government was building the Sault canal, and building the Canadian Pacific Railway, and deepening the St. Lawrence canals with a revenue of $36,000,000, but this government with double the revenue is simply throwing the money away on a wharf here and there without pursuing any well thought-out plan for the development of the waterways of Canada.

Sir William Mulock—What wharf do you object to?

Mr. Cochrane—Time would fail me to point out the iniquities of the expenditure made by the present government. Ask the Minister of Finance alongside of you, and he will tell you.

Mr. Fielding—I cannot; I do not object to any of them.

Mr. Cochrane—I am not objecting to them, but I am telling you where the money is going.

Mr. Fielding—We know that.

Mr. Cochrane—I am glad you do. You are accusing the late government of not hurrying on with this work, but all you did towards completing the St. Lawrence canal system was to take a contract away from a man, and you did not get the job finished any sooner than if you had left him alone. The Postmaster General wants to deceive the people. If he were honest with the people he would tell them which was the best place to have the terminal of this canal, and he would not have the audacity to talk about the town of Cobourg. If the Postmaster General had any decency he would wait until nearer election times before he attempted to bribe the people. He wanted to make the electors believe that I was opposed to having the terminal of this canal at Trenton.

Sir William Mulock—The hon. gentleman is obstructing the vote at this moment.

Mr. Cochrane—Why, my dear man, what are you doing? For half an hour you talked unmitigated nonsense which you did not believe yourself, and which no one listening to you believed.

Sir William Mulock—Why don't you let the vote pass if you are in favor of the canal?

Mr. Cochrane—No intelligent man would have a doubt in his mind as to where the outlet of the canal is going to be. If you want to be of any benefit you know where it is going to be, and if you were not humbugging the people and playing to the gallery you would state so openly. I do not care about the expenditure of money in East Northumberland—

Sir William Mulock—You are not voicing the opinion of the people of East Northumberland in that.

Mr. Cochrane—I am voicing the opinion of the people of East Northumberland, when I say that their desire to have the public money expended where it will be for the best advantage of all Canada. We are not local in our ideas. Do you understand that? I suppose it is incomprehensible to certain of those gentlemen opposite, how people can stand on a plane so high as that. The ex-Minister of Railways (Mr. Haggart) is here, and he can tell that I always insisted that the public money should be spent in the best interests of Canada. I know that if the money for this canal were wisely expended the canal would go down the Trent route. It is two-thirds way across the riding I have the honor to represent. It is navigable to Healey's Falls and with a lift-lock like that at Peterborough, it would bring it down to the level of the system of that lower, and then it would develop water power all along that route. I want to tell the Postmaster-General if he doesn't know it, that there is a bay below Healey's Falls, and from Chisholm's Rapids westward there are ten miles of navigable water, so that it is not all canal. If his estimate is right that there are eighteen miles to complete, then deduct the ten miles, and you have only eight miles of canal to Trenton. Does the Minister think that he can locate the entrance of this canal at Port Hope, when he knows that in the fall of the year the barges could not live on Lake Ontario, from the harbor of Port Hope to the harbor of Presqu'ile. I may not live to see the canal completed, but I will live as long as I can, and, I hope to see the Postmaster General out of power, and then he will not be able to humbug the people in talking about Port Hope or Cobourg, or anywhere else in order to catch votes. Those hon. gentlemen opposite know as well as I do that the outlet must be on the Bay of Quinte, where the barges can take the inland waters, and bring their cargoes to Quebec and Montreal without transhipment. I do not want the Postmaster General to leave the impression that I am opposed to that canal going to Trenton. I thought that question was settled, and I believe it is settled, and the Postmaster General knows deep down in his heart that he is only humbugging the electors when he talks about it going to Port Hope or Cobourg.

Sir William Mulock—My hon. friend (Mr. Cochrane) pretends to be very anxious to have this canal completed to the town of Trenton. He belongs to a party that began that work in 1880. They were in office from that time until 1896, a period of sixteen years. The total cost of that canal would be, I suppose, $10,000,000. In sixteen years they had not built one-twelfth part of that canal, in sixteen years they had not accomplished one-twelfth of the work. At the rate of progress they were making, it would have taken nearly two hundred years to have completed that work, and the hon. member would tell this House that he hopes to live to see it completed. The only chance he ever had of realizing that hope was that the enterprise should be put in the hands of an enterprising government. That happened to be the good fortune of the canal in 1896. My hon. friend (Mr. Cochrane) says that he never gave a thought to the Trenton route. I would have thought that, as representing East Northumberland, he would have given thought to it continually, would have been ever alert to guard the interests of East Northumberland and to see that the canal came by that route.

Mr. Cochrane—I knew it was settled.

Sir William Mulock—You knew it was settled?

(Mr. Cochrane—Yes.

Sir William Mulock—How did he learn that it was settled? I have asked his late leader, the ex-Minister of Railways and Canals, if it had been settled in that way by the Trenton route. What answer did I get? The hon. gentleman made the confession that he favoured the Trenton route, but he receded from that in a moment, and my hon. friend from East Northumberland hauled him up.

Mr. Cochrane—No, I did not.

Sir William Mulock—The Debates will show. I say that the hon. gentleman hooked him up in withdrawing any expression he had given in favour of the Trenton route.

Mr. Cochrane—No, I did not.

Sir William Mulock—And I had occasion to quote out of my hon. friend was not doing justice to East Northumberland.

The attitude of the government in regard to the enterprise is perfectly fair. It is quite true that certain engineering reports have been made in favour of the Trenton route, and it may be that those reports were well founded and that the balance of argument is wholly in favour of the Trenton route. But inasmuch as a very influential section of the country has asked to have another route considered, I may ask my hon. friend if it is not only fair that their request should be listened to and that full consideration should be given to their contention? My hon. friend has so much as said so himself at this moment, because he says he is not wedded to any route; he rises above local considerations. He puts up Utter for him, and the money is to be expended where it will do the most good. If a more thorough inquiry should show that it would be best to adopt the Port Hope route, my hon. friend will be found standing up here supporting the Port Hope route. Will he not? He has made great professions of virtue, he is not a partisan in the mass that he would have the money misapplied. He is in favour of the Port Hope route, according to his statements here to-night, if it can be shown to be the better route and therefore he, like others, in asking us to consider the whole situation and not to reach a conclusion after only a partial consideration of the question. We we now have a statesman instead of the former mere local politician from East Northumberland. He is willing to support this route if it is necessary for the benefit of Canada as a whole. I compliment him on the high stand he has taken. However, if he would really stand the test when it comes to submitting his to the decision of a final tribunal, time alone will tell. In the meantime the government propose to proceed expeditiously in the completion of this enterprise, as rapidly as the circumstances of this country will admit. The hon. gentleman protests against our spending money, and at the same time says he is anxious for the completion of the canal. We are told its completion will cost $4,000,000 or $5,000,000. Can we build it without money? The hon. gentleman protests against the expenditure of money necessary for the completion of the canal; therefore, he must be opposed to the completion of the canal. He cannot take all these inconsistent positions in the same breath. The country is committed to the completion of the canal; the government regards it as an enterprise of great promise, which is entitled to be completed as rapidly as circumstances will warrant. That is our attitude, and to that attitude we propose to adhere.

Mr. Cochrane — The Postmaster-General has continued on the same line, trying to make a little cheap political capital out of this great question.

Sir William Mulock—Never dreamt of such a thing.

Mr. Cochrane—And has put words in my mouth which I never uttered, and which he knows I never uttered. I am not going to allow him or any one else to say that I said certain things which I did not say.

Sir William Mulock—What did you not say?

Mr. Cochrane—I would think that you would be above interrupting me. You should play the part of a gentleman anyway in the discussion. I never said that I was in favour of the Port Hope route. I said that I believed that that question was settled and therefore I had not given it a thought, because I thought that any sensible government would decide on the route that had been decided on for seventy years past. That is what I thought, and I think in my own mind to-day that the question is settled just as firmly in the mind of the present government as in the mind of any previous government, only they want to make a little cheap notoriety out of this matter.

Sir William Mulock—Nothing of the kind.

Mr. Cochrane—You can shake your head; I do not think there is much in it, and it is easy to shake it; but I am not going to allow you to put words in my mouth and place me in a false position. I will repeat what I said. I never was asking the ex-Minister of Railways and Canals to spend money in my riding because I represented that riding. I thought the money would be expended when the proper time came, and I would wish to draw the attention of the Postmaster General to the statement he has made, that he is going to complete this canal as rapidly as the circumstances of the country will warrant. Will he not allow the same latitude to the previous government as to the present government? This government is asking the House to vote $70,000,000, and should not the previous government have shown the same consideration for the interests of the country when it was in power with only $37,000,000 of revenue? I pointed out to him what we were doing with that $35,000,000. We were deepening and completing the canals, but the present government is doing no such thing. All public work, so far as canals are concerned, is now centred on the Trent Canal, and although the Postmaster General tells us that the government is so anxious to complete this canal expeditiously yet there is only a paltry $100,000 out of that $70,000,000 voted for that purpose. I cannot see how you have—I was going to say the cheek, but perhaps that would not be parliamentary—but I cannot see how you can stand up before this committee and tell the country that you are anxious to go on with this work when you are voting a total of $70,000,000 of which only $100,000 is to carry on this work and then make a great plea on account of that expenditure. The contracts were all made by the ex-Minister of Railways and Canals, and you have carried them out. I think when you think the matter over and see what an exhibition you have made of yourself, you will feel sad.

Sir William Mulock—If you are anxious for the completion of the canal vote the money. The hon. gentleman is here obstructing the passage of this vote; if he is so anxious to have the canal completed, why should he not have the money voted? If we have this amount of difficulty to get a paltry $100,000 what would the difficulty be with a larger sum?

Mr. Cochrane—I was not objecting to it.

Sir William Mulock—The country will understand how interested he is when he will not allow us to get the estimates through for this paltry sum.

Mr. Cochrane—If the Postmaster General was not so willing and anxious to make political capital, and to make himself conspicuous, coming to the rescue of the Minister of Railways and Canals when it is not necessary, we would not have had all this debate.

Mr. Henderson—I have just a few words to say to the hon. the Postmaster General, because I think he has been making rather an unfair attack on my hon. friend from East Northumberland (Mr. Cochrane). The Postmaster General complains that the previous government did not proceed rapidly enough with the construction of this public work, and compared the progress which the present government have made with that made by the late government from 1880 to 1896. But let me, Sir, draw attention to this fact, that from 1880 to 1896—and I believe the Postmaster General had the honour of a seat in this House all that time—the opposition of that day made every effort to obstruct this public work and the hon. gentleman himself was one of the most prominent in that obstruction. If there were delays during these sixteen years the government of that day could not be held responsible.

Sir William Mulock—Why not?

Mr. Henderson—Because every dollar that the late government succeeded in obtaining from parliament to expend on that work was practically, owing to the obstruction of the then opposition, like drawing teeth, to use a common expression.

Sir William Mulock—You had an overwhelming majority.

Mr. Henderson—Yes; but day after day the time of the committee was wasted in obstructing that public work, and every effort of the opposition was directed to prevent its being proceeded with.

Sir William Mulock—No.

Mr. Henderson—We know the tactics that were resorted to by the hon. gentlemen opposite in those days. Why, the present government has a very easy road compared with what the late government had in more matters than one. In the construction of public works they were opposed at every turn; and when they did succeed in getting a few hundred dollars, they were hounded from one end of the country to the other for their extravagance. Those hon. gentlemen opposite who constitute the remnant of the old opposition were very largely responsible for the delays that occurred, and therefore it ill becomes the Postmaster General—who was one of the foremost of those who denounced this public work as worthless and as being constructed for political purposes—to now taunt the late government with delay. I do not live in the neighbourhood of that canal, I do not pretend to know the topography of that country, I am not a judge as to whether Trenton or Port Hope is the proper outlet, the matter is one in which I am not personally interested; but I have no doubt that had the late government remained in power, they would have determined long before this what route was best in the interests of the country, irrespective of politics. I hope that the Postmaster General, now that he has had his memory refreshed, will withdraw some of the charges he has preferred against the late government for delays. The former government spent very considerable sums in preparing to push this work through. In 1897 they spent more money on that canal than the present government spent in 1899. From 1896 to 1903 more money was spent on the canal each year, except one, than was spent in the previous years. But the reason is evident. Hon. gentlemen on this side are patriotic. We believe in having a public work, which is of great advantage to the country, completed. We assist the government in these matters, instead of giving it the bitterest opposition. I notice also that two of the contracts which, I understand, are just about completed, were let by the late government. They were given by the predecessors of the hon. gentlemen now in power—one of them in 1895 and the other in May, 1896. So that the late government should not only have credit for the money they did spend, but also for having pushed the work forward even to the very dying days of that administration. I think there is as much credit due to the ex-Minister of Railways, who gave out these contracts, as to the present government, which carried them to completion. We are not offering to the present government the factious opposition which hon. gentlemen opposite, when on this side, offered the late government. We act like men who take a keen interest in the affairs of the country and hon. gentlemen opposite, instead of taunting us with the results of their obstruction in the past, should give us credit for helping them to expedite business in the present.

MAY MANUFACTURE THREE MILLION BRICK

Curtis Bros. Have This Gigantic Output in View for the Season--Two Machines Are Turning Out Twenty-eight Thousand a Day--A Veritable Hive of Industry.

"There are scores of buildings going up in town," was the remark made by a well known business man of Peterborough yesterday, while discussing the expansion apparent on the south, the north, the east and the west.

It would doubtless have been interesting for the speaker to know that at Curtis Bros.' brick yards the building material is being taken hot from the kilns to supply the demands in this busy town also. There are two machines running right along in that hive of industry, each throwing out fourteen thousand of brick per day. One of these, a Quaker brick machine, is a new one, having recently been installed. It has doubled the capacity, and already since May there have been one million and a half of brick manufactured, and still the market calls for more. Besides supplying builders in Peterborough, Curtis Bros. have shipped large quantities of their material out of town. For instance, John O'Toole, the contractor on the Hydraulic Power Company's big dam, is building a house for himself in Ottawa, and has given the firm an order for three car-loads. Bricks have been shipped to Claremont, Myrtle, Lakefield and Havelock. In the latter place, the portion of the village recently destroyed by fire is being for the most part rebuilt with brick. The Young Women's Christian Association building is the largest work going on in town at the present time, and for this Curtis Bros. are supplying the brick. In fact they have their material in many of the largest buildings, not only in this town, but in those of many others. The output of the past five months of the present season will probably be three millions. The very wet weather has been something of a detriment so far, but no opportunity is lost in carrying on such operations as will in the greatest possible degree be equal to the demand. In the manufacture of clay brick, it may be said that Curtis Bros. have not a gold brick, but the genuine article.

The brick yards are situated on the Warsaw road, immediately east of the Trent Canal. It is a splendid location having some 150 acres, and of this a very large portion is in actual use. The area covered by shed room alone is something like three acres, and the operations require a force of forty-two hands, working steadily. When the machines are going, the kilns smoking, and the pliers hustling, the Curtis brick yard is about the busiest place in town. The material immediately available in the ground occupied by the concern is calculated to be sufficient for the manufacture of sixty or seventy millions of brick. It is interesting to know that it requires just two and a quarter yards of clay to make a thousand of brick. The beds are not situated at great distance from the machines, and the material is transferred thereto by tram-cars. The clay is dumped into the machine, which chews the material before moulding and pressing. Before the moulds are placed in the machines, they must be sanded, in order to prevent the clay from sticking. As quickly as the machines produce the bricks, the latter are carted away and placed in the drying sheds whence after two days they are removed to the kilns, and after two days' burning are allowed to stand for two days in order to cool.

It is of interest to note that the moulds for the red bricks are one-quarter of an inch longer, one-sixteenth of an inch wider and an eighth of an inch thicker than the moulds for the white bricks, for the simple reason that the reds have considerable shrinkage, and of course, must correspond with the whites. The clay for the reds is taken from the top of the ground to a depth of some four feet, while immediately underneath to a distance of some fourteen feet is found the clay for the white brick. Both are treated in the same manner, the presence of a large amount of iron in the surface clay accounting, no doubt, in a large measure for its burning red. The same material that is used for white brick is also manufactured into drainage tile. This part of the industry runs about six weeks. Each tile is a foot long, and the season's output is about one hundred and fifty thousand feet. The largest size has a bore of eight inches. They are in great demand for drainage purposes. The clay is fed into the tile-making machine in the same manner as for brick and issues therefrom in a continuous pipe, which is easily cut into lengths. These are dried before being taken to the kilns.

It can easily be understood that work in a brick yard is of the most strenuous type. The men are allowed a short rest in the middle of the morning and afternoon, and they grasp the opportunity to have a lunch. The attendance upon the quick-working machines, the transfer therefrom to the drying sheds, the carting and shovelling of the heavy clay—these and many other features of the work are by no means light.

The kilns used in the yards are of two types. There are two of what is known as the down-draught. These are permanent ovens, and their peculiarity consists in the fire being constructed at the sides and the heat being conducted to the interior by means of flues through the top. A white heat is required, although it is possible to have in too intense, and to melt the brick. One of these kilns was yesterday full of red brick ready for use, and though still hot, had to be delivered today. To turn water on these would do no great injury, but such a proceeding would increase the heat of the bricks, since the inside heat would be drawn to surface. The large up-draught furnaces are familiar to everyone. They are constructed as required, and have ovens built in them so that a good fire of wood may be kindled there, and bricks baked by this process. One large kiln is no sooner finished than another is ready to be heated, and thus the work goes on. A kiln of 180,000 bricks was burning yesterday and while there was no smell of sulphur in the immediate vicinity the appearance of the interior of the oven and the heat that emanated was not pleasant to the imagination. The amount of soft wood used for baking purposes amounts up to the hundreds of cords. The opening of the lift lock will be of great service to Curtis Bros. They are situated very close to the waterway, and nearly all of their wood from the north and south might be delivered by water. Just a few weeks ago a load of bricks for Birdsall's Landing had to be hauled to Peterborough wharf to be shipped, whereas it is now possible for a steamer to take on the material within a short distance of the yards.

It is a pleasure to note the success which is attending this very live industry, and to note the conditions prevailing in town which require its most constant operation.

THE TRENT CANAL VOTE.

Some to Complete Present Work, Some for Political Corruption, None for Progress.

The vote in the supplementary estimates of $311,000 for the Trent canal has passed through Committee of Supply. The Minister explained that the money was asked for the purpose of constructing the hydraulic lift lock at Kirkfield, completing the work between Simcoe and Balsam Lakes and surveying the outlets to determine the route at both ends. These surveys are mere corrupt expenditure of money to delude certain constituencies with the hope that the canal will be diverted for their benefit. The Minister has the reports of his expert staff as to both outlets, and has no idea of abandoning this national undertaking to substitute local feeders to little local towns and harbours and aspirants to the handling of public money. It is a mere electioneering dodge for which the money of the people is wanted. Meanwhile there is not a single dollar for undertaking a new section of the work.

ENJOYABLE DANCE.

Large Crowd From Town and Many From Stony Lake.

The dance given at Chemong last night proved to be one of the most successful ever given there. A large crowd drove out from town and many campers at Stony Lake came down for it. The dancing was done in the pavilion which had been prettily decorated for the occasion by the ladies of Chemong, and the scene presented was very pretty. The north end of the pavilion was used as a refreshment booth, and the orchestra of the 57th Regt. band occupied the south end. The music was delightful, and dancing was continued until nearly two o'clock.

TOWN ASSESSMENT

The following letter has been sent to the Examiner:—

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—In Tuesday evening's Examiner you made an attack upon the Town Council with respect to the assessment that is based upon entirely false premises, and there are statements in the article that should be corrected in the interest of the town as well as in fairness to the members of the Council. The article has in the main three charges:—

1st. That the Council gave instructions to the assessor as to the value to place upon property.

2nd. That the assessment is not made according to the legitimate mode.

3rd. That the assessment of property is too high.

As to the first charge, you say not only that the Council gave the assessors' instructions, but that it was done as a scheme to delude the taxpayers, which is a serious charge to bring against a responsible body of men. And it is entirely and absolutely untrue. The Council did not give any instructions to the assessors, and I do not believe that any member of the Council did. Further, you should have known that in the matter of the assessment of property the Council has no control, for the assessors are governed by the statute law, and once they are appointed and assume the duties of the office, they must act in accordance with the law to the best of their judgment and ability, and they are precluded from taking instructions from anyone. And as I have said, the Council did not attempt to give them any instructions whatever in that respect.

As to the second charge, I am surprised that you should state that "the proper and legitimate mode of valuing property for assessment purposes is at two-thirds of its market value. The legitimate mode of valuing property for assessment purposes is fixed by the statute law, which says:—"Except in the case of mineral lands hereinafter provided for, real and personal property shall be estimated at their actual cash value, as they would be appraised in payment of a just debt from a solvent debtor." There is not a word about two-thirds of its value, and your statement is in direct conflict with the law. The assessors are sworn to assess property in accordance with the law to the best of their judgment and ability.

Your third charge that the assessment is too high, although a question between you and the assessors, is one that tends to injure the town. If any ratepayer believes he is assessed too high the Council cannot interfere. It has no authority in the matter whatever. But there is a Court of Revision constituted under the law, and any ratepayer may appeal to it, and if not satisfied with its decision may appeal to the County Judge. The Court of Revision is composed of five members of the Council, especially sworn to deal with any appeal brought before the Court, and cannot interfere in any way except upon appeal. The Council preferred that even this duty should not be performed by members of the Council, so that the members of the Council would not even in this respect have to deal with the assessment, but the Legislature refused to give the authority.

The assessment in Peterborough is not, I believe, higher than in other towns in comparison with the value of the properties. Not only is the tax rate lower here than in other places of a similar size, but the taxes collected per head of the population are lower.

Such grave and sweeping charges as you have seen fit to make, coming with the editorial sanction of one of our principal newspapers, are serious in the extreme, and liable to have a prejudicial and very far-reaching effect, involving, as they do, not only the integrity and character of individuals, but the credit and good name of our town, and I venture to submit that the Examiner owes it to itself and to the community either to proceed and substantiate them or to withdraw them.

Yours truly,
G. M. ROGER,
Mayor.

PROPOSED DRUG COMBINE

WHOLESALE DRUGGIST MAY GUARANTEE 50 PER CENT PROFIT

To Retailers who keep the Prices Up—Those who Cut Prices to be Refused Goods by Manufacturers

The recently proposed deal between the Wholesale Druggists' Association and the retailers, having in view a guarantee of 50 per cent. profit to the dealers who keep the price of patent medicines up in order to stop the cutting act, is hardly understood by local druggists. Discussing the situation this morning one retailer explained that there was a class of goods sold under a restrictive price. That is, the manufacturer places a price upon the goods, which allowed a reasonable profit to the retailer, who on his part signs an agreement to maintain the price. This cannot be affected by the wholesaler or the middleman, and it is difficult to see just where he can guarantee a 50 per cent. profit. There are certain goods not subject to a restrictive price, but these a large retailer may obtain from the manufacturer direct, and sell them accordingly. But should a manufacturer discover a violation of the restrictive price agreement, he is liable to forbid the sale of his goods to the offender. This applies only to patent medicines, of course, and the druggist may sell other drugs at whatever price he sees fit.

"There seems to be a healthy idea about town," remarked the apothecary, "that the drug business is one of the most profitable a man can engage in. Did you ever hear of one retiring to wallow in his wealth? I didn't. Some people seem to think that there is a mystery about the drug business that permits a prescriptionist to mix up a little water and coloring substance in an eight-ounce bottle and charge 50 cents for it. This is an entirely erroneous idea. Charges are made according to the value of various constituents, some of which come rather high. And let me tell you right here, there is no fortune in patent medicines. I can name you certain lines which are sold exactly at cost—not a cent in them. Competition in this, as in every other business, runs amuck sometimes. I have known some people in town who actually clubbed together and sent to one of the departmental stores in Toronto for their patent medicine, and were somewhat surprised afterwards to find that they could have done better by dealing at home. It is my belief that two large departmental stores situated here could easily look after all the business of every kind of the town, and this is by no means placing any disparagement upon the amount of business done. Such a thing would be perfectly feasible, and some men would be inclined to consider its wisdom, until the shoe began to pinch their own foot. Let me tell you another thing I've discovered. A great number of the men who are always looking for the highest wages and that sort of thing are the very ones who are continually looking for cut prices. I do not deny them the right to do the best they possibly can, but there is not much consistency with some of them."

In Toronto and other places the druggists have adverse opinions regarding the proposal of the Wholesale Druggists' Association. It does not seem to have yet taken definite I do not deny them the right to do that it will defeat its own purpose

EXCURSION FROM GRAFTON

Passed through Town on their Way to Burleigh.

A Sunday School excursion came to town this morning from Grafton and Cobourg, under the management of Lt.-Col. R. Z. Rogers of Grafton, and was taken by Str. Stony Lake over the lift lock and up to Burleigh, returning to Lakefield to-night, where they will entrain for home again. A large number were on board and they seemed to be enjoying the trip.

CHEMONG LAKE REGATTA

The 57th Band will Render a Fine Programme.

Arrangements have been about completed for the regatta at Chemong to-morrow afternoon. 'Buses will run from Peterborough hourly during the day, and parties leaving Toronto or other points by the G.T.R. or C.P.R. morning trains will connect with buses at Peterborough, reaching the Park in time for the regatta. The 57th band will be in attendance, and the following excellent programme has been arranged:—

PART I.

March—La Regiment Favori.
Overture—Pique Dame.
Mazurka—Amoreuse.
Selection—Traviata.
Cake Walk—Whistling Rufus.

PART II.

March—Manisot.
American Sketch—"Down South."
Selection from the comic opera, "Wang."
Waltz—On the Beautiful Rhine.
Descriptive—A Hunting Scene.
March—Main Chance.

The regatta should be a great success, and will undoubtedly be largely patronized.

LINDSAY DEFEATED T.A.S.

QUINLAN PLAYED SPLENDID GAME AND ALLOWED FEW HITS.

The Much-Touted Lindsay Intermediate Team nearly Beaten by Kawartha League Team—Game for Benefit of Lindsay Band.

The Lindsay team of the Midland league defeated the T.A.S. team in Lindsay yesterday afternoon, after a close game by the score of 8 to 4. The game was a benefit for the brass band and a very fair crowd was in attendance. The game was called for 4.30, but it was after five o'clock when the play started. T.A.S. went first to bat. Callaghan was first up, and hit one to the pitcher, McLaghlan, who made a wild throw to first and the runner made the circuit. Graham singled but was left there as Grady and Latermouille both fanned. T. A. S. did not score again till the fourth, when they notched one on Latermouille's single and another wild throw by McLaghlan, who tried to catch "Latty" off first, the ball going to the track. There was nothing doing in the remaining innings except in the ninth, when the visitors started a garrison finish after two men were out, when they sent two runs across the plate on clean hitting, but the side was retired on Graham's liner to McLaghlan, who made a fine stop.

Lindsay did not score in the first innings, but gathered three in the second. McLaghlan hit safely and went to third on Callahan's error on Jordan's liner. The latter stole second and both he and McLaghlan scored on Stalker's slashing single to left field. Spanes singled to left, on which Latermouille loafed and Stalker scored. The side was retired by Smith striking out. Lindsay scored 2 more in the fourth. Magill struck out. Workman singled, stole second and scored on Cinnamon's hit to Callaghan who booted it, Cinnamon going to 2nd and scoring on Miller's single. McLaghlan and Jordan struck out, retiring the side. Three more runs were gathered by Lindsay in the eighth. Smith walked, McGill singled and Workman scored them both on a single which was slowly returned. Cinnamon beat out a slow one to third, Workman scoring. Miller and McLaghlan both struck out Jordan hit an easy one to Quinlan, who threw him out at first.

The Examiner team will play a team representing the Ontario Bank this evening at 6.30 o'clock on the Murray street grounds. The Examiner has held out every inducement to the bankers to throw the game, but they refused all offers. We suppose the Exam. will publish an erroneous account of the game, as they did of the Auburn game, when they declared it a tie, while the correct score was 8-7. Everybody should see the game to-night. Jolliffe has been given a hint by the police that he must appear decently dressed, and Hutchinson is busy trying to borrow a suit from Lindsay, as the local team refuses to disgrace their outfit.

THE TRIGGER.

The regular fortnightly practice shoot of the Pet Gun Club was held last evening. Several of the members were present and some good scores were made as follows:

At 25 birds—Messrs. R. Neill 17, L. Hall 16, G. W. Guttermon 12, Tivey 10, C. Wood 9, A. Mitchell 8.

LUSTROUS LINEN.

Cheap Looking Cloths Will Spoil the Charm of Fine Dishes.

Every woman of refinement loves to be the possessor of a liberal quantity of fine dining room and table linen. To achieve this desire it is necessary to use a great amount of discretion in the collection of her linens and in the care of them after they are collected. There is a pleasure in the possession of fine linens, even surpassing that in possession of fine glass or china, for, no matter how fine the quality of the dishes may be, half the charm is lost when they are placed upon a cheap, glossy or ill laundered cloth. Then again the durability of really good linen adds greatly to the pleasure of its possessor. Every dollar added to the amount paid for a really fine tablecloth is an economy, for its wearing qualities are increased at a greater ratio in linen than in almost anything else.

A tablecloth measuring two and a half yards and costing $5 will wear three times as long as one costing a dollar a yard. This is not the only advantage to be considered. The quality of the linen shows at a glance the difference between a cheap cloth and an expensive one. The patterns and designs are far more attractive, and there is a fullness as well as a body that adds greatly to the beauty of the cloth when laundered and causes it to hold its own when in use.—Table Talk.

A Sermon on Marriage.

Don't pick out a man for a husband simply because you love him. The most important thing is whether he loves you. A woman who loves her husband better than he does her is a door mat on which he treads, says Woman's World. If he loves her better than she does him he looks up to her as a goddess and spends his life trying to win her favor. A too adoring wife bores a man with her affection, but no woman ever had enough love given her to satisfy her, and the more affection the man lavishes upon her the stronger the claim he establishes. After marriage a thousand things draw a woman's heart to her husband. A thousand things estrange him from her.

Lingerie Baskets.

Frenchwomen keep their dainty underwear in what is termed a lingerie basket covered with cretonne or silk and trimmed with ruchings and lace interlined with plain color. The cover is generally wadded, a large flat bow on the top. Ribbons form the hinges, and there are pockets inside for holding sachet bags. In these baskets the garments are not in any way crushed. Sometimes the baskets are divided in four, with a series of trays for each kind of lingerie. The basket is large enough to hold a petticoat at the base, and the corset covers are stowed away under straps of ribbons in the lid. These baskets are mostly of wicker.

Eggs a la Bird's Nest.

Deviled eggs can be served up a la bird's nest. Hard boiled eggs are cut in half (through their shorter diameter) and "scooped" with a fork. The yolk is then mixed with pepper, salt, a few drops of best olive oil and chopped pecans. This is replaced in the white cups and packed down until smooth, when the two portions are pressed together so that the joining is practically invisible. The "nest" is formed of bits of parsley and water cress built all around them. Select as small eggs as possible, as it adds very much to the attractiveness of the dish.

Dainty Curtains.

Denim curtains of rose color with a border of white chints flowered with roses are very effective for a green or rose room. The chints is bought by the yard, cut in strips and sewed on the curtains. Cotton fringe edges these curtains in shades of rose and green and white. An endless variety of pretty effects can be obtained by cutting flowered chints in strips and applying it as borders to plain colored fabrics.

KING OF BEASTS.

In discussing the question, "Which is the king of beasts?" an old African hunter says:

"Come with me to a desert pool some clear, moonlight night when the shadows are deep and sharply cut and the moon herself in the dry, cloudless air looks like a ball. All is nearly as bright as day, only the light is silver, not gold. Sit down on that rock and watch the thirsty animals as they drink—buffalo, rhinoceros, antelope, quagga; occasionally, if the water is large, lions too. But what has frightened the antelope and quagga that they throw their heads up for a second and fade away into the shadows? The other beasts, too, are listening and now leave the sides of the pond. Nothing but the inevitable, irrepressible jackal, that gamin among wild things, remains in view.

"As yet your dull human ears have caught no sound, but very soon the heavy tread and low, rumbling note of an oncoming herd of elephants reach you. They are at the water. The jackals have sat down with their tails straight out behind them, but not another creature is to be seen. The king drinks. Not a sound is heard. He squirts the water over his back, makes the whole pool muddy and retires solemnly, leaving his subjects, who now gather round, to make the best of what he has fouled.

THE DINNER TABLE.

Accidents will happen. If one happens to spill something he is unfortunate, but a ready, earnest apology to the hostess is all that he can do to remedy the difficulty. A careful hostess will acknowledge the apology and immediately change the subject.

This story is told of a hostess at whose table a beautiful china cup was broken. "Never mind," she said pleasantly. "They break so easily. See!" And she crushed one in her hand.

Her method was rather too elaborate. It would have been quite as satisfactory to the offender and far more genteel had she said: "I hope you have received no injury. The cup doesn't matter in the least."

If a morsel of food drops from the fork to the tablecloth do not attempt to remove it. If a guest drops a fork or a spoon he should let it lie. The hostess will provide another.

If anything distasteful be taken into the mouth it may be removed on the corner of the napkin, when it can be folded away or placed quietly on the plate.

If a bit of food falls on the waistcoat of a guest he should remove as much of it as he can quietly with the corner of his napkin.

Damascus Swords.

To the lovers of strange goods the bazaars of Damascus are far more alluring than those of Cairo or of Constantinople. The capacious chests of the merchants contain much that we would buy were our purses longer. Old embroideries of wonderful colors, delicate china, silks of many hues, swords of cunning workmanship, all these lie piled beside us on the floor. It is but seldom that a really good specimen of the Damascus sword can be obtained, for the art of working and engraving steel is dead.

These swords were made of alternate layers of iron and steel, so finely tempered that the blade would bend to the hilt without breaking, with an edge so keen that no coat of mail could resist it, and a surface so highly polished that when a Moslem wished to rearrange his turban he used his sword for a looking glass.

In the Great Western Wheat Belt.

One square mile of wheat. Ever see it? Transcontinental trains used to stop in the Smoky Hill valley of Kansas to allow passengers a view of such a wonder. It realized all the travelers' dreams of agricultural splendor. Hundreds such visions now mark the great grain area of the plains, but their beauty is none the less. Six hundred and forty acres of wealth! It shimmered beneath the perfect opalescent blue of the sky, the tall straws bending with their weight of grain. Standing on the seat of the reaper one might see in the distance a glimmer of green pastures and catch glimpses of rustling fields of corn, but here was the heart of summer.—C. M. Harger in Scribner's.

Justifying His Lecture.

A lecturer who had a very fine lecture on "The Decadence of Pure English" gave his address before a woman's club. At the close of the talk a very much overdressed woman of the "fuss and feathers" type came up to him and said: "I did enjoy your talk ever and ever so much, and I agree with you that the English language is decading awfully. Hardly no one talks proper nowadays, and the land only knows what the next generation will talk like if nothing ain't done about it."

A Useful Tiger.

"Snakes and hyenas are strange pets, but strangest of all is a full grown tiger, and such a pet had Major Mansell-Pleydell," says A. Mervyn Smith in his book. "It used to be chained up just in front of the door of his bungalow. The major had a method of running up bills with local tradesmen, but there was great difficulty in getting payment, as none of the bill collectors was venturesome enough to cross the guardian at the door. It was a great joke of the major's when asked to pay his bill to reply: 'Have you sent your bill? Your man has never presented it at my house.' Brutus, as the tiger was named, seemed to know what was required of him. When chained before his master's door he would lie with his head between his forepaws and watch the gate. If a stranger entered he would lift his head and breathe heavily, and this was enough to scare the most venturesome of bill collectors."

Man's Worst Enemy.

Wherever you see ten people together, ten average people of all ages, you may say: One of those ten will die of consumption. In the long run you will be more than justified in your prophecy. It will be nearer one out of every nine born into the world. We are horribly afraid of cholera and all bowel diseases, of diphtheria and of scarlet fever. Add to these the annual deaths from measles (measles is far from being harmless) and the sum total is not half of what the great white plague claims. Only pneumonia approaches it as a slayer of men.

The Meanest Man.

It is believed the original meanest man was the husband who gave his wife a Christmas present of a pair of suspenders. An early holder of the title was the gentleman who always occupied the last seat in the last car in order to save the interest on his money until the conductor got to him. One of the most brilliant of the long line was the man who took candy from a child in the street. — Chicago Inter Ocean.

Expensive Undertaking.

Business Man—Well, my dear, I have about made up my mind to sell out my business and go out into the country and buy a hundred acres or so and be a farmer for the rest of my life. Business Man's Wife—Oh, John, how lovely! But are you sure we can afford it?

The Encore.

"That's it!" exclaimed Mrs. Bascom at the concert as the singers came out again in response to an encore. "Make 'em do it over again until they get the thing right."

MATHEMATICAL SIGNS.

The Process by Which the Familiar Characters Were Evolved.

The sign of addition is derived from the initial letter of the word "plus." In making the capital letter it was made more and more carelessly until the top part of the "p" was placed near the center; hence the plus sign was finally reached.

The sign of subtraction was derived from the word "minus." The word was first contracted into mns, with a horizontal line above to indicate the contraction, which upon a printer's proof that may be found in almost any book bearing a date earlier than the beginning of the eighteenth century. After the lapse of a long period of time the letters were omitted altogether, leaving only the short line so well known to all.

The multiplication sign was obtained by changing the plus sign into a character resembling the letter x. This was done simply because multiplication is but a shorter form of addition.

The radical sign was derived from the initial letter of the word "radix."

The sign of equality is said to have first been used in the year 1557 by a sharp mathematician, who adopted it as a substitute for the words "equal to."

HACKNEY COACHES.

They Were First Used in London in the Seventeenth Century.

In a letter dated April 1, 1630, Mr. Garrard, writing to the Earl of Strafford, says: "Here is one Captain Baily. He hath been a sea captain, but now lives in London, where he tries experiments. He hath erected according to his ability some four hackney coaches, put his men in a livery and appointed them to stand at the Maypole in the Strand, giving them instructions at what rate to carry men into several parts of the town, where all day they may be had.

"Other hackney men seeing this way, they flocked to the same place and performed their journeys at the same rate, so that sometimes there are twenty of them together, which disperse up and down."

Citizen shopkeepers bitterly complained of this, saying:

"Formerly when ladies and gentlemen walked in the streets there was a chance of customers, but now they whisk past in the coaches before our apprentices have time to cry out, 'What d'ye lack?'"

The word cab, a contraction of cabriolet, was not used until 1823.

THE WORD PICNIC.

Many Theories as to Its Origin, Which Is Uncertain.

The derivation of the word picnic is uncertain. In London Notes and Queries of 1853 attempts were made to trace its origin.

One correspondent says: "Under a French form the word appears in a speech of Robespierre, 'C'est ici qu'il doit m'accuser, et non dans les piques-niques.' An earlier instance occurs in one of Lord Chesterfield's letters, dated October, 1748."

Another writer of the same date tries to trace the word through France into Italy. Starting with the assumption that pique-nique in French implies a party at which each guest provides some particular dish or performs some special duty, he finds the Italian expressions nicchia (duty) and piccola (a trifling service), and from these he coins piccola nicchia (picnic.)

A French encyclopedia, 1843, has it that the word is compounded of the simple English pick (to choose) and nick (in the nick of time, on the spur of the moment). In France the term is also used for indoor picnics.

Trash in Love Letters.

Referring to love letters, who indeed does not write rubbish when he writes a love letter? The greatest geniuses have proved themselves to be temporarily the merest simpletons when they corresponded with the fair ones whom they profess to adore. Byron, who was a very astute as well as a very eloquent poet, was thoroughly aware of this fact. A master stroke of determination not to become ridiculous in love letter writing was made by the Scotch writer to the signet, who always concluded his communications with, "Yours, dearest madam, without prejudice." But we cannot all of us be Scotch lawyers.—London Telegraph.

A Wonderful Spring.

An Arkansas farmer, describing to a tourist some of the wonderful properties of the mineral springs of that state, said, "Do you see that spring over there, stranger?" He said that he did, whereupon the farmer added: "Well, that's an iron spring, that is, and it's so mighty powerful that the farmers' horses about here that drink the water of it never have to be shod. The shoes just grow on their feet naturally."

"Willie, did you say your prayers?" "Nope." "Why not?" "I missed 'em last night and today I licked a boy who didn't, so what's the use?"

Weather Note.

"Boy, does it get very hot in this country?" "Hot! I should say so! In July the hens lay nothing but hard boiled eggs!"

The Aftermath.

The Fourth with crackers, horns and drums
Is memory at its best,
But it will take time for the thumbs
To grow on as they were.

Guarded.

"Do you think automobiling is healthful sport?" "Yes, for the man who looks at it from a second story window."

Incurable.

"Did you hear about the man who fell in love with his wife?" "No. Poor fellow, couldn't the doctors do anything for him?"

Too Great a Shock.

He gave a pretty girl his seat.
"I thank you, sir," she said.
At such a new experience
Of course the man fell dead.

Getting Good Measure.

"I believe there are microbes in this ice cream." "Keep still or they will be charging you extra for them."

An Exception.

"A man is innocent until he is proved guilty," said the lawyer. "Yes," agreed the old farmer, "except a chicken thief."

FRIDAY, AUG. 5, 1904.

THE TOBACCO COMBINE

Resolution Aimed at It Debated By the House of Commons.

Text of Mr. Brodeur's Stringent Resolution —Minister Tells How the Trust Tries to Kill Canadian Industry—No Unanimity Among Members on the Subject, But Bill Will Be Introduced—Election Act Read a Third Time.

Ottawa, Aug. 5.—When the House opened yesterday morning Hon. Mr. Fitzpatrick moved the third reading of his bill to amend the Dominion Elections Act of 1900.

Mr. G. A. Alcorn moved an amendment that the elections be held in all constituencies on the same day, but that two weeks elapse between nomination and polling in the six constituencies in which the bill provided the elections might be held at a date fixed by the returning officer, viz.: Gaspe, Chicoutimi, Saguenay, in Quebec, and Cowan-Atlin, Yale-Cariboo and Kootenay, in British Columbia.

Mr. R. L. Borden saw no reason for deferring the elections in Kootenay and Yale-Caribou, but was disposed to accept the Minister of Justice's explanations for the other ridings.

The amendment was declared lost on division, and the bill read a third time and passed.

A resolution by Sir Richard Cartwright, making a technical change in connection with the payment of steel bounties, was reported, and a bill founded on the same passed through all of its stages.

The Tobacco Monopoly.

Hon. Mr. Brodeur moved the following resolution: "Resolved, that it is expedient to amend the Inland Revenue Act, in providing that any licenses authorized by this act may be cancelled in any case where a person who, being a manufacturer of any class of goods subject to a duty of excise, either directly or indirectly (a) makes a sale of such goods to a person who sells or intends to sell goods of that class in connection with his own business, subject to the condition that the purchaser shall not sell or deal in goods of a like kind produced by, or obtained or to be obtained from, any other manufacturer or dealer, or (b) makes such sale upon terms that would in their application deprive the purchaser of any profit upon the sale of such goods, if he should sell or deal in goods of a like kind produced by, or obtained or to be obtained from, any other manufacturer or dealer, or (c) consigns any such goods to another person for sale upon commission, upon such terms that the consignee can profit by such sale only if he does not sell or deal in goods of a like kind, manufactured by, or obtained or to be obtained from, any other manufacturer or dealer."

Asked For By Growers.

In support of the resolution, Mr. Brodeur said the legislation was asked for by all the tobacco-growers and the independent manufacturers in Canada. It was the outcome of the report of Judge McTavish. Complaints had been made to the Government that the Empire Tobacco Company and the American Tobacco Company, which were virtually controlled by the same men, were making exclusive contracts in Canada in the endeavor to create a monopoly.

The two companies had recently supplied the members of the House with a memo. complaining of the proposed legislation, saying it was opposed to any principle of fair competition. In 1890 the American Tobacco Company was formed, with $35,000,000 capital, which had been increased by water and other means to $901,000,000. They had endeavored to get hold of the tobacco business in Canada, and had bought a large number of factories. They now controlled 84 per cent. of the cigarette business in Canada, and were killing the business of the independent cigarette manufacturers in Canada. They were trying to get control of the cigar business in Canada, too.

The Trusts' Methods.

Mr. Brodeur reviewed some features of their methods, and showed from their contract that they offered a rebate of 6 cents a pound to dealers in Canada who would not handle the tobacco of any other Canadian manufacturers. The trust fixed the selling price and designated the purchasers. "We want to know," said Mr. Brodeur, "if the American trust can come here and destroy our business, and bring their methods here." When they enter a country they proceed to destroy the national industry. They bought five tobacco factories in Quebec. Three of them had now been closed, and, after closing them, they were trying to kill the other manufacturers under these exclusive contracts. They began by advertising with great enterprises their own brands of cigars and cigarettes. "No restraint of trade should be allowed in this country," declared Mr. Brodeur.

For a Free Country.

"Let us have a free country in every respect. Let us be free of any foreign corporation. Let us act for the Canadian interests. No monopoly should exist in this country. No American trust should control our manufacturers." The object of the legislation was to open the channels of trade and do away with these exclusive contracts. The danger was great, for in two or three years our 5000 cigar factories might be destroyed. The American trust would then be the only buyer, and could give what they pleased to the farmers for raw tobacco, and have the dealers all at their mercy.

He believed it was the best legislation that could be introduced, and he hoped it would receive the support of the House.

Mr. Borden's View.

Mr. R. L. Borden said it made no difference to the small dealers whether the capital which crushed them out was American or Canadian, and the same methods could be used by a Canadian trust. A trust had been formed in the Mother Country to fight the American trust, and used somewhat similar methods. The growth of trusts was a feature of recent years. The beef and the oil trusts in the United States had crushed out hundreds of small dealers in that country. It would have to deal comprehensively with this subject some day. Other trusts had been felt in this country, such as the iron and steel trust of the United States. It was a difficult question to handle. It was a late stage of the session to introduce such legislation. A more comprehensive measure might have been introduced, curbing all trusts, instead of leaving the others free to carry on their operations. Speaking entirely impersonally, he questioned the wisdom of bringing on such legislation just before an election, affecting a company with $30,000,000 capital.

Mr. F. D. Monk (Jacques Cartier) believed the operations of the tobacco trust to be detrimental to the interests of Canada, and welcomed the legislation as at least worthy of a trial, but at the same time, he regretted the Government had not introduced a general law dealing with trusts.

Mr. Taylor's Question.

Mr. Taylor declared that nine-tenths of the business of the country was done in the way described in the resolution. Why should the tobacco business be singled out for legislation?

Mr. Holmes of West Huron, supported the resolution. He joined with Mr. Maclaren in regretting that the House had seen fit to slaughter the anti-cigarette bill.

The House then went into Committee on the resolution. Mr. Brodeur explained that the law would apply to every business carried on under a license from the Department of Inland Revenue. "I will do my utmost to carry out the wishes of Parliament," said Mr. Brodeur.

The bill, based on the resolution, will be taken up to-day.

Coal Oil Duties Kick.

The last kick of the session against the revision of the coal oil duties was made yesterday under the auspices of James Clancy of Bothwell. Mr. Fielding's resolution providing for a bounty of 1½ cents on crude petroleum produced from Canadian wells brought the question before the House.

Mr. Clancy declared that there was no demand in the County of Lambton for a reduction of the duty on refined oil. This statement Mr. Fielding disputed, and declared that there was a complaint against the Government in regard to the oil duties.

For Lord and Lady Minto.

By a standing vote, members of the House of Commons placed formally on record their appreciation of the services which Lord Minto has rendered Canada in the office of Governor-General. The Countess of Minto was not forgotten in the expression of regret that before Parliament again assembles Lord Minto will have departed from Canada's shores.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in moving the farewell address, referred to Lord Minto as "a model constitutional governor, a man who had brought the Crown as near to the hearts of the people, perhaps nearer, than it had ever been brought before."

Of Lady Minto, the Prime Minister said, "she exhibited that virtue which obtained in the court of Queen Victoria, and which now adorned that of Queen Alexandra." He praised her also for her charitable work and for her interest in the cottage hospitals.

Mr. R. L. Borden seconded the address in a well-worded tribute to Lord and Lady Minto. Lord Minto, he said, had brought great ability and tact to the performance of his duties, and as a thorough citizen and gentleman, had endeared himself to Canada's life and aspirations. Lady Minto, also, had entered into everyday work in Canada. Their Excellencies would leave Canada, carrying not only the esteem, but the affection, of the people.

Lemaux Continues Fight.

Late last night Houghton Lemaux proceeded to reveal some more of the evil features of the Davis contract. He directed his energy chiefly along the line of showing that the contract made in 1896 was very much better, and in fact in no way to be compared with the contract which the Laurier Government made with Mr. Davis just before the elections of 1900. He denied that the contract of 1896 bore any relations to the imminence of the elections. And if the contract was bad it might have been terminated in 1900 without loss to either party.

THE KING'S PRIZEMAN.

Montreal to Honor Perry From Friday Till Monday Morning.

Montreal, Aug. 5.—Private Perry, the winner of the King's Prize, will be received in this city in a manner worthy of the fifth military district of Canada when the Bavarian reaches the wharf this afternoon. The Allan Liner will be boarded by Lieut.-Col. Gordon, D.O.C.; Major Stewart and Capt. Lafferty, who will officially welcome the great prizeman. Private Perry will then be escorted to the Windsor Hotel, where he will be waited on by representatives of the different city corps and welcomed by the officers and men of the different regiments. The function par excellence will take place at the Montreal drill hall on Saturday evening, and the reception will be public and crowds will attend. Perry will be entertained here till Monday morning, when he will leave for Toronto.

Perry Has Arrived.

Quebec, Aug. 5.—The Bavarian, with a portion of the Bisley team on board, arrived here last night. Private Perry, the winner of the King's Prize, was asleep in his stateroom when the ship was moored. Private Perry says he intends to spend a couple of days in Toronto, the city of his birth.

REFUSED SOME LICENSES

AND PORT HOPE COMMISSIONERS GOT INTO TROUBLE.

Officials of the Government Have Escaped Dismissal by the Skin of Their Teeth.

The License Commissioners of Port Hope have been getting themselves into trouble. The Times of that place says:

During the last few days there has been much excitement among certain prominent Liberals of Port Hope and one or two local officials of the provincial government have escaped summary dismissal by the skin of their teeth.

The trouble was over the extraordinary and highly suspicious conduct of the license commissioners. A week ago last Saturday these commissioners met and granted some licenses, while the licenses of other hotels were not granted. Among the hotels that did not get their licenses were some of the best equipped and best patronized hotels in the united counties, and the hotels the accommodation of which is most in demand by the travelling public. The commissioners gave no reason for the refusal of these licenses, and it has been openly hinted that their reasons for delaying the granting of the licenses and threatening to withhold them altogether are most discreditable to the commissioners themselves. It will be remembered that at the meeting of the commissioners the press was excluded and this strengthens the general opinion that the action of the commissioners was indefensible and that they were ashamed to allow light to be thrown upon their motives.

A public scandal was imminent and the leaders of the Liberal party in town became seriously alarmed. As the licenses of the hotels would have expired last Saturday something had to be done speedily to avert the scandal. There were anxious consultations among the Liberal leaders and it was decided that unless the commissioners could be forced to abandon their position the provincial secretary was to be called upon to summarily dismiss the commissioners and to appoint others whose conduct would be less open to public censure and to the imputation of discreditable motives. This was thought to be the only course that would prevent the public scandal and a severe blow to the prestige of the party in the constituency.

Accordingly on Wednesday Dr. L. B. Powers, president of the local Liberal association and the Liberal candidate at the last election, accompanied by Mr. William Giddy, went to Toronto and had an interview with Mr. Stratton, provincial secretary. Mr. Stratton was given the particulars of the affair and was urged to take immediate and drastic action. This he promised to do and in the presence of Dr. Powers and Mr. Giddy he wrote telegrams peremptorily summoning Mr. Wilson and Mr. Dickinson, two of the license commissioners, to Toronto.

On Friday Messrs. Wilson and Dickinson went to Toronto and waited on Mr. Stratton. They returned to Port Hope and the following day a meeting of the license commissioners was suddenly called and all the licenses were granted.

There was a scandal of considerable proportions averted.

For Over Sixty Years.

An old and well-tried remedy.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for sixty years by millions of mothers for their children while teething, with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Sold by all druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Its value is incalculable. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup and take no other kind.

THE OLDEST RAILROAD CAR IN THE WORLD.

Stands on the Identical Rails, at World's Fair, That Were Used by First Train.

St. Louis.—In the very centre of the historic railroad exhibit in the Palace of Transportation at the World's Fair stands the first car that was driven over rails by a steam locomotive. More than that, it stands on the very rails that were put down in the year 1800, and these are on the stones that formed a part of the original roadbed.

The locomotive, which was built by Richard Trevithick, and was given its trial trip in 1803, the very year of the Louisiana transfer, is valuable to the antiquary, and the man who is interested in tracing the evolution of things. It is a clumsy machine with great pitch-pistons in front. These cause the revolutions of a big wheel with deep seated eccentric-crank attachment. At the other side of the engine is a small cog-wheel that is connected with the big fly wheel. This small cog-wheel works in the cogs of a larger one, which in turn works in the cogs of two of the wheels on which the engine runs.

When we consider that the power developed in the steam chest had to pass through three wheels before it reached the part of the machine to which it had to be applied, we are not surprised that Mr. Trevithick considered he was doing well to run five miles an hour.

The engine in the exhibit is only a wooden model; but the little flat car with its load of logs is the actual car on which the inventor made his maiden trip, more than a hundred years ago. This time the engine drew 5 tons two miles and back.

A few days later the new engine performed a more wonderful task. It drew five cars, which were called "tram-waggons," a distance of nine miles in four hours. This time it had a real load, for the cars carried ten tons of iron and seventy people. On that trip it consumed 280 pounds of coal, and the water in the boiler did not have to be replenished until the end of the journey.

The road, 13 miles long, was built from Merlais Castle, South Wales, where there was an abundant supply of limestone, to Plymouth, where the furnaces were located. It bore the name of the Merthyr Tramway and was in constant use in Wales for many years. Indeed the old rails remained in place until 1860, when a thoroughly modern railroad was surveyed through that part of the country. Then the quaint little cars and the rusty old rails became part of the great American railroad historical museum.

MR. REID'S EVIDENCE

Explains that he is Prepared to Prove Every Statement.

The letter given below is written by Mr. Robt. Reid, the young man who gave evidence at the inquest on Tuesday evening last. He states that Mr. Kidd in his letter last night evidently doubted the evidence which he gave at the inquest with reference to the warning said to have been given by the captain of the North Star with regard to people riding on the bow of the boat. Mr. Kidd did not state that he doubted Mr. Reid's evidence, but that he made careful inquiry and had yet to hear of a single person (save Mr. Reid) who had heard a warning. As Mr. Reid was in the wheelhouse with the captain he was certainly in the best position to hear a warning when it was given; while others at a distance might have been at a disadvantage in that regard. Mr. Reid is in error when he says that the printers made him put up the railing at the start. What Mr. Reid actually did say in his evidence was this, "The mate and myself put the railing in at the dusk, and had to plaster it in." He might have done this with his hands or any other means. His letter is as follows:

To the Editor of The Review.

Dear Sir.—Kindly allow me through the columns of your valuable paper to answer a paragraph which appeared in last evening's issue regarding the inquest. Mr. Kidd has evidently doubted my evidence which I gave at the inquest. I may say that every statement I made that night I am prepared to prove. I might also say that the printers made an error when they said I gave evidence that a hammer was required to put the railing up. I merely said in the evidence that it was plastered in with our hands. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space, I remain,

Yours,

ROBERT REID.

ORGANIZATION OF JAPS

HOW THEY OBTAIN THEIR FOOD AND SUPPLIES.

Every Detail is Carried Out most Systematically—How the Japanese have gone about Preparations for War.

F. A. McKenzie, writing in the London Daily Mail, says:—

"This is not war," the man said impatiently, as he watched the officers devoting their attention to details of rice supply, blanket reserve, and the purchase of cattle.

"This is war," the one who knew better replied: "war in its most vital point, now style."

We had come expecting to hear the clang of arms, to see the glory, the horrors, the splendors of a nineteenth century campaign. Instead, we found that a new century had brought new conditions. All along our line of route the officers have been devoting themselves to the solution of the problem of food supply. Feeding, not fighting, is the basis of a modern war, and Napoleon's dictum that an army crawls upon its stomach was never more true than today.

Nothing should give the friends of Japan more confidence than the way this detail of supply is being managed here. The arrangements are the more noteworthy because of the contrast supplied by the other side. The Russians sent their cavalry from Manchuria into Corea hampered by baggage wagons, and having to depend mainly upon what they could immediately gather from the people. At every step their troops had to stop to hunt for fodder. The idea of feeding any army off local supplies in Northern Corea, is about as practical as would be a scheme for decorating St. Paul's Cathedral with flowers gathered off Clerkenwell Green.

THE KNOWING JAPANESE.

The Japanese have gone to work in different style. Long ago they started Corean language classes in Tokio for picked soldiers. While some of the best Japanese officers were making their way to Mongolia, to organize and train the so-called robber bands there,—who are now, many of them, practically Japanese irregular cavalry in disguise—others went all over Northern Corea. Men living as Coreans, speaking the language as natives, regarded by even the natives as people of their own race, were in every district. The Japanese knew not merely every road but apparently are in Oldham. The Japanese General Staff once surprised a British officer by informing him how many blacksmiths' shops there are in Oldham. The Japanese General Staff could leave this behind. They apparently have a biograph of every village elder.

Thus, when fighting came, they knew the land, while the Russians, living on its borders, did not. Every Japanese officer has a map of the part he is working in. The Russians, apparently, have had to make their maps as they go, for the first Russian scouting expeditions have been accompanied by staff officers, who drew plans and sketch maps as they went. The Russians have had difficulty in obtaining reliable interpreters, and, if report speaks true, have been utterly misled more than once by the stories carried to them by Coreans. The Japanese have their own people, trained for the purpose.

THE GREAT MOVE NORTH.

The first great movement northward was not of troops, but of transport. A few soldiers were forced up to save Ping-Yang from the Russians, but the remainder waited until there were supplies ready for them. In every town between Seoul and Ping-Yang, Japanese, dressed as coolies, but armed with regulation rifles and bayonets, appeared on the streets. One man, in officers' war uniform—free, that is, from all superfluous decoration, takes possession of a temple or a palace, and gigantic stocks of food and clothing arise, as it were, from the earth. Here is a mountain of red blankets, here is an avalanche of coolie loads of rice. Here come men from fifty miles away, bringing cattle. In Tho-san they are slaughtering chickens and in An-hop they are gathering pigs, while the advance guard of the Japanese fighting men is eighty miles away.

You enter a village, knowing that it is at least two days before the first soldiers, pushing on from Seoul, can reach there. At the entrance to the village you will probably find a newly erected notice board, with a large map, showing every house and road around, and with minute directions below for billeting. You go some miles off the main road to find one or two cavalry vedettes there, and a civilian bargaining with the Coreans about the purchase of their pigs and rice. And very likely an army of coolies is matting out in another direction for soldiers who are coming up by a side road.

The same foresight is shown in every detail. The rice is made up to the exact weight for a coolie to carry. These weights are further calculated so that so many of them go to a pony or an ox load. Picked natives are decorated with stripes of red, to show that they are now in the service of His Imperial Majesty's Transport Corps. At this time the Japanese do not haggle over the money. Coolies are paid wages scarce dreamed of by them before, and the price of pack ponies has gone sky high. I had to pay $144 for the hire of three pack ponies from Seoul to Ping-Yang.

It must be borne in mind, in justice to the Russians, that the Japanese have worked in this land before. Campaigning in Corea is no new thing to them. The armies marched through it in 1894 and spent a hard winter in northern Corea.

SUPPLIES.

Those in England who are doubtless expressing their amazement that the Japanese army is not moving quicker and in greater numbers would cease to wonder and would understand more if they knew the land. In this northern country the natives are so poor that little can be had from them. Stocks of fodder and of meat, ready to hand in most other lands, are practically unknown here. The fortunate Corean, by the hardest work, saves enough to keep his family until the next crop comes. In hard seasons he fails to do this. This year, for instance, he has taken to eating crows—and where they are not to be had he starves.

To move an army, again, you must have not only food, but burden-bearing animals—horses, ponies, cattle or the like. Corea, thanks to the epidemic, is denuded of most of its ponies, and the oxen are now wanted for food.

"It has been very hard work," the head of one of the Japanese transport stations confessed to me as we sat one afternoon talking the matter over. "Our first problem has been to get our supplies over from Japan. Every transport ship is wanted for the troops. There is scarcely anything to be had from the country itself. The people are so poor that they have not got it to sell to us."

At every step one sees the care taken for the comfort of the individual soldier. He has to have a hard time, but the military authorities see that what comfort he needs shall be there for him. Hours before a company, even on forced march, reaches a place, men have arrived ahead, have prepared the houses, lighted great fires in the streets, and have cooked food.

The essence of successful business, experts tell us, is organization. Japan has adopted that as the essence of successful war.

STONY LAKE CORUNDUM.

The Peterborough County Mine Still in Litigation—Thwarted by Speculators.

The corundum mine at the head of Stoney Lake, a valuable property, if developed, unfortunately got into the hands of dishonest speculators. It will be remembered that the Hon. J. R. Stratton and other Canadians, who were asked to become directors, declined, it having been rushed dry by the notorious Healey.

The Toronto News says:—

"The Sapphire Corundum Company, with which Mr. Healey's name has frequently been connected in litigation, came before Mr. Justice Bingham and a special jury in London recently.

"It was the suit of Mr. Frank O'Reilly a Canadian, to recover three bills of exchange for £1,000 each from the accepter, Mr. James A. Bratshaw, a Liverpool stockbroker. The defence, opened by Mr. Shearman, K.C., alleged that the bills had been obtained through the fraud of Mr. Kelly, one of the promoters of the Sapphire Corundum Company, and that the plaintiff was a mere dummy to cover Mr. Kelly. But while the depositions taken on commission in Canada were being read in support of the defence it was intimated that the parties had come to a settlement."

Fibroid Tumors Cured.

A distressing case of Fibroid Tumor, which baffled the skill of Boston doctors. Mrs. Hayes, of Boston, Mass., in the following letter tells how she was cured, after everything else failed, by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Hayes' First Letter Appealing to Mrs. Pinkham for Help:

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I have been under Boston doctors' treatment for a long time without any relief. They tell me I have a fibroid tumor. I cannot sit down without great pain, and the soreness extends up my spine. I have bearing-down pains both back and front. My abdomen is swollen, and I have had flowing spells for three years. My appetite is not good. I cannot walk or be on my feet for any length of time.

"The symptoms of Fibroid Tumor given in your little book accurately describe my case, so I write to you for advice."—(Signed) Mrs. E. F. Hayes, 252 Dudley St., (Roxbury) Boston, Mass.

Note the result of Mrs. Pinkham's advice—although she advised Mrs. Hayes, of Boston, to take her medicine—which she knew would help her—her letter contained a mass of additional instructions as to treatment, all of which helped to bring about the happy result.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—Sometime ago I wrote to you describing my symptoms and asked your advice. You replied, and I followed all your directions carefully, and to-day I am a well woman.

"The use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound entirely expelled the tumor and strengthened my whole system. I can walk miles now.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth five dollars a drop. I advise all women who are afflicted with tumors or female trouble of any kind to give it a faithful trial."—(Signed) Mrs. E. F. Hayes, 252 Dudley St., (Roxbury) Boston, Mass.

Mountains of gold could not purchase such testimony—or take the place of the health and happiness which Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought to Mrs. Hayes.

Such testimony should be accepted by all women as convincing evidence that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound stands without a peer as a remedy for all the distressing ills of women; all ovarian troubles; tumors; inflammations; ulceration, falling and displacements of the womb; backache; irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation. Surely the volume and character of the testimonial letters we are daily printing in the newspapers can leave no room for doubt.

Mrs. Hayes at her above address will gladly answer any letters which sick women may write for fuller information about her illness. Her gratitude to Mrs. Pinkham and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so genuine and heartfelt that she thinks no trouble is too great for her to take in return for her health and happiness.

Truly is it said that it is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that is curing so many women, and no other medicine; don't forget this when some druggist wants to sell you something else.

JAPANESE MET WITH REPULSE

In a Fight at Anshanshan With Heavy Loss.

PT. ARTHUR'S FALL EXPECTED

Tokio Looks for It Any Day—Twenty Divisions of Japanese in Manchuria —4,000 Russians Killed.

Mukden, Aug. 6.—It is reported here that the Japanese attacked the Russian position at Anshanshan (midway between Maicheng and Liaoyang), on Aug. 2, and were repulsed with heavy loss. The Russian casualties are not known.

What the Japs Expect.

Berlin, Aug. 6.—The National Zeitung prints a telegram from Tokio stating that there are five Japanese divisions before Port Arthur, part of them within three and a half miles of the fortress and that there are altogether 20 Japanese divisions in Manchuria. The telegram says Tokio is expecting the fall of Port Arthur and the capitulation of Gen. Kuropatkin on the same day.

4,000 Russians Killed.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 6.—Detailed reports reaching the war office from Gen. Kuropatkin's generals shows that the Russian losses July 30, July 31 and Aug. 1 did not exceed 4,000. The Japanese are believed to have at least an equal number.

Russians Lose 2,000.

Tokio, Aug. 6.—It is now estimated that the Russians lost 2,000 men in the fighting at Simoucheng. The Japanese sanitary corps buried 700 bodies in the valley through which the Russians fought and retreated. The Japanese captured six guns, 570 shells, a quantity of stores and 23 prisoners. A detachment of the Russian medical corps captured by the Japanese was returned to the Russian lines. The Japanese casualties at Simoucheng amounted to 560 men, including eighty officers killed and 24 officers wounded.

Russians Retire From Haicheng.

Haicheng, Aug. 6.—The Russians have been obliged to retire from here, as the Japanese were working around them from the east, threatening to cut them off from Liaoyang. The fresh Japanese troops disembarked at the port of Newchwang are also advancing on the other flank. The main concentration of Russians is now about Liaoyang. The Japanese for a semicircle of about 50 miles around the Russian positions. As this despatch (yesterday) is filed the order for the troops to retire has been given.

Communications Cut.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 6.—The fact that Gen. Kuropatkin's recent despatches have not mentioned General Stakelberg or General Zaroubaieff leads to the supposition here that their forces to the southward may have had their communications cut by Gen. Nodzu's army.

Chinese Drilled By Jap Officers.

Paris, Aug. 6.—The Matin's correspondent at Newchwang draws attention to the activity of the Chinese troops in that vicinity. He says they are being constantly drilled by Japanese officers.

Prepare For Final Stand.

Che Foo, Aug. 6.—Thirty more refugees arrived yesterday on junks from Port Arthur, which place they left August 1. The departure of all civilians from Port Artuur is said to be owing to the exhaustive preparations for a final stand against the Japanese.

No Repetition.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 6.—The Associated Press can announce that there will be no repetition of the Knight Commander and Thea incidents. Russia has instructed naval commanders not to sink neutral merchantmen with contraband on board in the future except in cases of direct necessity, but in cases of emergency to send prizes into neutral ports.

LHASSA MUST BE ENTERED.

But Troops Will Not Enter Samostatan Unless Fired Upon.

Chakman Ferry, Tibet, via Gyantse, Thursday, Aug. 4.—(Delayed in transmission.)—The greater portion of the British expedition has successfully crossed the Brahmapootra. The villagers are inclined to be friendly, and there are no signs of an armed force to oppose the advance on Lhassa. Col. Younghusband, the British political agent, has had two interviews with the peace delegates, among whom is the Grand Chamberlain. The latter pleaded with Younghusband not to proceed, as the Dalai Lama might die of the shock to his religious feelings if the British entered the Holy City. Younghusband replied that the treaty must be signed at Lhassa, but he promised that the troops would not enter the monasteries unless fired on therefrom.

SULLIVAN'S ONSLAUGHT

Terrific Indictment on Sale of Patent Medicines.

"Men Are Being Duped and Women Made Drunkards By the Indiscriminate Sale of Proprietary Medicines," Said Senator Sullivan in the Senate—Motion For a Return Carried—Senate Grateful For the Speech.

Ottawa, Aug. 6.—That men are being duped and women made drunkards by the indiscriminate sale of proprietary medicines was the bold charge made in the Senate yesterday by Michael Sullivan, M.D., of Kingston. Many of these medicines, he declared, contained 40 per cent. and more of alcohol; while good Holland contained 28 per cent. and lager beer only from 2 to 5 per cent. These pernicious compounds were sold freely as vegetable compounds.

"It is a fearful thing," said Senator Sullivan, "to think of a Government granting the power to poison their own people."

He admitted that testimonials could be readily furnished, but he said he could go out into the street and for 25 cents get a poor fellow to give him a testimonial about any disease he liked to inflict on him and have a fresh disease every day.

Celery compound he said was made up largely of alcohol. These things were dangerous to the home. Peruna had no special signification. It was almost all whiskey. An excellent thing to go fishing with. If the advertisements were cut away the sale of these things would cease. He commended Sir William Mulock for his intention to keep advertisements of these things out of the mails. Many a woman had been made a drunkard and the home ruined by these things.

When he was a student he was warned against giving tinctures, which were merely alcoholic solutions of substances water would not dissolve. Brown's chloral contained morphia and would corrupt anybody.

Senator Sullivan made this terrific indictment on a motion for a statement showing the names of all liquid mixtures known as patent or proprietary medicines purporting to remove the most varied forms of disease occurring in the human body, showing the amount of money, if any, the importer, maker, seller or vender paid to the Government as special tax or license, showing likewise if the Government has any knowledge of the ingredients which are employed to make these compounds, and what proportion of water and alcohol is contained in them.

Hon. W. B. Scott said the Senate was grateful for Senator Sullivan's speech.

Senator Wilson expressed the hope that the Government would take the matter up.

The motion passed.

THE TOBACCO TRUST.

Resolution and Bill to Restrict Passed By the House—Sir William Mulock's New Labor Bill.

Ottawa, Aug. 6.—Yesterday morning Sir Wilfrid Laurier, replying to a question by Col. Sam Hughes, said that the request of the veterans of the Fenian Raid for a grant of land in the Northwest had received some consideration, but he was sorry to say he could not give an answer.

Mr. R. A. Pringle continued the debate upon the tobacco resolution, and protested against the measure. He argued that there was no monopoly in Canada, because the number of manufacturers had increased since the Empire Tobacco Company came on the scene. After speeches by Mr. Gus Porter and Dr. Leonard, the resolution was adopted, and the bill giving effect thereto was introduced and given its several readings and sent up to the Senate.

Says Bargain Is Bad.

Upon the second reading of the bill authorizing the purchase of the Canada Eastern Railway and to take possession of the Fredericton and St. Mary's Railway bridge, Hon. John Haggart contended that the bargain was a poor one. The road had practically been abandoned as useless, the gradients were heavy, the natural features of the country being such that in 136 miles the road had to overcome a rise and fall of 1,900 feet. He calculated that an immediate expenditure of $800,000 to purchase and $600,000 to put in good condition would be required, and an annual loss of $100,000 would be incurred in its operation. This expenditure was being incurred for a railway that had gross earnings of $114,000, and last year net earnings of $3,500.

Alien Labor Law.

Sir William Mulock's bill to amend the Alien Labor Act was given a peculiar reception in the House yesterday. It was opposed by some members on the ground that it was too restrictive, while others contended that it did not go far enough in the way of shutting out foreign labor. Early in the debate Sir William Mulock dropped clause 2, which provided that upon going before a judge and showing that necessary labor was not obtainable in Canada, the employer might bring in labor from foreign countries. The elimination of this clause restores the present law, which gives no such power to the employer.

Labor's chief exponents in the House found fault with the bill chiefly because it was directed solely against nations which have alien labor laws against Canada. This means, of course, that it is directed against citizens of the United States.

Sir William Mulock admitted that the law would be operative only against citizens of the United States.

Sir William Mulock seems determined to force the bill through the Commons, and it stands for a third reading.

THE CANAL OBSTRUCTED

Either Dr. P. Palmer Burrows of Lindsay is totally ignorant of the Trent Waterway and of canals generally, when he should not write on the subject, or he has sent a very dishonest letter to the Lindsay Post.

There is little new in his attempts to prevent the utilization of the Trent waterway and the substitution of a local cut to build up a dwindling town and harbour except his unwarrantable abuse of those who support this long contemplated national work, and are not willing to see it sacrificed for private interests. According to him the Toronto Globe, the Toronto News, the Peterborough Review, the Trenton Courier and the Trenton Advocate are run by grafters, sharks and speculators as are the people of Peterborough. This is a vile slander. For the Review and for the people of Peterborough we can say that we have no interest in the route except to see this great national enterprise carried to a successful termination and not obstructed as it is at present for selfish and venal motives. We believe we may say the same for others who for seventy years have advocated the utilization of the Trent waters, as the very name of the canal implies, no other route being mentioned till some schemers thought there might be money for them in diverting the nearly finished work in order to save a moribund little town. Dr. Barrows is much more open to the suspicion of being the mouthpiece of grafters and adventurers. He quotes as an authority Mr. J. A. Ontverwell, who is now trying to smuck out of the bond that he would convey water power from Burleigh Falls to Lindsay by substituting the shares of a joint stock company, which is not fixed and so we cannot tell their value. This adventurer is opposing the Trent Canal because he was foiled by the government in working a graft in regard to Trent River water-power, and he seems to be Dr. Burrows' instigator. It would be interesting to know whether by purchase, gift or for work done, Dr. Burrows has any of these shares.

We may briefly mention and refute a few of his points.

The cost to Port Hope is less, he says. It would be some millions more when damages for diverting water from the Trent and injuring the water power holders were paid. Besides what has the cost to Port Hope to do with it? Dr. Burrows, wanting to go to Ottawa, would not buy a ticket for Port Hope because it cost less.

He talks of 19 miles of rock on the Trent, as if it had to be excavated, instead of there being fine reaches of open water connected by a few locks. There is more than twice as much excavation on the Port Hope route, with the drawback of distructible banks. His only authority is an Imperial engineer, behind the times 70 years ago, who would open his eyes wide with astonishment if he could see modern scientific canalization as exemplified on the Trent canal.

The distance to Toronto and Hamilton would be less, he says. Well, the Trent canal was designed to go to Montreal, not to turn about to Toronto. The idea of taking this route from Lake Simcoe to Toronto would be lunacy compared to which Caprist's Folly were perfect sanity. It would, he argues, be a more direct route to Lake Ontario. One of the objects of the work is to avoid Lake Ontario, with its dangers for barges, and the Trent canal would connect through the Bay of Quinte with the St. Lawrence.

Then it would afford better communication with the United States side of the lake. Another thing it was proposed to avoid, the Trent Canal being designed to feed our St. Lawrence ports, not New York by the Erie canal from Oswego.

After sneering at the local "Skuggs barges," which by the by might safely take the Trent route in tow, he says:

"The standard lake barge as required by the underwriters, is much larger, carrying say 25,000 bushels, and strong enough to withstand the rough weather. It is provided with spars and sails, so if it breaks loose it may find shelter, so that it is really of little importance if the lake run is eight, eighteen or twenty-two miles."

There he gives away his whole case. It was precisely to obviate the necessity of these great lake barges, expensive to build, costly to run, and locking up much capital while idle, that the Trent canal was designed and advocated. What are contemplated are such barges as will not be so costly as to necessitate heavy freight rates, will carry 800 tons or 25,000 bushels of wheat, can be towed several together at high speed through our fine lakes and river stretches with their indestructible locks, and can proceed safely down the St. Lawrence to the sea-going vessels. This design is not likely to be abandoned to please a few grafters or to serve selfish local interests.

The Brantford Courier says:

"Sir Richard Cartwright and Hon. Mr. Stratton both stand sadly in need of a fumigation with regard to their political ideas."

The Ministerial organs are giving Sir Frederick Borden fulsome praise for raising the militia establishment to a hundred thousand men. At the same time they are vilifying Lord Dundonald for recommending that these men should be armed instead of having one rifle among three men.

The Toronto Telegram says:

"Foreigners Wha Hae" is the finest national song ever written, and it must be a treat to hear Andrew Carnegie, LL.D., joining in the chorus:

"Foreigners ,wha bae wi' Wallace bled, Foreigners whom Bruce has often led." Etc.

POSITION FOR PTE. PERRY.

Will Be Offered a Place in the Vancouver Customs—Brilliant Reception at Montreal.

Ottawa, Aug. 6.—When Private Perry, the winner of the King's Prize, arrived at Montreal yesterday he received an interesting, and doubtless welcome, message. Mr. D. O. Macpherson, M.P. for Burrard, and a resident of Vancouver, sent yesterday morning a congratulatory telegram, in which he informed Private Perry: "I have a position for you in His Majesty's Customs at Vancouver, if agreeable to you." Mr. Macpherson has taken a deep interest in the triumph of the young Canadian, as is shown by the efforts he has made in his behalf.

Reception at Montreal.

Montreal, Aug. 6.—A more hearty and sincere welcome than that accorded Pte. Perry by the militiamen and citizens generally, when he arrived here yesterday, can scarcely be imagined. Those unacquainted with the situation might easily have been deceived into supposing that the King's Prizeman had landed among his own people.

"There he is," some one shouted as Perry was recognized when the Allan Liner was about fifty yards from the dock and immediately a rousing cheer went up from the hundreds of soldiers and civilians assembled on the wharf.

All of the commanding officers were present, and it was indeed a brilliant scene as Col. Gordon, D.O.C., accompanied by Lieut.-Col. Ibbetson, Lieut.-Col. Starke, and Lieut.-Col. Crooke, all ex-commandants of Bisley teams, with the other commanding officers of the city regiments, boarded the ship to welcome Perry to the tune of "See the conquering hero comes" from the band of the Second Regiment of Artillery.

In interviews, the hero of the hour was extremely modest in his remarks and manifested a distinclination to talk.

Only seven members of the Bisley team were on board the Davarian, and all expressed their delight over Perry's victory.

As soon as Pte. Perry reached the wharf he was shouldered by four stalwart soldiers and carried through the shed to his carriage, which was rapidly driven to the Windsor. After dinner an informal reception was held, concluding yesterday's program.

As a Protest Against Application of the Closure.

London, Aug. 6.—There was an extraordinary scene in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon during the discussion in committee stage of a bill designed to frustrate the devices of the Welsh County Council, who are endeavoring to refuse to carry out the Education Act.

Premier Balfour moved the closure, but on division the Opposition members raising a storm of uproarious protest, refused to record their votes, and the chairman of the committee named a number of members to the Speaker. After a heated discussion amid renewed uproar and cries of "Shame," almost the entire Opposition, led by Messrs. Asquith and Herbert Gladstone and Sir Charles Dilke, left the House as a protest against the closure.

The bill was then passed in the presence of full Ministerial benches, six members of the Opposition and a few Irish members.

THE TRENT WATERWAY

Mr. Gourlay.—I desire to say a word on this question. I think that a member from a province in which the canal is not situated will probably be in a better position to voice the sentiment of Canada than one directly interested in the work. I want to say here that it gives me the greatest possible pleasure to support the building of this waterway. Ever since I have entered this House I have endeavored to inculcate the principle that we should not view any public question from a narrow provincial standpoint. I have gone so far as to say that we should be the last to advocate expenditure in our own particular province. That should be left to people outside, because the members themselves should regard all the provinces as one country, and should be interested in the development of every other portion of Canada as they are in the little spot in which they happen to live. I am now in a position to justify the stand I have taken ever since entering the House. When I received the invitation to visit Peterborough, I made up my mind to go and see the opening of this great public work. I went, I may say, in fear and trembling, because I believe that if there is a stain on the escutcheon of the Conservative party, it is the Trent Canal. I concur absolutely in what my hon. friend from Halton (Mr. Henderson) and my hon. friend from Northumberland (Mr. Cochrane) have said, namely, that no work was ever more represented by gentlemen constituting Her Majesty's Opposition as a low political job than the building of the Trent canal.

I live in Nova Scotia. I was not familiar with the location of the Trent Valley Canal. I knew nothing about the possibilities of the waterways of that section. And so I, and others in Nova Scotia like me, had to take the word of members of Parliament. We, in Nova Scotia, had learned to respect members of Parliament. We had men to represent us like, for instance, Hon. Mr. Ross, who, though he differs from me politically, would be fair in this discussion of a public question. He is a strong Liberal, and, if he ever went wrong, it was when he was swayed by that unholy passion. But, we were accustomed to public men who would fairly represent the interests of the country, and we could not believe that any public man would prostitute his position in the House of Commons, to misrepresent a work that was calculated to be a benefit to his country. I went to Peterborough, the other day, with fear and trembling. When I received an invitation from the government, I thought, at last, the government was to show the country the extraordinary character of this work. I fancied they would say: We found this scheme, which was a piece of political debauchery, only half completed; we have done the best we could with it; we are in possession of the record, and we want to lay before you the jobbery of the Conservative party in connection with this work. So, as I say, I went there in fear and trembling. The Postmaster-General (Sir William Mulock) was there, and he was one of the happiest man I ever saw. He seemed to be presiding over the completion of the work that was entirely to his liking. I did not think it possible that end who had inveighed against the Trent Valley Canal could preside at the opening of that canal with such pleasure. Why, I recollect that we people in Nova Scotia were almost frightened out of our wits that the Conservative Goverament had done something wrong in carrying on this Trent Valley Canal work. We trusted the Conservative party and believed that, in the main, it was right. Still, we feared that, in connection with this matter, there must be something wrong. And the Liberal party in Nova Scotia used to tell us :Look at your corrupt goverament; look at this infamous ditch in which the public money of Canada was pretended to be spent; that money was not spent, except to be the means of corrupting and debauching the electorate. That was the opinion that hon. gentlemen opposite cultivated for eighteen years. And even members of the Conservative party almost half believed it. The hon. member for East Northumberland (Mr. Cochrane) amused me some time ago, by telling me that, when the Liberals opposed the Conservatives so earnestly, strongly charging them with corruption, even he almost felt like deserting the government, for it seemed impossible that men could bring themselves to carry on such stern opposition, unless they believed something of the charges they were making. Of course, he said he had lived long enough to know that they did not mean a word of what they said. But, such was the earnestness of their advocacy, that even he wavered in his support of Sir John Macdonald, on several occasions. And, if we in Nova Scotia ever wavered in that support, it was over the question of this Trent Valley Canal. So, you can imagine the feeling with which I went up to view this work. And you can imagine my feelings when I found it to be such a splendid work for the development of the country. I believe in the development of Canada in every part—not less in Ontario and British Columbia than in my own country. I got hold of the map—I love maps and study them always. And, as I studied the map, it was borne in upon my mind that, whether this canal was to carry through freight or not, did not matter, for it is a splendid internal waterway, and will develop an immense country. I devoted a night or two to the study of the map; and I assure you, Mr. Chairman, my esteem for the province of Ontario was not heightened. We, in Nova Scotia, are apt to believe that the people of Ontario are the narrowest people you can find. And, as I say, by esteem for them was not heightened by the study of this map. Why you should have had this canal developed eighty years ago. You have settled along the St. Lawrence and taken the little Peninsula of western Ontario, but you have left the rest of the country, up to James Bay, almost as bare as when Cartier came. And you deserve no credit for what has been done. If confederation had not come, you would have been as backward as you were thirty-seven years ago. But, the other provinces have joined you, and have helped to develop your province. I was amazed, when I looked at the map, to think that any man of integrity could have opposed the development of his province by this splendid waterway. Every man in Ontario should have joined to get that country developed thirty or forty years ago. But the great misfortune of Canada is that we talk, and dispute, and decades go by, and nothing is accomplished.

FASHION NOTES.

The curtain veil is on the wane, but when it is well arranged on the hat it is a becoming fashion and not one to be lightly given up. Boudoa, for motoring it is decidedly useful.

Embroidery is a distinct feature of all Paris lingerie. Of course this embroidery is handmade and not the coarse stuff bought by the yard.

Separate flower motifs outlined by insertions of valenciennes lace are the smart thing. Embroideries worked on pure linen or on fine lawn, though so delicate in appearance, have great wearing properties.

For evening wear a great deal of chiffon voile is being used, and this is trimmed handsomely with hand embroidered laces or chiffon applique.

There is a revival in favor of the rumbole petticoat fitting tightly around the hips and very full and ample at the foot. These petticoats are generally cut with one deep flounce, with a wide insertion heading it through, which ribbon can be run and tied in a wide bow on the left side. Under this flounce there are a couple of underflounces to give the necessary fullness.

With the skirt cut walking length there are some very pretty and useful petticoats made of pongee trimmed with linen colored lace.

The cut shows a silk suit. The bolero jacket is shirred, and the elaborate skirt is cut exceptionally full.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

COLORS AND TRIMMINGS.

Coral Shades in Vogue—The Wide Girdle Is Fashionable.

Not only has coral returned to favor as jewelry, but tiny buttons for dresses and buckles for hats are made of it. All the coral shades are also to the fore in ribbons and dress materials. A belt of gray suede seen recently was fastened with coral buttons and was worn with a shirt waist costume of coral and white foulard.

Long tassels, both of linen and of silk fringe, are about the smartest trimming for veiling or linen frocks. They are used at intervals. The space intervening is filled with curved appliques harmonizing in tint.

The wide girdle and the shirred bands are here to stay and form the most

The straight brim still continues to be the favorite for the everyday millor hat. This is trimmed with a stiff band of tiny flowers having a bunch of foliage on one side or a row of ribbon.

Ecru linen gowns have replaced to a large extent those of pongee. They are made in an equally elaborate manner.

Shirrings and cordings are introduced wherever the figure can stand them. The general effect is full and elaborate even to the point of exaggeration.

The picture shows a pink veiling dress having a wide lace collar. The skirt is trimmed with ruchings of chiffon, and the hat is an especially chic Paris importation.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Aloes.

The most valuable aloes come from the island of Sokotra, which lies just off the east African coast from Cape Guardafui. The drug itself is the bitter resinous juice of the leaves of the aloe plant that has been hardened in the sun. These leaves are of a fibrous, fleshy nature, and, in addition to the juice, the natives make this fiber into rope, many insisting that it makes a better rope than hemp.

MILLINERY NOTES.

Straight Brimmed Hats Are Returning to Favor—Hot Blouses.

There is a tendency toward straight brims this season in millinery. These straight brims are seen especially in tiny sailor hats with exaggerated crowns. They are trimmed with wreaths of roses and smart bows.

The French sailor also comes in for its share of popularity. It is trimmed with roses, geraniums or other bright colored flowers.

Green is a very smart millinery tint, both in the vivid grass green shades and in the paler nile tints. A smart hat seen recently had a ruching of two shades of nile green ribbon going around the crown, and on the left side this was joined under a white owl's head.

The baby hat, which was so loudly heralded at the beginning of the season, has fallen into disfavor on account of its many imitations.

The black hat seems to have given way entirely to the hat of lighter tone, burnt straw especially. This, when trimmed with white lace or ostrich tips, is particularly becoming and goes with a great number of gowns.

Blouse coats are now being made to pouch both back and front, and the wide girdle prevents the outlines of the figure from being entirely concealed.

Braids of all sizes and description are used both on tailor made and on dressy gowns, and these are worked into attractive patterns and combined with lace figurings.

Net blouses are very fashionable. In the picture we have a shirred blouse of yellow net. It has the long shouldered effect and deep yoke which are so fashionable.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Oiling the Wringer.

Do not fail to oil the wringer every time you wash. If oiled often there is less wear on the machinery, and less strength is expended by the operator. To clean the rollers rub them first with a cloth saturated with kerosene oil and follow with soap and water. Always loosen the rollers before putting the wringer away.

A Milk Suggestion.

When milk has been standing for some time it is well to pour it, without shaking, into another pitcher or bowl, leaving just a little in the bottom of the first receptacle, as it is this setting that contains disease germs injurious to mankind.

Turn a lamp flame down at least halfway before lifting the lamp from one place to another. If this rule were followed there would be fewer accidents.

THE DINNER TABLE.

Accidents will happen. If one happens to spill something he is unfortunate, but a ready, earnest apology to the hostess is all that he can do to remedy the difficulty. A careful hostess will acknowledge the apology and immediately change the subject.

This story is told of a hostess at whose table a beautiful china cup was broken. "Never mind," she said pleasantly. "They break so easily. See!" And she crushed one in her hand.

Her method was rather too elaborate. It would have been quite as satisfactory to the offender and far more genteel had she said: "I hope you have received no injury. The cup doesn't matter in the least."

If a morsel of food drops from the fork to the tablecloth do not attempt to remove it. If a guest drops a fork or a spoon he should let it lie. The hostess will provide another.

If anything distasteful be taken into the mouth it may be removed on the corner of the napkin, when it can be folded away or placed quietly on the plate.

If a bit of food falls on the waistcoat of a guest he should remove as much of it as he can quietly with the corner of his napkin.

SUMMER STYLES.

New Shades of Yellow—Novel Blouse Waists For Hot Weather.

There is a new shade on the order of a deep apricot or a pale orange tone. It goes admirably with brown, pongee color and certain tints of blue.

A charming hat of pale blue straw was adorned with two long feathers. They were brown and blue, arranged on either side of the hat, falling over the back, where they were fastened by a cluster of pale blue roses.

Very pretty novelty coats are made of black and white chantilly lace, and pongee also when trimmed with tinted embroidery is very smart for summer driving and evening coats.

The woman who can only afford one evening wrap will find the unlined loose coat of white cloth both pretty and economical, for it can be easily cleaned, especially if it be trimmed with a removable lace collar.

The favorite length is the three-quarter, and the coats hang very full without any goring. They are often shirred about a round yoke.

Ecru batiste blouses embroidered in white or in a deeper tone of ecru are the latest and the smartest to go with pongee skirts.

Another pale blue hat was trimmed with a band of very small pink roses set closely together, while on the left side were small raised wings to match the straw.

Organdie is a favorite with dressmakers this summer and it comes in a variety of old world patterns which can be made up quaintly with the addition of ruchings or fichus. Combinations of mauve and white and green and white are particularly smart.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Homeopathy is a theory of medicine promulgated by Dr. Samuel Hahnemann (1755-1843) of Leipsic in 1810. It asserts that any disease should be treated by medicines in minute doses that would produce in a healthy patient symptoms similar to those manifested by the disease requiring treatment. This is the principle of "like diseases are cured by like remedies" (Latin, similia similibus curantur) and is based on the theory that two similarly diseased conditions cannot subsist in the same organ at the same time.

SHADES AND FABRICS.

Printed Muslins For Summer—Colors For Blonde and Brunettes.

Printed muslins in the most delightful designs make pretty summer gowns over taffeta silk matching the flower design. They are trimmed with narrow laces or chiffon.

The blond girl should avoid blue unless her eyes are very deep and her eyebrows well marked. It makes her washy washy. Pale yellow is very becoming to her; so also are brown, black and a certain shade of green. White in her best color. Turquoise blue looks particularly well on a dark haired woman, and so do the shades of old rose and deeper pink. The pale pinks belong to blonde. Deep mauves and purples are becoming to both blonde and brunettes, and this is true also of certain shades of scarlet.

The fashionable decolletage line is somewhat higher this season, for, although the corsage is cut lower, it is finished with a dainty tucker of mousseline de soie, chiffon or net.

Challie is to be revived, as leaders of fashion say, and this is pretty for young girls when made up softly with a bit of good lace.

A good effect was produced by deep lace and ribbon ruches, arranged in a scroll design, on the skirt of a rich purple crepe de chine gown. The corsage had the long shoulder line, the full sleeves being shirred to the elbow and terminating in deep cuffs of lace.

The picture shows an evening gown of blue liberty satin trimmed with guipure lace.

COTTON COSTUMES.

Spots and Lozenges of Contrasting Shades For Trimmings.

Spots and lozenge shaped disks are ultra smart used in the way of trimming. Spotted fabrics of every kind are also considered very chic. Some of the spotted cottons make admirable trimming bands, or large spots are worked in ingrain cotton on stitched bands or on fancy cotton braid.

Unlined blouse costumes made of fine gingham or linen have the skirts eased in at the waist line, clearing the ground all around and finished at the bottom with from three to five large tucks. The waists are bloused both back and front and are worn with a lace or tulle bow under the chin and pretty frills in the sleeves.

Some of the best summer hats are of very fine dead white or black leghorn. The newest show the high crown trimmed with bands of colored ribbon and a bright bird with its foliage.

Scarlet linen makes an admirable tailor made or shirt waist suit, especially when relieved with crimson and white embroideries. A rich deep cream is a favorite in linens of the coarser weaves. This is very smart trimmed in royal blue or grass green.

Walking suits are tucked in clusters and the skirts are allowed to flare from the knees down.

The illustration shows a white linen waist trimmed with embroidery and beaten lace.

PATENT MEDICINE TRUST

A FIGHT BETWEEN JOBBERS AND THE RETAILERS.

A Syndicate with 250 Members—The People Stand to Suffer Most.

A well known Canadian druggist who has exceptional facilities for knowing, says the Toronto News, has given further interesting information on the subject of the alleged patent medicine "trust."

"In the first place," he said, "it is absurd to say that the wholesale druggists are simply trying to stop price-cutting in patents. As a matter of fact there are not more than 10 per cent. of the retailers in Ontario who do any price-cutting. This conspiracy goes deeper. It is really a fight between the jobbers and the retailers 'syndicate.'"

"Two years ago," he replied, in explaining the retailers' syndicate, "certain retailers found they were up against the big dealers. The small dealers were paying $8 a dozen to the jobber for goods which they retailed at a dollar a bottle. The big dealers bought direct from the manufacturers and retailed the goods to the public at cut prices. Five men joined this baby syndicate, two of them being John Hargreaves and J. Carry, of this city. Hargreaves took control. He contracted to sell goods to the members of the syndicate at a 3 per cent. advance in cash, as he was able to buy in large lots. There are now 250 members in this syndicate, and the syndicate is cutting in on the jobber. Now the jobbers are fighting the syndicate, and thats the whole matter in a nutshell."

"The people stand to suffer most by the combine. After the people, the manufacturers. The retailer, who signs the agreement not to cut prices, will make his own substitutes and sell them for 'just as good.' The manufacturers can't stop this. The jobbers stand to gain if they can bulldoze the reatailers on the one hand, and the manufacturers on the other."

"What will be the outcome if the combine goes through?"

"Wealthy retailers will fight the jobbers. They have good grounds and will win. For instance, if X, a druggist, breaks an agreement not to cut prices, the manufacturers of the 'patents' he cuts on are notified to refuse him goods. This is an interference with internal free trade and is illegal. The wealthy retailers will fight on this point."

"But suppose no contracts are broken, can retailers who refuse to join the combine get goods from the manufacturers?"

"Not under the terms of the compact. Decidedly no. But what they can and probably will do is either separately or by combination go into the jobbing business themselves in opposition to the trust jobbers. They can get goods, and the manufacturers can not be sued for supplying them. There are 200 druggists in Ontario ready to join the 250 members of the retailers syndicate. Four hundred and fifty druggists will make a good field for independent jobbers. There is an impression among the retailers that the jobbers have millions behind them. That is not so. Once get the retailers' syndicate on its feet and it will fight the combine."

A MONSTER LUNGE

One Measuring Fifty Inches Caught in Stoney Lake.

On Thursday last, July 28th, Mrs. Mary E. Stokes of Brooklyn, N.Y., and Miss Nettie F. Somes of North Attleboro, Mass. went out for a troll from "Bonoobel" the American camp in Buckhorn narrows. When nearly half a mile from camp Miss Somes who was holding the line, hooked onto what she thought was a rock or log, but in a moment she found it was very much alive and then commenced a desperate struggle. As Miss Somes weighs but 90 pounds there was some doubt for a time whether she would go overboard or Mr. Fish come her way. They however concluded after a time that they had a whopper and as they could neither take it in the boat nor kill it decided to tow it home. As they came within hailing distance of camp Capt. Chas. Gepin went to their assistance and took in what proved to be the largest muskinonge that has been caught in Stony Lake for over twenty years. In the presence of Mr. Frederick Adison of Toronto, Dr. Race of Brooklyn, N. Y., Mr. Harry Hopkins of Massachusetts and others the monster was measured and weighed. Its length was fifty inches and twenty-one inches around the body, and it weighed thirty-one pounds. Of course the ladies feel quite elated, having every reason to do so, and we are of the opinion that it will be a long time, if ever, that a larger fish will be caught in Stony Lake.

BURLEIGH POWER MORTGAGE

Mr. J. A. Culverwell Would Repudiate his Bond—Stock Offered Instead.

The following letter on a matter in which Peterborough has an interest appears in the Lindsay Post:

To the Editor of The Post.

Sir,—As is well known, Mr. J. A. Culverwell has been here several times in the last few days, for the purpose of getting relief from a certain mortgage given to the town several years since. I do not blame Mr. Culverwell for getting all that he can, and I feel sure that there is not a person here who wishes to hurt him in any way, but so far as we are concerned it should be a case of Lindsay first and "what we have we'll hold." There is a very strong suspicion among the citizens that the Burleigh power is being manipulated for the benefit of some other place or places, and that unless the town gets a proper guarantee that the power will be brought here the mortgage should not be handed over.

I am told that Mr. Culverwell has given three reasons why the mortgage should be given up to him.

First—"Mortgage not valid." Our solicitor says that it is alright and that should settle the question as far as the town is concerned.

Second—"Town has sustained no loss." Let any business man give his unbiassed opinion and he will tell you that Lindsay has been handicapped by not having a sufficient supply of power, such as other towns in our vicinity have been and are receiving to-day.

Third—"Would have to pay it himself." If not given up, he (Mr. Culverwell) would have to pay the amount out of his own pocket. This last reason of his, to my mind, lets the cat out of the bag, for should he come here there is no penalty—the penalty is for not coming.

Mr. Culverwell has also made a proposition: That the corporation hand over the mortgage for a similar amount of stock in some company. This is a peculiar proposal, for should he bring the Burleigh power here, and if time for doing so has not expired, then the thing has been done for which the mortgage was given and we would have to go to the expense and trouble of transferring the stock back to the company. On the other hand, if the power goes to some other place our stock can be frozen out very easily, and even if not, would we not feel and look silly holding stock in and helping to develop another town at the expense of our own.

Should negotiations be entered into the thing to be considered is the present value of the mortgage. As I understand it, it was given me for so much money, but as a guarantee that a certain thing would be done, failing which the town would have an ownership in the property. By that contract we cannot force Mr. Culverwell to hand over the amount of money named in mortgage nor can we force him to bring the power here. Our claim, therefore, is against the property, and is worth whatever the property has increased in value. Keep both hands on the mortgage.—Yours truly,

R. M. BEAL.

Lindsay, August 5th.

VERY PAINFULL ACCIDENT

Happened to Will Belleghem this Morning.

Will Belleghem, son of Mr. John Belleghem, met with a painful accident this morning. He was working with large shears used for cutting metal, and in some manner his right hand was caught, so that a piece was cut from the two middle fingers. The ambulance was called and he was removed to the Nicholls Hospital.

TWO YOUNG MEN LEAVING

MR. HERMAN GRAY AND MR. WES. THORNTON.

One goes to Orillia and the Other to Toronto—They Were Members of the B. A. C.

Last evening at a little dinner at McCallum's members of the B. A. C. said farewell to two of their members who are leaving town. These are Mr. Herman Gray, who goes to Orillia to take a position as assistant district superintendent of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, and Mr. Wesley Thurston, who has been employed for some time in Mr. Robert Neill's, but who is leaving to take a position in the Bazaar store, Toronto. On former occasions the members of the B.A.C. have betrayed a strong partiality for frogs' legs, and it was an appetible solation with these as the principal collation, which Mr. McCallum provided, and it was all declared very good. There were present at the dinner Messrs. M. J. Hutchinson, president, Mr. W. Warne, vice-president, Herman Gray, Wes Thurston, Stan Warne, Ross Dobbin, L. A. Turner, W. P. Hetherington, R. N. Jolliffe and A. S. Moore. The health of the guests of the evening were the only ones proposed and these were heartily honored. Mr. Thurston and Mr. Gray in replying expressed their regret at leaving Peterborough and everything that was near and dear to them here, for the time being, but assured the company that they would always cherish fond recollections of the old town, and the A.F.F. and B.A.C. and that they hope never to become indifferent to those influences which would frequently beckon them to spend a while here.

The company was unanimous in expressing regret at the departure of these two young men. Mr. Gray's new positions means a promotion and is one of some responsibility. That he was selected speaks well for his ability, and for that business capacity which has been so marked in his career with the local agency of the Metropolitan Life. The change which Mr. Thurston has made also means a step in advance, and the many friends he made while here will wish him every success in his new position. Peterborough has certainly two worthy representatives in these young men.

Mr. Thurston left for Toronto this morning. Mr. Gray leaves on Monday morning for Orillia.

TO-DAY'S MARKET

Not Very Large but Prices Cheap—Lots of Berries.

The market this morning was not as large as usual, but prices were tending downwards. Chickens could be secured from 45c to 60c per pr., eggs 15c per doz., butter 20c per lb., potatoes, 75c per bush., cabbages 10c a head, and huckleberries in abundance at 10 cents per quart. Raspberries sold at $1.00 a pail.

A Lindsay Man Dies.

Mr. Thos. Walters of Lindsay died last night at the Ross Memorial Hospital in that town. He had been suffering for some time from a complication of diseases, to which he finally succumbed. He was one of the oldest residents of the town and had been mayor for several terms and as Reeve represented the town in the Victoria County Council. For years he held the responsible position of superintendent of Public Works under the Ontario government, having those matters connected with the department in Central Ontario under his charge.

—A recent arrival from St. Louis states that the weather is terribly warm there, and that one needs no furs. The Philipinos, who appear unencumbered with clothing, are the happiest people there.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

BRIEFLETS.

—The young men of Kiko Camp leave this evening for an outing at Stony Lake.

—The "nuthin' doin't sign was again displayed at the Police court this morning.

—There are about ten excursions and picnics scheduled for out-of-town places on Civic Holiday.

—The St. Louis exposition will undoubtedly suffer considerably while the Peterborough Central is in progress.

—The excursionists from Grafton and other places along the front to Stony Lake via the lift lock enjoyed a splendid outing.

—The workmen of the Canadian Machine Telephone Company are making preparations for the installation of the new system.

—Much sympathy will be felt for Mr. and Mrs. George Billings, of Auburn, in the death of their seven days' old child.

—Farmers report that considerable damage has been done to fall wheat by rust, the result of wet weather. The rust prevents the kernels from filling properly —Emma Runnings, wife of Mr. David Curtis, of Cavan Township, died last evening at the Mishalla Hospital, whither she had been removed from her home near Mount Pleasant, some three or four weeks ago, and leaves one son and one daughter. The funeral will be held to-morrow afternoon to the Little Lake cemetery.

—Bill Nye, the humorist, once had a cow to sell, and advertised her as follows: "Owing to my ill-health I will sell at my residence, in township nineteen, range eighteen, according to the Government survey, one plush raspberry cow, aged eight years. She is of undoubted courage and gives milk frequently. To a man who does not fear death in any form she would be a great boon. She is very much attached to her present home with a stay chain, but she will be sold to any one who will agree to treat her right. She is one-fourth Shorthorn and three-fourths hyena. I will also throw in a double-barrel shotgun, which goes with her. In May she usually goes away for a week or two and returns with a tall red calf with wabbly legs. Her name is Rose. I would rather sell her to a non-resident.'

To Exterminate House Flies.

Scientists having proved that the common house fly is responsible for the spread of some of the most deadly diseases, it becomes the duty of every housekeeper to assist in exterminating the little pests. Many contrivances have been used for the purpose, including fly traps of many kinds, sticky paper and different poisons, seems to be as many left as ever. There is only one really effectual way to kill them all, and that is Wilson's fly pads, being sure to follow the directions carefully. One ten cent packet of Wilson's Fly Pads has been known to kill a bushel of flies, and a few pads properly used will kill all the flies in any room in a few hours.

To-morrow morning the Holy Communion will be administered after the service. Rev. E. A. Langfeldt will preach at the a.m. service on "Humility, the great lesson of life," and at the p.m. service on "A Man's Breaking Point."

IN THE REALM OF SPORT

GOLF.

The following team from the Lambton Golf and Country Club, Toronto, arrived this morning by C.P.R. to play a friendly match with Peterborough Golf Club:—George S. Lyon, F. C. Heed, R. S. Strath, Alf. Wright, C. C. James, W. K. Ross, D. W. Jamieson, J. G. Smith, W. C. Young, J. A. M. Macdonald, Charles Meek and W. H. Cooper. The return match will be played at Lambton on Thursday, Aug. 18th, Peterborough's Civic Holiday.

BOWLING.

The following games were played last night:—

For Monday, the 8th inst:—
Brooks vs. Matthews.
Medd vs. Fergusons.
Waddell vs. McIntyre.
Olee vs. Smith.
Two rinks are expected from Millbrook to play here next Monday night. This will interfere to some extent with the full schedule for that night.

TENNIS.

The Barrie Tennis Club will play the Peterborough Tennis Club on the latter's grounds on Monday afternoon, commencing at two o'clock. The members of the Club are requested to be present in force as the Barrie Club will bring with them two Canadian champions in "Pro" Boyce and Stewart, and a splendid exhibition of tennis will be seen.

BASEBALL.

The Ontario Bank baseball nine was defeated by the Examiner nine last evening in a three innings-and-a-half game by 13 to 7. The battery for the winners was Jolliffe, pitcher, and Hutchinson, catcher, and for the financiers, Macfarlane, pitcher, and Sawyers, catcher. Although the bankers would undoubtedly improve by practice, they pulled together wonderfully in the third innings and made the best use of opportunities. It was in the second innings that the Examiner piled up their RUNS, chiefly as the result of poor fielding by their opponents.

GOLF.

An interesting game of golf was played yesterday on the Peterborough links between the Lindsay and local clubs. The scores were Peterborough 19, and Lindsay 11.

Mr. George Lyon, ex-champion of Canada, is playing with the Lambton golf team here this afternoon. He will be matched against Mr. Lawrence, of the Bank of Commerce.

NOTHING YET DONE

No Survey, no Knowledge all a big Steal and Campaign Fund Rake-off

It has been one of the strangest of the many extraordinary features of the new transcontinental project that the Government has never undertaken any independent survey work, even on the Eastern Division, which the Government itself proposed to build. From the very beginning the Opposition has pointed out the absence of such knowledge as can be gained only by thorough surveys, and last session Parliament voted money for that kind of work. A whole year has passed and yet the Government has done nothing. On July 13th Mr. Lennox asked in the House whether the Government had yet placed surveying parties between Winnipeg and Moncton, whether the work had been taken out of the hands of the G.T.P., and also whether the amount to be allowed the company for the work it had done had yet been settled. If the Government had taken no action, he asked why not. The answers he received from Mr. Emmerson were the briefest possible negatives. The Government had put no surveying parties of its own in the field; it had not taken over the work from the G.T.P., nor had it settled the amount to be paid the G.T.P. So far as reasons were concerned, the only statement they could elicit was that "arrangements are not yet ripe." This is most unsatisfactory, as well a inexcusable. It is certain that the Government will have to foot the bill for the expenditures already made by the G.T.P. on the survey of the Eastern Division, including the salaries of the alien engineers. The Government should have done that work itself, and the country should by this time have had a great mass of accurate information. The Government's inaction, afte its excited protests last year on the need for haste is inexplicable.—Winnipeg Telegram.

WHEN IN TROUBLE AFTER EATING

Postmaster Jancouski Always Finds Relief in Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets—They Cure as Well as Relieve.

When you get that uncomfortable feeling after eating don't you just long for something to give you relief? Mr. R. Jancouski, Postmaster at Fesserton, Ont., will tell you what will just exactly fit your case. Mr. Jancouski says:

"I have given Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets a fair trial and can with every confidence recommend them. I generally only use one-half Tablet after eating, and it always gives me relief."

But Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets not only relieve—they cure and cure permanently. Thousand of Canadians have found relief after eating in Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, and after using them for a time have further discovered that they are no longer necessary—that the stomach has recovered and is able to do its work without assistance.

WHEN BOYS WERE MEN

By JOHN HABBERTON,

Author of "Helen's Babies," "Brenda Washington," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1901, BY JOHN HABBERTON.

CHAPTER I.

FEW years ago, when war was the most active of American industries and the supply of men and material was never equal to the demand, my friend, Charley Brainard, and I, with a lot of other Summerton boys, joined a militia regiment which had been hastily called to the front. Not one of us was killed, and at the end of our three months' term of service the simplest of us knew more about military life and duty than any of our officers when we first took the field, so several of us thought it our duty to re-enter the army and help save the nation.

We knew exactly how to do it; we knew almost everything in those days, for the youngest of us was fully 18 years of age, and one was almost 23. On being mustered out of the militia service we were to enlist in the Thirty-eighth cavalry, a regiment then being formed about a veteran battalion of troopers near whom we had camped and whom we greatly admired. No more tramping for us, with a musket on one shoulder and a knapsack on both, while the nation was willing to provide horses for such of its defenders as knew how to ride!

Immediately after enlisting we were to go to recruiting. The government was begging for men and, with state and local authorities, was offering large cash bounties by way of persuasion. We would do all we could to help the government to increase the army; we would also do all we could for ourselves while recruiting, for at that time and during the remainder of the civil war the only way to become a commissioned officer in a new regiment was to persuade some men to enlist and then see carefully to it that they were mustered into the service. Although there was no law defining this method, there was a general understanding which was fairly lived up to by the authorities. A man who could "raise" 50 recruits might feel assured of a captain's commission, 30 would secure a first lieutenancy and 20 a second lieutenancy. Any one who could persuade half a dozen men to enlist could become a sergeant, a position not to be despised in a fighting regiment could the sergeant himself succeed in not being shot, for after a regiment got to fighting the officers who were killed or otherwise disposed of were replaced by deserving noncommissioned officers.

I was so sure of becoming a lieutenant that I had myself measured for an officer's uniform before I ceased to be a private in the Ninety-ninth militia. Had not 27 members of our company promised to enlist under me if I would enter the Thirty-eighth cavalry? They did it with their eyes open, for all of them had seen what there was of the Thirty-eighth and they admired it as much as I. Their willingness to serve under me did not imply that they regarded me as a military genius or a born leader of men. It meant only that my father's little farm, at the edge of our town, contained the largest assortment of fruit trees in all Summerton, that I had never said "No" to any acquaintance who longed for apples, peaches, cherries or plums, and that small boys have large memories. Besides, my cousin May, who had always lived with us, was greatly admired by all the boys whom I knew, and it had long been the fashion to be obliging to any relative I was the cousin of or also a girl.

I was not the only Summerton aspirant to a commission. My special friend, Charley Brainard, was willing to be sergeant, or even corporal, under me, but there was Phil Hamilton, a First regiment (militia) man, who had left his old regiment only because he had to study in Europe for two years, and he joined the Summerton company of the Ninety-ninth militia merely because his old regiment had not chanced to be called out, and he wanted to see something of field service. Phil was much the oldest young man in town. He was also the handsomest, which really is a great deal to say to any one who chances to know Summerton. His mustache was large enough for a major general. He owned at least 20 walking sticks and twice as many scarfpins, and all the girls were said to be dying for him.

Then there was Cleyne, confidential clerk of the lumber company. He, too, was a handsome fellow, and he had been a cavalry soldier in the British army. He wanted to raise recruits and get a commission. Indeed, both he and Hamilton had seen the prospective colonel of the Thirty-eighth and had so greatly impressed that gentleman as to elicit the statement that he would be greatly disappointed if they did not become officers of the and perhaps command him should the fortunes of war carry him out of the service.

So we three formed an amicable partnership to raise a company, of which Hamilton was to be captain, Cleyne first lieutenant and I the second lieutenant.

"To show the other boys that we are game in earnest, said Hamilton, "there being a lot of bankers and undertakers' waiting in the recruiting business, let us all enlist as private soldiers in the Thirty-eighth before we begin business, so our men may feel sure that we are in the service to stay. There is quite a lot of money offered in the form of bounties to recruits. It amounts to several hundred dollars per man. Instead of pocketing it, let us divide it among the men who enlist with us. That ought to give us some advantage over other recruiting officers."

We agreed to follow Phil's advice. Brainard offered to use his bounty in the same way, although he did not expect to be an officer. He wanted to become a minister after the war ended, and he said he didn't wish to expose himself to any temptation that might alienate him from his purpose.

"Don't be dismal, Jack."

New York, but Brainard, who hurried back home to see his sick mother, did not reach the medical examiner as soon as we. After Hamilton, Cleyne and I had been accepted and sworn into service we spent a pleasant hour or two at the regiment's recruiting headquarters chatting with the officer in charge, who was to be major of one of the regiment's two new battalions. In the course of time Brainard crept in, looking so dismal that I at once asked him whether his mother was much worse.

"That isn't the trouble," said he. "The surgeon has rejected me. He says I'm under the regulation height and too slight for service anyway."

Suddenly the whole world looked dark to me. Brainard was my dearest friend, and my cousin May was very fond of him, although Phil Hamilton—handsome, rich, stylish Phil—was one of her most devoted admirers. The idea of going to the war again, and for three years, without Brainard being where I could see him every day was too dreadful to be thought of. My feelings must have got into my face, for Brainard put on a ghost of a smile and said:

"Don't be dismal, Jack, for now you'll have the chance to do all the fighting for both of us."

This ought to have comforted my patriotic soul, but it didn't. I was so disloyal to my new vows as to declare that if Brainard was not allowed to enter the Thirty-eighth I wouldn't go either. I would do all in my power to raise men to defend the Union, but afterward I would run away, and Brainard and I would go to some other state and enlist together, where Charley's smallness of stature might not be against him.

But this resolution did not cheer Brainard any, and he felt worse an hour later when the three of us who had passed the examining officer were looking at one another in new cavalry uniforms, while he was in civilian's dress. We felt still worse when we all went back to Hamilton's and took supper together at our house, for my cousin May noticed him scarcely at all, but was very agreeable to Hamilton.

The next day, by special permission of the major, Hamilton, Cleyne and I opened a recruiting office at Summerton. Brainard attached himself to us as a sort of civilian aid. He said if he weren't to be a soldier and fight there was the more reason why he should try to persuade other men to enlist. I immediately notified my 27 men that the roll was ready for them to sign. Hamilton and Cleyne had previously looked at my list and assured me that they would not accept any of those men without specially exulting them to me.

But somehow none of them made haste to sign. Some had heard that larger bounties were being offered in other towns or states, so they were going to look about carefully and do the best they could for themselves; others had themselves seen the cavalry major and obtained promises of commissions if they would raise men; still others had heard that so many men were enlisting from day to day that wages for work at home were going to be much better. Several had spent their final pay from the Ninety-ninth for drink and been picked up, enlisted and mustered for other regiments before they became sober.

Well, to make a long story short, not one of the 27 did I ever secure for the cavalry. Hamilton tried to comfort me by enlisting me with Cruse and Whyde, two of our militia comrades who declared they would not have re-enlisted had it not been for me; but, as Cruse's parents refused to sign the certificate necessary in the case of minors who enlisted, Cruse was released from his promise. Whyde went swimming one day in water too deep for him and was buried three days later with such military honors as Summerton could extemporize.

For the week after my re-enlistment my heart was as heavy as if it had been filled with bullets. No recruits; no chance of a commission; worse than all, no prospect of having Brainard with me during the three years to come. I was too downhearted to notice that Hamilton and Cleyne were not in their usual spirits, but one day, as the three of us sat in the vacant store in which we had our recruiting office and stared gloomily at the roll which was still blank except for our own names, Brainard came in, looked at us and said abruptly:

"If you fellows don't get your spirits up in some way, you'll never find the government any soldiers, and you won't be fit to be soldiers yourselves."

The looks that were fixed upon him quickly by three pairs of angry eyes ought to have scorched him and made him shrivel. But they didn't, for he went on:

"You haven't got anybody by sitting here or strutting around the village. Why don't you go about everywhere and talk your best? Why, there's Mick McTwyny, a village rowdy, who's working for a sergeant's position in the same regiment—he's enlisted seven men out of the fire engine company alone!"

"Mick McTwyny!" exclaimed Cleyne, springing to his feet.

"That ignorant ruffian!" shouted Hamilton, also rising hastily. "Has he the impudence to want to be a sergeant in our regiment—perhaps our very company?"

"Yes," said Brainard, "and he'll be one, too, if he keeps on as he's begun."

I didn't say much; I couldn't. A whole dictionary could scarcely have supplied words to express what I felt. For awhile, as I imagined Mick to camp in a sergeant's uniform and myself a private in the same company and subject to his orders, I wished it had been I instead of poor Whyde that had been drowned. Hamilton and Cleyne began to pace the floor like lions in a cage. Suddenly Hamilton stopped and exclaimed:

"There's but one way out of it. We must get more men at any cost. I'll have a handbill printed at once and circulated throughout the county saying that larger bounties will be paid at this office than at any other in the United States. 'Twill cost all the money and property I have, I suppose, but I'd rather lose my last dollar than go out again in the ranks with a beast like Mick McTwyny in authority over me."

"I'll distribute your handbills," said Brainard.

That boy's faculty for seeing what ought to be done always persisted in dropping out just when I wasn't in condition to see anything whatever. Pretty soon, however, the old worry about soldiering under Mick McTwyny and of being three years without Brainard's society came back to me, fully prepared to stay and make itself disagreeable.

WADED TO THEIR DEATH

Stepped From a Sandbar Into Deep Channel of the Mississippi River in the Darkness—Awful Struggle For Life and Only One 8-Year Old Girl Succeeded—Man Helpless By Girls Clinging to Him.

Alton, Ill., Aug. 6.—While bathing in the Mississippi River last night, Michael Riley, his daughter and six of the latter's little girls were drowned. One child was rescued.

Riley lived near the river in the southern part of the city and was accustomed to bathe on the beach in front of his home after his return from work.

Last night his little daughter begged to go with him, and Riley took her and several of her girl friends to the beach with him.

When they entered the water, Riley bade the children join hands, and they all waded into the river and walked along a sandbar which stretches out into the stream at that point.

They had gone some distance from the shore when suddenly the whole party disappeared beneath the water, having in the darkness stepped from the sandbar into the deep channel.

The children struggled and screamed, fighting desperately to reach the sandbar, where the water was only a foot or so in depth. Riley, who is said to have been a good swimmer, is thought to have been made helpless by the girls clinging to him and hampering his efforts to save them.

The only one in the party to regain the sandbar was Mary Tinsley, 8 years old. The child is unable to tell how she saved herself.

Riley was 32 years old, and the ages of the children drowned ranged from 6 to 14 years. Four of the bodies have been recovered.

Bognor Man Drowned.

Meaford, Aug. 6.—A young man, nightwatchman on the steamer City of Collingwood, was drowned here yesterday morning about 2 o'clock. He is supposed to be the son of Robert Miller of Bognor. It was his first trip on this boat, and, not knowing the wharf, it is supposed that he misjudged the distance to the dock and accidentally jumped in the water and was drawn down by the wheel. The crew of the Collingwood spent two hours trying to find the body, but were unsuccessful. Chief Constable Owens brought the body to the surface later in the morning.

Drowned in Waterloo.

Manitoba, Man., Aug. 6.—Mrs. Beamish of Kemptville, Ont., was accidentally drowned in a waterbutt here yesterday.

Was Stealing a Ride.

London, Aug. 6.—Robert Scott of St. Henri, Que., who is making a trip on a wager from his home to Calgary, N.W.T., met with a serious accident on Wednesday evening at Newbury. He was on a Grand Trunk freight train stealing a ride when he lost his balance and fell under the train. His arm was badly crushed and nearly severed from the shoulder. Scott was brought to Victoria Hospital, this city, where he is progressing favorably.

Farmer's Awful Fall.

Galt, Aug. 6.—Hugh Williamson, of the James Moffatt farm, East River road, was the victim of an accident yesterday morning, which may prove fatal. He was assisting in unloading a load of loose wheat, when the rope which holds the pole running across the top of the load broke, and he was thrown back off the load to the barn floor. He alighted on his head, and received a serious injury to his spine. His whole body below the shoulders is paralyzed.

POISONED.

Result Patent to Creator when Food Was Placed Beneath, and Went to Where Mother Was Confined.

If the man or woman who does not feel right, will at once look to putting the stomach right they will strike the right key.—Every ache and every pain is a cry of poison, too much of which has been made in the process of converting food into nutriment. It may be the backache or sideache of the kidneys telling they are overtaxed and cannot filter the poison—It may be weight, pain or distress in the stomach that tells of fermentation and decomposition instead of digestion.—It may be headache, dull, depressed, which tells poison has reached the brain which surrounds the brain cells. The first cause is the same—lack of gastric juice to properly digest. ANTI-PILL, the Great System Treatment, is a new discovery which so acts on the mucous membrane of the stomach, a natural supply of gastric juice is secured. To prove the wonderful action of ANTI-PILL, you may have a free trial sample by addressing Wilson-Fyle Co., Niagara Falls, Ont.

Shot By Own Weapon.

Listowel, Aug. 6.—A sad accident happened to George Kirgan, aged 49, who lives in the Township of Wallace. He had taken a gun and, with horse and buggy, was on his way to do some shooting. Coming up with a friend at a gravel pit, he was asked to help remove a stump, and in pitching the gun into the back of the buggy it was discharged, the contents tearing away the whole muscle of the left arm.

He May Die.

Belleville, Aug. 6.—A probable fatal accident occurred in the village of Frankford yesterday when a 13-year-old boy named Hobert Smith, who was temporarily in charge of his father's team, was thrown over the side of the wagon by the sudden starting of the horses, falling under the wheels. The lad's shoulder was smashed, and he received other terrible injuries. Medical care was given him, but it is not believed that he can recover.

James Wedick Dead.

Salem, Aug. 6.—James Wedick and his brother, who were assisting in taking down an old building Thursday night, got hurt by a falling partition. James was hurt inwardly and died yesterday morning. Harry had the small bone in his ankle broken.

Killed at East Toronto.

East Toronto, Aug. 6.—A fatal accident occurred in the east end G.T.R. yards yesterday morning at 9.45 by which an elderly man, William Williamson, an employe of the railway, lost his life. Williamson was crossing from one portion of the yard to another when he was run over by engine No. 650 and cut to pieces.

Slept With Gas Low.

Toronto, Aug. 6.—Accustomed to sleeping with the gas turned low, Bella Ferguson, a domestic in the service of Mrs. Bain, 91 Wellesley street, met death by asphyxiation. A dip in the pressure extinguished the light and when the full pressure was restored the fumes caused asphyxiation. Coroner Powell was notified, but deemed an inquest unnecessary.

Crushed to Death.

Wingham, Aug. 6.—While superintending the placing of some heavy machinery in Walker & Clegg's new furniture factory here yesterday, Michael Robertson was so severely crushed by a large shaft falling on him that he died in fifteen minutes. He leaves a wife and three children.

Died From Injuries.

Winnipeg, Aug. 6.—A. McPher, who arrived here four months ago from Hillsburg, Ont., died from injuries received in a runaway Thursday.

Bodies All Recovered.

Digby, N.S., Aug. 6.—All the bodies in Thursday's terrible drowning accident here have been recovered, and the seven corpses lie side by side in the morgue. The verdict of the coroner's jury was that the accident was due to overloading the boat, in which the party was being conveyed from the yacht to the shore.

It Fell.

"What's that racket down there?" shouted the old gentleman from the head of the stairs.

"I think," promptly replied his up to date daughter, "that it was Bob dropping his voice when he proposed to me."

Privy Council Awards.

London, Aug. 6.—Before the Privy Council, in Hanson v. the Corporation of the Village of Grand Mere, a case whether the guarantee of certain debentures by the respondent corporation was ultra vires, the appeal was dismissed with costs.

In the case of the Attorney-General of Manitoba v. the Attorney-General of the Dominion, an issue between the Crown on the right of the Province of Manitoba and the Dominion, respectively, as to surface rights to all Crown swamp lands within the province, the appeal was dismissed. No order as to costs.

In the case of the Calgary and Edmonton Railway v. The King, whether a special act providing for a grant of Crown lands to appellants passed the mines and minerals under such lands, the appeal was allowed with costs.

The Privy Council has reversed the decision of the Court of Appeal in the matter of the assessment of cars belonging to the Toronto Railway Company for 1902. By the decision of the Privy Council the city loses the taxes.

The Canadian Henley.

Port Dalhousie, Aug. 6.—The opening event of the Canadian Henley regatta was pulled off here half an hour late yesterday afternoon. The weather conditions were perfect. The sun was hot with a nice breeze blowing straight down the course. The water was calm though not perfectly still. There were eight events, the surprise for the day being the defeat of the Winnipeg senior pair oars by the Toronto Argonauts in 8.55.

Land of Full Wheat.

St. Jacobs, Aug. 6.—The first load of new fall wheat was delivered by Mr. Conrad at E. W. B. Snider's flour mill here yesterday. The wheat was in good condition, but light in weight, testing only 58 pounds to the bushel.

Baby Was Murdered.

Toronto, Aug. 6.—There is no doubt that the infant found Thursday afternoon near Coatsworth's Cut was murdered. The autopsy shows that death was not caused by drowning. Detectives are investigating.

Drove Away 100 Syrians.

Port au Prince, Hayti, Aug. 6.—At Archeries, the populace, after looting three Syrian shops, drove away 100 Syrians, who reached here stripped of everything. Trouble is feared in other cities of the republic.

ANOTHER VOICE ON THE PRAIRIES

Tells of Diabetes Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

W. G. Bartleman Could Get no Relief Till He Tried the Great Canadian Kidney Remedy.

Wapella, Assa., N.W.T., Aug. 5.—(Special).—This thriving town furnishes one of the most remarkable cures of Kidney Disease that has ever been reported on the prairies. Mr. Wm. G. Bartleman, a well-known farmer, is the man cured, and he makes the following statement:—

"I had Kidney Trouble and it developed into Diabetes. I went to the doctor, but his treatment was of no use whatever to me. I began to take Dodd's Kidney Pills in December, 1902. I took them all winter and summer while I was unable to work my farm. I took twelve boxes in all, and in August I was able to work.

"Now I am quite strong. I worked all winter without pains in my back or any part of my body. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me."

If the Kidney Disease is of long standing it may take time to cure it. But Dodd's Kidney Pills will do it.

HEART PAINS AND INDIGESTION

Mr. J. Law, 247 Hunter street, Peterborough, and who is employed with the Peter Hamilton Co., states: "For a long time I was troubled with severe splitting headaches and suffered a great deal with pains in the region of my heart, caused no doubt by indigestion. I procured a box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and began this treatment. Since using this preparation for some time I can say that I feel quite different, and my health is very much improved. My digestion is good, and the headaches and pains about the heart have not troubled me at all of late. I can sincerely recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food as a thorough cure for nervous dyspepsia and its accompanying symptoms."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

WAS WELL KNOWN HERE

Mr. T. Gillett J.P., Whose Death Occurred in Millbrook.

The Millbrook and Cavanoe Mirror has the following reference to the death of Mr. T. Gillett, who had friends and relatives here:

Death has again visited Millbrook and taken another of our oldest and most highly esteemed citizens, in the person of Mr. T. Gillett, J.P., at the age of 74 years. He had been ailing for the past few months, but was able to take a drive a few days before his death, which took place on Friday last, at his late home. It is only about three years ago since he retired from the undertaking business, which he turned over to his son, Mr. Wm. Gillett.

Deceased was born at Louth, Lincolnshire, Eng., and came to this country 53 years ago, commencing business at Waterloo, stopping there about 3 years, and about 2 years in Port Hope, afterwards moving to Millbrook, where he carried on a successful undertaking business for upwards of half a century. He came here by stage, there being no railroads at the time, showing the vast changes that have taken place in that time.

In religion he was a Presbyterian, and in politics a Liberal. He was a Justice of the Peace for many years, and took an active part in municipal affairs, having sat a number of years in the Town Council, and always worked for the best interests of the community in which he lived. In his death Millbrook loses one of her best citizens.

The funeral to the Presbyterian Cemetery on Monday was largely attended, coming there from a distance being:—Messrs. H. Walker, of Port Hope, who had charge of the funeral; C. Reynolds, of Bethany, Jas. Comstock, of Peterborough, Thomas Edwards, of Mitchell, a brother of Mrs. T. Gillett, Fred Rowsom, Port Hope, Mrs. Shenstone, of Mitchell, a sister of Mrs. Gillett, Miss Knox, of Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Edwards, Hope, the former being a brother of Mrs. T. Gillett, Miss Hayes, Port Hope, Mr. and Mrs. Lane, of Hope, and Mrs. Tucker, of Apsley. Rev. James McIntosh, of Centreville, conducted the solemn and impressive funeral service.

—Two drives belonging to the Dickson Company are at present in Clear Lake.

FAMOUS MASCOT DEAD

The Dog Walker Who was through Some Stirring Scenes in South Africa.

Mr. R. H. Henderson, of Barrie, formerly of town, is here for a few days. He states that there has just died at Barrie, the dog called Walker, mascot of the first Canadian contingent to go to South Africa, in which Mr. Henderson served. The dog had been through the military campaign, and retained the fighting instinct to the day of his death. He was taken from Quebec in 1899 by the late J. H. Findlayt of the 38th Regiment, Barrie, along with C Company, First Canadian Contingent, to South Africa. Walker wore a collar with his name, company and regiment inscribed thereon, and was with the Royal Canadians up to the battle of Paardeberg, where his master, Mr. Findlay, lost his life, but while the regiment was at Bloemfontein he turned up in the Canadian lines, but minus collar. He stayed with the regiment after that, and was looked after by the Barrie boys. At Cape Town much difficulty was experienced in getting the dog aboard ship, on returning to Canada, but Captain Barker took him in hand, and after getting him aboard handed him over to Privates Henderson, Black, Callighan and Bingham, of the 38th Regiment, who took him to Barrie in November, 1900, and handed him over to Mr. Findlay's relatives. Walker has since been quite a character in the town of Barrie. He had no bread, but was short of hair, square shouldered and strong jawed. He was a fighter, and had licked nearly every cur in town. Walker forgot he was getting fold, however, and one day last week tackled a yellow collie, which finished him. He was buried home, and died next day.

WHAT IT COSTS TO LIVE AT ST. LOUIS

EXPENSE FOR FOOD AND LODGING NEED NOT DETER.

Some Impressions of a Local Man Who has Just Returned from Seeing the Big Exhibition.

Considerable misconception seems to exist in regard to the cost of living at St. Louis, when one is seeing the World's Fair. The prevailing impression is that every one is held up and that unless a person's pocket is well lined with bills he may starve to death within sight of plenty. This is a big mistake. The cost of board and lodging need not deter any one from seeing the fair, if he can spare the price of a railroad ticket to and from the exhibition city.

Like all American cities, there are all grades of hotels, if one must go in for that class of accommodation. Drop a Canadian traveller from a rural town down in Chicago and from having been used to get a meal at his home hotel for 25 cents or 35 cents, he professes to be appalled when asked to pay 75 cents to $1.00. This charge is not excessive, when the conditions under which the meal is served are considered. It is not that food has to be paid for, there is the service, more or less elaborate. Rates at St. Louis are the average rates in American cities of equal standing and importance.

The consensus of opinion gathered after the Chicago fair was that the bulk of the attendance at that fair was drawn from amongst people in the middle walks of life. School teachers, mechanics, office people, in fact the average man, and the average man spent the average amount of money. He covered the cost of living, paid his admission fee and saw the fair. It is expected that the St. Louis fair, being larger and in some respects more important, will drawn from a greater distance, but that remains to be verified.

But as to the cost of living. St. Louis numbers in all 100 hotels, and the accommodation at these is placed at 30,000 persons. These are called permanent hotels, always there. In addition there are a large number of hotels put into commission temporarily. Then there is a whole raft of boarding houses, at which rooms and meals are provided. And a large number of rooming houses, places where rooms may be taken, but no meals served. In all St. Louis is capable of taking care of from 175,000 to 200,000 visitors per day.

The man who wishes to see the fair has the alternative, to go to an hotel, to take up quarters at a boarding house, or to take a room and have his meals where he finds them. This latter proposition is the most economical. For if one had quarters in a boarding house, ever so comfortable, the grounds could not be left behind to seek a dinner. The best thing to do is to take a room, get breakfast at one of the numerous dining places down street, and find dinner and supper on the grounds.

It is preferable, if it can be so managed, not to go to the fair alone. Parties of two, three or four are about right. In case of illness there is some one to do things and not depend on strangers, though the people are very kind and helpful. Capital rooms can be had, at the rate of $7.50 per day. If two go together this would cost 75 cents per head. Breakfast costs 40 cents. There are scores of places on the grounds where an excellent lunch or tea can be had for from 30 to 40 cents. Some who have returned say that they had excellent rooms at the rate of $2.50 per week, which would figure out about 40 cents per day. All told the cost of living would amount to from $2.75 to $3.25 per day and which would cover admission to the grounds as well.

Below is given a summary prepared by the St. Louis papers of the capacity for accommodation offered by the city:

THE AFTERNOON NAP.

Modern Conditions Killing the Siesta Habit in Mexico.

There are people in Mexico City who take their afternoon nap every day, and are greatly benefited thereby, but their number appears to be growing less year by year. Whether the siesta is beneficial or not, or whether in this high altitude it is a necessity for many persons, as is claimed by some, its death knell as a general custom seems to have been sounded since the city adopted its modern enterprise and push. Many old residents will tell you of the time when a person in the city of Mexico would have been considered almost crazy if he neglected his afternoon rest, but gradually, with the advent of the railways, the street cars and the electric lights, came the inevitable sleeplessness which is one of the most noticeable characteristics of modern civilization.

There are several supporters of the siesta idea in this city who express regret that the custom appears to be passing away. These persons, who are themselves devotees of the practice, claim that it is a healthful and nerve restoring habit and that if it were indulged in systematically by the people of the United States and other progressive countries there would be fewer cases of nervous wrecks for the newspapers to report. "Early rising and a short nap after dinner" is what these people advocate, claiming that the best work of most persons is performed in the morning.

FIRST USE OF TEA.

An Ancient Legend Ascribes It to a King of China.

By whom or when the use of tea for drinking purposes was first discovered is lost in antiquity. It is spoken of as a famous herb in Chinese literature as far back as 2,000 years B. C., at which time its cultivation and classification were almost as thorough and complete as they are today. One of the ancient legends says that its virtues were accidentally learned by King Shen Nung She, the Chinese monarch who is also known as "the divine husbandman," who, the record says, flourished forty centuries ago. He was engaged in boiling water over a fire made of the branches of the tea plant and carelessly allowed some of the leaves to fall into the pot.

The liquid which he expected to come from the vessel simply as sterilized water was miraculously converted into an elixir of life by the accidental addition of the tea leaves. Soon after it became highly esteemed in all the oriental cities and was used as a royal gift from the Chinese monarchs to the potentates of southern and western Asia.

This same King Shen Nung She not only earned the title of respect by which he was known through the discovery of the virtues of tea, but because of being the first to teach his people how to make and use plows and many other implements of husbandry.

Emerson on Lincoln.

The president impressed me more favorably than I had hoped. A frank, sincere, well meaning man, with a lawyer's habit of mind, good, clear statement of his fact, correct enough, not vulgar, as described, but with a sort of boyish cheerfulness, or that kind of sincerity and jolly good meaning that our class meetings on commencement days show in telling our old stories over. When he has made his remark he looks up at you with great satisfaction and shows all his white teeth and laughs. He argued to Sumner the whole case of Gordon, the slave trader, point by point, and added that he was not quite satisfied yet, and meant to refresh his memory by looking again at the evidence. All this showed a fidelity and conscientiousness very honorable to him. When I was introduced to him he said, "Oh, Mr. Emerson, I once heard you say in a lecture that a Kentuckian seems to say by his air and manners, 'Here am I; if you don't like me, the worse for you.'"—Diary of R. W. Emerson in Atlantic.

In Old Stagecoach Days.

There used to be rate wars in the old stagecoach days in England. At one time, early last century, one stagecoach company not only cut the price from Lewes to London to a very low rate, but gave also other inducements. As the coach started from Lewes at a somewhat uncomfortably early hour in the morning, by way of tiding over the difficulty the proprietors allowed the more slothful of their passengers to go overnight to Brighton, where they were accommodated with good beds free of expense and could proceed comfortably to London by the company's morning coach.

A Story of a Scholar.

Theodor Mommsen, the famous historian, had not only the appearance but the manner of a scholar. Once during the half hour's drive from Berlin to Charlottenburg the car in which the professor rode went badly off the track. The rest of the passengers alighted, the horses were removed and the stranded car was left until help could be found. Mommsen remained, reading his book. An hour passed, and the sound of levers and jacks and the plunging of horses' hoofs aroused him from his reverie. With no sign of discomposure he arose from his seat and went to the door. "Ah," said he, "we seem to have come to a standstill."

Maine Counties.

The three original counties of Maine had good old English county names, York, Cumberland and Lincoln. Only two, Oxford and Somerset, have been similarly named since, all the rest having good American appellations. For the names of Androscoggin, Aroostook, Kennebec, Penobscot, Piscataquis and Sagadahoc find their origin among the aborigines, while Franklin, Hancock, Knox and Washington bear the names of distinguished Americans of the white race.

A Feat in Growth.

"I lost my foot in the war," said the tramp, "and I'm trying to raise enough money to get out to California."

"What do you want to go to California for?" asked the woman at the door.

"Oh, I've heard that there are things which grow a foot in a day out there."

The Beneficent.

Miss Verjuce—What a shame it is how the men deceive us poor women! Miss Blushem—They would never get a woman to marry them unless they did, my dear.

In Luck.

First Citizen—Aren't you drinking a little more than usual? Second Citizen—Yes. My wife has a cold in her head and can't smell a blamed thing.—Albany Journal.

Winnipeg Fair Crowds.

Winnipeg, Aug. 6.—The attendance at the exhibition has been fairly satisfactory. The highest record was on Civic holiday, when 33,000 were present. Following is the daily attendance since the opening: July, 26, 21,392; July 27, 23,842; July, 28, 30,775; July 29, 14,845; July, 30, 18,043; Aug 1, 21,982; Aug. 2, 20,476; Aug. 3, 20,800; Aug. 4, 16,-811. Total, 197,958. The actual paid attendance in each case will be three thousand less per day covering passes. Last year the attendance at the exhibition for the week was 78,-500, compared with 118,367 (paid) this year.

300 Out of 565 Burned.

Heilbronn, Wurtemburg, Aug. 6.—Three hundred and three houses out of a total of 565 at Illsfeld have been destroyed by fire. There were few fatalities, but many persons were injured by falling walls while engaged in the work of escape.

"Joe" Martin in Trouble.

Winnipeg, Aug. 6.—A Vancouver despatch says that Hon. Joseph Martin was expelled from a Vancouver court room because he protested too vigorously against the illegality of an information against a client.

No Longer a Judge.

Albany, N.Y., Aug. 6.—Judge Alton B. Parker, Democratic candidate for the presidency, yesterday sent to the Secretary of State his formal resignation as chief justice of the Court of Appeals.

Police After a Farmer.

Says 70,000,000 Bushels.

Winnipeg, Aug. 6.—Charles S. Clark, manager of The Chicago Grain Dealers' Journal, estimates that the yield of wheat in the Canadian Northwest will be 70,000,000 bushels.

RUSSIANS REPULSED JAPANESE

The Japs Lost 10,000 Men in Fight of July 26th.

RUSSIANS LOST 1,500 MEN

Kuropatkin as Seen Through Japanese Spectacles--Japanese General Dead They Capture a Commanding Position North and North-east of Port Arthur.

London, Aug. 8.—The Times' correspondent at Tokio, under date of Aug. 7, says that there are unofficial reports there that the Japanese have captured commanding positions north and northeast of Port Arthur at a distance of 2,750 yards from the main line of Russian defences.

Says Japs Lost 10,000.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 8.—Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel, commanding the Russian military forces at Port Arthur, in an undated despatch to the Emperor, says: "I am happy to report that the troops repulsed all the Japanese attacks of July 26, 27 and 28 with enormous losses.

"The garrison's enthusiasm was extraordinary.

"The fleet assisted in the defence by bombarding the Japanese flank.

"Our losses during the three days was about 1,500 men and 40 officers killed or wounded.

"According to statements of Chinese and prisoners the Japanese lost as many as 10,000.

"Their losses were so great that the enemy has not had time to remove the dead and wounded."

Jap Opinion of Kuropatkin.

Tokio, Aug. 8.—Gen. Kuropatkin's success in extricating his army from the Liaoyang peninsula without disaster has elicited much praise from the Japanese. The concentrating of his army at Kaichou at one time seemed certain to involve it in disaster. It was popularly believed that a generally decisive battle would either be fought at Tatchekiao or at Haicheng.

It is considered here that Kuropatkin sacrificed his prestige by abandoning an immense territory without a battle. He was forced to abandon or destroy valuable stores and munitions of war when the transportation was almost the most serious problem to the Russians. He also impaired the morale of his army, but he preserved his men and guns.

Kuropatkin's Hopes.

It is evident he had hoped and planned to check the Japanese at Tatchekiao. Then after holding the enemy in check, it is believed to have been his purpose to concentrate his remaining force at Liaoyang and to strike Kuroki.

The unexpected loss of the Russians at Tatchekiao and the appearance of the Japanese Tukushan army on the flank forced the abandonment and surrender without a fight of Yinkow, Haicheng and Newchwang. It is generally believed that the crisis will come shortly at Liaoyang, and that Kurpoatkin will be forced to give battle whatever his present purpose may be.

Armies Now Free.

Gen. Oku's and the Tukushan armies are pressing northward, and Gen. Kuroki is closed at hand.

Russian Casualties.

Tokio, Aug. 8.—Gen. Kurpki reports that he buried the bodies of 512 Russians on the battlefield of Yushulinkou and Yangtzuling. He reports the capture of 200 Russians, including eight officers. One hundred and fifteen of the prisoners were wounded.

Kuropatkin Reports.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 8.—Gen. Kuropatkin, in a telegram to the Emperor dated Aug. 6, reports a reconnaissance Aug. 5 on the south front in the direction of the Japanese position. The Russians set fire to the village of Henchuantza, 13 miles northeast of Newchwang, from which place a small force of Japanese fled precipitately leaving their transport animals. The report gives details of other skirmishes, and concludes with the statement that there is no change on the east front of the army.

No Confirmation Yet.

London, Aug. 8.—No further news from Port Arthur has reached London and there is no confirmation of the rumored fall of the fortress.

Japs Entrenched.

Che Foo, Aug. 8.—The Japanese force which captured Wolf's Hill is now entrenched in the valley about two-thirds of a mile from the fortress at Port Arthur.

Jap General Dead.

Tokio, Aug. 8.—Lieut.-Gen. Yamaguchi of the fifth division, who commanded the Japanese troops during the Boxer uprising, and was made a Viscount Saturday, died yesterday after a lingering illness.

SENATOR AIKINS DEAD.

Entered Politics in 1854, Was Secretary of State in 1869, and Later Was Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba.

Toronto, Aug. 8.—The Hon. James Cox Aikins died at his residence in Wellesley street, Toronto, on Saturday at 6.30 p.m., after a lingering illness. Mr. Aikins was a son of James Aikins, who left the County of Monaghan, Ireland, in 1816, and after residing in Philadelphia for four years, came to Canada and settled in the Township of Toronto (now in the County of Peel), where Mr. Aikins was born on March 30, 1823. Mr. Aikins received his education at the local schools and at Victoria College, Cobourg, from which University he held the degree LL.D. After leaving college he became a successful farmer. He early entered politics, and sat for the County of Peel in the Canadian Assembly from 1854 until the general election in 1861, when he was defeated by the late Hon. John Hillyard Cameron, but was afterwards a member for the "home" division of the Legislative Council from 1862 until the union, and was called to the Senate by proclamation in May, 1867, and retired to assume the gubernaterial chair of the Province of Manitoba.

LATE HON. J. C. AIKINS.

A Secretary of State.

Mr. Aikins entered Sir John A. Macdonald's administration as Secretary of State and Registrar General of Canada, on Dec. 2, 1868, and continued in these offices until the resignation of the Government on Nov. 5, 1873. On the return of the Conservative party to power, October, 1878, Mr. Aikins was again appointed Secretary of State. As a minister he framed and carried through Parliament the public lands act, 1872, and after the acquisition of the Northwest Territories by Canada, he organized the Dominion Land Bureau, now the Department of the Interior. Prior to 1869 Senator Aikins had been identified with the Liberal party. As Secretary of State he held office until he was appointed lieutenant-governor of Manitoba.

Recalled to the Senate.

Mr. Aikins resigned from the Cabinet on May 23, 1882, and in December of the same year was sworn in as lieutenant-governor for the Province of Manitoba, and on the expiration of his term of service as such, returned to Toronto, and in January, 1896, was a second time called to the Senate.

Mr. Aikins had at various times during his business career, much to do with many important, financial, commercial and industrial undertakings. He was prominently identified with the prohibition movement, and held office as vice-president of the Ontario Prohibition Alliance.

He married in 1845 Miss Mary Elizabeth Somerset, who died some years ago. His family consists of three sons and four daughters.

The late Senator put in an appearance this year at the Senate for a few days, but returned to Toronto much enfeebled, only to pass slowly away.

HUDSON BAY.

Neptune Hoists British Flag at Lancaster Sound—American Whaler, the Era, Admits Canadian Authority.

St. John's, Nfld., Aug. 8.—The Government chartered sealing steamer, the Erik, which conveyed an auxiliary expedition to the steamer Neptune, the official steamer sent to complete the annexation of Hudson Bay and territory, returned here yesterday, bringing Major Moodie, Governor of Hudson Bay.

The Erik met the Neptune at Port Burwell, July 25, and transferred coal and supplies. The Erik started on the return journey last Tuesday, while the Neptune cruised north to Lancaster Sound, hoisting the British flag and proclaiming British sovereignty over that territory.

An American whaler, the Era, found in Hudson Bay, paid duties on all goods intended for trading, thereby admitting Canadian authority.

Major Moodie will go to Ottawa to consult with the Canadian Government and he hopes to join the steamer Arctic, which will leave Quebec in about two weeks, to relieve the Neptune. Major Moodie believes the Hudson Bay route to be perfectly feasible, as a commercial proposition. He also believes that the Canadian Government should build several forts, station a number of police therein and commission two steamers for Hudson Bay so as to adequately cover the needed service there.

Louis Tellsten Arrested.

Hamilton, Aug. 8.—Two or three days ago Louis Tellsten, a Vinemount man, was arrested, and his arrest was kept dark. Saturday morning he was brought to the police court on the charge of giving [illegible] pills for criminal purposes, and the prisoner was remanded for a week, while the Crown is preparing the evidence.

STRATTON ON DUNDONALD

The abuse and slander vented on Lord Dundonald by the Provincial Secretary in his paper would in itself be hardly worthy of notice. As however, the tissue of misstatements has a Cabinet Minister at its back, and is published in our town, it is well to supply the correction. It was not pique or wounded pride that caused Lord Dundonald to break with the Government. He was relieved from his duties in vengeance for his having exposed corrupt interference with his officers by a meddlesome party heeler, who had no concern with the business, that of raising a new regiment and selecting its officers. There was no insubordination in this, for the general expressly restricted his criticisms to the interference from outside the Department. Mr. Sydney Fisher was in no sense his superior; he certainly was not in military or departmental position, and in every other respect Lord Dundonald is vastly his superior, as indeed, are most men out of the penitentiary and some in it, as he is notoriously corrupt, dishonest and untruthful. He was simply acting as the official corruptor responsible for the district, combining with this personal spite at a gentleman, some of whose connections had brought charges of corruption against him and his ally of the same species, Hon. Mr. McCorkhill, so indisputable that they had to throw up the sponge rather than face an investigation in court. Any insubordination there was, indeed, was caused by the intruding Minister of Agriculture, who incited the colonel of the regiment and the brigadier to mutiny against their general by disregarding his orders and submitting instead to those of Mr. Fisher on pain of the regiment not being gazetted. And this corrupt interference, carried on for months, culminated at length in Mr. Fisher forging an alteration in a document over the signature of Lord Dundonald, and transmitting this forgery to Lord Minto as a recommendation by the general commanding the militia.

The subsequent discussion over Lord Dundonald's supposed report was due to the falsehoods uttered in the House by Sir Frederick Borden and circulated by him in the Ministerial press. Mr. Stratton is himself cowardly enough to repeat some of these falsehoods, knowing that his allies at Ottawa are dishonestly concealing the proofs to the contrary in their hands. Lord Dundonald has done a public service by exposing the maladministration of the militia department, and this exposure is already having good effect.

As to Lord Dundonald's taking any part in party politics, we have vainly challenged his enemies to quote from him one single phrase of party politics, and we repeat the challenge to Mr. Stratton. He simply told the plain truth as to the points on which he had been misrepresented without attacking anyone.

The Provincial Secretary thinks that Lord Dundonald has been "rather severely criticised." It is the criticism, if that is the word, of a Billingsgate fish wife. This distinguished general has been vilified and denounced by Ministers and their organs as an ignorant foreigner come to dragoon us, as a drunkard, a liar and a sneaking spy, as a pipe clay soldier and a poor general, as unjust to French officers, and an insubordinate servant to a Fisher with much more of the same character." He has been accused of planning fortifications along thousands of miles of frontier when in reality he did not recommend one. Even the memory of his distinguished grandfather has been assailed and his wife has been made a theme of mockery in the Grit press.

Lord Dundonald was dismissed because he would not be a party to the introduction of partisan corruption into the militia, and has been vilified as an excuse for this unworthy treatment. The Provincial Secretary seems glad to join in this dirty work.

Ministerial Journals are saying there was no need for Lord Dundonald to advise us to keep hold of the Union Jack. Did not Bourassa object to its being hoisted on the Parliament buildings? Has not Solicitor General Lemieux been threatening the life of which it is the symbol?

The Kingston News says:—

"Mr. Whitney was billed to appear on the platform in Glengarry last night with Mr. Gamey. It won't hurt the leader a bit to appear in Mr. Gamey's company. The fact is that Gamey has become a political force to be reckoned with in this province. Moreover, it ill becomes the Grits to hold up their hands in holy horror at the announcement of decent Conservatives appearing on the same platform with Mr. Gamey, when they themselves appear with Stratton. Surely Gamey is Stratton's equal ethically."

In regard to the Treadgold graft the Ottawa Free Press makes two noteworthy admissions. One is that the Opposition caused the abandonment of the scheme—a good public service. The other is that "the cost of constructing works of this character under government auspices would be much greater than by private enterprise." Here is an admission of the costly nature of the corruption which the new Liberals make the main feature of the Government undertakings, the employment of incompetent and unnecessary men. If good partisans, as Ministers impudently advocated in the House in the case of the I.C.R. and the canals.

In Our Grandfather's Youth

Paralysis was a most unheard of in the youth of our grandparents, and now nearly every newspaper contains a record of some one being stricken with this dreadful form of helplessness. Paralysis is in reality a starving of the nerves, and can always be prevented by the timely use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, a preparation which has no rival as a creator of nerve force.

Damascene Swords.

To the lovers of strange goods the bazaars of Damascus are far more alluring than those of Cairo or of Constantinople. The capacious chests of the merchants contain much that we would buy were our purses longer. Old embroideries of wonderful colors, delicate china, silks of many hues, swords of cunning workmanship, all these lie piled beside us on the floor. It is but seldom that a really good specimen of the Damascus sword can be obtained, for the art of working and engraving steel is dead.

These swords were made of alternate layers of iron and steel, so finely tempered that the blade would bend to the hilt without breaking, with an edge so keen that no coat of mail could resist it, and a surface so highly polished that when a Moslem wished to rearrange his turban he used his sword for a looking glass.

In the Great Western Wheat Belt.

One square mile of wheat. Ever see it? Transcontinental trains used to stop in the Smoky Hill valley of Kansas to allow passengers a view of such a wonder. It realised all the travelers' dreams of agricultural splendor. Hundreds such visions now mark the great grain area of the plains, but their beauty is none the less. Six hundred and forty acres of wealth! It shimmered beneath the perfect opalescent blue of the sky, the tall straws bending with their weight of grain. Standing on the seat of the reaper one might see in the distance a glimmer of green pastures and catch glimpses of rustling fields of corn, but here was the heart of summer.—C. M. Herger in Scribner's.

Justifying His Lecture.

A lecturer who had a very fine lecture on "The Decadence of Pure English" gave his address before a woman's club. At the close of the talk a very much overdressed woman of the "fuss and feathers" type came up to him and said: "I did enjoy your talk over and over so much, and I agree with you that the English language is decading awfully. Hardly no one talks proper nowadays, and the land only knows what the next generation will talk like if nothing ain't done about it."

Surprise the Doctors

Most doctors are astonished at the results obtained by Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for eczema, salt rheum and itching skin diseases which are often considered well nigh incurable. By word of mouth from friend to friend the exceptional merits of Dr. Chase's Ointment have gradually become known until it is now standard the world over and has a record of cures unparalleled in the history of medicine.

THE TRENT WATERWAY

Well, as I say, I went to Peterborough. And I must say that I admired the courage of the Postmaster General (Sir William Mulock) Why, his courage was Alpine in its grandeur. For a man who has spent years in opposing this canal, to stand up here and speak in its defence, shows that he possesses the courage of an African lion. And, when I recall the names of Tupper and Cartwright, associated for years with the most deadly opposition to this canal, I admire also the courage of the Conservative party in insisting upon the completion of this scheme. The Conservative party carried every dollar in support of this canal at the point of the bayonet. No Japanese assault was ever bolder, more masterful or courageous than the work of the Conservative party in carrying those votes for the Trent Valley canal, against the deadly opposition of their Liberal opponents. Why, these hon. gentlemen opposite must think that the people of Canada have no memories, if they think, for a moment, that we shall lose sight of one of the saddest and most disgraceful chapters in Canadian history, the opposition of Ontario Liberals, for eighteen years, to the development of their own province. We always thought that the narrow Liberals of Ontario were opposed to the development of the maritime provinces. We thought that their bete noir was Nova Scotia and the maritime provinces. But I find that they are equally opposed to the development of Ontario. Bred in a little mould they could not bear the expenditure of a dollar for public improvement anywhere, even in the province of Ontario. That being the case, I can understand the feelings of contempt that such men as the hon. member for East Northumberland (Mr. Cochrane) and the hon. member for Halton (Mr. Henderson) must have for hon. gentlemen opposite. There is such a thing as carrying bravado too far. A statesman should have some sincerity. The Postmaster General would have commended himself more to me if, when this matter was under discussion, he had appeared in habiliments of sackcloth and with ashes sprinkled on his head. That would have been his proper garb. Had he come here and said: I have sinned beyond all forgiveness, but I acknowledge my sin, and, in acknowledging it I hope I have half won the forgiveness that I crave—had he done that I would have thought him a man. But when he glories in his sin, when he tries to gain credit by it, he does not add dignity to the public life of Canada. Having seen this great waterway, I heartily support this vote, and I hope my party will support it, as a great work for the development of Canada.

I viewed with great pleasure that high lift-lock. The effect of that great engineering work is not confined to Peterborough, it solves many transportation difficulties all over Canada, for instance in the province of Quebec, where rivers drop down from a high plateau to another high plateau. This lift-lock will make the waterways of Canada available to the commerce of the country. Therefore when I looked upon that magnificent feat of engineering and scientific skill and remembered that it had been conceived to a large extent in its improved form by the genius of Canadian engineers, I was proud of Canada and of our sons. I am delighted to know that this parliament is charged with the development of more territory than any other parliament in the world, or any other government, barring that of Russia. We have half a continent in charge, we are simply standing at the edge of its development, and in the work of that development we shall find that this lift lock solves many of the problems that will present themselves to our engineers. Therefore I hail with delight the opening of this lift lock at Peterborough. I said some harsh things about the Postmaster General, but not intending to say unpleasant things, and I hope that when he looks at this great work and begins to realise its true meaning he will ask forgiveness from high Heaven for the awful sins he has committed in not seeing this great work in its true proportions twenty-five years ago, and I hope God will forgive him.

Now my hon. friend seemed to treat with much levity the proposition of having two termini for this waterway. I would like to see half a dozen termini for this waterway. I am not pleading for either one or the other. You can locate them any where that will serve the purpose of making a thorough highway, because then you will want elevators and all the equipments of a port, and I regard this as infinitely valuable as a local and internal waterway. But so narrow minded was the Postmaster General, so bred in he in that little Liberal, Grit, Ontario way of his and of his party that he could not dream of there being two termini as a great work of this kind. It would burst his head, I fancy, and shatter his brain if he once attempted to conceive it. In many ways I admire the hon. Postmaster General, I admire his good nature, and I wonder how a man of some humour can ever be sober when he is speaking and indulging in jokes of that character. I support the idea of two termini, one at Port Hope and the other at Trenton; you can make the third terminus wherever you will; but in every section of this country where there is a little town growing up, it should be connected with this waterway in the same way

Now allow me to refer to another thing. My hon. friend says: Let us get expert testimony about the settlement of the termini of this waterway system. But I recollect that when they were proposing to spend two hundred millions of money on the Grand Trunk Pacific system, and we proposed that they get expert testimony before doing so, they refused us, they laughed us to scorn, they said: Let us vote the money, get the railway started and we can get expert testimony afterwards. That was their position. But hon. gentlemen, in a little matter of this kind, must play the cheap politician and hold this dangling in the air for the purpose of fooling the people of Ontario. I am bound to say that the people of Ontario will be infinitely greater fools than I think they are—and I have not the highest opinion of a great many of them, especially of hon. gentlemen opposite. In the lower provinces we always had an idea that there was a soft spot in the pates of people of Ontario, but we never dreamed they would go so far as to take the hon. gentleman seriously when he proposes to dangle these two termini before their eyes without meeting just retribution at their hands. If I were a Liberal of Ontario, after hearing the speech of the Postmaster General this afternoon, I would vote against him and his party at once and for ever. It is too late in the day for public men to be eternally fooling and scheming about a question of this kind. We want integrity, we want ministers of the crown, representing the people in this country, to settle these questions on the broad lines of statesmanship and patriotism, then they will be worthy of our confidence.

Now I want to congratulate the ex-Minister of Railways, the hon. member for South Lanark (Mr. Haggart) whom I have learned to respect. I was a stranger when I came into this House, and I had to make up my estimates of men as I met them. I have a very high opinion of the member for South Lanark. He has got convictions, and very few men have them. That is what I admire in him. Right or wrong you know where to find him. It is a great credit to a man to have convictions about something. The misfortune is that so few of our public men have convictions, but the public man who has them must always be a strong man. But I never knew my hon. friend from South Lanark had such a claim upon the eternal gratitude of the people of this country as to be the father of this great system of the Trent canal. I honour him for supporting it twenty years ago, because at that time there was no Liberal public opinion in Canada. Every little fellow was struggling for his own province. There was no such thing as a man voting for a public work in the interest of the whole of Canada, but he had to vote from the standpoint of his township, or his county or his province at least. Therefore, when the hon. gentleman started out to carry that canal forward—because it had started years before, but somebody had to carry it forward—and when that hon. gentleman undertook to carry it forward he was a brave man because he had to meet, and oppose, and overcome objections of all sorts from the Liberal party in this House. When he undertook to vote money for this canal he found it a herculean task. Now, after having seen his efforts crowned with so great a measure of success, I hope he will be the father of many other great schemes for the internal development of Canada, and the great Conservative party who has supported him, and will continue to support him, will deserve the utmost credit from the people of this country.

Medicines You Can Trust

There are no family medicines that have such a firm hold on the confidence of the people as those of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous physician and receipt book author. The superior skill as a physician and the intelligence of character for which Dr. Chase is everywhere known stand as a guarantee for his medicines, on every box of which are found his portrait and signature.

THE HAGIOSCOPE.

"In spite of the close blood relationship," said an American who had visited England, "we are frequently reminded in England that we are foreigners. It crops up often in the ordinary conversation.

"An English friend whose guest I was took me around to see his native village. We entered the church.

"'Whereabouts is your pew?' I asked.

"'We sit over there by the hagioscope,' he answered, as though a hagioscope were some common object like a table or a candlestick. My friend noticed the blankness of my face, so he repeated:

"'Over there, just below the hagioscope.'

"'Would you mind telling me what sort of an instrument it is that you call a hagioscope?' I asked meekly.

"The Englishman looked hurt; but, with a sigh, he explained:

"'We have them in nearly all the old country churches. Do you see that small glass window through the wall beside the altar? That was made at the time when lepers were at large and they attended church services. They were of course not allowed inside, so they stood outside and saw and heard the services through that hole, which is called the squint window, but more often the hagioscope.'"

British Expedition Enters Sacred City Without Fighting.

Dalai Lama Has Fled to a Monastery 15 Miles Distant, and Avers He Will Shut Himself Up in Complete Seclusion For Three Years—Amban Pays Ceremonial Visit to Col. Younghusband—City Surroundings Fertile.

Simla, British India, Aug. 3.—The British expedition into Thibet reached Lhassa at noon Aug. 3, with no further fighting than was reported in the last despatches.

Dalai Lama Has Fled.

Lhassa, Thibet, Aug. 3.—(Delayed in Transmission.)—The British expedition is encamped a mile from the Sacred Mountain of Potala, on which is situated the Dalai Lama's Palace, and in the immediate vicinity of the Dalai Lama's private gardens.

The Dalai Lama fled to a monastery eighteen miles distant. It is reported that he has shut himself up in strict seclusion, refusing to see even the highest state officers, and declaring that he will remain secluded for three years.

Col. Younghusband has received a ceremonial visit from the Amban, who promised to assist in arriving at a settlement, and presented gifts of food to the British troops.

The appearance of the city shows the descriptions of explorers to be extremely accurate. The surroundings are very fertile, and whole place gives evidence of great prosperity.

A brilliantly costumed group watched the approach of the expedition from the roof of one of the structures on Potala Mountain.

TOULON IN FLAMES.

Began in Extensive Stores of Arsenal and Now Threatens Complete Blocks of Buildings.

Toulon, Aug. 3.—Fire broke out in the arsenal here at midnight, originating in the extensive stores. The fire spread rapidly, and now threatens to embrace entire blocks of buildings. The troops were at once mustered in the street.

The prefect of the maritime port is organizing assistance, and admirals and generals are helping in the works at the pumps. A division of the reserve squadron has been called upon to aid.

Guns are being fired as signals for help, which is coming in from the whole countryside.

The flames are spreading with great rapidity.

Strasburg Also Burning.

Strasburg, Alsace-Lorraine, Aug. 3. A great fire is raging in the old quarter of this city.

A large orphan asylum and the Magdalen Church have already been destroyed.

Scores Homeless By Fire.

Wallace, Idaho, Aug. 3.—Scores of people were rendered homeless, and nearly $100,000 worth of property was destroyed by fire that swept Black Bear, a small town between Wallace and Burke, Idaho. Only a dozen small cottages were left standing. The fire was stopped only after dynamite had been used to destroy several houses. The loss is practically total.

BIG FIRE NEAR BRAMPTON.

Robert Bale's Hay and 1,200 Bushels of Wheat Gone.

Brampton, Aug. 3.—One of the most disastrous fires that has occurred on farm property in this neighborhood in years took place on Saturday afternoon on Robt. Bale's premises, lot 2, con. 1, Chinguacousy, half a mile south of Brampton. His year's cut of hay and 1,200 bushels of wheat were lost. Threshing was going on at the time and it is supposed sparks from the engine caused the blaze. The threshing outfit belonged to Jos. Sheard. His loss amounts to one thousand dollars, with no insurance. Bale's insurance amounted to $1,100 on buildings and $1,500 on contents.

Manley Bond Soap cleans kitchen utensils, steel, iron and tinware, hands and dishes, and all kinds of dirt.

HAS CANADA BACKED DOWN.

J. H. Bacon Says Case Against Him Has Been Dropped.

Fort William, Aug. 3.—Word has been received here from J. H. Bacon, harbor engineer and hydrographic surveyor of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company, stationed at Port Arthur, Ont., to the effect that his case will be dropped by the Government. Mr. Bacon had gone to Montreal to contest a warrant for his arrest and deportation.

Mr. Bacon is an officer in the employ of the United States Engineering Corps against whom the Amalgamated Engineers made a definite charge to Sir William Mulock on July 12 that he was making reports to the United States Government. He is also one of the men whom Judge Winchester ordered deported five or six weeks ago and whom Mr. Fielding assured Parliament had left the country.

In consequence of this complaint of the engineers the Dominion Government made a feint at ordering the arrest of Mr. Bacon. That gentleman immediately appealed to the Government and announced his intention of fighting the warrant.

Dr. Dawson Resigns.

Ottawa, Aug. 3.—Dr. Dawson, the King's Printer, has applied for superannuation. Dr. Dawson has been in the service for many years and has contemplated retirement for some time. It is understood that he considers the present a good time to step out, leaving his successor to take hold at the juncture when the printing bureau building and staff are to be enlarged. He is 71 years of age and has been in his present office since 1891.

DO IT TODAY.

Tomorrow May Be Too Late and Then You Would Be Sorry.

If you have a flower to give, give it today. One drop of gladness is worth more to the living heart than a wealth of costly blooms laid, however tenderly, above the dead one.

If you have a kindly visit to make, make it today lest another step in and lay his quiet hand upon the longing heart and still forever its fret and pain and power of glad response. In the city of the dead, in the silence of the grave, hearts are never lonely any more. They have no heed or need.

If you have kisses to bestow, let the dear living lips their sweetness know today.

If you've smiles to give, give them today. Living eyes are often hungry. Though their gaze be seemingly so calm, so quiet and mayhap so proud, the smiles may be a touch of heaven for them. If they are closed in death, tomorrow your fondest smile would matter naught.

If you have a helpful, hopeful, loving word to say, say it today. It may keep some heart from breaking, some soul from falling. No word or cry can break the seal tomorrow—if death whispers then—to ears that hear today. —Exchange.

KING OF BEASTS.

The Way an Old African Hunter Points Out the Monarch.

In discussing the question, "Which is the king of beasts?" an old African hunter says:

"Come with me to a desert pool some clear, moonlight night when the shadows are deep and sharply cut and the moon herself in the dry, cloudless air looks like a ball. All is nearly as bright as day, only the light is silver, not gold. Sit down on that rock and watch the thirsty animals as they drink—buffalo, rhinoceros, antelope, quagga; occasionally, if the water is large, lions too. But what has frightened the antelope and quagga that they threw their heads up for a second and fade away into the shadows? The other beasts, too, are listening and now leave the sides of the pond. Nothing but the inevitable, irrepressible jackal, that gamin among wild things, remains in view.

"As yet your dull human ears have caught no sound, but very soon the heavy tread and low, rumbling note of an oncoming herd of elephants reach you. They are at the water. The jackals have sat down with their tails straight out behind them, but not another creature is to be seen. The king drinks. Not a sound is heard. He squirts the water over his back, makes the whole pool muddy and retires solemnly, leaving his subjects, who now gather round, to make the best of what he has fouled.

Long Widowhood.

In 1788, in the ninety-sixth year of her age, died Jean Countess of Sheboughe. She was not a very remarkable woman, but her memory is preserved on account of her long widowhood, which lasted seventy-one years. Her father, the first Lord Townshend, fought at Meaplus bloody 1644.

The Countess of Sheboughe's long widowhood is inexplicable, contrasted with that of a certain Anne Mallace. According to an inscription in Gumbrewell church, this Anne Wallace died in 1480 at the age of 120 years, having survived her husband only eight years less than a century.

MECHANICAL SCULPTURING.

Statues May Now Be Quickly Carved by Machinery.

One of the latest triumphs of mechanical skill is a sculpturing machine which is capable of transforming a rough block of stone into a delicately carved bust or statue in a few hours.

From the earliest times to the present day the sculptor's methods have been unchanged. The artist modeled his conception of the statue in clay, and when this was completed workmen possessing wondrous skill and lacking only the creative faculty which marks the artist laboriously chiseled a block of marble into the counterfeit presentment of the clay model, the finishing touches being given by the artist himself.

The operation of carving naturally took a long time, and for upward of a century numerous inventors have been endeavoring to devise some machine to carve and chisel the stone.

The machines are fitted with a number of drills and gauges made of the hardest steel. These are kept revolving upon the block of stone and the operator guides them by tracing over the model that is being copied with a pointer. In this manner the block of stone is mechanically and faultlessly turned into the perfect semblance of the original, and should the operator desire it he can either enlarge or reduce the copy and produce simultaneously at the same cost, excepting material, any number of duplicates up to twenty.

A life sized statue would be carved by this wonderful machine in three days from a solid block of marble. Wood, alabaster and soft materials can be worked in half the time.—American Queen.

Air in a Subway.

An English physician has made an analysis of the air in the underground railway of London with astonishing results. The amount of oxygen in the atmosphere was only 20.60 parts in volume, while in the worst courts in London it was never found lower than 20.86. Pure air contains 20.94 per cent of oxygen.

And with diminution of oxygen there was a proportionate increase in the carbonic acid gas. The normal quantity is .037 in 100 parts, but the expert found that in one of the Metropolitan railway tunnels the carbonic acid gas was .338 per cent. This is excessively high when it is taken into consideration that whenever the carbonic acid gas in the atmosphere exceeds .100 per cent the air is much too polluted to be breathed with safety to one's health.

Canada's New Head.

Change in the head of the government of Canada is brought about quite simply. When the term of one governor general is about to expire the announcement is cabled from London that his successor will be Lord So-and-so. This time it is Earl Grey, a brother-in-law of the present incumbent, who will become governor general in the autumn. The campaign leading up to the change will be chiefly social, involving farewell receptions to the retiring functionary, to be followed by receptions of welcome to the new one. Earl Grey is in his fifty-third year. He was administrator in Rhodesia for two years prior to the Boer war. From South Africa to North America is a long way, but the British empire is an empire of magnificent distances.—Youth's Companion.

Canada's Wheat Possibilities.

Canada's wheat crop this year promises to exceed that of 1903 by about 30,000,000 bushels. This is a big increase, and with no abatement likely in succeeding years it is easy to be seen what a formidable wheat producing and exporting competitor the great Canadian northwest has become and is becoming. It could now if need were feed the mother country all by itself, leaving the United States out of the question, though it is not likely to be drawn on to that exclusive extent. But the territory stands for one of the greatest grain producing regions in the whole story of the world, old or new, its edges hardly scratched yet, and it will have its share in determining the course of empire and development as the years and centuries go on.

Photographs on Cotton.

A man in Maine has recently completed a process for photographing in indelible ink on cotton cloth. The process is said to be exceedingly simple, the sensitizing, toning and fixing being done at the same time with one solution. The sensitizing medium will keep for a long time unless exposed to the light. When the sensitized cloth is exposed to the light in a printing frame only a few seconds of sunlight are required to print the outlines of the image, which develops fully in a vigorous print in clear water. The color is a solid engraving black, but by a simple toning process before the prints are dried can be changed to a warm brown, black or sepia. These colors are fast and will stand washing with soap.

INVESTING MONEY..

Be Sure of Your Scheme Before You Risk Your Savings.

Don't tie yourself or your money up. Don't risk all your savings in any scheme, no matter how much it may promise. Don't invest your hard earned money in anything without first making a thorough and searching investigation. Do not be misled by those who tell you that it is "now or never" and that if you wait you are liable to lose the best thing that ever came to you. Make up your mind that if you lose your money you will not lose your head and that you will not invest in anything until you thoroughly understand all about it. There are plenty of good things waiting. If you miss one there are hundreds of others. People will tell you that the opportunity will go by and you will lose a great chance to make money if you do not act promptly. But take your time and investigate. Make it a cast iron rule never to invest in any enterprise until you have gone to the very bottom of it, and if it is not so sound that level headed men will put money in it do not touch it. The habit of investigating before you embark in any business will be a happiness protector and an ambition protector as well.—Orison Swett Marden in Success.

BITING THE THUMB.

In "Romeo and Juliet" the servants of Capulet and Montague begin a quarrel by one biting his thumb at the others. Commentators have regarded this act as an insult, quoting the following passage from Decker's "Dead Term": "What swearing is there, what shouldering, what jostling, what jeering, what biting of thumbs to beget quarrels!"

Sir Walter Scott, however, in a note to the "Lay of the Last Minstrel," says: "To bite the thumb or the glove seems not to have been considered upon the border as a gesture of contempt, though so used by Shakespeare, but as a pledge of mortal revenge." It was thus accounted to be a solemn assurance that at the proper time the sword should settle the dispute or purge the offense.

Something of the sort may have prevailed among the Romans, for it is thought that the Latin pollicerl, to promise, is derived from pollex, the thumb.

PRISONS OF SILENCE.

Where Convicts Ever Wear Shrouds and Sleep Beside Coffins.

Entombed in a grim castle on the outskirts of Lisbon are some of the most miserable men on earth. These are the inmates of Portugal's deadly prisons of silence. In this building everything that human ingenuity can suggest to render the lives of its prisoners a horrible, maddening torture is done. The corridors, piled tier on tier five stories high, extend from a common center like the spokes of a huge wheel. The cells are narrow, tomblike, and within each stands a coffin. The prison garb is a shroud. The attendants creep about in felt slippers. No one is allowed to utter a word. The doors are unlocked, and the hall a thousand wretches march out, clothed in shrouds and with faces covered by masks, for it is a part of this hideous punishment that none may look upon the countenances of his fellow prisoners. Few of them endure this torture for more than ten years.

A Five Days' Love Story.

At the present time we are always talking about the rush and hurry of the twentieth century. Are we really so rapid as we think we are? Certainly few girls of fourteen have anything like the amount of experience and emotion in many weeks of life that Juliet, Shakespeare's heroine, had crammed into five days and a half.

The time is thus apportioned: On Sunday the ball took place, and on Monday Romeo and Juliet were married. On Tuesday Juliet took the draft, and on Wednesday she was placed in the tomb. On Thursday Romeo returned, and on Friday the hapless pair committed suicide.

The Japanese Baby.

The Japanese baby's head is shaved in a curious fashion, and never, under any circumstances, does the mother or baby wear a hat or bonnet. Nor does he wear shoes, even in the coldest weather, but his shaven head and his pink toes peep out from the mother's garments, and he rides pickapack, strapped on tightly, happy, chubby, smiling always and dressed, when he is allowed to get out of the binding garments, in the most dainty of kimonos, all embroidered and painted and decorated with the designs which are supposed to typify the final trade or occupation of the infant.

Amusing a Boston Baby.

Mrs. Beanster—Mr. Johnson, won't you please amuse the baby for about five minutes? Mr. Johnson (not of Boston)—I'm afraid I don't know how, Mrs. Beanster. Mrs. Beanster—Just talk a little. She always finds your western grammatical peculiarities so amusing.

Our Greatest Landowner.

W. C. Greene, the multimillionaire copper king, has bought the noted San Rafael de la Zanja ranch in southeastern Arizona, paying $1,200,000 for its 200,000 acres and the cattle upon them. This purchase establishes him as the greatest landowner of the North American continent, for hitherto, by the purchase of land grants, he owned about 200,000 acres eastward from his latest acquisition, as well as fully 1,000,000 acres in the northern part of the Mexican state of Sonora.

His Mistakes.

"I pity the man who can't learn anything from his own mistakes. Now, that's one thing I can do," said Bragg.

"Ah! You're always learning something then, aren't you?" replied Knox. —Exchange.

One radical difference between a boy and a girl is that the girl can get enthusiastic about a mouthful of cherry blossoms without thinking of the cherries.

An Accommodation Train.

In the lake district of England there is a tiny railway which has only one train run by two officials, one of whom is managing director, ticket collector, guard and porter and the other chief engineer, engine driver and stoker. The train stops anywhere. It frequently goes off the line, but crowbars are carried, with which the train is persuaded to return to its proper position. When a friend of either official is observed the train is brought to a standstill. At one time, when the managing director was courting the daughter of a farmer through whose lands the line ran, the young lady would take her stand at a certain gate every evening, the train would be stopped, and the young man would kiss her good night.

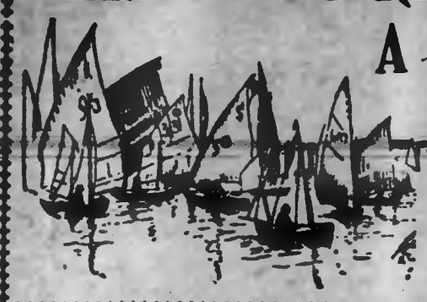
CHEMONG'S REGATTA A GREAT SUCCESS



The First One in Many Years--All of the Events Were Keenly Contested--Ryerson, of Toronto, Won the Dinghy Race--Cottagers and Campers Rallied at the Popular Summer Resort.

Probably not since the Indian tribes congregated there for the summer camp has Chemong Park and Lake been the scene of such animation as on Saturday last, when the cottagers of that very popular resort held their first regatta. There is probably no point on the Kawartha Lakes so well adapted to such a purpose. A splendid expanse of water gives excellent opportunity for all kinds of aquatic sports, while the high banks on the southern shore of the lake form a natural grand stand for any number of people. Summer cottagers rallied in great force on Saturday many coming from Stony Lake, and there was keen competition in the different events. It had not been intended, at the outset, to make the regatta so great an occasion as it really was, but merely a competition among the cottagers themselves. As arrangements went forward, however, it was found that a regatta met with such great approval on all sides that a larger undertaking would be the thing. The cottagers of Chemong never do things by halves, and they manifested great spirit in promoting the affair. They went about it in a business-like manner, and the result was success. The prizes were for the most part donated by the cottagers themselves, further assisted by merchants of the town. In addition there was a special prize — the Trent Valley Navigation Company cup was put into competition, the dinghy race being the event to which this valuable trophy was attached. The Chemong Association also offered a handsome silk flag for second prize in this race. The cup, being for perpetual competition in the Kawartha Lakes, is destined to bring to the front one of the most important aquatic events in the district, and lovers of the sport will undoubtedly appreciate this magnificent gift of the Trent Valley Navigation Company by making the competition at all times as keen as possible. Such, indeed, was the case on Saturday at any rate.

Chemong Park is always beautiful, but it presented unwonted gayety on Saturday. Many of the cottages were decorated with flags; Chemong Hotel had on its gala attire of patriotic colors and everywhere the eye could see fancy touches that seemed most appropriate for regatta day. Cottagers and campers were there, sunburned, bareheaded, happy, betraying none of the tension suffered by the man who yearns for release from the maddening crowd. Many people were there from town, and it was easy to distinguish them by their more formal attire from those who during the past few weeks or days of outing have undoubtedly secured a lien on the out-door life, and have a distinctive vogue of their own as regards matters of dress while on the premises. The misty camping costume was much in evidence and was as much a part of the pleasing scene as were the launches, the steamers, the skiffs and the canoes a part of the mirrored water. Not since the days when there were matched aquatic events, as for instance when George Taylor and J. Hilliard Carnegie, 12 years ago, went in for a two-mile canoe race, has there been such keen interest in anything of that nature at Chemong.

It was a glorious day, which goes to show that the cottagers have the approval of the weather man in their regatta. And the weather being fine, the Saturday afternoon was pretty much of a holiday with many people in the district. An almost unbroken line of vehicles poured out to the Park from town during the afternoon. Those who did not drive used bicycles, and those who did not wheel walked. There were many craft of all kinds shooting here and there over the lake all afternoon. The Rob Roy, the Kawartha Lakes novice, was there from town, and Boyd's magnificent steam yacht from Bobcaygeon, the government steamer Empire, Kelly's steam yacht from Bridgenorth, and several other steamers, large and small, which brought parties from Bobcaygeon, Lindsay, Sturgeon Point, and Stony Lake. There must have been upward of a thousand people on the bank, and while they had a charming picture presented to them of the silvery lake with its numerous craft, they on the water had equally as delightful a view presented to them of the pine-crested park with its happy hundreds.

CHEMONG LAKE AND PARK.

Chemong Lake, one of the most beautiful of the Kawartha chain, lies in the form of a large crescent shaped bay, extending about five miles in a southwesterly direction from the main chain, to which it is attached by the Buckhorn Narrows. From its peculiar crescent form the early Indians gave it the name of "Shegamoong" (by which name it is known in the early county record), signifying "the lake of the silvery bow moon." This name from the similarity of the sound evidently afterwards became corrupted into "Chemong."

It was a favorite health resort of the Indians for generations back, the chiefs usually bringing their tribes here for their summer camp, on account of the health-giving pines on the high bluff shore and the magnificent springs of cold water flowing from the base of the hills. Souvenirs of these visits are still seen in the stone chisels and fragments of Indian pottery frequently found on the shores. The Pale Faces, their successors, to-day enjoy the same benefits at the beautiful resort known as Chemong Park, which comprises a natural pine forest of 200 acres situated on a bluff rising from the water's edge to an elevation of about 100 feet above the lake, and 600 feet above the level of Lake Ontario, dotted throughout with the pretty cottages of the summer residents and capped on its summit by Chemong Park Hotel, which has a continental reputation for the excellence of its cuisine and the ability of its management, being constantly patronized by visitors both from our own and American cities.

The Lake with its land locked shores of rolling wooded hills and cultivated farms sloping to the water, forms a picture to delight the eye of the artist or smooth the spirit of the tired worker, while the abundance of excellent fishing attracts the more energetic sportsman. Being completely sheltered it is particularly safe for boating, while its smooth sandy shores afford excellent bathing the waters being strongly impregnated with sulphur have a peculiarly tonic effect. Not the least advantage of this pleasant resort is its nearness to civilization, the thriving city of Peterborough being only six miles distant, with stage connections four times daily and telephone connection day and night, while the steamers of the Trent Valley Navigation Co. call twice daily at the Park connecting with all points on the Kawartha Lakes and Trent Valley Canal, affording the agreeable diversion of a pleasant day's outing "near to nature's heart."

THE DAY'S EVENTS.

The regatta was programmed to open at one o'clock, but it was not until an hour afterwards that a murderous looking weapon in the hands of Mr. T. W. Greer of Sturgeon Point announced that the first event was off. A spanking breeze was blowing across the lake from the northwest, and it was on account of this that the sailing skiff race was cancelled. The judges' stand was situated a short distance east of the dock, and on the bank immediately above was the crowd waiting for the programme. A multitude of every kind of craft lurked in the vicinity of the starting flag, and the five boats starting in the dinghy race had their troubles thereby increased, for the wind was very erratic and the boats could have got away better with plenty of sea room. The Lorette, owned by Ryerson of Sturgeon Point (son of Dr. Ryerson of Toronto) got away first, with J. Hopwood of Chemong, in his Arrow, second; May D., owned by C. B. Nesmith of Bobcaygeon third, and Gen. Hamilton in the Bacillus, fourth. The course was a triangular one of three miles, the first leg being in the direction of the north end of Chemong bridge, the second was a beat somewhat in the teeth of the wind along the north shore, and the third was a fly before the wind back southeasterly direction across the lake. It was necessary to do the course twice. The Lorette was at ways ahead, but was given a great chase on the third leg by Hopwood brothers. It looked as if they would make the first triangle in the lead and they were bowling along in a more advantageous course than the Lorette when the mast of the Arrow went overboard and she went out of the race. This was very unfortunate as a keen race was developing. The Lorette won handily in one hour and nine minutes, with the May D second and the Bacillus third. Great difficulty was experienced in making the flags owing to the fact that the Rob Roy and Kelly's yacht appeared always in the way. The May D and Bacillus understood that the race was for nine miles and did the triangle a third time. Owing to this misunderstanding the race may be run over again. Hopwood brothers hope to bring honors to Chemong if the opportunity is given.

The half-mile skiff race was a straightaway from the Hopwood cottage to the judges' stand. E. A. Green of Orillia and John Owen of Bridgenorth entered. It looked as if the latter had the race cinched, but at the finish the Orillia man did a spurt and won out by a few feet.

The men's canoe race was also an exciting contest. It was won by Percy Nicholls of Bobcaygeon, who had a good margin, as the result of a very strong stunt, while E. G. Simpson of Lakefield came second. E. A. Green third and Fred Roy fourth.

Two boys, H. Routley and V. Fife, went into the juvenile canoe event. The boys paddled a strong race and came together at the finish, thus making a dead heat. It was decided by a toss-up afterwards, and Routley drew first.

In the tandem canoe race, Norman Bell and Miss Gwen Hall took first. They had two doughty opponents in Gordon O'Leary and Florentine O'Leary of Sturgeon Point, and the finish was close and exciting. Fred Roy and Miss Helen Hay finished third.

Miss Gwen Hall proved herself a most athletic young lady on Saturday for in the quarter-mile skiff race she again took first and Miss Isabelle Hay second.

The men's tandem canoe race was won by Percy Nicholls of Bobcaygeon and H. G. Simpson of Lakefield. This race was put on during the sailing canoe race, in which there were young men who had signified their intention of going into the former event. It was not, however, paddled over again.

There were two entries for the sailing canoe race. Oscar Dumble and Mr. Hamilton and Fred Roy and Arthur Weeks. The breeze was a heavy one for these craft, and in going over the triangular course considerable water must have been shipped. Dumble and Hamilton were the first to get away and it was a pretty race for the first leg, but on the second the boats had trouble with the wind. Roy and Weeks did not finish, and the race therefore belonged to the other contestants. It was a nervy and somewhat skilful piece of work to sail over such a course in so stiff a breeze.

The ladies' tandem race was a noble contest. The participants dug in for their lives, and the finish was very close. When the spray had blown away, it was seen that the winners were Miss Helen and Miss Gwen Hall. If there is a Kawartha Lake championship for ladies the winners of this event should certainly make a fine showing, for they had as their opponents those famous paddlers, Miss Florentine O'Leary and Miss Phoebe Neelands of Lindsay.

"Let 'em start like a horse race" was the word when three gasoline launches moved up in front of the judges' stand and began to jockey for the start. They got away nicely and it was a pretty close race. The entries were Hustler by Dr. Allan of Sturgeon Point, Spray by E. P. Young of Springbank, and Pop-pet by Grantham of Sturgeon Point. The latter boat had the Hustler the handicap of seven and six minutes respectively, the Spray being a larger boat, but the race had no sooner started than it was seen that all three might almost have started scratch. The Pet-pet finished first and the Hustler second. The Spray did not finished. Time 25.20.

The most interesting event of the afternoon was the tilting tournament. In this event, two men occupied each canoe that entered, one paddling and the other armed with a bamboo fishing pole, at the dangerous end of which was fastened a large wad of soft material. Two canoes would approach each other, and the object was to jab the "other fellows" so as to upset him out of his canoe. There were frequent funny features about this event, such as upsets, the breaking of tilting rods, and uncomfortable jabs in the face by the soaking wads. The best tilter in the bunch was Hugh E. O'Leary, who was accompanied in the canoe by G. O'Leary of Lindsay. The second prize went to Seymour and Brand of town. Others who took part were E. A. Green of Orillia and Bert Cameron of town and Lowney and Oliver of town.

There were three contestants in the harry-canary race. In this event the boys had to paddle 50 yards and jump overboard and swim 50 yards. The winner was Bert Maine of town, with David Bull of New York second and Bert Cameron third.

The upset race was also interesting. The men in this had to paddle 50 yards, upset their canoes, right them and paddle 50 more. The first part was easy, but to right the canoe was different. None were successful at this in deep water, but Cameron and O'Leary posted in to terra firma for this purpose and then finished the race, Cameron first, O'Leary second. Hopkins did not finish.

This concluded the aquatic events of the afternoon. Several events had to be omitted as they either failed to fill or the wind was too high. The committees to whom is due great credit for the success of the arrangements of this first Chemong regatta in many a way, consisted of the following gentelmen:

Hon. President — Commodore Macombe, U.S.N., New York.

Sec. Treas.—A. A. Hollingshead, Peterborough.

Executive committee—W. R. Hartshorne, Fairfield, Conn., L. M. Hayes Peterborough, W. H. Bill, Peterborough, W. J. Hopwood Toronto.

Reception committee—T. H. G. Deane, D. H. Burritt, R. Gliddon, Peterborough; Geo. H. Brown, Chemong Park; Alfd. Belcher, Peterborough; Rev. J. C. Speers, Toronto, and the ladies of Chemong Park.

Sporting committee—G. H. Bull, New York; L. Kandolf, Rochester; R. M. Hood, T. A. & Hay, J. Mein, R. M. Donaldson, chas. Elliott, T. F. Matthews, W. W. W. Dean, W. Pringle, Peterborough.

Transportation and Advertising.—J. L. Hopwood and H. W. Hopwood, Toronto.

The judges of the day were: H. G. Buckm Norwood; F. Addison, Stony Lake; A. E. Bottum, W. L. Read, W. T. C. Boyd, Bobcaygeon; T. W. Greer, Sturgeon Point; J. G. Edwards, Lindsay; C. B. McAllister, Peterborough.

The pleasure of the afternoon was greatly enhanced by a delightful programme of music rendered by the 57th band under the direction of Mr. Gliddon. The music was greatly enjoyed by the cottagers, many of whom, being strangers, heard this organization for the first time and made it the subject of great compliment. In the evening a little dance was held in the pavilion for which the band furnished music.

A FOOTBALL MATCH

The concluding event of the day's sport was a football match between the Bridgenorth team and the Old Country Wanderers. Although both teams were somewhat out of practice they put up a very good exhibition, greatly appreciated by several hundred people. The game went to the Wanderers by 1-0 after a very hard tussle. Mr. Percy Fitzgerald refereed the game. The teams were:

The Wanderers had a number of Quakers on their team. The game had been arranged on short notice. Jack Eastwood of Buckhorn entertained the crowd by his antics.

NOTES.

The Turner sloop started out from her moorings near Chemong bridge, under full sail. She had not gone far before a squall struck her, and there was a capsize with no casualties. A small steamer towed the sloop to shore.

Commodore McCombe, of the United States navy, enjoyed the regatta immensely. He has been a cottager at Chemong for five years.

The Charlotte st. church quartette attended the regatta and in the evening treated the cottagers to some nice music. They returned home by way of Lakefield and gave the natives there a few choice specimens of vocal accomplishment.

DIED.

KINDRED.—At Peterborough, on August 7th, Christina McIntyre, wife of Mr. W. A. Kindred, aged 57 years.

The funeral will leave the family residence, 90 Hunter-st., Peterborough, on Tuesday, Aug. 9th, at 2.30 o'clock, p.m., and proceed to the Little Lake cemetery for interment.

LAMENTED DEATH

Mrs. Kindred's Demise—A Mother Taken From a Large Family.

The death on Sunday, at the family residence, of Mrs. W. A. Kindred, will cause deep regret to her numerous friends. The event was not altogether unexpected, as she had been ailing all the year. She leaves to lament her loss her husband and ten children: Bert, at home; William, in Toronto; Mrs. Geo. Carruthers, town; Mrs Wm. Pullblank, Ponoka, N.W.T.; Mrs. John Anderson and Mrs. Noble Oraham, town; Mrs. A. Saunders, in Toronto; Mrs. Fred. Whatley, town; Maud and Jennie, unmarried, at home. This was the first death in this large family. Mrs. Kindred's maiden name was McIntyre. The family moved from Otonabee to town twelve years ago and have resided in their present home ever since. Mrs. Kindred was a consistent and valued member of the Mark-st. Methodist church, Ashburnham. She was respected and beloved by a large circle of friends for her sterling qualities and amiable character. The funeral will take place on Tuesday, at 2.30 p.m., from the family residence, Hunter-st., to the Little Lake cemetery.

Brevities.

—Miss Bertha Parnell sang very prettily a solo at the evening service at the George-st. church last evening.

—A session of the B.Y.P.U. of the Park-st. Baptist church will be held to-night, when two papers on God's hand in our lives will be read.

—The annual harvest festival of St. Luke's church will be held (D.V.) on Tuesday, Sept. 20. The Rev. Prof. Clark, D.C.L., of Trinity College, Toronto, will be the special preacher.

—The St. John's Girls' Guild will meet in the school room of the church at eight o'clock, and all the members are asked to be present, as it will be an important business meeting.

—Private Perry, who won the King's prize in the Bisley matches, passes through town to-morrow afternoon on the 5.10 C.P.R. train. Officers and men of the 57th should be at the station to give him a cheer as he passes through.

—The first freight to pass over the lift lock for a port other than Peterborough was a load of tan bark, which came down from Stony Lake, consigned to Hastings this morning. It was carried by the Macdonald steamer and scow.

THE SECOND INDUSTRIAL

THE PETERBOROUGH EXHIBITION PROMISES TO BE A CORKER.

Arrangements Being Made with that Object in View—Prize List Has Been Issued.

The prize list of the second Peterborough Industrial Exhibition has been issued in very neat form, and will be distributed to all persons who may ask for them by addressing the Secretary, Mr. K. Eardley Wilmot, Bank of Montreal. A noticeable feature of the list is the absence of the advertisements, which in former years have decorated the pages not any too attractively. It would appear that the directors this year had nerve and confidence enough in the public and in the show, to issue the list this year without soliciting advertisement—a fact that is very creditable to the organization. It is also noted that the prizes are very large, ranking quite fairly with those of the Canada National Exhibition of Toronto. Some special attention will this year be given to horses and cattle, sheep, swine and agricultural products, and the farmers of this and surrounding districts should co-operate in making this one of the best ever held. A number of interesting horse races have been programmed, including a 2.23 and a 2.50 class trot or pace, two hurdle races, one being for gentlemen riders, and both at 1, 1-3 miles, 6 hurdles, and two running races. Horses eligible for the trotting races on July 17th. The attendance at the Fair will undoubtedly surpass anything yet, on account of the different attractions—the lift lock, the new electric railway running to the grounds, and the band of the Black Watch will be here on the 27th of September. It is expected that the Hon. R. L. Borden, leader of the Opposition at Ottawa, will be here on opening day. Everything points to a most successful exhibition.

VISITORS FROM BARRIE

FIREMEN OF THAT TOWN RUN EXCURSION HITHER.

Were Welcomed by Local Firemen and Representatives of the Town Council.

One of the largest excursions that has ever made Peterborough its objective point came down from Barrie to-day. There were two trains, and they arrived between eleven and twelve o'clock to-day. It was under the auspices of Barrie fire brigade who with their friends must have numbered about 1000 people—all from what they loyally consider the best and prettiest town in Canada. Accompanying the visitors was the 35th Regiment band. The local firemen, under Chief Rutherford, turned out in full force and welcomed their brother fire-eaters and friends at the G.T.R. station. The 57th Regt. band was there also and played the visitors to the fire hall, where a welcome was made on behalf of the town by Ald. Edgcumbe, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, Ald. Morrison, on behalf of the Mayor, who is away holidaying, and by Chief Rutherford and Lieut. Col. Miller.

Ald Edgcombe in his address said he welcomed the visitors on behalf of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, the Council, and the citizens generally. He hoped they would have a good time and gave them a tip to the effect that although the Chief of Police was a big man, he had been thoroughly domesticated and was on a day such as this, a very inoffensive individual.

Ald. Edgcumbe in his address said Mayor was out of town, but that it gave him pleasure in the absence of the chief magistrate to welcome them Their selection of Peterborough as an objective point was greatly appreciated here, and his hope was that the day would be a pleasant one; that they were certainly in good hands.

Lieut.-Col. Miller also expressed the hope that the visitors would have a good time. He referred to the intended trip of the 57th to Barrie on the 3rd of September, and his hope was that the visitors would become well acquainted here, so that the prospective journey would be the more pleasantly reciprocal.

Chief Rutherford made a brief but hearty address of welcome and outlined the day's programme.

Replies were made by Chief Smith and Captain McPhee, of the Barrie Fire Brigade. As the latter was making his speech the alarm sounded and the ceremonies were brought rudely to a close. The Barrie Brigade is a fine organization. The members are C. C. Smith, chief; J. B. McPhee, capt.; W. Kelsey, foreman; W. Scott, lieut.; F. W. Warren, sec.; J. Shrewsbole, W. Amos, W. J. Johnson, M. Webb, N. Green, H. R. Thomas Geo. Rogers, R. Howard, D. W. Murray, W. Webb, C. Pounder, T. Campbell.

Among the visitors from Barrie are Messrs. A. C. Gardin and Geo. L. Loveday, would-be nominees from East Simcoe.

The Barrie Golf Club is represented here to-day by the following gentlemen: E. J. Ryan, W. T. Allan, A. J. W. Terrill, Jas. Scott, J. A. Williams H. Gordon Mackenzie, A. C. Garden, G. F. Loveday.

The stores of R. A. Dutton and Fred A. Clarke were the headquarters for the Barrie people to-day.

The firemen dispensed hospitality to their guests liberally this afternoon. Large crowds embarked on the Sovereign, the City and the Water Lily for the trip to the lift lock.

POLICE COURT DOINGS

Merchant Fined for Allowing Loose Paper to be Thrown on the Street.

In Police Court this morning Wm. Hornbeck, for having been drunk and disorderly on Sunday, was fined $5 and costs.

A George-st. merchant paid $1 and costs into court for having allowed loose paper to be scattered from the rear of his store on Chambers-st. He explained that the boy who was detailed to look after the paper, had been suddenly called away on an errand, and hence could not attend to it. The intention of the police is to get after the merchants who are not inclined to have a care as to what disposition is made of their loose paper.

A McDonnel-st. woman was fined $20 and costs, or 30 days, for having caused a disturbance on that street by being drunk on August 2nd.

A LOGICAL SAVAGE.

The Way He Silenced a Missionary in an Argument.

"I used to know in Australia an intelligent and interesting missionary," said an Englishnobleman. "He and I were talking one day about the natives of New Guinea, and he told me how one of these natives had stumped him in a certain argument. It seems that he had accosted the native and urged him to let himself be civilized.

"'But what good,' the native asked, 'will this civilization of yours do me?'

"'Well,' said the missionary, 'you will cease, for one thing, to idle all your time away. You will learn the delights of honest labor.'

"'What good will the labor do me?'

"'Through it you will gradually accumulate money, and in time, with frugality, you will possess much store of honestly acquired riches.'

"The native was still unconvinced. 'What good will the riches do me?' was his next question.

"'They,' said the missionary, 'will enable you to cease from work at last and to spend the rest of your days in well earned rest.'

"The native laughed.

"'It seems to me,' he said, 'that if I did as you say I would be taking a mighty roundabout course to get to the place I started from.'"

Its Form of Structure Which Permits It to Be Elastic.

Modern physics teach us that the molecules of all bodies are in a state of incessant motion; that the intimate structure of matter is, in fact, a reproduction on an infinitely minute scale of the revolving suns and planets.

In gases and liquids this motion is most extensive in range, but in solids the movements of the molecules are more restrained, and they merely oscillate or rotate about a certain mean position, the range of motion being strictly governed by the attractions producing it.

If by the pull of an outside force the molecules are drawn out beyond the limit of their mutual attractions the body is broken, but within this limit it will recover itself when the pull ceases.

We may regard the particles of rubber as revolving in circles. When it is stretched these orbits become elliptic, returning to the circular form when released. As then this substance possesses a very wide range of variation of molecular distance without rupture it is eminently elastic.

DOCTOR OF DANCING.

This Title Was Given to Beauchamps by Louis XIV.

In France during the reign of Louis XIV. dancing took a very prominent position among court festivities, and many members of the royal family took part in the complex ballets of the time. Louis himself, no mean performer, took lessons for twenty years from Beauchamps, who was called the father of all dancing masters and upon whom the king conferred the title doctor as a special mark of favor.

Beauchamps had the honor of appearing as partner with the king in the minuet, a dance which was introduced in 1650 in France, and no court ball was opened in Europe for a century and a half without it.

About the year 1661 a royal academy of dancing was formed under the auspices of Beauchamps, Lalli, Molliere and others, the object of which was to elevate the art and check all abuses. Of this academy Beauchamps was chief, with the title of director.—London Telegraph.

"Gracious! It's an awful muddy walk this evening, isn't it?" said Mr. Bachelor on the way home from the Lemonsmeburst station.

WHEN BOYS WERE MEN

By JOHN HABBERTON,

Author of "Helen's Babies," "George Washington," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1901, BY JOHN HABBERTON

I don't know how I should have lived through those days if it hadn't been for my saber and spurs and the chance to display them on horseback. Arms were not given out at recruiting stations. We were told, when we received our uniforms, we would have to wait until we reached the regiment for sabers, revolvers, carbines and ammunition, but I learned that there was no law against a soldier purchasing for himself such arms as the branch of the service used, so I bought a saber and belt and took great comfort from the clank of the saber as I dragged it after me in dismounted cavalry fashion. Then I bought a pair of spurs, and as my father lent me a horse with which to ride about to look for recruits, I had the pleasure of feeling that I was the first cavalry soldier that had been seen in our county since the Revolutionary war ended. I enjoyed my spurs, too, after I learned not to strike their teeth into my trousers legs. Our horse Rover did not agree with me. For several years I had found him entirely trustworthy under the saddle, but one day when I was approaching a country store in front of which stood several [illegible], among whom I hoped to find at least one recruit, I gave Rover the spurs so as to dash up to the group in fine style and make them fall to admiring the cavalry service. Rover had never before felt a spur, and as he was a thoughtful, sagacious animal, he stopped short, turned his head and looked at his rider to see what had caused the new sensation.

"Get up, Rover!" said I. He resumed the gentle pace at which he had been traveling, but we were now only a few rods from the store, so I again used the spurs. Rover bounded wildly forward. Then he reared his hind quarters high in the air. I went head first over his shoulders, neck and ears, and almost before I knew what had happened I was on my face and breast in a disgusting puddle such as is always found by the pump in front of a country store. At the same time I heard a chorus of hard laughter, and as I picked myself up and rubbed the mud from my face a man in the crowd drawled:

"That hoss 'pears to be a rebel sympathizer, colonel."

I lost all interest in the war for a few moments; being called "colonel" didn't comfort me at all. I didn't ask any one to join the Thirty-eighth. I merely picked up my cap, mounted Rover and went on as if my errand would carry me farther. Even then my humiliation was not complete, for some one shouted:

"Hadn't yo better take yer frog stickers with yo?"

I looked back and saw one of the men with my saber in his hand. It had fallen from the scabbard as I went down. As I rode back to get it the man who held it was trying the edge with his thumb.

"That won't make no rub feel unhappy," said the fellow as he handed me the weapon. "It's got an edge like the beak of a hen."

I sheathed the sword and passed on without even saying "Thank you." I rode until I reached a list of wanted land. There I dismounted, removed my spurs and buried them in the hollow of a rotten stump, where I found them after the war ended. They hung in my bedroom now to give me a friendly warning whenever I am tempted to put on airs about anything.

CHAPTER II.

THE SWEEPSTER, WHICH FREQUENTLY HAPPENS.

RECRUITING at Summerton went on slowly in spite of our new efforts and of Phil Hamilton's money. There were many reasons for the lack of recruits, and each new reason as we were brought face to face with it proved depressing. First, it became evident that all of our fellow townsmen who really wanted to go to the war had already enlisted. Again, offers of bounties had increased so rapidly that men who looked at soldiering as a mere matter of hire and pay were waiting for higher offers to come.

Besides, the old patriotic enthusiasm which had caused men to enlist at the first notice of a new call for volunteers had entirely disappeared, perhaps because an end had been put to the early impression that the war would be only a sort of picnic, ending in the speedy suppression of southern malcontents. Worse still, increasing taxation was causing a number of the earlier hot blooded patriots to become very cool and conservative and wonder whether the north hadn't perhaps been too hasty and whether the disagreement might not better be settled by words than bullets.

Yet none of these depressing influences seemed to affect the class of men among whom Mick McTwyay was working, for Mick's list had crept along until he had a full dozen of men enlisted and sworn in. They were the 12 worst characters of Summerton, and the natives rejoiced to learn that they were to go where they might be effectively killed. I had my doubts as to their value to the Union cause, although Cloyne said they would be as useful as better men in the work of stopping bullets and that a barroom loafer often fought better than an accomplished gentleman.

As for Hamilton, Cloyne and me, we got less than a dozen men between us in the three weeks in which we worked at Summerton and its vicinity. Apothe personal discouragement slowly worked its way after each trip that any of us made to headquarters in the city. We found at the major's office from time to time about 25 quite fine fellows, all of whom were trying to get recruits, all hoping or expecting to be made officers, yet the entire number of commissions, including the major's own, could be but 12 to the battalion. How were the conflicting claims to be adjusted and by whom? I asked Cloyne this question, and he replied sadly:

"There'll be no claims to adjust unless the other claimants are getting more recruits than we."

It seemed he was right. If Hamilton's wild offer could not bring men to our office, how were poorer men to secure recruits? Yet Mick McTwyay—ah, there was a mysterious, provoking, enraging, affrighting puzzle!

When I hadn't my own disappointments in mind, I couldn't help worrying over affairs at home. My father and mother grew more and more silent. Little Ned complained that there was no one to play with him, and my cousin May was becoming more deeply interested in Hamilton and Brainard. Which she liked best I could not discover—probably because May herself did not know. She wasn't old enough to know. She treated Brainard as a schoolboy friend and Hamilton as an adult and gentleman. She was right in both cases, but I couldn't help seeing that both of my comrades were very fond of her, and I feared that when the time for parting came one of them would have to suffer greatly. Which would it be? I could not for the life of me tell for which I would feel worst should he be the least favored.

One day word came by mail that the major would like to see all of us at headquarters the next day about noon if entirely convenient to us.

"That looks as if we were to have commissions in spite of our small success at recruiting," said Hamilton. "Officers aren't in the habit of saying 'entirely convenient' to privates when they've any orders to give. Between ourselves, I've been asking my father to use a little family and political influence with the governor to get us commissions, either in our own regiment or elsewhere, and this may be the outcome of it."

"More power to his elbow then," said Cloyne. "If it isn't."

Somehow we all were more hopeful for the remainder of the day, and I would have felt entirely cheerful were it not for the thought that whether officer or private I should still be deprived of Brainard's companionship for three years.

Suddenly there came to my mind a plan which was irregular and shocking, yet which made me wildly gleeful in an instant. The medical examiner had to see daily hundreds of different recruits of all ages, sizes and differences of appearance. His memory certainly could not recall Brainard's appearance were he again to see his name. Suppose I were to enroll Brainard again, take him to headquarters, have his name put on the day's list of recruits to go before the surgeon and then, before that functionary were reached, substitute myself for Brainard in the squad, answer to his name when the surgeon called for him and be examined in his stead? Then Brainard could go on with the new squad, none of whom would know us apart, to the mustering officer and be sworn in.

The plan looked deceitful enough to appear about as bad as treason, but I was equal to any wildness for the sake of having my old chum in the army with me. I did not tell Brainard the whole of it, but I asked him to let me enroll him again and see if the surgeon might not find him a little taller and stouter than before. The poor fellow was willing, but he had not much hope.

Brainard and I hurried to headquarters very early the next morning. I had heard that the old sergeant who always was on duty there would do anything for $5, so I took him aside, told him of my plan and offered him a $10 bill to help me through. I was about to explain further how good a soldier Brainard had been and how much more useful I would be to my country if I could have my old friend with me, but the veteran scoundrel cut me short with:

"That'll do. The $10 is explanation enough."

Then he made out the day's list, which didn't take long, as there were only three recruits besides Charley. He explained to me that with Brainard's name on the list he was giving my height, age and particulars of personal appearance. Then he told me to hurry myself into civilian's dress. I had not such clothing in town, but from some cast off coats and trousers at headquarters I selected a suit, and away we went, Brainard walking beside me. When we reached the examiner's office, I asked Brainard to wait outside a few moments while I could speak a few words with the surgeon, with whom I thought I might have some influence. Charley smiled sadly and leaned against a doorcasing, while I entered, with my heart beating so violently that I feared it might burst before the surgeon could examine it. At last came the call:

"Charles Brainard!"

"Here!" I shouted.

The surgeon looked at the list and then at me, at which I began to tremble guiltily and wondered how soon I would be shot or hanged after discovery. But the surgeon went on with his examination, exactly as he had done three weeks before, and then he marked the list and gave it to the sergeant with the words:

"All accepted."

The sergeant dug his fist into my ribs as we passed out. His fist was big, and he used it with thoughtless vigor, but I imagined there was much more force in a similar familiarity I bestowed upon Brainard as we rejoined him, and the old sergeant said:

"Come along."

"Won't he even see me?" asked Charley pitifully, as we marched toward the mustering officer's quarters.

"He's changed his mind about you," I explained. "All you now need to be a soldier once more, is to take the oath and be mustered in."

"Hurrah!" shouted Charley, with a glad look which I thought absolved me at once of whatever crime I had for his sake committed. "Let's run!"

There was no chance to run, the two offices being near each other. At the mustering officer's it was my turn to stand outside, but I got near enough to look through the door. I wished all Summerton might be there to see how handsome and manly a little, flat-chested, round-shouldered fellow could look when his heart was full of honest joy.

And how glorious it was to help collect a uniform for Brainard when he returned to headquarters! True, his trousers had to be turned up several inches to clear the floor, and the collar of his jacket had to be turned down until none of the yellow braid could be seen, and the row of buttons on the front, which should have reached only his waist, seemed to descend half way to his knees. Still, he was a member of the Thirty-eighth, duly sworn and mustered, and nothing but death or the end of the war could change the situation. How I did wish my brilliant plan had occurred to me sooner, so that Hamilton's father might have used his influence with the governor in Brainard's favor also!

After I got into my uniform again we sat and talked and planned as happily as if we were going into possession of unexpected riches instead of to war and possible death. The wicked old sergeant strolled to and fro in front of us, smoking his pipe and eying us strangely. Suddenly he stopped in front of us and blurted out:

MONDAY, AUG. 6, 1900.

THE HOUSE SATURDAY

New York Mutual Life Association Bill Debated.

Frank Oliver Insisted That It Was in a Defaulting Position, But Mr. Boyd Said Not, But That Bill Enabled It to Convert a $5,000 Insurance Policy Into a Straight Life Policy For $1,426.

Ottawa, Aug. 5.—The alien labor bill was given a third reading Saturday afternoon, despite a renewed protest from Walter Scott and an amendment proposed by Nat Boyd. Mr. Boyd wanted a provision giving Northwest farmers the right to bring in harvest hands. Sir William regarded this amendment as useless; conditions in this particular respect were not being changed. The Prime Minister condemned the proposal, saying that it was mischievous. It would mean that Canadian harvesters could no longer go over to Dakota for the early harvests there and then return for the Canadian harvest.

Hard Knocks For Insurance Bill.

The New York Mutual Life Association received some hard bumps in the House Saturday. When the bill was taken up in committee, C. B. Heyd read a statement prepared by the association, in which it was shown that 785 policyholders have accepted the bill, 44 have opposed it, and 90 asked for further information.

Frank Oliver of Alberta, said there was something very questionable about the association or its proposition. The fact that 40 policyholders opposed it and 90 asked for further consideration, was to him a strong reason why the bill should not be passed. Parliament was being asked to give the association a complete change of basis on a moment's notice. The proceeding was most unfortunate.

Mr. Heyd replied that critics might call the association a lot of murderers if they chose. It did not affect the merits of the bill, which was designed to protect the policyholders. The insurance department was satisfied with the bill, the Senate has passed it, and it was now for the Commons to act.

Mr. Oliver insisted that the association was in a defaulting position. The policyholders were not asking for the bill. The association had either broken faith with its policyholders or was an insolvent.

"The company is not bankrupt," said Mr. Heyd. "It has a license to do business in this country, and it can continue to do business, whether this bill passes or not."

Mr. Oliver's Question.

"Why, then," asked Mr. Oliver, "should Parliament put its name to an agreement which it does not understand?"

Answering a question, Mr. Heyd said that by the bill a $5,000 insurance policy held under the assessment plan would be converted into a $1,426 straight life policy if the policyholder elected to change. The policyholder was not obliged to change.

"And still you say it is not a bankrupt institution!" said Mr. Oliver. "Parliament is in reality constituting itself a bankruptcy court to put the company through on the basis of 25 or 30 cents on the dollar. A policyholder is given the alternative of dropping two-thirds of his insurance or continuing on a plan which means his complete robbery. It is a kind of Hobson's choice. He must take 30 or 40 cents on the dollar or nothing at all."

At this Mr. Oliver grew angry, and declared that the company, under threat of robbing the widow and orphan, was forcing them to accept 30 or 40 per cent. of their claims.

Henderson Inquisitive.

Mr. Henderson wanted to know where the bill originated. Was it forced on the company or had the company brought it before Parliament? "I don't know," answered Mr. Heyd. "I heard of it first when it was introduced by Senator Kerr, at whose instigation I don't know. I am considering the bill from the standpoint that is beneficial to Canada."

Clause five, stating the conditions under which the company's deposit is to be maintained, called forth a strong protest from Mr. Gervais. He said the clause was vague, so vague that the good lawyer could without difficulty make 50 cases in the Privy Council. It was drafted this way purposely. The company which had now $226,000 on deposit could and would reduce the amount to $40,000 within 24 hours after the session closed. "I say that under no circumstances should this deposit be reduced," declared Mr. Gervais. He moved an amendment providing that no payment should be made out of the deposit as it stands to-day for five years, except for death claims in accordance with the insurance act.

Would Mean Defeat.

Mr. Heyd said that the acceptance of this clause would send the bill back to the Senate, which, in view of the imminence of prorogation, would mean its defeat. Such he insinuated was the purpose of the mover. He said, furthermore, that the deposit was in the hands of the Receiver-General, who had absolute control over it.

Mr. Barker said if the deposit could not be withdrawn and if there was no intention of withdrawing it why should the clause not be made clear?

Mr. Heyd repeated that if the bill was sent back to the Senate it would be killed.

Appealed to by several members, the Minister of Finance stated emphatically that in no case could the deposit be withdrawn from the treasury, nor could it be utilized for the payment of death claims. It would be held simply as security for fulfilment of the company's obligations to its policyholders.

Mr. Fielding said he was in a way prevented from taking an active part in the discussion, being a policyholder himself. He regarded the clause as perfectly safe. All that the public interest required had been done.

The amendment was declared lost.

The Mutual Life bill was reported read a third time and passed.

Port Hope and Trenton.

The debate on Saturday night centered on a difference of opinion between Col. Ward of East Durham and Gus Porter of West Hastings, as to the respective merits of Port Hope and Trenton as the outlet of the Trent Valley Canal. Col. Ward, in a comprehensive review of the engineer's report and the statistics, made out a strong case for Port Hope. Gus Porter, on the other hand, argued that Trenton was the natural outlet and that the question of cost should not enter into the determination of the outlet.

Mr. Gervais of St. James' division, Montreal, then took the floor and made an address on the Consular service, advocating the establishing by Canada of commercial agencies throughout the world.

The House adjourned at midnight, Mr. Ross (Victoria) having entered an objection to sitting on the Sabbath.

Senate Passes Bill.

On Saturday the Senate passed the Anti-Tobacco Trust Bill, that providing for payment of bounties on crude petroleum, the bill to amend Animals' Contagious Diseases Act and the bill to amend the Militia Act was read a second time.

DUTY BROWNED.

Passenger Train Went Through a Bridge at Pinos, Colorado.

Pueblo, Colo., Aug. 5.—A Rio Grande passenger train, due here at 8.15 p.m., went through a bridge at Pinos at 7.50 o'clock last night. The engine and five coaches were wrecked and a number of passengers injured. Later it was reported that between 30 and 50 persons have been drowned in the wreck near Pinos, many of them Pueblo residents.

Two Men Electrocuted.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 5.—A fatal accident occurred at the new power station of the British Columbia Electric Railway Co. Saturday morning, resulting in the death of two men, R. L. Green and J. Bays. They were engaged in laying a cement floor and Bay's hat fell off. In reaching to regain it, he came in contact with a high potential wire, and the current of a hundred horse-power passed through him. Green came to his assistance and also touched the live wire. Bays was instantly killed, while Green lingered until 4 o'clock.

Killed By a Car.

Montreal, Aug. 5.—The city was shocked yesterday to learn that Mr. A. J. DeCarriveau, a well known railway promoter, had died at midnight as the result of an accident at Victoria Square. Mr. DeCarriveau, when crossing Victoria Square with his automobile, came into contact with a street car, throwing him to the sidewalk and crushing in his skull. He never regained consciousness, and died at midnight.

Drowned at Bayfield.

Clinton, Aug. 5.—George Osborne, of this place, the only son and support of a widowed mother, was drowned in the Bayfield River at Bayfield Saturday morning. He is supposed to have taken cramps. The deceased was a good swimmer.

Drowned in the Don.

Toronto, Aug. 5.—That dangerous bathing place in the Don, north of the Winchester street bridge, claimed another victim yesterday afternoon. Norman Levi, aged 18, who lived with his parents at 59 Edward street, was drowned. He had been in swimming.

Unknown Man Killed.

Toronto, Aug. 5.—Yesterday afternoon an unknown man was run over by a Grand Trunk train, near the Dundas street bridge, and killed. He was about 60 years of age, grey hair and moustache and dressed as a respectable working man.

Hastings Star Keeper Injured.

Hastings, Ont., Aug. 5.—A Hastings lacrosse player was badly injured at Havelock in Friday's match. While Havelock were trying to score, Easterbrook of Havelock struck T. E. Scriver, the editor of The Hastings Star, over the eye, completely bursting it. As there was no doctor in the town he was taken to Norwood, where he had medical attendance. He left Saturday morning for the hospital in Toronto, where he is undergoing an operation to have his eye removed.

MURDER AT WINDSOR, N.S.

Wm. Haley, Angered at a Boy's Joking, Stabs His Brother.

Halifax, N. S., Aug. 5.—The town of Windsor was the scene of a cold-blooded murder on Saturday night, when Eddie Dill, a young man of 18 years, was stabbed to death by William Haley.

Both were residents of Martock, a few miles distant from Windsor. Dill and a numerous party, including his younger brother, had been spending the evening in the town and on starting for home about 11 o'clock they were joined by Haley, who was also on his way home. They stopped to do a little shopping and during the short time they were together Haley was the butt of a good deal of joking on the part of Dill's younger brother, which he resented.

Dill championed his brother's cause and a row ensued, during which Haley drew a knife from his pocket, deliberately opened it and stabbed Dill over the heart, the blow penetrating that organ. The stricken youth staggered a few paces and fell, dying in two or three minutes.

Haley did not stop to see the result, but kept on, and when arrested was three miles from the scene. He is a married man with a sick wife and five small children. There are now two men in Windsor jail held for murder, and in each case the victim was a boy and the crime caused through teasing.

Mrs. Murphy Dies Aged 134.

Meadville, Pa., Aug. 5.—Mrs. Mary Murphy, the oldest person in the State, if her age is correctly reported, died Saturday in Kerrtown, aged nearly 134 years. Mrs. Murphy a few months ago said: "I was born in Dublin, Ireland, on Christmas Day, 1770, and came to America in May, 1870, when I was in my one hundredth year. I was 28 years old when the Irish rebellion took place in 1798, and my first husband was a soldier. I was 33 years old when Robert Emmett was executed for treason, Sept. 20, 1803." Mrs. Murphy is survived by her second husband.

Torpedoed a President.

Montevideo, Uruguay, Aug. 5.—An attempt was made upon the life of President Battle y Ordonez Saturday as he was driving his family. As the party was passing along one of the principal streets of the city a buried torpedo was exploded at the side of the carriage. The explosion tore up the track of the railway running through the street and the pavement. No one was injured.

Inherited, as It Were.

Professor—Yes, sir, your daughter is pretty well grounded in French, but it will, of course, take some time and trouble for her to acquire fluency. Father—Well, you know, that's rather strange to me. I had an idea that the fluency would have come sort of natural to her.

How the Engagement Was Broken.

"I can't make you out at all," he said angrily. "You're so fickle and changeable. You're just a riddle to me."

"Yes?" replied his fiancee. "Since you're so stupid perhaps you'd better give me up."

What Did She Mean?

"If you feel chilly," said he as they strolled, "remember I have your shawl here on my arm."

"You might put it around me," she said demurely.

Reason of His Alacrity.

"How on earth did you ever get a messenger boy to deliver your note and bring back the answer so quick?"

"I took his novel away from him and held it as security."—Exchange.

I like the laughter that opens the lips and the heart—that shows at the same time pearls and the soul.—Victor Hugo.

London, Aug. 6.—Thirteen factories offered 1970 boxes; sales, 300 boxes at 7¾c.

March of the Idle Army.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—In a parade several miles in length 25,000 strikers and their families encircled the stock yards district Saturday, and gave the first public demonstration since the strike was called on July 12. With banners flying, they marched to lively music from a dozen bands, and wound up with a picnic at Oswald's Grove, 52nd street and Ashland avenue. The procession started at 10.30 o'clock, and it was 2.30 o'clock before the last of the line reached the picnic grounds. It was a parade of the nations, for men subjects of nearly every ruler in the world being in line. Hundreds of children, dressed in white and waving flags, marched at the head of the women workers.

HEART PAINS AND INDIGESTION

Mr. J. Law, 347 Hunter street, Peterborough, and who is employed with the Peter Hamilton Co., states: "For a long time I was troubled with severe splitting headaches and suffered a great deal with pains in the region of my heart, caused no doubt by indigestion. I procured a box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and began this treatment. Since using this preparation for some time I can say that I feel quite different, and my health is very much improved. My digestion is good, and the headaches and pains about the heart have not troubled me at all of late. I can sincerely recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food as a thorough cure for nervous dyspepsia and its accompanying symptoms."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

GOLF.

The Lambton Golf Club dozen who came down from Toronto on Saturday and played representatives of the local club here, won quite a victory, the score being 47 to 10. When seen with reference to the game a local player stated that opportunity was given to some of the younger players to show their ability on Saturday. It was a very fine game all through. Had some of the older members played the score might have been more satisfactory to Peterborough. Lawrence, it is considered, made a very good showing against Lyons, the ex-champion; in holding him down to seven, and the opinion is that he can do better than this. Rosedale will play here next Saturday, and the return game with Lambton will be pulled off on the 16th. A number of players from Barrie will be given a game to-day. Following are Saturday's scores:—

THE TRENT WATERWAY

In a debate on the route to be adopted for the outlet of the Trent Waterway, Col. Ward, M.P. for East Durham, brought forward a charge that the Government had made a very improvident bargain with Senator Cox and the Bank of Commerce in regard to the Nassau Dam and waterpower, whereby the favored recipients would make many tens of thousands of dollars at the public expense. The condensed reports do not give a very clear account of Col. Ward's contention, and it will be some days before Hansard comes to hand with full particulars. In brief, what Col. Ward said, and the statement was not challenged, was this:—"In September, soon after the Liberal Government was elected, the Government undertook by an Order-in-Council to take over the water power at Nassau. The power had been acquired by the Bank of Commerce, of which Senator Cox was president. Nothing was done until 1900, after the next election, when the agreement was carried out. The Government undertook to pay $30,000 for the site, and "certain interest thereon." This interest probably was for the four years since 1896, when the Order-in-Council was passed. The Government took over the old dam. They obtained the site and built a new dam, which they undertook to maintain in perpetuity. They were only to use whatever power they needed for the operation of the canal, which was about 1-72 of the whole power at most. The balance of the power was leased by the bank to the Canadian General Electric Company at $8 624 per annum for 20 years. The bank thus got $30,000 and four years' interest thereon, a new dam, and $8,624 a year for 20 years, and all they gave up was the site, which none but would in the end revert to the bank."

ANOTHER ONE SURPRISED

AT THE VERDICT RENDERED IN THE RACENT INQUEST.

Justice Writes in Regard to the Accident—Sufficient Precaution Should Have Been Taken.

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir.—Mr. Kidd is not the only one surprised at the verdict given by thirteen men who anyone would suppose were possessed of sufficient intelligence to render a fair and unbiased verdict according to the facts given, which were as follows:

We find two portions of the boat, one at the stern, the other at the bow, surrounded by railings put there for the protection of someone (it matters not whom) that would scarcely carry their own weight; in fact portions of it gone and a portion of it falling out and carrying to her death one who would be living to-day had it not been for the faulty and careless condition of this railing and for all the effect that this verdict may have this condition of affairs may continue to exist until this death trap of a railing has all fallen into the river and possibly carried others to a watery grave.

It has been stated that warnings were given that this was not a place for passengers, yet not one of the dozen that were said to have been on the bow of the boat at the time heard any such warning and is it at all possible that Olive Kidd heard such warning when others did not? The only evidence that such a warning was given was that given by a man who was standing close to the captain. Neither should such warning be considered sufficient, particularly as regards children; they should have been spoken to with no uncertain sound and if this did not have the desired effect they should have been forcibly removed from any portion of the boat they had no right to be on, particularly any portions of the boat that was not considered safe or set with death traps as this proved to have been.

While the plea is given that it is no place for passengers it is certainly a pleasant place to occupy and one that children and young people would most likely go to unless positively prevented, which they were not on this occasion at least. This is also the way on and off the boat, and we all know how people congregate at the exit of boats and this railing was the supposed protection and support to prevent people from being crowded into the water and what kind of a railing do we find? Why the most flimsy, shaky kind of an affair, constructed of pipes having standards and rails connected with the connections with the rail in at least one place disconnected from the standard and the woodwork so rotted about some of the standards as to leave them loose. What do we find in regard to that portion of the rail which is lifted to let passengers on and off the boat, and which was the portion which gave way in this instance? The cabin end of the rail had to be lifted but two or three inches to allow it to pull outward and carry anyone with it, which was very likely to occur to anyone having their hands on it on account of the lowness of it. This, I am informed, occurred to one other passenger that evening but fortunately did not carry them overboard. I would think that anyone seeing this railing and particularly that part which is removable to allow passengers to go on and off would consider it very insufficient and very faulty in construction. The bar which fell out should have had such a fastening on it that it required some special act or operation to open, not one that was liable to be opened unknowingly or accidentally by anyone placing their hands upon it.

I am informed that Mr. Kidd in objecting to this verdict does so not with any object of injuring the captain or his boat but with the object of placing the responsibility of the drowning of this child where it properly belongs, and in the hope that such action will be taken in the matter that similar accidents may not happen to others, and that some action may be taken to make not only this boat but all others reasonably safe.

JUSTICE.

WEEDS

The Municipality an Offender Doing Mischief and Setting a Bad Example.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—I notice that the Chief is great on weeds these dog days. The Chief is also great on dogs on off days.

Yes, the chief is large on matters of minor importance; is small, very small, at times when he could, if he wished to do his duty, and not be only officious with matters that pertain to the citizens as a body. When I say the Chief, it may mean the Chief as an official, it may mean the Chief as representing others.

Summons the poor man or the working widow who have neglected to cut down the burdocks in a ten by twelve back yard, or neglect to have the snow removed within the limited time from in front of their dwellings, or neglect or refuse to empty a three by six pit. Summons them, and our P.M. promptly imposes the fine and the costs.

What about enforcing the contract to remove the snow from the outskirts that mechanics and school children have to trudge mile after mile through.

Why are not the pavements kept clear of dozens of large packing cases that for hours inconvenience the citizens day after day?

Why is the litter of paper left on the main street to the annoyance and danger of people driving? Any citizen can see where it comes from. Why not the police, who are paid for looking after this nuisance?

Why is the Street Railway permitted to tear up and leave in such an extremely dangerous state as they have been and are doing pit after pit for blocks left open and without lights or any notice or protection whatever?

Livery men complain that every vehicle that has gone out lately through the streets of the town has come in twisted, braces broken, bolts loosened, that several accidents have occurred, and many narrow escapes from serious ones.

And then as to the weeds. If the town officials wish the citizens to carry out the by-laws by removing the weeds from their respective premises, why do they not set an example by removing them from the streets and before they go to seed. Mile after mile all this summer the weeds on the street line on both sides have been allowed to grow up and mature and cast their seeds into the very yards that last year were clear and free from them, with the result that next year the people will be put to the expense again of removing and run the risk of being summoned to pay a fine and costs for non-removal within the time limited.

The Chief should say to the town engineer or his assistant, or his assistant's assistant, or to the Council: "It is a burlesque for me to summons a citizen for non-removal of his weeds," when for blocks on the street he rides on the town allows the same weeds to grow without hindrance.

DUNDONALD IN ENGLAND.

Says Canadian People Are the Best in the World.

London, Aug. 8.—Lord Dundonald arrived here quietly. He was met by a few friends at Euston Station, and drove immediately home.

Canadian Associated Press cable says: Lord Dundonald, interviewed at Liverpool, said it was inadvisable to make any statement respecting the cause of his departure from Canada. He had decided not to say anything until he reported himself at the War Office. It was not a fact that he had expedited his return home owing to a message from the Secretary of State for War.

He added: "The Canadian people are the best in the world."

Liberals Retain Reading Seat.

London, Aug. 8.—A Parliamentary bye-election in Reading Saturday resulted in the return of Rufus Isaacs, the Liberal candidate, who received 4,700 votes against 4,540 cast for C. E. Keyser, his Conservative opponent. The district was previously represented by a Liberal.

THE FIRST HENCHMEN.

They Were Young Nobles Who Acted as Pages to the King.

Skeat derives the word henchman from hengstman (Anglo-Saxon), hernman, groom. It is probable that henchmen were in the first instance young nobles who at state ceremonies attended on the king as mounted pages.

History speaks of these henchmen in this capacity, for we read that Henry VI. had three and Edward IV. six of them. We find, too, that they were mentioned in the royal ceremonies as belonging "to the riding household" and took part in tournaments.

The last time "henchman" is mentioned in connection with the court is in the reign of Henry VIII., and gradually it came to mean an ordinary page. The word is used by Ben Jonson and Shakespeare in this sense.

In an English journal of April 6, 1661, a Mr. W. Henchman claims that his family took their name from words spoken by Henry VII. to an ancestor in the hunting field, who had ridden as his page throughout an arduous day. "Cressborough," cried the king, "thou art a veritable henchman!"

Mr. Shaw's many friends greatly enjoyed hearing him again, and hope to have the same pleasure in the near future.

WEALTHY ROMANS.

Immense Fortunes Were Not Uncommon in the Old Days.

When L. Calpurnius Piso was appointed governor of Macedonia a year, he drew for his outfit from the public treasury 18,000,000 sesterces, or £150,000. He did not want this money for that purpose. Everything necessary by a proconsul was supplied by the province. Piso simply took the money for himself and loaned it in Rome at high interest. For this he was charged by Cicero with having robbed Sicily of £250,000 in this way, besides many valuable works of art. He practically admitted his guilt by retiring from Rome without attempting any defense. Cicero when governor of the poor province of Cilicia found himself the richer in one year by £20,000, and he was perhaps the only proconsul who ever handed over his surplus to the state.

There can be no doubt that Cicero and the younger Pliny received large sums from their clients while those clients were still living. Balbus is not likely to have secured the argument "Pro Balbo" for a mere trifle. And the gratitude of Sicily for the prosecution of Verres undoubtedly took a very substantial form. Apart from all such honoraria, it is recorded that Cicero and the younger Pliny received legacies from clients to the amount of £170,000. Gibbon tells us, on the authority of Olympiodorus, that several of the richest senators had an income of £160,000 a year without computing the stated provision of corn and wine. —London Globe.

ROYAL ASCOT.

This Famous English Race Course Was Queen Anne's Idea.

Ascot well deserves its proud prefix "royal," for it may claim to be the child of a queen, and certainly it has been a prime favorite with nearly all her successors on the throne.

It was Queen Anne who, when she was riding one day over Ascot common, saw what a splendid site it would make for a race course, and she forthwith determined that a course there should be and that she herself would offer a plate to be raced for. Thus it came about that the "London Gazette of July 12, 1711, contained this announcement: "Her majesty's plate of 100 guineas will be run for round the new heat on Ascot common, near Windsor, on Tuesday, Aug. 7 next, by any horse or mare, being no more than six years old the grass before, carrying twelve stone, three heats, to be entered the last day of July at Mr. Hancock's at Fern Hill, near the starting post."

Three times that year Queen Anne traveled in state to see the racing on Ascot common, and on one occasion, we are told, she was accompanied by Miss Forester, a maid of honor, who was "dressed like a man, with a long white riding coat, a full flapped waistcoat and a small cocked hat, three cornered, bound with broad gold lace, the point placed full in front over a white powdered, long flowing periwig."

The Way Jokai Worked.

One who knew Jokai, the Hungarian writer, says that the novelist never troubled to work out his plot in detail beforehand. "He trusted to his imagination for guidance as to what his characters were to do at a given moment, and often when he had completed a chapter of feuilleton which half Hungary was waiting to read he would remark to his friends as the printer's devil rushed away with the copy, 'I should like to know what those people will find to do and say tomorrow.' Jokai started his characters on their careers, eulogizing them if he liked them or caricaturing them if he meant them to excite amusement or derision, and then let them work out their own destinies across the pages of his manuscript."

End of the Game.

It was his move.

He made it, captured a pawn and announced:

"Mate!"

"I see," she pouted. "But you had the advantage of a bishop."

"Some day, Bella," he whispered, pursuing the advantage, "may I mate you with the assistance of just a common preacher?"

After which there was no more chess playing.

Be Just a Man.

Don't be a gentleman. Lincoln was a man. Who ever spoke of the "gentlemanly Shakespeare?" Think of describing Grant as a gentleman! How would it look in history to read about our great gentleman, George Washington? Nobody ever dubbed Solomon with the name of "gentleman." "A gentleman" is the snob's title for a do nothing, a fellow about town, a taller made loafer, a confidence shark or a society stalk. Be a man.

Another Rousing Week

Pared Prices

No half measures about this store when we decide to see the last of summer lines. This week's business is to be again characterized by plenty of pruned prices. Fractional quotations will rule.

People who come to the Golden Lion in response to our printed announcements, find the advantages we offer every time. Those who have been the rounds say there is nothing in town ahead of Fair's values. The startling changes in prices this week will interest keen buyers. We misjudged the quantity of untrimmed Hats we could sell during July—weather conditions were against us. Now we must take our bitter pill. Here are some details of pared prices worth reading:

ONE LOT—15 DOZEN, ladies' high class untrimmed Straw Hats, in rustic and colored straws, all this season's styles. On exhibition in our show windows. Former price $1.25 to $2.50, your choice for 25c

GENERAL STOESSEL SUICIDES

Fate of Commander in Panic-stricken Port Arthur.

KUROKI THREATENS MUKDEN

Fight Progressing North of Haicheng—Marquis Oyama Expects to Attack Liaoyang on August 20—Firing at Fortress Distinctly Heard at Che Foo—Jap Cruisers Lost.

London, Aug. 9.—According to the correspondent of The Morning Post at Shanghai, it is reported there that there are 10,000 sick and wounded persons at Port Arthur, and that the Russians are negotiating with the Japanese to send the hospital ship Mongolia away full of sick.

Gen. Stoessel Suicides.

It is reported, the correspondent says, that Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel (in command of the military force at Port Arthur), has committed suicide, and that panic prevails at Port Arthur.

Writing to a friend in St. Petersburg recently, Gen. Stoessel, the commander of Port Arthur, said: "I do not know if we shall ever see each other again. My own decision, orders or no orders, is, however, made. My life is given to Russia—whatever happens, I do not surrender. Port Arthur shall be my tomb."

Japs to Attack Liaoyang

Marquis Oyama, commander-in-chief of the Japanese forces in Manchuria, has proceeded north and expects to attack Liaoyang, Aug. 20.

7 Miles From Fortress.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 9.—A despatch from Mukden, dated Aug. 8, says the fighting at Port Arthur from July 26 to 28 occurred at least seven miles from the fortress, and that not all the guns of the batteries facing inland were engaged.

Firing at Fortress.

Che Foo, Aug. 9.—The firing of heavy guns at intervals of one minute has been distinctly heard in the direction of Port Arthur since 10.30 p.m. yesterday, the accoustic conditions of the atmosphere being unusually favorable.

Two Since Repaired.

Che Foo, Aug. 9.—A reliable authority says that eight Russian warships participated in the recent three days' battle at Port Arthur. Since then the Sevastopol and the Amur have been repaired.

Two Jap Cruisers Lost.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 8.—A private telegram from Chee Foo, believed to be from the Russian consul there, reports the loss of the Japanese protected cruisers Chiyoda and Itsukushima by the explosion of mines off Port Arthur.

Russians Going North.

Gen. Kuroki's headquarters in the field, via Fusan, Aug. 8.—The Russian forces in front of Gen. Kuroki's army are reported retreating northward. A part of it has encamped at Auping, twelve miles from Liaoyang. Guns were heard yesterday morning on the Japanese right, meaning that possibly the Japanese are following the Russian retirement. The Chinese living at Yangtse Pass, where Count Keller was killed, say that the Russians removed two coffins from that place with great ceremony.

North of Haicheng.

Berlin, Aug. 9.—The Tageblatt yesterday morning prints the following despatch:

Liaoyang, Aug. 9.—The western Russian forces north of Kaicheng suffered a heavy attack to-day. Many wounded Russians are here. There is a rumor current that Gen. Kuroki is threatening Mukden from the northeast. Viceroy Alexieff and Gen. Kuropatkin were yesterday in Liaoyang.

Canadian Boat Wins.

Montreal, Aug. 9.—The third race for the Sawamaheka Cup, which was sailed on Lake St. Louis yesterday afternoon over a straight away course, two miles to windward and return, sailed over three times, resulted in a victory for the Canadian boat Neerna, which finished three minutes 45 seconds ahead of the American boat, the White Bear. The Canadian boat was nearly a mile ahead at the finish.

WRECKED NEAR PUEBLO

Crowded Cars of World's Fair Flyer Drop Through Bridge.

Number Killed Unknown—Seventy-Six Bodies Already Recovered—Two Crowded Passenger Cars and a Baggage Car Engulfed in Torrent in Dry Creek, and Only Three of Those in These Cars Escaped Death.

Pueblo, Col., Aug. 9.—The wreck of the World's Fair Flyer on the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad, near Eden, seven miles north of Pueblo, Sunday evening, proves to have been one of the greatest railroad disasters in the history of the country. Two crowded passenger cars and a baggage car were engulfed in the torrent that tore out a trestle spanning Steele's Hollow, otherwise known as Dry Creek, and so far as was known last night only three of the occupants of these cars escaped death. Fortunately two sleeping cars and a diner completing the train remained on the track at the edge of the abyss and none of their occupants were killed or injured. How many perished probably never will be definitely ascertained, for the treacherous sands are drifting over the bodies.

Searching for the dead was begun about midnight on an extensive scale and was still in progress last night. All the corpses found were brought to Pueblo and placed in four morgues here. At 8 o'clock last evening seventy-six bodies had been recovered, and of these forty-nine had been identified. During the day bodies were recovered all the way along Fountain River from the scene of the wreck to this city. At 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon two bodies were taken from the stream at First street, Pueblo, more than eight miles from the point where the disaster occurred, and it is probable that some may be even recovered farther down stream.

None of the bodies are badly mutilated, and all are in such condition as to be recognizable. Many identifications have been made by articles found on the bodies, as persons who viewed them recognizing the features.

FELL FROM DORCHESTER.

J. A. MacPherson Leading Cheese and Butter Dealer, Drowns.

Montreal, Aug. 9.—J. A. MacPherson, one of the leading cheese and butter dealers of the Dominion, fell from the steamer Dorchester yesterday at Cornea Landing, and was drowned. He had been ailing for some months past and was coming from his country home at Stanley Island, accompanied by his physician, Dr. George T. Rose. The body has not yet been recovered.

Over the Falls.

Niagara Falls, Aug. 9.—Yesterday morning about 11.15 o'clock a woman about 55 years old, dressed in black, committed suicide by climbing over the railing of the lower steel arch bridge and plunging to death in the rapids below. The act was witnessed by a tourist and his son. Nothing was left behind which would lead to the identity of the suicide.

Boy's Body Was Found.

St. Catharines, Aug. 9.—On Tuesday last Freddie, the seven-year-old son of L. Lombardo, here, went to Port Dalhousie to fish, disregarding his father's orders to the contrary. He was last seen fishing off the end of the pier. His father and several other men after a search which never lagged, yesterday found the little fellow's body in the lake. He had evidently slipped off the pier.

Found Drowned.

Toronto, Aug. 9.—The body of Patrick Fox, who was missing since last Tuesday, was found in the bay near the Yonge street wharf yesterday. He was 65 years of age and was in the habit of strolling along the water front. John Fox, chief engineer at the O'Keefe Brewery, is a son.

Family in Ontario.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 9.—Wesley Hawley, a motorman employed by the B.C. Electric Company, has been missing since the night of the men's outing on Thursday last. He was then seen last in the dancing pavilion, North Vancouver, and it is feared that he either fell off the wharf or off the ferry-boat. Search parties are out, but so far have not recovered the body. Hawley was a widower and has a family in Ontario.

Explosion in Toronto.

Toronto, Aug. 9.—By the bursting of a five-inch steam pipe in the engine room of the Toronto Street Railway power house at 1 o'clock this morning, three men received bad scalp scalds. The break was caused by over-pressure on the pipe, which led from the boiler to the engine. Joseph Casey, —— Perry and Joseph Hughes were the victims, but Casey is the worst his arm and hand being fearfully scalded.

Shaft Pierced Horse.

Guelph, Aug. 9.—John Vogt, hotelkeeper of Morriston, met with an accident Sunday while driving within a hundred yards of his house. A vehicle, driven by two young men from Preston, ran into him. The shaft struck Vogt's horse, running through its side. Mr. Vogt was thrown out and injured rather seriously. The horse was killed.

Not For Citizen Dick.

London, Aug. 9.—Hon. Alfred Lyttleton, in reply to a petition from the Maoris that Premier Seddon be appointed governor of New Zealand, stated that His Majesty was well aware of and appreciates highly the services of Mr. Seddon, but it would be contrary to universal precedent to appoint as governor any gentleman who had been prominently engaged in the politics of the colony.

Lightning Causes Big Loss.

Fergus, Aug. 9.—Another disastrous storm passed over here Sunday afternoon between 3 and 4 o'clock. There was a very heavy rain, with hail, which could be gathered up in pails full. It was accompanied with wind and severe thunder and lightning. One flash struck in the corner of Alex. Brown's magnificent barn on the Belwood road, two miles out, and in an instant the blaze was seen in the barn from the house. It, and all its contents, were soon destroyed. Nothing could be saved. There was insurance to the amount of about $6,500, but the loss will be heavy.

FISHER'S PLOT

By committing a forgery in a recommendation to commit over the signature of Lord Dundonald, the Minister of Agriculture endeavored to make the General responsible in the eyes of the people for the infamy of Mr. Fisher himself. A cousin-in-law of Dr. Pickel has exposed the corruption of the Minister of Agriculture and his Quebec ally, forcing them to throw up the sponge. So Lord Dundonald was represented as guilty of the spiteful act of refusing to allow this gentleman to serve his King and country. If Mr. Fisher had really been acting Minister of Militia, which was only one of the falsehoods which he uses so profusely, this would have been no excuse for his committing a forgery and transmitting it in an official communication to Lord Minto as a recommendation by Lord Dundonald.

For months before this culmination of his corrupt crime Mr. Fisher had been insulting Col. Smart, to mutiny by obeying the orders of the Minister of Agriculture, instead of those of the Minister of Militia conveyed through the general commanding. He dragooned the colonel of the regiment, who had the right of selection, by threatening that the corps should not be gazetted unless this choice of officers was accepted. By this tyrannical interference he foisted upon the colonel the responsibility for the disgraceful choice of officers through corruption and personal pique.

This is the treatment accorded to a gallant and distinguished soldier by a man who is a corrupt politician notoriously dishonest in money matters and with his own description of himself enshrined in the pages of Hansard as having to eat his own deliberate typewritten falsehoods within the space of an hour.

The Toronto Telegram says:

"Keep both hands on the Union Jack" may suit some people, but the Globe is free to express its preference for these inspiring words:

"Can't you forget some of the things?

More official cars! Mr. Minister takes a jaunt to Glengarry, a Deputy Minister has a picnic party to California, a Minister sends a car to Winnipeg to bring down his father for a Christmas visit. And now they are providing two more official cars. Let us hear from Senator McMullen.

It is said by the friends of Fisher and Borden that Lord Dundonald's advice to hold on to the Union Jack was unnecessary. It was very timely and fitting, when a member of the Laurier administration was in London threatening at a public meeting that we would sever the tie with the Empire.

It looks very much as if the Liberal Port Hope Guide when it charged Senator Cox with grafting in connection with the water-power down the Trent, was only mistaken as to the locality, and should have said "up the Otonabee." If so, its suggestion that Mr. Cox has already had enough annual advantages still holds good.

In its report of the debate in the House on Saturday as to the Trent Waterway, the Globe does not give one word of the serious charge made by Col. Ward of a graft in favour of Senator Cox and the Bank of Commerce. This is very significant and with the silence of the Ministry gives a very serious aspect to the affair. There should be an official explanation.

The Montreal Gazette says:

"The Herald is alarmed lest the British War Office should punish Lord Dundonald too severely. There is no necessity for worrying. The British government will not deprive itself of the services of one of the most brilliant soldiers of the day in order to help the Laurier administration convince itself that it did not make a greater mistake than did Lord Dundonald."

Objection is taken by the St. John Telegraph to Mr. Chamberlain saying that "Canada is continuously tempted by offers of commercial union with the United States" Evidently Mr. Chamberlain is better acquainted with matters concerning Canada than the Telegram. There is not a week, hardly a day, but what we have our attention called to newspaper editorials, resolutions of Board of Trade and similar bodies, and speeches at public meetings, all favouring this idea.

Sir H. E. Tascherean says he gave no public expression of opinion in London on the Dundonald affair, but the Canadian Tory press gave it for him. The message sent by cable was paid for by the Laurier administration which heavily subsidizes the so-called Canadian Press Association to transmit garbled and dishonest reports. It seems to be run by the criminals whom Sir Richard Cartwright and his colleagues send to England to misrepresent us in reward for their crimes. Possibly Sir H. E. Taschereau whispered his private opinion to one of the scoundrels.

The Kingston Whig says:—

"It was not proper for the general officer commanding the militia to open fire upon the government at a banquet in Montreal, and to accuse it of intriguing against him. That was a gratuitous insult which no government, Liberal or Conservative, would tolerate."

Lord Dundonald, as the official government papers show, did not attack the Government, saying that he limited his criticism to interference from outside the department. He attacked Mr. Fisher, a corrupt politician, dishonest in money matters and with no regard for the truth, who had no more right to interfere with Lord Dundonald's official duties than he has with the management of the Whig.

CEMENT FOR CANAL LOCK

Canada Showing the United States the Way—The Peterborough Lock

New York, Aug. 8.—The Sun publishes the following special Buffalo despatch:—

"Col. Thomas W. Symons, a member of the Advisory Board of Consulting Engineers, of the 1,000 ton barge canal project, said here this afternoon that the answer of the engineers to the demand of stonecutters, stonemasons and bricklayers, in reference to the construction of canal locks was to be found in the specifications now being prepared, and which will call for the construction of cement locks. The stonecutters, stonemasons and bricklayers have demanded that the locks be built of stone. Col. Symons says that cement is better than stone, and if stone is used it will increase the cost of the canal by several millions of dollars.

"Chairman Bond, of the Advisory Board of Consulting Engineers, Col. Symonds and E. L. Corthell, members of the board, have just returned from the Trent Valley Canal, Canada, where they inspected the largest lift lock in the world, a lock with a lift of sixty-five feet, which has just been completed, and which is of cement construction. The find the the stone parts of the Trent Valley Canal leaky and defective, while the cement portions could not be improved."

When your Child Suffers

For lack of knowledge of the value of Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for eczema, many a mother has been worn out in the effort to relieve her child of suffering. Eczema, scald head and other forms of itching skin disease are common to children, especially during the teething period. Though readily cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment, eczema, if neglected, becomes chronic and may last for years.

THE TRENT WATERWAY

Mr. Haggart. Will the minister tell us about the lift locks?

Mr. Emmerson. I think there was a question by the hon. member for South Simcoe (Mr. Lennox) in respect to the route at the Georgian Bay end. He referred to the alternative to the Severn, or river route as it is called. That alternative route around by Barrie to which he refers was surveyed some years ago by Mr. Rubidge, an engineer connected with the canals of Canada for a great many years and who had recently died. He had a very large experience in connection with the canal.

Mr. Clarke. A very able man.

Mr. Emmerson. So I understand. He surveyed that route and reported, as I have been led to understand, condemnatory of it. He favoured what is known as the river route. I simply call my hon. friend's attention to the fact because he may not have heard of it, or he may not have known that the matter was ever under consideration. It appears that it was. My hon. friend from South Lanark (Mr. Haggart) has asked me a question with respect to comparisons between the ordinary lock and and the hydraulic lift lock. One set of ordinary locks would consist of five as compared with one hydraulic lock, or double lock as it is called. The capital cost of one set of five ordinary locks would be $275,000. One hydraulic lock, double cost, costs $85,000. The cost of maintenance and wages on the five ordinary locks requiring twenty lockmen, two men to each lock with day and night shifts, each man at $400, is $8,000. The wages in connection with the working of the hydraulic lift-lock would be, for a lock master, one during the day and one at night, and four gatemen, $2,500, as against $8,000 for the five ordinary locks. The annual repairs to the five ordinary locks would be $1,000. They would cost about $450 each.

Mr. Clarke. It would cost $1,450 if there were five locks?

Mr Emmerson. Yes. The annual repairs to one hydraulic lock are estimated at $100. An element to be considered is the time of locking. With the five ordinary locks, sixty-five feet, one and a half minutes per foot it will take one and a half hours for one vessel going up or down or if two vessels go through the locks at the same time it will take one of them one and a half hours, while it will take the other vessel three hours to get through. By the hydraulic lock both vessels will pass through at the same time in twelve minutes. If the savings in wages and repairs $6,450, in favor of the hydraulic lock over one set of five ordinary locks is capitalized at three per cent it will be equal to a sum considerably above $200,000. This, if deducted from the capital cost of the hydraulic, will leave the cost of the hydraulic lock very little more than the cost of one set of five ordinary locks, while the advantage in the saving of time by the use of the hydraulic lock is vastly greater than by the use of one set of five ordinary locks. These are the views of the engineer, Mr. Rogers, who is in charge of that work and who is certainly to be commended for the efficiency displayed by him in the carrying out of the work.

Mr. Haggart. When will the canal be completed to Lake Simcoe?

Mr. Emmerson. In about a year; when the other hydraulic lift is finished.

Mr. Lennox. The hon. minister has not noticed my question as to whether it is the policy of the government to make immediate provision for the completion of the work not in sections and by dribbling out an amount of money each year, but as I suggested this afternoon by the making of provision for the immediate finishing of the work. I do not know whether the hon. minister takes it seriously. I think he does. Certainly the hon. Postmaster General does not take it seriously and I think the country is entitled to some explanation as to how it happens that after the boast that has been made by the Postmaster General as to the rapid way in which the present government have been carrying on the work, as to the generous way in which they have been providing money to carry on this work, we are only asked for an appropriation of $100,000 at the present time. The hon. Postmaster General says that according to the rate at which we were proceeding under the Conservative administration it would have taken a great many years to complete the work.

Sir William Mulock. About two hundred.

Mr. Lennox. That is the hon. gentleman's way of stating it but it does not figure out. According to actual computation, according to the rate at which we are asked to vote money for this enterprise now, it will take at least 150 years to complete the work. Estimating that it will cost $7,000,000 it will take seventy years by dividing up the time. If you take into consideration that works are always deteriorating as they progress and if you take into account the additional sums of money that will therefore require to be expended during that time it will certainly take a century and a half at the present rate of progress before you may expect the completion of the work. The hon. Postmaster General points out that this work is proving very productive and beneficial at the present time; in fact he says it is exceedingly beneficial, that this is a magnificent work and one of the greatest possible amusement to the people located along the line of that portion of the canal which is now open. But, it is sealed at both ends and it is not a little of the benefit to the people that it will be if you open up the two ends. We have been working in the centre and it is the duty of the government to set to work vigorously and open up the ends. The hon. Minister of Railways and Canals says that he does not know whether I ever heard of the surveys. Why, I live right alongside of where the surveys have taken place. We know a great deal about the canal, we are interested in it, and I am amazed to think that the hon. member for North Simcoe (Mr. McCarthy) who mentioned to the government has never brought to the attention of the hon. Minister of Railways and Canals the fact that the people of North Simcoe are immensely interested in this matter. We have been studying up the reports of the engineers. The people of North Simcoe are greatly interested in the question as to what the Transportation Commission is going to do, and and whether the route is by way of Barrie or by the way of Orillia and through Midland by the Severn River the project is still one of great importance to the people of North Simcoe.

I am sorry that the minister does not realize that all the Simcoes, and especially North Simcoe are interested in this matter. The town of Barrie has the happy fortune of being now connected with South Simcoe and by reason of my political connection with it in the future. I am urging upon the minister the importance of getting to work seriously. It took $100,000 for such a work as this from any source but the government. I would say it was an insult to the intelligence of the people. Why, when this lift-lock has been opened and communication made between the two divisions of the canal, should this vote be cut down to $100,000? The Postmaster General easily considers that the public are watching for the expenditure of money in such locality but I look upon this as a great national work. The people of the United States are watching us and their most eminent engineers are pointing out that this immense improvement should be developed in the interest of Canada, and they are pointing out, too, that it will probably be their greatest competitor for the trade of the western states. At the present time there is every danger, an element of the building of the so-called National Transcontinental Railway, that our trade be diverted to United States ports, and it is more than ever important that we should see to it that our water-ways should serve the purpose for which waters designed them, and that the scheme inaugurated almost a century ago, should not be allowed to lag. Now that there is congestion of traffic in the west it behoves the government to open up every avenue of transportation, and the most natural of these avenues is by Lake Superior through the Georgian Bay to Montreal and through this very canal. It will not only open up a channel for the commerce of the west, but it will have the effect of compelling railways to largely reduce rates by reason of the competition it affords. I understand that this item is not to pass, as the hon. member for Durham (Mr. Ward) wishes to speak in reference to it, and on my own behalf, until I get certain papers, I would ask the minister to allow it to stand for the present.

Mr. Emmerson. I have arranged with the hon. member for Durham (Mr. Ward) to have a discussion on this question, and if the item pass s the same opportunity will be given to my hon. friend.

Mr. Lennox. The hon. member for Durham might take the matter up when I am accidently out of the House.

Mr. Emmerson. I shall try to arrange that you will be present.

Mr. Haggart. Any way there are several items for the Trent Canal.

Mr. Lennox. Can the minister give us an idea as to whether this work will be progressed with rapidity?

Mr. Emmerson. I think I can say that the object is to make progress.

BASEBALL.

The T.A.S. baseball club will play in Orillia on Civic Holiday, when the Catholic Order of Foresters will run an excursion to that town. The game will undoubtedly be well worth seeing.

A PRESENT FOR THE OLD FOLKS.

FOR THE STOMACH'S SAKE.

An eminent physician says, "human life should last five times the years it takes to mature"—thus if twenty-one is maturity we should live over a hundred years, but there are not many reach the century mark. A great deal more longevity would exist if the stomach did not get crippled and played out—That organ gets plenty of abuse, and is deserving of attention—it is the starting point of most ailments, and it needs the first attention when symptoms of sickness appear. If an elderly stomach can be kept working right, you may be sure of a ripe and contented old age, comparatively free from physical burdens. The great new discovery, ANTI-PILL, the Great System Treatment, has a grand effect in helping old and deranged stomachs. Any aged person who will address a Postal to Wilson-Fyfe Co., Niagara Falls, Ont., will get a free trial bottle by return mail.

BALFOUR WAS FOR PEACE.

Thought Knight Commander Might Very Easily Have Developed Into Something Serious—Secretary Hay's Declaration.

London, Aug. 9.—In the House of Commons yesterday, Premier Balfour, replying to a question on the subject, said the British Government adhered to its contention that there was no adequate justification for the sinking of the British steamer Knight Commander by the Vladivostock squadron.

The Premier made a general statement of the Government's views on the Malacca and the Knight Commander incidents. He pointed out that the Government's objection to the seizure of the Malacca was based entirely on the British contention that ships issuing from the Black Sea under the commercial flag of Russia were incompetent to transport themselves into cruisers.

"We remonstrated, therefore, very strongly with the Russian Government, and they showed a desire to meet us," continued Mr. Balfour; "but an important thing to remember is that it is an entirely new issue. It is the first time any such incident has occurred since the Treaty of Paris, or the Treaty of London, on which our objection is based, have come into existence. If the Russian Government was right in its contention, the captors of the Malacca would have had the right to take her to a Russian port, and before a prize court. If we were right there was no justification for her seizure.

"Our object was to prevent this new incident developing into one which would cause a great strain between the two countries—a condition of strain which might very easily, in my opinion, have developed further. The actual arrangement reached was, therefore, in the nature of a compromise."

Secretary Hay's Declaration.

Washington, Aug. 9.—"The recognition in principle, of the treatment of coal and other fuel and raw cotton as absolutely contraband of war might ultimately lead to a total inhibition of the sale by neutrals to the people of belligerent States, of all articles which could be finally converted to military uses. Such an extension of the principle by treating coal and other fuel and raw cotton as absolutely contraband of war, simply because they are equipped by a neutral to a non-blockaded port of a belligerent would not appear to be in accord with the reasonable and lawful rights of a neutral commerce." This is a summary of a declaration by Secretary Hay on the right of neutral nations during war.

Invited to Return to Egypt.

London, Aug. 9.—The Canadian Associated Press representative learns that Sir Edouard Percy Girouard will be invited to return to the Egyptian service. Lord Cromer is anxious that Girouard should again be reassociated with the Egyptain administration. A formal request to this effect is to be made to the War Office.

Over 50,000 on Strike.

New York, Aug. 9.—The general lockout against unions in the building trades, whose members have recently ordered strikes, went into effect yesterday. The number of men affected by the lockout is variously estimated at from 50,000 to 100,000. The men yesterday repudiated the general arbitration plan signed a year ago.

Orphan Asylum Burned.

Strassburg, Alsace Lorraine, Aug. 9.—Fire yesterday destroyed a large orphan asylum and the Magdalen Church, causing damage of $1,500,000.

Mortgage For $5,000,000.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Aug. 9.—A big mortgage has been recorded in Welland County on the Canadian side of the river, being for $5,000,000, being given by the Canadian Niagara Power Company to the Toronto Trust Company. It covers all the power company's property, real and personal, together with plants, rights, privileges, etc.

Customs Streamed.

London, Aug. 9.—In reply to a request for an interview, Sir Percy Girouard wrote: "Much as I should like to oblige and give our dear Canadian people information, I fear I cannot, as the service rule precludes."

WORLD'S FAIR NEWS NOTES

Some of the Wonders that are to be Seen at the St. Louis Exposition.

An ostrich farm with a drove of sixty birds, averaging from 250 to 350 pounds, is a World's Fair feature. The birds are from a Southern California ranch.

One of the largest oranges ever grown is exhibited in the California section of the Palace of Agriculture. It measures 18 inches around and weighs 2 1-2 pounds. It is of the seedless variety.

A native orchestra is an attraction in the Visayan village on the Philippine reservation at the World's Fair. It is composed of 16 pieces, under the leadership of Juan de Losa.

A large robe, 8 by 10 feet, made from the breast feathers of the wild eagle, is one of the attractive exhibits in the Alaskan building at the World's Fair. The feathers are from the breasts of 160 young eagles and are stitched upon bear hide.

A life-sized representation of a Sioux brave on the warpath, worked in different grains raised on the Chilocco Agricultural Farm, adorns the wall in the display parlor of the Indian School at the World's Fair. William Dietz, a full-blooded Sioux, is the artist.

The largest and most complete automatic instrument in the world, an orchestrion, which combines all the instruments of an orchestra with a compass from the deepest note of the contra bass to the highest note of the piccolo, is exhibited in the German section of the Palace of Liberal Arts at the World's Fair.

A wonderful piece of embroidery, a large representation of Raphael's Sistine Madonna, by Miss Clara Ripberger, adorns the wall in the tea room of the Board of the Board of Lady Managers at the World's Fair. The picture is uniquely wrought in silk in fixed colors by a new process of "crewel stitching."

In the Burns' Cottage at the World's Fair are many interesting relics of the Scottish Bard's life. The relics include a "pewter pint measure" and a "half pint steup" of the same material, brought from Nance Tannock's Inn, at Manchline, about which the poet sang in several of his verses. That Burns drank from both of these has been proved beyond a doubt.

Twelve hundred pennies, arranged in the form of a cent, with the Indian's head outlined in the coins, are exhibited in the Palace of Liberal Arts Pat the World's Fair. Nine hundred of the pennies bear the same date, 1877. Pennies of this date are very rare, and the collection is the largest known one of rare coins of one date in America.

Several beautiful specimens of Italian cabinet-making and wood carving are shown in the Liberal Arts Palace at the World's Fair. The exhibit consists of chairs, settees, tables and other articles of furniture, each converted with elaborate hand carving and decorated with inlaid wood of various colors.

The first steam turbine that ever has been exhibited to the public is shown in the exhibit of the Westinghouse Machine Company, in Machinery Hall, at the World's Fair. Although steam turbines have been in process of construction for years it is only in the last two years that they have been perfected.

The boys of the Moro village on Arrowhead Lake in the Philippine reservation at the World's Fair furnish much amusement for visitors by giving exhibitions of swimming and diving. They are more at home in the water or in their little dugouts than on land. Running out on the elevated approaches to their huts, they jump into and threw one another into the water, or get into their canoes, row close to each other and wrestle, all the time in the best of humor. A perfect rain of coins comes to the lads from visitors.

THE CAMPERS AT KAWARTHA LAKE

HOW THEY ARE ENJOYING THE SUMMER'S OUTING.

Many Visitors from Toronto—Large Crowds are Flocking to Stoney Lake—Many Fine Pisentorial Catches are Reported.

(Toronto Star.)

Stony Lake, Aug. 6.—The crowds flocking to Stony Lake now fully sustain its reputation as one of the most popular of the Kawartha Lakes. The lake is especially beautiful in the evening when the cottages and islands are decorated with colored lights. The weather has been warm and boating, sailing and canoeing are very popular.

The disciples of Izaak Walton are enjoying themselves to their hearts' content; especially in this sector Oramede.

One of the best catches of the season was brought in Wednesday, when Mr. O'Connor of Rochester brought in a five-pound bass, which he had landed after a game fight. His many friends are much elated with his success as he was generally the Jonah of the fishing parties.

The American camp at Boshink reports one of the lucky strikes of the year when a 23-pound lunge was hauled to shore amid great excitement.

SOCIAL EVENTS.

For the last fortnight there have been many successful hops at Juniper Island pavilion. One of the most successful was held on Saturday night. Many Torontonians down for Civic Holiday took advantage of the opportunity for an informal dance. A "Paul Jones" brought the evening to a close at a late hour and the paddle home in the moonlight was undoubtedly appreciated by the many young couples.

Wednesday night was the occasion of another well-attended dance. At the close forming a flotilla the cottagers passed another pleasant hour in singing.

One of the most noticeable features of the year is the excellent boat service provided by the P. P. Young Company and the Trent Valley Navigation Company. The Young Company added the Stony Lake to their fleet this year. This boat was built by the Bertram Company, of Toronto, at a cost of $15,000, and is the largest craft on the route, having a passenger capacity of about 500 people.

TORONTO COTTAGERS

Among the Torontonians established with their families at their cottages in the Lake are: Mr. Sutherland, of Parkdale, at Englestane; Mr Eakins of Parkdale, at La Maison des Gauves Diables; Mr. Henderson, a Parkdale, at Gleadonan; Mr. Acton of Rosedale, at Chateau de Lac; Mr. Cole, at Otter Island; Mr. East, at Eagle Mount; Mr. Rice at Grassy Island; Mr. Sydney at Grassy Lodge; Mr. Jones at Eagle Mount; Mr. Sam Hunter, at Pepastem and Mrs. Brock at Kalkola.

Messrs. H. Bingham and C. Brodigan of Toronto are encamped at Hurrican Point.

Among the guests at Viamede are the following Torontonians: Miss A. H. Bascobe, Miss N. Gilmore, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Beale, Miss Conlin, Misses O'Malley, Mrs. Husband, Miss Ethyl Husband, Miss L. H. Browne, Miss K. E. Bourne, Misses Sommerville, and Mr. H. W. Shaffey. Among other Canadians are Mrs. and Mary Watt of Brantford; Mr. R. M. Hibbert and N. R. Smith of Port Hope; Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Armour of St. Catharines; Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Freeman and Mr. Claude W. Freeman of Hamilton; Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Bearns of Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Buchanan, of St. Thomas. Viamede is a very popular resort for Canadians.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith Agnew and Miss Pickeregill of Swickley, Penn., are staying at "Bergheven," in Pigeon Lake, and are enjoying the inland cottage immensely. They had not been here for 15 years, having generally gone to the seaside, Mr. Agnew being under the care of a specialist. He finds the air most beneficial, pure, full of ozone and urges, the life-restoring properties. Then the pure spring water from the Port Harvey Springs, where it gushes from the ground, and the terrics and the fish, and the intense calm and quietude, it is balm to the nerves and nectar to the spirits. Mr. and Mrs. Agnew have a donbon spot in their hearts for the Kawartha Lakes and "Bergheven" in particular.

A 22-LB. LUNGE.

Messrs. Roland and Percy Nobels caught a 22-lb muskinonge on Tuesday in Pigeon Lake, Bobcaygeon. It was a fine fish, well built. It was on exhibition at the Royal Hotel, and was admired by many tourists.

The fishing is reported to be first-class, any kind and any quantity. Worms are the chief bait used.

The Rodger party of Pittsburg are again at Bobcaygeon. They go out each day with their gasoline yacht, and engineer, and Guide John McDermott is entertaining them immensely. They are a lively bunch, and McDermott has great difficulty sometimes keeping them within the law.

Toulon Fire Spreading.

Toulon, France, Aug. 9.—The fire which broke out at the arsenal here at midnight yesterday is still spreading, in spite of the desperate efforts of the firemen, troops and sailors, who are encouraged by the presence of generals, admirals and other officers. Two ships, on one of which is a torpedo gunboat, are in flames, and are momentarily expected to collapse. Several soldiers have been injured, one of them fatally.

RAILWAY COMMISSION.

Began Its Meeting at Winnipeg on Monday Morning.

Winnipeg, Aug. 9.—The opening session of the Railway Commission took place yesterday morning in the board room of the Grain Exchange building, with Mr. Blair as chairman. Dr. Jas. Mills commenced the sitting. Both railroad companies were well represented. Wm. Whyte, W. B. Lanigan and F. W. Peters, with J. E. McMullen of the solicitor's office at Montreal, and Theodore Hunt of the local solicitor's office represented the Canadian Pacific, while for the Canadian Northern A. E. James, G. H. Shaw, with the company's solicitor, J. H. D. Munson, K.C., were present. The Board of Trade was represented by W. Hutchison, president; W. Georgeson and several other members. In opening the proceedings Mr. Blair stated that the Commission was ready to hear any person who wished to bring up any matter which came under the jurisdiction of the board. All the statements would be under oath. The morning session was taken up with excessive transfer charges on the cars of the two railways running into Winnipeg. In the afternoon T. R. Deacon, Manitoba Iron Works, showed the rate for boiler plates from the east was ten cents a hundred higher than on the finished product. This was under consideration at adjournment.

A MOST DELIGHTFUL TRIP

Was That Enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Braund--Attended the Great Salvation Army Congress and Afterwards Visited Important Cities of England and Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Braund returned home on Saturday morning from what was undoubtedly a delightful trip, embracing as it did a visit to some of the chief cities in England and Europe. Mr. Braund, Mr. Mandell Green, bandmaster, and Staff-Captain Macnamara were delegates from the local Salvation Army corps to the great international congress which was held in the Crystal Palace, London, for three weeks. There were something like 75,000 delegates present, and some 49 different countries were represented, forming a most impressive instance of the scope and influence of Salvation Army work. It was during this congress that General Booth had an audience with King Edward. Queen Alexandra was not at the time in London, but upon her return she also called on the General and praised the Salvation Army for the work it had done in England, especially among the poor.

General Booth is now making an automobile tour of England from Lands' End to John O'Groats. He will hold about 168 meetings, chiefly in out-of-the-way places, where they cannot generally get Army greetings. The Queen specially referred to this trip and it is said that it was His Majesty who proposed it. Mr. Braund states that it is hard to imagine the size of the gathering attending the Convention. He likens it to the largest crowd on the best day at the Toronto Exhibition. That such a representation should assemble certainly entitles the Salvation Army to great credit. At Toronto Fair there are ten or a dozen bands in attendance, but there were 200 at this mighty congress

From London Mr. and Mrs. Braund went to visit some of his father's friends in Somersetshire, Devonshire and Cornwall. Several of the watering-places, frequented by the "big guns" were visited. He describes Clovelly as occupying a large recess scooped out of the rock, and ascending to a height of 500 feet. No horse has ever trod those streets, for the simple reason that they are a succession of steps, and donkeys have to be used for carrying purposes. Another watering-place visited was Bude, on the Cornwall coast, Many pleasant gatherings with relatives were greatly enjoyed at these places. Mr. Mr. Braund's father having been born at Clovelly.

The Dartmoore Hills, famous in history, were visited. It is here where the English artillerymen do much of their practice. It appears that the Romans also made use of this locality for military drill. An old Roman wall is still in evidence there. Mr. and Mrs. Braund went up to one of the highest peaks of the hills and were impressed with the grandeur of the scenery. Southampton and Portsmouth were likewise included in the trip. It is at the latter place that the large dockyards are situated, and here they went through one of the battleships and saw Nelson's old flagship, the Victory. Some 8,000 men are working in the dockyards there—this is something like eight times as many as are now employed in the Canadian General Electric Works. They are now building what will be the largest battleship in the world, the New Zealand.

In the Isle of Wight, Mr. and Mrs. Braund visited the town of Ryde, and saw Osborne House, the residence there of the King and Queen. It was here also that they were interested in the large anchor from Nelson's flagship, which now forms part of a monument with many inscriptions thereon of the sayings of Nelson, such as "England expects that every man will this day do his duty."

The trip also included Paris, where they took opportunity to go to the Louvre, the famous art gallery, which they describe as magnificent. A trip on the Seine, an ascension to the Eiffel tower, where at an altitude of something like 906 feet they wrote and mailed post cards to their friends a visit to the tomb of Napoleon Buonaparte and the Arch de Triumph, the centre of magnificent boulevards—all of these sights were full of interest, to the tourists. From Paris they went to Cologne, Germany, and enjoyed a 40-mile trip on the Rhine, the river famous in song and story. From that city they took train to Brussels, and being within 14 miles of the field of Waterloo they visited the scene where the Disturber of Europe was crushed by Wellington. The British monument on the battlefield consists of a stupendous mound, the largest artificial one of its kind on the continent. The tourists here became acquainted with the interesting fact that it took 400 women for three years to carry the earth necessary for this mound, which is 200 feet high. The women carried the dirt in baskets, and while on the job were paid eight cents a day. Twenty of them died during the construction. Crowning the mound is a pedestal supporting the figure of a lion, weighing 17 tons, which was made out of the cannon captured from the French in this battle. Some of the old buildings which were standing at the time of the engagement are still there. The battlefield is now divided up into farms, from one of which Mr. Braund plucked several ears of grain to keep as a memento.

At Antwerp, the great shipping centre of Germany, they saw the palace of King Leopold, and the cathedral, with its beautiful spire. They also went to Rotterdam, in Holland, and Mr. Braund states that most of the streets there differ from those of Peterborough in that most of them are well watered—so well that they are used as canals. This is also the case at The Hague, another city visited, and from which they went to the palace of Queen Wilhelmina, a building hardly as imposing as it is interesting. The landscape of this country is made picturesque by the numerous windmills. The laborers in Holland get but 20 cents a day, which goes to show that probably the union movement has not yet taken hold there.

Mr. and Mrs. Braund left Europe by way of Ostend, where they saw King Leopold's summer palace. They sailed from London on the 27th of July and sailed at Moville, Ireland, where Mr. Braund got some real Irish peat and some genuine shamrock. In fact he has many souvenirs of this very interesting trip. They sailed on the steamship Bavarian, which made the fastest trip ever done by an Allan liner. They were only out of sight of land four days and seven hours. Private Parry, who won the Kings' prize at Bisley, was one of the passengers. Mr. and Mrs. Braund arrived in Montreal on Friday and reached here Saturday morning, after having had a tour that will ever remain green in memory.

THE STREET RAILWAY

The Extension Past the Exhibition Grounds Being Completed To-day

Workmen on the street railway expect to have completed by this evening the extension of the line past the exhibition grounds to the river. A siding of some length is at present being constructed there. The railway will undoubtedly be put in operation immediately upon the arrival of the new cars from Ottawa, which are expected almost any time now. Work will in the meantime proceed on Park-st, north of Charlotte. The proposed immediate construction of a sewer on that street will interfere with immediate progress of the track laying, but the overhead work can be proceeded with at once, and this is the intention.

Their China Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Alf. George, of Port Hope, who are frequent visitors to Peterborough celebrated their china wedding last Saturday evening, when some fifty friends met at their residence. The gifts to the happy couple says the Guide, were costly and numerous, the evening was spent in music games and a most enjoyable time was put in by the guests. The visitors were entertained right royally and sat down to a table or rather tables to a supper fit for a king. After the entertainment, speeches were made by several gentlemen present and a resolution of thanks was unanimously passed to Mr. and Mrs. Alf. George. Mr. G. arose in a happy speech returned thanks to those present and invited them come again—twenty years hence.

THE VIAVI MOVEMENT IN RELATION TO HEALTH

Its Important Effects in Making Healthy Women.

An article in Leslie's Weekly by Mrs. Elizabeth Stuart Motley on the subject "Are American Women Becoming Healthier?" has especial significance in connection with the lectures on hygiene in relation to women being given to-night and to-morrow night in the Y.M.C.A. Hall, by Mrs. C. F. Shaw-Hellier, lecturer of the British Viavi Company, of London, Eng. The article after referring to the effects female health of dress and other conditions, says:—"The effects of the Viavi movement are becoming so widespread that I am sure that before long American women as a whole will be largely affected by it, and we will come to be distinguished as a nation of healthy women. For the principles of this new organization are not only effective in curing disease, but contain practical methods by which health is permanently maintained; and these practical methods have much to do with the every day needs of life."

Just a reminder that the Civic Holiday is not far off and that your arrangements to take in the Forester's Excursion to Niagara Falls and Toronto should be made now. No other trip is its equal. No other trip has half the chance for a good thing for you. See posters for rates.

LITTLE BOY'S NARROW ESCAPE

Son of Mr. Rupert Gliddon Run Over at Chemong

The little son of Mr. Rupert Gliddon had a rather unenviable experience on Saturday last at Chemong Park. He was playing on the sandy road near the cottage when a rig came along, and the driver not noticing the little fellow in time the wheels struck him and passed over his thighs. Fortunately no bones were broken, but the little fellow who is only two and a half years old, was very badly shaken up, and frightened. Mr. Gliddon remained over at Chemong for Saturday evening, but to attend to his duties on Sunday he had to walk to town. His son is now as well as ever.

THE PERSONAL COLUMN

The Misses Farrel of Norwood are the guests of friends in town.

Mr. A. O. Sawyers left last night to spend his holidays in Toronto.

Mrs. A. O. Sawyers is visiting relatives in Napanee for a few weeks.

Mr. M. J. Hutchinson of the Examiner, was in Norwood this afternoon.

Mr. Andrew Haig who recently took up practice in Peterborough, has been compelled by failing health to close his office. He will remove from town and purposes to engage in some occupation that will allow of his being in the open air and free from the duties involved in carrying on his profession.

The Guelph Mercury of recent date has the following very complimentary reference to a popular Peterborough singer.—"Mr. E. A. Fromm, of Peterborough, had charge of the choir in St. Andrew's Church on Sunday last, and sang a solo at each service. He is a finished singer and puts great feeling and expression into his work. His singing was very much enjoyed by the congregation.

Prof. Henry Finlay, President of the Electrical and Mechanical College of St. John, N.B., sang two solos, being accompanied by his sister, Miss M. Etta Finlay, organist, which were greatly enjoyed by the congregation at Fraserville Methodist Church on Sunday August 6th. He will visit Toronto and the St. Louis Exposition each autumn. The college will open September 15th.

Lieut.-Col. Miller, commanding officer of the 57th regiment, has received a letter from Lieut.-Col. Roper, commanding officer of the Governor-General's Foot Guards, expressing, on behalf of that regiment, hearty appreciation of the hospitality accorded by the officers and men of the 57th, and by the citizens generally, on the occasion of the recent visit of the Guards to town.

HOME FROM DAWSON CITY

MR. GEORGE KINCAID, WHO LEFT HERE SEVEN YEARS AGO.

He is now Superintendent of Construction of Government Buildings and is Located at Dawson City—Has Been Very Successful.

A Peterborough boy who has experienced great success is Mr. George Kincaid, who is home on a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Kincaid, corner of Harvey and London streets. Mr. Kincaid left Peterborough about eight years ago, when but a youth, and went to the Yukon Territory, at the time when the great gold rush was on. Dawson City at the time of his arrival had a population of about 40,000, but this has decreased considerably owing largely to the fact that the great bulk of the men are miners and hence reside as near as possible to their claims. While the population of the city has decreased, the country round about is undergoing great development, and the present method of mining has given place to large concerns operating with machinery. Mr. Kincaid states that he became interested in mines, and has had a fair share of success. He is now located in Dawson and has a position as Superintendent of Construction of Government Buildings. It is hard he says for an easterner to comprehend the progress that has been made in and about Dawson during the past seven or eight years. Asked when he was returning, Mr. Kincaid said, "I will leave for the west on Thursday. As I was in Vancouver on business I thought I would run over here and see the folks. Dawson is some ten days distance from Vancouver, but you will understand that the same conditions of travel do not exist between the two cities as from Vancouver east. I have only met one Peterboronian out there; one of the Stinson boys. He is in the jewelry business and doing well."

Mr. Kincaid shook hands with many of his old friends yesterday. They are all pleased to learn of his success.

TAKING THINGS IN TIME

Some Things We all Might do to Help Keep Down the Rush—Getting Things a Little ahead of Time.

Unthinking people are apt nowadays to complain that they cannot get things done when they want them done. Possibly this is so in some measure. There are emergency calls at all times that must be met. But a lot of the hurry is provoked by one leaving off to some other time the things that should be done in anticipation of a need arising. It is a good plan to put in some coal in August, though the need of a fire is three months away. This same rule applies to many of the cares of life, and a little consideration and thought would often save a heap of worry and hustle, of the wrong kind. Hurrying to catch up with work is not nearly as productive as hurrying to get out more after the catching up process has been gone over.

Take the matter of furs, for instance. In the good old days the furs acquired by our respective grandmothers were worn right straight along, year after year, without alteration, except when repair was necessary. Now all this is changed. Fashion decrees that furs shall conform to certain styles. Now furs must be made up in the prevailing mode. It is even the correct thing to have furs altered to bring them into style. Collars, sleeves and other parts of fur garments are particularly susceptible to alteration.

Now, it is no use discussing why this should be the case. Fashion says so, and it must be so. But fur, being a costly material, alterations should be made with discretion. Just what is best to do is a matter for the furrier, whose advice is there for the asking. And being costly, fur should not be torn to pieces, in a hurry, but with care, and deliberation. Hurry is not conducive to good results.

The moral of all this is one directed to the ladies, that if they desire alteration or repair to furs, or even fur garments made, attend to them now. Mr. Barrie, of Thos. Barrie & Co., experienced furriers and manufacturers, says in coming in later, with the great demand for ordered work, and in this case the preparation of winter stock, both for their wholesale and retail trade, that the same careful attention cannot be had. There is not time enough to go around. Furs now can be improved in color and appearance that a few years ago was considered an impossibility. The process which brings best results is not a hurry job, the time element being necessary to bring results, which, if hurried, never turn out as good. So that those wishing furs re-dyed, repaired, altered and made up should have their orders placed at once. It will afford the chance for deliberate, careful work. It will do away with delays. Taking time by the forelock is as essential in the fur trade as in almost every line of trade where hand work enters into the process of making up.

THE NEWEST CRAZE

Hats, Baskets and Mats made of Raffia.

The use of raffia in making fancy work are becoming very general and it is one of the most popular materials in vogue this summer. Cushions are being embroidered with it, hats are made of it, and pretty baskets and mats are also woven of the pretty colored grasses. The fad has had a great run in the United States and anything made of raffia is quite the style. The raffia in all shades and reeds for basket weaving may be procured at the Review office. These baskets would make charming Christmas presents when prettily lined and finished or in the form of a waste paper basket they are both useful and ornamental. Start your Xmas work now and avoid being hurried later on. The Review office open every evening.

BARRIE PEOPLE PLEASED

WITH THEIR SOJOURN IN THE TOWN THOUGH BRIEF

Hundreds Visited the Lift-Lock During the Afternoon and Visited Different Points of Interest.

Barrie firemen and citizens yesterday came and saw and conquered. That is the town was their's while they were here, and nothing but the pleasantest recollections now remain. From the time of their arrival to that of their going the visitors apparently enjoyed their stay in town, and with a good many, who had friends here, the time past more speedily than it did to others. Large crowds visited the liftlock during the afternoon and the steamers City of Peterborough, the Sovereign and the Water Lilly were kept busy.

"What do you think of the liftlock?" was asked of one of the visitors.

"Why," said he, "it ranks with any of the wonders of the world, I should say. I was a little nervous at first, but that all passed off, and I would not have missed it for anything. Why it was worth the trip here to see that lift lock alone."

"What do you think of Peterborough?"

"I must say you have a fine town here. You would hardly notice any difference to-day of course with the crowd we brought down from Barrie. Yes. You have an excellent town. There are some Barrie boys in business here. I notice Fred Clarke has a pretty nice store here. I am glad to see that he is getting along well. Fred is a fine fellow. Mr. R. A. Dutton also seems to be making things hum."

The local firemen and the representatives of the Town Council, particularly Ald. Edgcumbe, chairman of the Fire, Water, & Light Committee, did everything to make the visitors feel that the town was theirs and they undoubtedly succeeded. Different points of interest were visited. The special train left for Barrie about seven o'clock. The 36th and 57th regimental bands exchanged music and cheers marked the farewell.

"The most respectable looking excursion that has ever come to town," remarked a citizen last night.

A large number of the excursionists remained until to-day with friends and relatives.

It was a great day for the liverymen yesterday. One man made $50 in the afternoon.

The lift lock trip was greatly enjoyed and everyone pronounced the structure as magnificent.

The visiting band played throughout the day, and their music was much enjoyed.

The firemen of Barrie say that the local brigade are very hospitable entertainers.

The 57th band room was thrown open yesterday to the visitors and they are saying nice things about the 57th.

Some of the old Barrie boys in town. Messrs. Dutton, Fred Clarke, Charlie Sargent, and others, were all visited yesterday.

The trip down yesterday morning was made in three hours, which is exceptionally fine time.

The local firemen say they will not go out of town until they get a tin farm. Do you hear that Alderman Edgcumbe?

EKO CAMP AT M'CRACKEN'S

Enjoying their Annual Outing—Pleasant Time Being Spent.

On Saturday the members of Eko Camp went up to their cottage at McCracken's Landing to enjoy their annual two-weeks' outing. They have been going there for many years and all the natives and cottagers know the Eko bunch as a good jolly crowd. On Saturday everyone at McCracken's was looking for them, and quite a crowd welcomed them on Saturday night. They intended taking up the Mierzani orchestra, of Toronto, but at the last moment word was received that two of the members were ill, and they would be unable to come this week, but hoped to come down next week.

On Sunday morning the members of the camp attended service at the pavillion at Juniper Island. It is said that Dide Gemmell, or "Teddy" Gillespie will conduct the service next Sunday. In the evening at the cottage song service was led by Father Comstock and General Jackson.

Yesterday was spent in straightening things up and getting the camp in shape. In the afternoon "Froggie" Canniff captured a fine 'lunge. One of his frogs was ill on Sunday, and considerably occupied his attention.

A dance was given in the camp's honor on Monday night at the Victoria House.

"Ronna" looked quite natty with his red Napoleon hat. Already the band is covered with feminine names.

Yesterday afternoon the camp was visited by several from McCracken's, including Messrs. Campbell, Scott, Garrow, and others, and a pleasant time was spent.

Several more of the boys are going up on Friday to stay for the remainder of the camp.

Posters are now out for the Peterborough Lodge of Oddfellows' Round Trip through the Kawartha Lakes going by Lakefield and home by Lindsay on Civic Holiday. OLDEST CLOCK IN ENGLAND.

Erected in 1320 in One of the Towers of Peterborough Cathedral.

Peterborough cathedral has the oldest working clock in England. It was erected about 1320 and is probably the work of a monastic clockmaker. It is the only one now known that is wound up over an old wooden wheel. This wheel is about twelve feet in circumference, and the galvanized cable, about 300 feet in length, supports a leaden weight of three hundredweight, which has to be wound up daily.

The clock is said to be of much more primitive construction than that made by Henry de Nick for Charles V. of France in 1370. The clock chamber is in the northwest tower, some 120 feet high, where the sunlight has not penetrated for hundreds of years, and the winding is done by the light of a candle.

The gong is the great tenor bell of the cathedral, which weighs thirty-two hundredweight, and it is struck hourly by an eighty pound hammer. The going and the striking parts of the clock are some yards apart, communication being by a slender wire. The clock has no dial. The time is shown on the main wheel of the escapement, which goes round once in two hours.—London Chronicle.

THE TOWER OF HUNGER.

A Famous Prison of Pisa Long Since Destroyed.

"The Tower of Hunger" was a name given to the tower of Gualandi, in Pisa, celebrated because of the reference made to it in Dante's "Inferno."

Ugolino, count of Gherardesca (1220-89), was the head of a leading Ghibelline family in Pisa. Deserting the Ghibellines, he went over to the Guelphs. Afterward he returned to his own side and joined that uncompromising faction which regarded Archbishop Ruggieri as their head, until dissensions arose between him and them after he had killed the archbishop's nephew in a quarrel.

In the summer of 1288 Ugolino was seized by the Ghibellines and sent a prisoner to the tower of Gualandi, with his two sons and two grandsons. Here they were kept till March, 1289, when the door of the tower was fastened, the keys thrown into the Arno and the prisoners left to die of starvation. The tower, which was ever after known as the "Tower of Hunger," was in ruins at the end of the fifteenth century and was finally destroyed in 1655.

AFRICA.

The Way That Name Was Bestowed Upon the Continent.

The name Africa was given by the Roman conquerors, after the third Punic war, B. C. 146, to the province which they formed to cover the territory of Carthage. It was most probably adopted from the word "Afrygah," the Carthaginian term for a colony.

This original Africa was limited in extent. Its borders reached, according to Pliny, from the River Tusca on the west, which divided it from Numidia, to the bottom of the Syrtis Minor on the southeast, though Ptolemy carries it as far east as the bottom of the Great Syrtis, making it include Numidia and Tripolitana.

In later days the whole African continent took its name from this part, which in its narrower limits corresponded with the modern regency of Tunis and was called by the Greeks Lybia. Africus, the stormy southwest wind, was so called in Italy because it blew from Africa.

WHEN BOYS WERE MEN

By JOHN HABBERTON,

Author of "Helen's Babies," "George Washington," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1903, BY JOHN HABBERTON

"I never struck a couple like you before. I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll take you both out and get you drunk at my own expense."

We declined, with thanks, explaining that we expected to be quite busy for an hour or two, as we had to make some purchases and I had an engagement at noon with the major, whom I didn't like to disappoint.

"Oh, no; of course not," he replied, with a grim grin. "I wouldn't keep the major waiting for anything if I were you. But, say"—here he drew me aside and pressed something into my hand—"you'll take back your $30 anyhow."

I tried to decline, but he said that if I didn't take the money he'd light his pipe with it. He insisted that he already had pay enough for his trouble, and when I replied that I couldn't see how, he called me a fool. He put a lot of uncomplimentary adjectives in front of the "fool" too.

CHAPTER III.

OUR APPOINTMENT WITH THE MAJOR.

BRAINARD and I spent an hour and quite a lot of money in shops not far from headquarters, taking care to return in time to meet the major at noon, according to request. As we approached headquarters from the opposite side of the street we saw Hamilton and Cloyne coming down, and Brainard stopped me, exclaiming:

"Did you ever see two finer looking soldiers?"

I said I never had. Each was tall, straight, well formed and carried himself with the grace and ease that came of military training long before they, with us, had joined Billy Beecham's company of the Ninety-ninth. Their cavalry uniforms had been carefully altered and refitted, so there was none of the awkwardness about them that made the volunteer soldier appear more shabby than the average citizen. Each wore a slouch hat and plume, like the regulation "dress" hat, only much finer, and they attracted more attention from passersby than any of the commissioned officers whom one met every moment or two on Broadway in those days. I wanted to tell Brainard how much more distinguished they would look within a day or two when they had received the commissions, about which the major undoubtedly wanted to see them and me, but I hadn't the heart to speak of good fortune from which poor Brainard was to be excluded, so I said nothing.

The two fine fellows entered the stairway which led to the left in which our regiment's recruiting headquarters were, and I followed them. Quite a number of uniformed recruits were there in the back part of the room, so it seemed to me that other officers and would be officers must have been more successful than our trio at Summerton.

was about to tell Hamilton and Cloyne of my luck with Brainard, but Charley begged me not to. He said he wanted to surprise them when we returned to Summerton. Until then he would try to keep out of sight. I joined them alone, therefore, and the three of us walked about together, amusing ourselves by observing the old sergeant, who seemed to be trying to find some one or count the recruits, we could not discover which.

The major had not yet arrived. The lieutenant, who always seemed to be on duty as aid or assistant, leaned from the window as if looking for the major. Finally he withdrew his head, walked to the rear of the room and shouted:

Attention, men! Fall in!"

"I wonder if he is going to indulge in a squad drill?" said Hamilton to Cloyne, as both of them stepped aside, followed by me, in order to be out of the line which the men were forming by the aid of the old sergeant.

"Fall in, men," said the lieutenant, approaching us.

"Beg pardon," said Hamilton, saluting gracefully, "but we've an appointment at noon with the major, at his own request."

"Yes, I understand," said the lieutenant. "I represent the major. Fall in—according to height."

"If he meant drill," muttered Hamilton to Cloyne, "why didn't the old duffer say so? Did he think we wouldn't obey orders, that he got us here by such unmilitary ways?"

"Right—dress!" shouted the old sergeant, who had stationed himself at right of the line. Then he ran along the front, pushing some men back a little and pulling others forward. Finally he returned [illegible] right and shouted "Front!" [illegible] the lieutenant looked at us as carelessly as if merely to see if our [illegible] was fair. At last he shouted:

"Atten-tion! Men, orders have come for all recruits for the Thirty-eighth cavalry to be sent to the regiment at once. You must remain here, therefore, until the order for transportation comes. We'll get off some time this evening. That's all. Break ranks—march!"

The yells, roars and oaths that went up from two or three score of the men were worse than any I ever had heard. I couldn't blame any of the other recruits, however, for I was as angry, shocked and frantic as they. "Get off some time this evening!" That meant I couldn't see father, mother or Ned before I started—couldn't see them in three years unless the war ended sooner. It was awful—it was worse than the worst thing I ever had imagined about war.

Some of the more excitable fellows made a rush for the door to find there for the first time an armed guard, bequed whom at the head of the stairs were several more. They did not belong to our own regiment either. Then they dashed to the rear of the loft and threw up the window sashes, but two bayonets were in the tiny courtyard below. Then while Hamilton named the hotel to which we would go and where the lieutenant could notify us when it was time to start. We at once telegraphed our families and while awaiting them made some hasty goodby visits to friends in the city. Two hours later we felt as criminals condemned to death must feel during the final visit of their friends. My father—bless his dear, thoughtful heart—brought down the entire family and the dog besides. Had it not been for that dog's efforts to capture the hotel and Ned's efforts to bring him back there would have been little relief from the gloom of which all of us were full. Brainard's mother seemed to suffer worst of all. She had gone through the agony of giving her son away only to get him back again forever, she supposed. Now he was a soldier once more, and at nearly an hour's notice she was to lose him. My own misery was doubled by her sorrow, for was not I to blame for his being in uniform?

My cousin May tried to put some cheer into the party, and as she always laughed heartily at the slightest provocation it was impossible not to be affected by her spirits. She made cheery though modest replies to some gallant speeches which Hamilton addressed to her, and she told Mrs. Brainard to think how much more Charley's quick pits would be to the nation than the pens of a dozen common men. She scarcely spoke a word to Charley himself, however, and he looked at her only shyly, for, as he told me afterward, he had caught a glimpse of himself in a hotel mirror and felt like a scarecrow.

RAILROAD SUBSIDIES

Opposition "Holds-Up" Some of the Proposed Votes.

Member For East York Denounces Granting Any Aid to the Grand Trunk Railway or to the Canadian Pacific Railway Until the Exclusive Bell Telephone Contract With Them Is Abrogated—Anti-Dumping Debate.

Ottawa, Aug. 9.—Eleven questions occupied the attention of the House yesterday morning, most of them of a rather technical character. Mr. Lennox's question about the rumor of a company being formed to take over the Davis contract on the Cornwall Canal was dropped at his request.

Mr. Boyd (Macdonald, Man.) was informed that the drawbacks of customs duty paid to manufacturers of agricultural implements during the year ended June 30, 1904, was $118,476; divided as follows: J. W. Mann Mfg. Co., $706; Verity Plough Co., $16,748; Massey-Harris, $89,-280; D. Maxwell & Sons, $2,464; Nezon & Co., $4,128; Cockshutt Plough Co., $6,696; Tolton Bros., $69; B. Bell & Son, $202.

An Unanswered Question.

Mr. Leonard had a long question on the order paper relating to the reduction of their employes by the Valleyfield Cotton Company. It embodied a statement by the company that they had been much affected by the British preference, and but for it the Valleyfield mills would be fully employed. Mr. Leonard wanted to know whether the Government had received any copies of the correspondence that had taken place between residents of the town, who had petitioned the Town Council for relief, and the Town Council and the company. Mr. Fielding replied: "The information referred to was communicated to the Government. The cause of the difficulties which have occurred in the cotton trade throughout the world is probably a matter of debate, and we are not prepared to express any opinion in regard to the hon. gentleman's question at present."

The Tobacco Duties.

In answer to Mr. Henderson, the Minister of Customs stated that the total amount of customs duty paid on tobacco during the last fiscal year was $6604,555. Of this sum, $138,204 was attributable to the change of the tariff in 1897. The total amount of duty collected by the Inland Revenue Department during the same year was $5,178,736, of which $1,587,-234 was derived from the increased duties in 1897.

Sir Richard Cartwright informed Mr. Henderson that for the twelve months ended June 30th the sum of $280,549 was paid in bounties on iron and steel.

Railway Subsidy Bevotes.

The House then entered upon consideration of the railway subsidies, which are all re-votes. Mr. Maclean wanted to know why provision should not be made in the resolutions to prohibit the employment of aliens.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied that that was provided for by the Alien Labor Act passed Saturday, which measure would be sufficient to meet the case.

On the motion for a subsidy of $3,-200 a mile for three miles of the Bruce & Algoma Railway, from Bruce Mines Junction to Bruce Mines, Hon. Mr. Emmerson explained that this was part of a continuous system.

Mr. Henderson objected to Government aid being granted unless for a railway for colonization purposes. The vote passed.

A Charge of Fine.

On a vote to the Nepigon Railway for a distance of eighty miles, Sir Wilfrid Laurier explained that there was some modification of the project as contemplated last year. It was at first intended to build a continuous line from Lake Superior to Lake Nepigon, but now the proposition was to build lines between the waterstretches and to use steamers on the lakes with the idea of hurrying in supplies for the Transcontinental.

Against G.T.R. and C.P.R.

Mr. Maclean made a protest that not a cent of Government subsidy should be granted to either the Grand Trunk or the C.P.R. until they cancelled the contract which gives the Bell Telephone Company exclusive access to their stations. He moved a resolution to that effect.

Mr. Gallihar of Yale and Cariboo protested against the subsidy to the Nicola-Kamloops & Similkiian Coal and Railway Company, and it was dropped.

Mr. Blain urged that clause nine to be amended that subsidized railways be required to purchase rolling stock and steel rails in Canada in cases where they are procurable, and Mr. Maclean urged the Government to insert as a condition of a subsidy that only Canadian labor be employed on the work. Sir William Mulock said that was what they were trying to do by the Alien Labor Act.

Tariff Commission Hung Up.

As the House went into committee of supply last night, in answer to a question by Mr. Maclean, Mr. Fielding said that he could not add anything to the very clear and emphatic statement that he made on the budget debate. "It is the intention of the Government," he said, "to appoint a commission of Ministers who will make an enquiry into the tariff as on a previous occasion."

The customs estimates were finally passed, as were several resolutions relating to inland revenue. Then bills founded upon these were introduced and read a third time and passed.

The "Dumping Clause."

The "anti-dumping" clause, designed to meet the growing evils of American commercial encroachment in this country, was discussed at length. None of the Opposition members displayed the slightest faith in this means of checking the evil. It was shown that the regulations could be evaded in various ways. Nothing, however, was done.

To Build English Factories.

Ottawa, Aug. 9.—The proposed payment of bounties for the destruction of dogfish has been abandoned by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. In its place he will construct three factories in the Maritime Provinces for the reduction of dogfish offal into oil, glue, etc. Each of these factories will cost about $9,000.

Reference in the Senate.

Ottawa, Aug. 9.—In the Senate yesterday morning sympathetic references were made to the death of the late Senator Aikins. The speakers were Hon. R. W. Scott, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Senator J. K. Kerr and Senator Young. The last named spoke in behalf of Manitoba, of which province the deceased Senator was formerly Governor.

FATALITY DUE TO CARELESSNESS.

Webbwood Mine Shafts Had Not Been Cleared of Deadly Gases.

Toronto, Aug. 9.—The death of the six miners at Webbwood, as shown at the inquest, was due to carelessness. The ventilation on the lower workings of the mine was poor, and it was customary after a blast to blow air into the workings. The fatal blast was fired at 6 p.m. and at 7 next morning four miners descended, though the engineer neglected to blow air into the shaft. When the men shouted the engineer hurried to their aid, instead of rectifying his mistake in the proper way. Manager MacMillan, when informed, turned on the air pressure, waited on the surface a quarter of an hour and then descended to his death. W. E. H. Carter of the Bureau of Mines, says the evidence went to show that curiosity to see the value of the stringer uncovered impelled the miners to unusual haste, and led to their asphyxiation. The Department will not take any action.

EARTHQUAKE IN NEW ZEALAND.

Several Public Buildings Damaged in Wellington Monday.

Wellington, N. Z., Aug. 9.—The heaviest earthquake which New Zealand has experienced in many years occurred at 10.12 o'clock yesterday morning. Several public buildings were seriously damaged, and private firms also suffered heavy loss. The shock was general on both islands. No loss of life has been reported.

To a Royal Commission.

London, Aug. 9.—(C.A.P.)—The Daily Chronicle says that it looks as if Premier Balfour was sounding the colonies on the subject of Mr. Chamberlain's proposed conference. Again it is said that the Parliamentary question on the subject be postponed for a few days. Either the Government have not yet made up their minds or they are inquiring what the colonies have to say. Possibly, however, Premier Balfour is considering the idea of circumventing Mr. Chamberlain and shelving the whole subject by referring it to a Royal Commission on the lines of the "commission" resolution adopted at the Associated Chambers of Commerce Congress at Montreal.

A Detroit specialist who has 14 certificates and diplomas from medical colleges and spends thousands of dollars annually for medical journals, is spending another thousand of dollars for the benefit of men in their own homes; so that those may be no longer a victim of any man that he has made well.

DR. E. GOLDBERG,
The Possessor of a Diploma and Certificate, Who Wants to Prove That He Does Not Lie.

He has discovered a new method of treatment for men, which is certain to cure any case of nervous debility, lost power, lack of energy, failing memory, despondency, lack of ambition, pimples on face, bashfulness, timidity in company of ladies, sleeplessness, bad dreams, lame back, kidney and bladder troubles, varicocele, stricture, blood poisons, contagious blood diseases, unnatural discharges, piles, rupture, gonorrhoea, gleet, all sexual weakness, lost manhood, impotency and all diseases of the sexual organs of either sex, whether from excesses, indiscretion, exposure, self-abuse or contagion. This method is a positive cure for all men who suffer in this way, no matter who has failed to cure them or what they have taken. He wants every man who suffers to write him at once for a book explaining this method, which will be sent free, sealed, by return mail. He does not want any money now or ever, but wants you to have the book and learn all about this method and how you can use it in your own home. He has cured thousands of cases in this way and has the highest testimonials from those he has cured. He is a graduate of the University of Michigan, class of 1896, and has been a specialist for eight years. He has his offices at 76 Woodward Ave., Room 176 Detroit, Mich., and it will all immediately be sent you free.

CONTROL OF THE SEAS.

In Ten Years Will Have Passed to the United States.

London, Aug. 9.—(C.A.P.)—At Hatfield Hon. T. A. Brassey, reviewing the comparative strength of our navy and those of foreign countries, said that in ten years the command of the seas will have passed from the United Kingdom to the United States. He arrived at this conclusion because at the present moment the States had considerably more battleships building than were being constructed for the British navy, and because the resources of the States were greater than those of the United Kingdom. The resources of the States, however, were not equal to those of the United Kingdom combined with those of the colonies, and one reason he was a tariff reformer was because he held that through some form of commercial federation we should obtain such a result as would enable us to maintain our navy at a strength securing us the command of the seas.

Believer in Reciprocity.

Little Harold is famed in his own household for his clever sayings. The other day he approached his mother and asked:

"Mamma, haven't I been a good boy since I began going to Sunday school?"

"Yes, dear, you have," answered the fond mother.

"And you trust me now," don't you, ma?"

"Why, of course, I do."

"Then why do you keep the pies locked up in the pantry just the same as ever?"

HEART PAINS AND INDIGESTION

Mr. J. Law, 347 Hunter street, Peterborough, and who is employed with the Peter Hamilton Co., states: "For a long time I was troubled with severe splitting headaches and suffered a great deal with pains in the region of my heart, caused no doubt by indigestion. I procured a box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and began this treatment. Since using this preparation for some time I can say that I feel quite different, and my health is very much improved. My digestion is good, and the headaches and pains about the heart have not troubled me at all of late. I can sincerely recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food as a thorough cure for nervous dyspepsia and its accompanying symptoms."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous Receipt book author, are on every box.

BARRIE TEAM SHUT OUT

Defeated by T.A.S. 3rd. by the Score of 12 — 0.

A juvenile lacrosse team accompanied the Barrie excursion to town yesterday and played a game in the afternoon with the T.A.S. III. team, and suffered a severe defeat, being shut out by the score of 12-0. As the score indicates the game was one-sided as the T.A.S. following the lead of their seniors, were good runners good stick-handlers and in good condition. They completely played the others off their feet, and, although the visitors were the heavier team and tried to use their might, their efforts were unavailing. Quite a few on both sides were given rests with the time-keepers, but, on the whole, the game was a good friendly one. Judd of Peterborough, refereed the first half of the game, and McDonald of Orillia, the second half, the two men being agreed upon before the game. Although all the T. A. S. played good steady games, we cannot fail to mention the three difficult stops that McFadden pulled in, and the stellar work of Clarke on the home, who never lost an opportunity of putting the rubber in the necessary place. The following were the teams:—

LACROSSE.

The T.A.S. team that defeated Barrie so badly yesterday drove to Millbrook this afternoon to play a game there this evening.

With tearful indignation the Port Hope Guide wails:—"So the Trent Valley League team of Port Hope has to be termed "quitters" the first year. It seems hard but nevertheless 'tis true and it was not due to the usual trouble of lack of funds either. The cash was by no means any too plentiful but notwithstanding this the season would have been finished had the players shown any interest to help the thing along. Everything necessary for the playing of the game was provided but when the problem of paying players faced the management they adopted the wisest plan and dropped out.

The team as a whole was a good one and had splendid chances of winning the district and landing the championship. But no it was not to be. Trouble had to arise just at the time when every player should have been taking an interest and as a result the Ontarios had to default their game to Peterborough. And now the Ontarios for the first year in the Trent Valley League and looked upon by every other team as the Hardy cup holders, have to bear the reputation of quitters. Shame! Shame!

BOWLING.

The following is the result of the bowling yesterday between Millbrook and Peterborough:—

Majority for Peterborough 6 shots.

After the Millbrook game a match was played between rinks skipped by R. M. Waddell and R. J. Frost, and and victory (in an absent minded moment) perched on the banners of the former to the tune of 24 to 4.

The following games are scheduled for to-night:—
Runnals vs. Dixon.
Cox vs. Giroux.
Frost vs. Moore.
Olee vs. Kerr.

THE TURF.

Local horsemen will be interested in the fact that Minnie Keswick, owned by George Curtis, of Lindsay, won the 2.40 trot or pace in the Hamilton races yesterday. Pearl Wilkes, of Niagara Falls, took second place in two heats and fifth in the third. The best time was 2.23 1-2. Both of these horses were at the local races. In the 2.18 trot or pace, Jubilee, of Hamilton, carried off first. She also was one of the speeders here.

GOLF.

Barrie golfers yesterday suffered defeat in a friendly game that was played on the links here. The final score was 12—6. Following was the draw:—
Vereon vs. Neill.
Allen vs. Garvin.
McKenzie vs. Stratton.
Ryan vs. McFall.
Martin vs. Dennistoun.
Tyrrill vs. Prof. Hull.
Waddell vs. Frost.

BASEBALL.

All players of the Peterborough baseball team are requested to turn out to practice to-night on the T.A. S. grounds at 6.30.

STONY LAKE NEWS

Hotels Now Full and the Cottages all Occupied — Large Attendance at Church Sunday.

The summer season at Stony Lake is in full blast just now and the list of visitors at the different hotels and cottages exceeds those of any previous years. The trains and boats are crowded with passengers to and from this popular resort and some of the hotels are refusing applications every day. At the Victoria House at McCracken's Landing yesterday fifty-three had dinner, and the hotel is full. Burleigh, Viamede and other places are the same way.

During the past week the following people registered at the Victoria House, McCracken's: Dr. Coash, wife and son, Toronto; Mrs. Lyna and Messrs. Oscar and Oswald Lyna, Warsaw; Capt. H. E. Freeman, Cleveland; Col. A. S. Bliss, Cleveland; Brig.-Major G. F. Petterson, Cleveland; A. L. Scott and W. Garrow, Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Campbell and child, Toronto; Jas. S. Dye, Belleville; Robt. W. Flynn, Warsaw; Miss Loomis, Warsaw; T. Lee, Montreal; Col. O. S. Taylor, New York; E. L. Strong and Theodore Strong, Cleveland; Miss J. G. Shorts, Miss G. Dobson, Warsaw; H. B. McKay and guide, Rochester; Alex. Watt, Geo. H. Carley and guide, Hamilton; M. D. McKercher and wife, Toronto; F. Dunford, Hall's Glen; W. E. Ackerman, Peterborough; Mrs. John Jeffrey and son, Toronto; S. W. Armstrong, wife and family, North Toronto; members of Eko Camp.; R. McKee, Peterborough; H. Armstrong, Peterborough; E. W. Austin, E. A. Roe and S. R. Slaght, New York.

The members of Eko Camp arrived arrived at their cottage, near McCracken's on Saturday, and are taking their meals at the Victoria House.

Mr. J. W. Carey and family, who have been occupying Gemmell's cottage for some time, returned to Peterborough on Friday.

The service at the pavilion at Juniper Island yesterday morning was a very unique one, partly on account of seeing the congregation coming from all parts of the lakes in their steam launches, canoes, skiffs, etc., and partly on account of their comfortable looking costumes. The service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Johnston, who is staying at McCracken's, and lasted for an hour. After service greetings were exchanged between the different cottagers and they they dispersed in their several directions. Everything was carried out so quietly that a person could imagine himself at a church in town. The boats did not whistle at all, and the crowd of cottagers conducted themselves very differently from what a person would imagine at a summer resort.

The S.S. "Alice" took a large crowd from the islands to Chemong on Saturday to attend the regatta. About sixty were left at Burleigh, and many more before they reached there, as the boat had its full capacity of passengers.

The weekly dance given at the pavilion on Saturday night was not as well attended as usual, as most of the cottagers were at the Chemong regatta.

The annual session of the Ontario Grand Lodge, Independent Order of Oddfellows, will open to-morrow in Victoria Hall, Toronto. The representatives from Otonabee Lodge will be Lieut.-Col. Miller and Mr. H. Morgan, and for the Encampment Mr. Arthur Magor; and from Peterborough Lodge, Messrs. W. H. Hill, J. Brownlee and Burt Wallace and for the Encampment, Mr. W. Savigny.

HEARD A FORMER PASTOR

REV. J. E. TROTTER PREACHED AT MURRAY ST. CHURCH.

Spoke on Christian Manhood and Told of one of the Greatest Needs of the the Present Time.

Congregations at Murray-st. Baptist church were undoubtedly pleased Sunday to hear a former pastor, Rev. J. E. Trotter, now of Port Hope, and formerly of St. Catharines. He will again occupy the pulpit of this church on Sunday next. Rev. Mr. Trotter is an interesting and impressive speaker, and he gave an excellent address in the evening upon "Christian Manhood," taking his text from I Corinthians, 16; 13: "Quit you like men." The speaker edid that one of the greatest needs of the present day was men—honest men in all relations with their fellow-men; true men in heart and life; unselfish men, not always thinking about themselves and caring little about their fellows; merciful men, who have hearts of compassion; brave men, ready to do and to dare for God and their community and for suffering humanity. The speaker quoted the words of J. G. Holland, the vigorous American writer:—"God give us men. The time demands strong minds, brave hearts —men whom the lust of office cannot kill, men whom the spoils of office cannot buy, men of opinions and a will." The kind of men required were those prepared to impress the world and not to be impressed too much by it, men who were able to take a stand against a strong current and make headway against it. The speaker dwelt upon these strong characteristics: Conviction, courage and consecration. With regard to the first Scripture said: 'As a man thinketh in his heart so is he," and this defined the relation between faith and character. A great many people seemed to have no conviction. They did no particular harm to mankind and no particular good. The speaker impressed the necessity of a righteousness that was strong, fixed and unswerving.

Courage was illustrated in the life of Peter and John before the council at Jerusalem, and history with its many martyrs gave many instances. The world hated a coward; it admired a man with the courage of his convictions. Consecration ought to follow the other two characteristics. There were many superficial ideas of consecration and the leaders in the Christian Endeavor movement were in a measure at fault for not having impressed the consecration service as something more than a mere verbal exercise. A consecrated man was one who recognized his greatest responsibility towards his fellowman, and so conducted his life. Christianity was of God, and the speaker urged the desirability of these three characteristics forming a large part of every Christian life.

WASTE PAPER

A Fitting Punishment for Scattering it on the Streets

In some of the cities on the continent of Europe they have a law which is rigidly enforced, prohibiting the scattering of paper about the streets.

Mr. Jerome K. Jerome gave an interesting account in an English periodical the other day of an English general who, unacquainted with the rule, tore up a long letter which he had been reading in the city of Dresden and threw it in some fifty fragments behind him.

A policeman stopped him and explained to him the law on the subject. The general agreed that it was a very good law and thanked the man for the information, remarking that for the future he would bear it in mind. This was not enough. The policeman insisted that the general should pick up the fifty scraps of paper.

It was not a pleasant or dignified position for an English general to go down upon his hands and knees in the principal street of Dresden in the middle of the afternoon, but there was no help for it. The alternative was to accompany the policeman, followed by the usual street crowd, to the nearest prison, some distance off.

The general did not change his opinion that the law was a good one after he had picked up the pieces of paper, but he wished he had known of its existence beforehand.

The moral conveyed by this incident may be useful here. The capital is no worse than many other places in this regard, but it might be made a little better were the police to insist upon persons who scatter waste paper picking up the fragments, and if there is no by-law giving them the if there is no by-law giving them the do this, one might be drawn up, and the police magistrate would doubtless do the rest if any one felt disposed to contest the point.—Ottawa Free Press.

The letter of Miss Merkley, whose picture is printed above, proves beyond question that thousands of cases of inflammation of the ovaries and womb are annually cured by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Gradual loss of strength and nerve force told me something was radically wrong with me. I had severe shooting pains through the pelvic organs, cramps and extreme irritation compelled me to seek medical advice. The doctor said that I had ovarian trouble and ulceration, and advised an operation. I strongly objected to this and decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I soon found that my judgment was correct, and that all the good things said about this medicine were true, and day by day I felt less pain and increased appetite. The ulceration soon healed, and the other complications disappeared, and in eleven weeks I was once more strong and vigorous and perfectly well.

"My heartiest thanks are sent to you for the great good you have done me."—Sincerely yours, Miss MARGARET MERKLEY, 375 Third St., Milwaukee, Wis.—$5000 forfeit if original of above testimonial proving genuineness cannot be produced.

A New County Map.

The Review has issued, for general distribution, a new edition of its well known map of the County of Peterborough. The map has been re-drawn and brought up to date and is the most accurate map existing of the county. It is of convenient size and yet legible and handy for reference. Copies may be had by calling at the Review Stationery Store, or will be sent by mail on receipt of 5 cents in stamps to cover postage.

DEATH OF GEORGE KERR

Brother of Mr. John Kerr of Ashburnham.

The Cobourg Sentinel-Star has the following with reference to the death of the late Geo. Kerr, father of Mr. Kerr of the Public School staff:

The sudden illness and death of Geo. Kerr of Cold Springs has startled, and cast a gloom over, the neighborhood in which he resided. He was in his usual health on Wednesday, had been working in the harvest field that morning, taken his dinner as usual and was in the hay mow in the afternoon. He must have over exerted himself, as at 2.30 o'clock in the afternoon he had a stroke of apoplexy and never regained consciousness, and his death occurred about 8.40 on Thursday morning, August 4th. A consultation took place between Dr. McBride of Cold Springs and Dr. Lapp of Cobourg, on Wednesday evening, but they decided that nothing could be done for him. The deceased was born in Baltimore, and has lived all his life in the neighborhood where he died. He was 65 years and 8 months old. Twenty-five years ago he was married to Miss Graham, a daughter of the late Robert Graham, who survives him with three daughters and one son. His son is a teacher in the Peterborough Public School, and one daughter is teaching school near Orono. He is also survived by his aged mother, four brothers, James and William, in Cobourg, John in Ashburnham, and one in Jerseys. He has been for a number of years president of the Cold Springs Cheese Factory, and for many years Superintendent of the Presbyterian Sunday School at Cold Springs. In religion he was a Presbyterian, faithful to his God, honorable in all his dealings, respected and trusted by his fellow men. His life was such that when death came, sudden and without warning, his faith in God, which was firm during his life, must have been sufficient to pilot him through the dark valley and shadow of death.

Pared Prices

No half measures about this store when we decide to see the last of summer lines. This week's business is to be again characterized by plenty of pruned prices. Fractional quotations will rule.

People who come to the Golden Lion in response to our printed announcements, find the advantages we offer every time. Those who have been the rounds say there is nothing in town ahead of Fair's values. The startling changes in prices this week will interest keen buyers. We misjudged the quantity of untrimmed Hats we could sell during July—weather conditions were against us. Now we must take our bitter pill. Here are some details of pared prices worth reading:

JAPANESE RENEWING ATTACK

They Have a Strong Position on Wolf Hill.

HAVE NOW A GREAT CHANCE

Great Damage May be Done to the Fortress--Japs Are Renewing Their Attacks on Outer Positions of Port Arthur--Patkin Ready to Defeat Plans.

Che Foo, Aug. 10.—From a source hitherto reliable it is said there is good reason to believe that the Japanese are renewing their attack on the remaining outer positions at Port Arthur.

The officers of the German cruiser Fuerst Bismarck, lying at the outer edge of this harbor, express the opinion that the firing heard Monday night was an encounter between detachments of warships, twenty miles northwest of Che Foo. From the cruiser the flashes of the guns could be seen.

Six Miles From Fortress.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 10.—The following despatch from Viceroy Alexieff, dated Aug. 7, has been received by the Czar:

"General Stoessel reports as follows:

"At five in the morning of July 27, the enemy having advanced a strong force, their artillery opened fire along their whole front, followed by a series of attacks, one of which, directed against Yupalasa Mountain, was especially vigorous.

"At about eight in the evening the enemy were everywhere repulsed with enormous losses. I remained in the advanced positions we have held for two days against an army very much stronger than ours.

"At four in the morning of July 30, about five divisions of Japanese took the offensive against our position on the Wolf Hills. In view of the enormous superiority of the enemy's forces and weakness of the position our troops were ordered to retire to the next positions without fighting. The movement was effected in complete order under the protection of artillery, which by accurate fire at short ranges, completely stopped the Japanese advance.

"Our losses have not yet been ascertained, but they were not great. The losses of the Japanese were very considerable. In the engagements of July 26 and July 27 the Japanese had about 70,000 men, and a considerable number of guns.

"The morale of the Russian troops is excellent, and their health good."

Gen. Stoessel says the real assault of the Japanese was made on the Russian positions on Wolf Hills, which, he points out, are only six miles northward and near the railroad station.

Aim to Attack Stoessel.

Mukden, Aug. 10.—The Japanese are using Shanhaikwan-Yinkow Railway for provisioning the army and mobilizing troops for an attack on Simpantun, about 20 miles west of Mukden.

To Relieve Kuropatkin.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 10—It is reported in military circles that Lieut.-Gen. Linevitch is marching with troops from the direction of Vladivostock to create a diversion in the rear of Gen. Kuroki's army, with the object of relieving Gen. Kuropatkin's force.

Ready to Defeat Plans.

Liaoyang, Aug. 10.—Gen. Kuropatkin is ready to defeat the Japanese plan for cutting off Liaoyang. The Japanese forces are concentrated in three groups—the first at Simoucheng, Haicheng and Newchwang; the second threatening Liandanisan and Liaoyang, and the third threatening Sikuyan, Liaoyang and Mukden. According to a Chinese reports the Japanese are massing in the direction of Saimatze, evidently flanking Liaoyang and a strong column is ascending the Liao Valley from Newchwang. Also for the purpose of flanking Liaoyang. A reliable Chinese merchant declares this column includes ten thousand Chinese, Japanese subjects, from the Island of Formosa. This most unwelcome development may induce other Chinese to join the Japanese. It is hard to tell a Formosan from a Manchurian.

Drove to the Sea.

Siantsintin, 46 miles east of Mukden, Manchuria, Monday, Aug. 8.—(Delayed in transmission).—A column of Russian troops, consisting of two companies of Cossacks, two companies of sharpshooters, a company of infantry and a couple of mountain guns, set out Aug. 4, on the Saimatse road toward Tsianchan, 56 miles southward, and drove in the Japanese outposts. A hundred men stubbornly resisted at three consecutive passes, but were routed by the Russian artillery, leaving ammunition and equipment behind them. One Russian was killed and four were wounded. The Russian pursued the Japanese so far as Tsianchan. According to the Chinese 2,000 Japanese are holding that place.

Fight at Port Arthur Aug. 8.

London, Aug. 10.—It is reported from Shanghai that the Russians are retreating northward from Anshanshan. The Daily Telegraph's Che Foo correspondent reports a great land and sea fight at Port Arthur, Aug. 8, and the Japanese were repeatedly repulsed. Over 1,000 Russians were killed, the correspondent says. The Russian troops have now been reinforced by civilians at Port Arthur.

Premier's Daughter Weds.

Toronto, Aug. 10.—The wedding took place yesterday at the residence of Hon. G. W. Ross of his daughter, Miss Florence Ross, and R. Ernest Gunn, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Gunn, Rosedale. The service was performed by Rev. E. W. Mackay, B.A., of Medoc, and Rev. Dr. Neil of Westminster Presbyterian Church. Miss Mabel Ross was bridesmaid, and Norman Smallpiece was best man. Only relatives and a few friends were present. The gifts were numerous and handsome.

Athletic Sports Were Tuesday.

Montreal, Aug. 10.—The fourth race for the Seawanhaka Cup, which took place on Lake St. Louis yesterday afternoon, resulted in another win for the American boat, the White Bear of St. Paul, Minn. She crossed the finish line 1 minute and 2 seconds ahead of the Nocoma. The final race will be sailed to-day.

HORSESHOERS CONVENTION

Will be Held Here September 7 th

The third annual convention of the Master Horseshoers Association of Ontario will assemble at Peterborough on September 7th in Forester's Hall, Simcoe street. There will be about two hundred delegates here. The first session will begin at one o'clock and the second at 7.30 p.m., and at the latter the Convention will close. There are several important questions to be dealt with, such as the Incorporation of the Ontario body, and Legislation in connection with the apprenticeship system, whereby it will be made necessary for an apprentice to serve a term of years and pass an examination before a board of veterinarys and practical horse shoers on anatomy, physiology and other subjects. Ontario stands at the head this year in organization. The Provincial officers are:—

President — Dr. J. G. Stewart, Brantford.
Vice-President—W. C. Andrews, Barrie.
Recording Secretary and Treasurer—R. B McGill, Peterborough.
Organizer—G. A. Cook, Hamilton.

The officers of the local association are:—

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 10, 1904.

ROBBING OUR PEOPLE

The speech and motion by Mr. Bell in the House of Commons condemning the extravagance of the government and their increased demands upon the pockets of the people called forth from Mr. Fielding a bragging stump oration with very little solid foundation. Larger expenditure, larger drains upon the taxpayer, larger importations to take the bread out of the mouth of the Canadian wage earner, were all subjects of congratulation like a frothy Fourth of July oration full of boasts of the biggest of the United States, and all belonging to it.

Canada is growing and no one expects that its expenditure will remain stationary, though it is not unfair to remind these versatile gentlemen that they would allow no such argument when in opposition and they came into office pledged to retrench not to augment our annual outlay. What the people are concerned to know is that the money is needed and that it is wisely expended, so that they may get a good return for it. When the Conservatives were in power they constructed, with all the risks and difficulties of a new enterprise in an unsettled and almost unknown country, a great transcontinental railway which united our provinces, made a portion of a great world route and opened up wide districts for settlement. They virtually constructed our canal system. In many ways they started our Dominion on its career of prosperity, more especially by their wise and patriotic fiscal policy. All this was done in the teeth of virulent opposition from the Liberals out of office. Senator Cox confessed in the Senate that by the mistaken opposition of himself and his friends to the C.P.R. they had set back the progress of the Dominion for decades. To all the benefits derived from this wise administration the Liberals have fallen heirs. Yet Mr. Fielding bragged as if he and his colleagues deserved great credit for the success of the measures they had done their utmost to thwart for the harvest for which they had only sown tares. Instead of spending the money of the people on such great public works they have frittered it away chiefly with a view to keeping themselves in office. Wharfs constructed for the benefit of individuals, public buildings in villages affording little revenue, expenditure of all kinds to purchase support or reward party friends, above all the enrichment of the grafters, have made the public expenditure and the taxation of the people increase by leaps and bounds.

All this profligate expenditure Mr. Fielding defended by the excuse that they had got the money which they spent and had not borrowed it. You would think to hear him talk that the revenue dropped from the clouds or was created by these divinities. Every cent of taxation comes from the pockets of the people, and every cent that is taken from them unnecessarily is an addition to their burdens. Much of the receipts from customs arose from the fact that the duties were not adequate to protect the Canadian wage earner from competition from outside. Take as an example a Canadian working man buying a suit of woollens. He may possibly get them a few cents cheaper, but probably they do not last him half the time of honest Canadian goods. And to secure this very doubtful advantage, he has deprived a Canadian wage earner of work for a day or two, sending his money out of the country to give his custom to some working man there. There has been a duty paid on the suit or its material and Mr. Fielding brags of the revenue thus increased though he has done injury and no good to anyone in Canada. His increased importations and augmented receipts from customs are not a subject for boastfulness, but a proof that he is giving to outsiders the custom and the wages that should be given to Canadians. Most of his other boasts were equally illfounded.

Perhaps out-side the Cabinet ranks Mr. Cochrane is the most corrupt and dishonest man in the Province or the Dominion. Of course therefore in the heated votes for railway grants he came in for a graft. He helped by voting in his own favour to deplete the Provincial treasury and now it is the Dominion that is to be fleeced.

In the Senate the Ministerialist persisted in striking the name of the King out of the new Militia Bill as far as possible. They argued plausibly that it made no practical difference. It was only one of their persistent attempts to loosen by degrees all ties binding us to the Empire and to bring about the independence of Canada which is the avowed policy of Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

The Globe returns to its protest against fortifications all along our 4,000 miles of frontier, an invention of its own to discredit Lord Dundonald, who as it well knows, recommended nothing of the kind. Sir Frederick Borden in this villainous plot dishonestly concealing Lord Dundonald's report, that he may inspire his organs to utter their calumnies, while he hides away the refutation in his pigeon holes.

Rounds Out the Form

"Persons who have become pale, weak and thin by overwork, worry or disease, find that Dr Chase's Nerve Food is wonderfully effective in forming new blood, restoring a healthful glow to the complexion and rounding out the form. You will soon feel the benefit of this restorative treatment and can prove it by noting your increase in weight.

THE JACKSON APPOINTMENT.

The Whole Ministry is Responsible all the Same.

The St. Marys Argus (Lib.) says: "We have never approved or condoned the appointment of Mr. Jackson. It was one of those weak things that all governments occasionally do, but it does not strengthen any government within its own party or with the independent electorate. Sir Richard Cartwright says that he is solely responsible for it. We think we made an unwise appointment and are glad that he relieves the government from all responsibility."

BOTH HANDS ON IT

Provincial Liberal Leaders Clinging to Power—Any Sacrifice for Office

The independent Woodstock Express says:

"Mr. Whitney has repeated his statement that after the last Provincial election he was invited to join a coalition government, but he declined to risk his reputation. The attractions of office must be very strong for some of the Liberal leaders in Ontario. If there is anything that they would not do rather than take their hands off the public purse it would be interesting to know what it is. They were willing to divide up with Gamey. They were willing to take Whitney into partnership. The South Oxford election trial may be taken as an indication of what they were willing to do in other directions. They were willing to sacrifice honor, reputation, principle—anything but power. There is no need for anyone to rise up and advise these men to keep both hands on the public purse."

Fee Over Sixty Years

An old and well-tried remedy.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for sixty years by millions of mothers for their children while teething, with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Sold by all druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Its value is incalculable. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup and take no other kind.

A RECORD TOUR

Black Watch Band Will Traverse Over 12000 Miles.

The tour of the famous Black Watch Brass and Pipe Bands of Canada beginning next month makes a new record for long distance travelling by musical organizations in a brief space of time. The Bands in charge of Major Ross will leave Edinboro Castle and sail from Liverpool on August 18th. After arrival in Montreal they will go direct to Toronto, where they play for two weeks at the Canadian National Exposition, after which they go on tour under the direction of Mr. Steven art-Houston. The first week will be devoted to Western Ontario, the places visited being Windsor, Chatham London, Stretford, Galt, Guelph, Brantford, Hamilton, Niagara Falls. On Saturday night September 17th, they leave for the Northwest, playing at Fort William, Winnipeg, Brandon, Portage la Prairie, and Rat Portage. For the third week they will be in Toronto, Lindsay, Peterborough, Belleville, Kingston, Brockville, Ottawa, and Montreal. For the last week the Highlanders will be in St. John, Halifax, New Glasgow, Sydney, Amherst, Moncton, leaving the last named city on Saturday evening, October 8th, and sailing from Rimouski the following morning.

On the tour the band will have traversed, including their ocean passages over 12,000 miles. In order to accomplish the distances they will travel by special train, on special sleeping cars. The party will number over sixty.

When your Child Suffers

For lack of knowledge of the value of Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for eczema, many a mother has been worn out in the effort to relieve her child of suffering. Eczema, scald head and other forms of itching skin diseases are common to children, especially during the teething period. Though readily cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment, eczema, if neglected, becomes chronic and may last for years.

VICTORIA CHEESE BOARD

LIVELY DISCUSSION AMONG SALESMEN AND BUYERS.

Highest Offer Was 8 1-8 But Most of the Board Sold Lower—Mr. Whitton's Troubles.

(Lindsay Post.)

The Victoria County Cheese Board which meets every two weeks, in beginning to attract a number of outsiders to the sessions as there is generally something worth listening to.

The buyers present this morning were Messrs. Whitton, Cook, Fitzgerald and Flavelle.

Before commencing the regular business the President, Mr. Thos. Robertson stated that they had now got the C.P.R. line through to Bobcaygeon and were prepared to ship on that line. The buyers should give the farmers a chance to ship from that point—perhaps not at this sale, but at the next one. "We would like to have the pleasure of shipping at Bobcaygeon," concluded the President.

Mr. Flavelle started the bidding at 7 5-8, Mr. Cook raised to 7 11-16, Fitzgerald called 7 1-2, and Flavelle made it 7 3-4. A little intermission then took place, after which Mr. Whitton raised to 7 13-16, Mr. Fitzgerald following with 7 7-8; Mr. Whitton then raised to 7 15-16 and Mr. Fitzgerald called 8c. After another pause Mr. Whitton raised to 8 1-16. This was not bettered and he called Red Rock, which accepted, and Cameron, which refused. Mr. Whitton then offered 7 15-16 for further selections. On this offer being made Mr. Fitzgerald got into a discussion in which he accused Mr. Whitton of doing a factory out of some $76 at a previous sale.

Mr. Whitton—I say it is not so.

Mr. Hayden (Red Rock)—I've seen nothing wrong.

Mr. Whitton—I am perfectly willing to go to arbitration if necessary.

Mr. Flavelle—7 7-8.

Mr. Whitton raised to 7 15-16 and Mr. Fitzgerald called the same figure.

Mr. Whitton—I would like to say a word. I bought cheese at Peterborough and I defy Mr. Fitzgerald or any one else to show a cleaner sheet than I have; I have got as clean a sheet as the Hudson Brothers. (To Mr. Fitzgerald)—Did you carry out your bargain on this board at the last sale? I have my call at 7 15-16.

Mr. Fitzgerald—I'll bid 8c.

He selected Roseboro and Mariposa, offered 15-16 for further selections.

Mr. Whitton—You have not got 300 yet. I like to stick to the rules of the Board. 15-16 for balance of the Board.

The president made an attempt to call out the factories but Mr. Fitzgerald again made a crack at Whitton about the $76, whom Mr. Whitton said—"I'll make you prove that I did a factory out of $76.

Mr. Fitzgerald—You've got wind.

Mr. Whitton—I've enough wind for you.

Mr. Whitton then called Maple Leaf.

The salesman—I don't like to sell at less than the highest. Do you pay in Lindsay?

Mr. Whitton—I can't do it.

He then called Omemee and Dunsford, the latter salesman replying, "No, I want 8c."

Mr. Whitton—If you get it, all right.

Mr. Whitton then called North Ops, Cambray, Palestine, Bobcaygeon and Star; all refused.

Mr. Whitton—That is short and decisive. You might as well say you don't want us Belleville men at all.

Mr. Cook — You are running no more risk than the wholesale merchants of Toronto, who are shipping here.

Mr. Whitton—I am not afraid of any expert in Canada, Publow or anybody else. We didn't want to come here.

Mr. Flavelle—It is simply a matter of complying with the rules of the Board.

Mr. Whitton—This is the only place that we have any business of this kind.

Mr. Cook—I think you Lindsay men are trying to use us for suckers.

Mr. Whitton—That's it in Belleville, Tweed, Campbellford and other places, we never hear of it.

President Robertson — Pine Grove, Star and Bobcaygeon have got a lesson and we don't want another.

Mr. Taylor Perkin—Mr. Cook had no right to use that expression. We do not want to use you like suckers, and I don't want to get mixed up in this affair.

Mr. Sanger said he thought fair play was due and explained about his factory (Red Rock.)

Mr. Fitzgerald — He is worth watching.

Mr. Whitton—I want to know if we are wanted on this Board; (to the president)—You are allowing these men to break the rules—Fitzgerald did not take his $80; I called for 325 and it is the man's own fault if he did not take it.

The President—Yes, Mr. Fitzgerald has got to take another factory.

Mr. Flavelle — to Mr. Whitton (through)?

Mr. Whitton—I called enough.

Mr. Flavelle—I give—

Mr. Whitton (to Mr. Fitzgerald)—I called mine—you call yours and see if you get them.

The President—Mr. Fitzgerald has not taken his number and Mr. Whitton hasn't.

Mr. Whitton—I called mine. If a man refuses it is his own business.

I have bought some 3000 boxes within a week and have had no trouble except at Lindsay.

Mr. Fitzgerald — I'll take Star, Dunsford, Maple Leaf, North Ops and Pine Grove at 8c.

"Now," said Mr. Fitzgerald to Mr. Whitton, shaking his hand at him—"Now you take yours and be a man."

Mr. Whitton—I called my number, and don't you get off the roost either—I am as good a man as you, Fitzgerald.

Mr. Flavelle then got Bobcaygeon, Palestine, Cambray, Cameron and North Verulam at 8c.

Mr. Whitton—I'll give 15-16 for North Harvey.

That factory preferred to sell off the Board.

The factories boarded as follows:

Star	125
Cameron	125
Dunsford	105
Mariposa	124
Cambray	80
Omemee	100
North Verulam	125
North Ops	80
Pine Grove	80
Roseboro	125
Bobcaygeon	200
Maple Leaf	100
Palestine	120
Red Rock	210
North Harvey	81
	2035

Flavelle—Cameron, Cambray, Bobcaygeon, North Verulam, Palestine.

Whitton—Omemee, Red Rock.

Next meeting on August 22nd.

JACKSON K.C.

He and that Sire of a Feather. Sir R. Cartwright.

The Woodstock Express, an independent paper, published in Oxford County, gives the following account of that disreputable pair, Jackson, K.C., and Sir R. Cartwright. The concluding paragraph blaming Conservatives for exploiting Jackson's crimes to make votes, is a typical specimen of the efforts of the Independent press to seem impartial by appending to their denunciation of some crime by the party in power, and whose conduct is therefore the main consideration for the people they misrepresent the suggestion of some supposition wrongdoing by Conservatives. This of course deprives of weight their condemnation of official misdeeds, which is the real question at issue.

The Express says:—

Those who have been familiar with the inside working of the party machines in South Oxford for some years past were not greatly surprised when Sir Richard Cartwright came to the defence of J. B. Jackson. It is probable that if all the facts were generally known the public would not be surprised either. The Cartwright-Jackson connection has been a scandal to self-respecting Liberals in South Oxford for years. Some excuse was found for Sir Richard on the ground that he was an absentee; he is not responsible, the Liberals said, for he does not know. Whatever the measure of Sir Richard's responsibility, candid Liberals have not hesitated to admit—though party considerations have restrained them from proclaiming their admissions from the house-tops—that the machine as it existed was a shame and a curse. South Oxford Liberals do not conceal their gratification at the removal of Jackson from the riding; they express no sorrow at the deliberate attempt of Sir Richard Cartwright to commit political suicide. Perhaps some of those who in their hearts, whatever they say from their lips, most deeply regret the breaking of the Jackson combination are the very exploiters who have been in the habit of plying a profitable trade for years in votes and influence. The political history of South Oxford for some years past is one in which neither party can take much pride.

PERRY PYROTECHNICS

Toronto Accords Full Honors to Modest King's Prizeman.

150,000 People Cheer the Winner of the Blue Ribbon of the Rifle World—50,000 Attend the Tattoo on the University Lawn—The Presentations—Five Hurt in Accident—Perry Expresses Heartfelt Thanks.

Toronto, Aug. 10.—The warmth and magnitude of the reception extended by the military, and those in the more peaceful walks of civil life in Toronto, to Private Sam Perry, King's Prizeman, will live in the memory of all who saw or participated. Crowded? It seemed as if there was not a soul in the city but who had flocked to the route of parade or to the park to see and do honor to a slim khaki-clad youth who, perched upon a gaily decorated gun carriage, was the most modest figure in the whole procession. Even the well browned skin could not hide the blushes as he bowed acknowledgements to the throng who cheered, or as he leaned over to grasp a hand here and there of some one more deeply stirred to enthusiasm.

Streets Lined Six Deep.

From the Union Depot, where the streets were densely packed, up York to King and up Yonge to College and thence to the Queen's Park the sidewalks were lined from three to six deep with all sorts and conditions of Toronto people. And up through the park driveways it was the same.

The stands on the university lawn were crowding to a degree. No more beautiful place is there in the city for such an event than the lawn. With the university in the background and the broad spacious stretch of grass, and the shades of trees on the other three flanks, there was all the staging necessary for a spectacular performance. And when, added to this, and shown, first in the flickering light of oil torches, and then in the glare of the red fire pyrotechnics and the gay showers from the rockets, was the eager, but good-natured mass of women and men and children, crushing and craning, cheering and chattering then there were senses indeed to make one marvel at the unrestrained manner in which Toronto gives the lie to the old adage that "a prophet is not without honor save in his own country."

Crush in the Park.

A very conservative estimate puts the number present at 50,000; one well-known officer, as he stood on the platform and allowed his gaze to wander over the very sea of heads to north, to south, to east and to west, put himself on record as counting 150,000.

The police arrangements had been well mapped out, and there was a nicely roped-off enclosure for the VIP'S platform, a platform for the correspondents erected on the lawn just south of the main entrance to Varsity, and a reserved space in which invited guests were given chairs to see the tattoo and witness the presentations.

The tattoo was carried out successfully, and there was a fine display of fireworks. Then an attempt was made to carry out the real and important portions of the evening's program. But it was soon evident that any proceedings on the platform were but an empty vision for the few in the front row; the thousands formed but a surging mass, orderly but uncontrollable.

Perry Didn't Speak.

And so the speech-making was soon abandoned. Even Private Perry was given no chance to return his thanks for the reception he had just received. The presentations almost buried at him and the proceedings announced to have terminated, and Perry had just mounted a table to show himself in answer to popular request, while the crowds were filing away, when the entire platform collapsed. It is an act of providence that no one was killed, and the accident created consternation for a while. As it was, five persons were hurt, one seriously. The injured are: Chas. Goodhand, 40 Wellington avenue, left leg broken; Edward McLarity, 992 Bathurst street, aged 14, left shinbone badly bruised; Herman Johnston, 807 Palmerston avenue, right leg badly sprained; Harry Hawkins, Parkdale, aged 15, left instep bruised; Frank England, aged 16, left leg badly cut and bruised.

The accident occurred at the conclusion of the ceremonies on the stand and was caused by the rush of the crowd to see and shake hands with Private Perry.

At the Station.

Pte. Perry had been received by Col. Otter and the members of the garrison committee at the Don Station, while Acting-Mayor Ward and members of the City Council were driving up to the station entrance. The train was only five minutes late arriving. What happened on the station platform can be readily imagined. Joseph Price, an uncle, and members of his family, were there to greet the young rifleman. His father had accepted an invitation to accompany the aldermanic party. While waiting for the troops to arrange themselves outside, a short delay occurred, during which time Perry held an informal reception. Among the officers present were Col. Otter, Lieut.-Cols. Stimson, Macdonald, Bruce and Merritt, Capt. Montgomery, Major Henderson, Capt. Grier, Major Sankey, Lieut. Young, Lieut. Linton and Capt. Moss. On his arrival, Ald. Ward and other members of the City Council were introduced. Perry wore the khaki uniform patterned after the mounted rifle style and issued by the Dominion Rifle Association to the Bisley team.

On his way up from Montreal Perry was greeted at nearly all the way stations by cheering groups, and at Peterboro quite a demonstration was given.

The members of the local regiments did themselves proud in the large turnouts recorded.

Cheered the Whole Way.

As Perry was drawn through the long lane of spectators along the whole route, the plaudits that were showered upon him were inspiring to listen to.

Tribute From the Garrison.

Captain Montgomery of the Grenadiers stepped forward when the temporary stand was reached and read the address from the garrison.

Col. Otter then made the presentation of a cabinet of silverware, shaking hands with the recipient and expressing pleasure at the ceremony.

Col. the Hon. J. M. Gibson, as president of the Dominion Rifle Association, then spoke, expressing his pleasure at taking part in the demonstration. He concluded by saying Perry had immortalized himself.

On behalf of the Ontario Rifle Association, its president, E. B. Osler, M.P., offered congratulations on his having won the blue ribbon of the rifle world over.

Toronto's Gift.

Col. Stimson followed, presenting a gold watch on behalf of the Grenadiers.

Col. Merritt, for the Bodyguards, presented a hunting outfit, as the G. G. B. G. is the senior militia corps in Canada, and as such wished to show their appreciation. The presentation of a pair of seal rings from "F" Company, Grenadiers, was then made.

Then the accident occurred and the formal proceedings were over.

After the conclusion of the formal ceremonial in the Queen's Park, the hero of the celebration was entertained by his old comrades of the Grenadiers in their Sergeants' Mess room.

Perry's Thanks.

The King's prizeman, who throughout the rather trying circumstances bore himself and his laurels with becoming modesty, said he could hardly express how much he had felt the reception accorded him in his native city. It had been overwhelming.

"I am not accustomed to put my sentiments into words," he said, "but I desire to express my thanks to all who have shared in the demonstration. It has far exceeded anything I anticipated, and I feel deeply honored at all that has been done."

The Sailsbury Co

RECEPTION TO PERRY

both reflect the utmost honor on this country, and draw the eyes of the sporting and athletic world upon us as never before. This double success is something unprecedented, so far as this country is concerned, and it is undoubtedly the same that the British Isles have never before lost, in one year, two such famous trophies as the Diamond Skulls and the gold medal, which, with a cheque for £250, is the prize won by the man who hails from Vancouver.

Though the Diamond Skulls are coming to us for the first time, we had the distinction of sending a winner of the Queen's prize from Canada once before. Nine years ago Hayhurst, the Hamilton man, defeated several hundred competitors in this great contest, and for the first time the champion rifle shot of the Empires' military forces was found elsewhere than in England or Scotland.

Just what a triumph of marksmanship it is to win the King's prize may be judged from the fact that sometimes there are 2,400 contestants. Just how many shot in the preliminary stages this year we do not know, but in all probability the number is not far short of 2,000. In the long history of this, the Riflemen's Derby, Scotch shots have won fourteen times, a Guernsey man won in 1899, a Canadian in 1895, and a Canadian again in this year of our Lord. Canada's grand aggregate is thus very satisfactory.

THE N. R. A.

The National Rifle Association, under whose auspices the military rifle matches of the empire are held, was founded in 1860, and is by far the strongest rifle club in the world, with a membership of nearly 6,000 and assets of $350,000. Each year $60,000 in prizes is distributed, exclusive of the value of challenge trophies, that do not become the personal property of their winners. The King's Prize is the most famous of the competitions, but the Palma Trophy, the Kolapore Cups, the Grand Aggregate, the Volunteers' Aggregate and the Evelyn Wood are known the world over as the greatest prizes that can fall to marksmen. The Palma Trophy, open to picked teams from any army in the world, was won by the American team last year, but was returned a few weeks ago because of the unpleasant scandal which attached to the performance of the riflemen from the United States.

Canadians made their first appearance at Wimbledon in 1872, a team being despatched in a businesslike manner to capture the Kolapore Cup that had been offered for competition by the Rajah of that province a year before. To the surprise of their opponents they won. In 1897 Australia sent a team for this express purpose also, and she also succeeded, repeating her victory in the following year. Since 1872 Canada has become well known at Wimbledon, and later, when the scene shifted, at Bisley. The Canadian bungalow is the largest of the regimental or national club-houses at Bisley, and is always the scene of much social gaiety during the riflemen's season. One after another the great prizes have fallen to our marksmen, and the names of Canadians—Hayhurst, Bertram, Perry—take their places among the Empire's great shots. This last victory should advertise the vastness of our native land as never before, for we can imagine an English rifleman enquiring:

"Say, Bill, where does this Perry live?"

"In Canada."

"Where about's in Canada?"

"On the Pacific Ocean, two or three thousand miles from the place Hayhurst came from!"

PERRY INTERVIEWED.

The officers of the 57th Regiment who shook hands with Private Perry were Captain McWilliams and Lieutenants Watt and Smith. There was only a minute for congratulations, and the crowd barely had a good look before the train was off. The King's prizeman is not a great hand at talking about himself and for one who has attained such marked distinction, he is most unassuming. He was attired in khaki, and wasn't born on the shoulders of the jacket bore the name of the country to which he had brought such honor.

"Whatever success I have had as a rifle shot," said he, in modest fashion, in an interview with the Montreal Star, "I owe not more to my own exertions than to the hard tutelage of officers connected, not only with the Royal Grenadiers in Toronto, where I obtained my first experience on the ranges, but those of the Duke of Connaught's Own Rifles—the regiment to which I belong in Vancouver. The officers in the West particularly, take a great interest in seeing their men attain efficiency in the use of the rifle. They take particular pains to ascertain just what is in the new man. When they discover what they conceive to be talent they do all in their power to develop its latent powers. That is one reason they have a singularly large number of good shots on the coast."

TO BE A GOOD SHOT.

"What are the prime requisites of a good shot?"

"I should say," replied Mr. Perry, "steadiness of nerve, in the first instance. In fact, a man must have such good nerves that, paradoxical as it may seem, he has no nerves at all. Any man who is at all nervous on the ranges can never hope to be a first-class shot. Other outstanding qualities that go towards the making of a good shot are utter absentmindedness and great patience. In my own case I neither smoke nor drink, and in acquiring what little proficiency I have attended I practised rifle shooting for at least seven years. I am twenty-five years of age now, and I commenced my career on the ranges as early as eighteen."

"Is there much of a strain on what little nerves you possess shooting at Bisley?"

"Well, quite a bit," replied Mr. Perry, laughing. "It is a somewhat trying position for a man, no matter how good a shot he may be, to find himself pitted against four thousand of the best shots in the British Empire. Particularly is that so in the case of colonials, very few of whom are regular soldiers. When a man is taken out of a counting house or a factory and plunked down beside regulars, who are expert marksmen, he is necessarily keyed up to a pretty high tension."

"Were you surprised when you were declared the winner of the King's Prize?"

"Yes, I must confess to some considerable degree of surprise," responded Mr. Perry. "I can't say that I expected to come out on the top of the bunch. Up to the last stage I was six points behind the leading man. And, as you are aware, it requires a higher degree of expertness to shoot at the long ranges than at the short ones. Consequently, when I found myself behind at the outset of the final stage I gave up hope of making anything but a fairly good score. But I did not give up by any means. I determined to hang on to the final report of the rifle. I knew that there were a number of better shots ahead of me, but I did not believe in being discouraged after going so far. I thought I might at least attain second or third place. After the first shot at the long range I seemed to catch it right. And that is about all I can say."

"Yes," replied the hero of the hour. "I had a delightful experience every moment of the time. No one could have been treated with more consideration and courtesy than the Canadians were everywhere they went. The English people, soldiers and civilians, seemed more pleased to have me win the best prize at the meet than to have won it themselves. At the present time in Great Britain the Imperialistic spirit is particularly strong, and the Canadians, in particular, occupy a greater place than ever in the affections of the British people. Remember," pursued Mr. Perry—and this incident will show the unusual modesty of the man—"that is not because I won the King's Prize, nor because Scholes won the Diamond Sculls, but because the people of Great Britain realize more and more the vast potentialities and promise of the Dominion."

"Possibly the South African war had something to do with it," suggested the reporter.

WAS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

"Yes, the South African campaign undoubtedly gave Canada a broader outlook. I was out there myself, you know. So that, you see, I have not confined my shooting proclivities entirely to efforts at the target. Major Lafferty, sitting over there," said Mr. Perry, indicating one of a group of soldiers in the same room at the Windsor, "was also with the first contingent, and a very popular officer he was, I can tell you. All this talk about Scholes being called a foreigner," pursued Mr. Perry, carrying out his trend of thought relative to Canada's standing in Great Britain, "is totally unfounded. The Britons were pleased, but surprised at his great victory—pleased because Canada had won, surprised because they had come to look upon Kelly as invincible."

"Tell me something about your own career," suggested the reporter.

"Ah, there is very little to tell. I am a native born Canadian—the first to win the King's Prize. Though I lived most of my life in Toronto, my father is now resident in St. Catharines. Two years ago I went west, and may do so again, having been offered a position in the Customs' House at Vancouver. But Toronto really feels to me like my home. It was while a member of F Company in the Royal Grenadiers at Toronto that I first took an interest in shooting, and it was there I learned all I know about the art—there among those who are the best teachers in the Dominion. They gave me no end of tips. I was willing to learn; for I wanted some day to be a shot."

MOVEMENTS IN THE FUTURE.

"What will be your movements in the immediate future?"

"I am leaving Montreal on Tuesday morning for Toronto. Some one suggested my doing some exhibition shooting at the meeting of the Province of Quebec Rifle Association, but I would be in no condition to do anything worth while so soon after the ocean voyage. After a few days in Toronto I will go across the lake to visit my father at St. Catharines, and subsequently, possibly as far as Cleveland. Then I shall doubtless go west once more."

"This is not your first experience at Bisley?"

"No, I was there once before, two years ago, when I was the third highest among the aggregate winners, and fourth among the Canadians."

"What rifle do you use?"

"I started with the Enfield rifle, and afterwards took to the Martini-Henry. I want to keep, if that is possible, the rifle with which I won the King's prize, and Col. Anderson, the commander of the Bisley team, has very kindly consented to make representations upon that score to the Government. Singularly enough, Col. Anderson was the commander of the Bisley team when Private Hayhurst won the King's Prize."

Test the Kidneys

Allow urine to stand in a glass vessel for twenty-four hours and if at the end of that it is clouded or has left a sediment in the bottom of the vessel you may be sure that your kidneys are diseased. As a means of invigorating the action of the kidneys, and making them strong and healthy, there is no preparation so prompt and sure as thorough as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

The secret of the excellent baking and roasting qualities of the Imperial oven is found in the diffusive flue — an improvement which no other range possesses.

This flue draws fresh air from the floor, superheats it and delivers it into the top of the oven through perforations which diffuse it evenly to front, sides and back. This gives a uniform heat throughout the oven, resulting in uniformly cooked food.

When your oven is at baking heat block up the inlet and you will find the temperature of the oven will drop immediately, just like an ordinary range, unless the fire is stirred and more fuel added.

RECEPTION TO PERRY THE KING'S PRIZEMAN

Best Shot in the British Empire for This Year Passed Through Peterborough—Large Crowd Cheered Him at the C.P.R. Station—On His Way to Toronto.

When the people of Peterborough congregate in large numbers at either one of the railway stations every countenance practically beaming with anticipation, it is safe betting that something has happened which the town and country is proud of, and that the appropriate opportunity is not far off when to turn loose their spirits. This was evident yesterday afternoon as a very large number of people waited for the arrival of the 5.10 C.P.R. train conveying from Montreal to Toronto Private Perry, winner of the King's prize at Bisley—the first Canadian born to do so—and who brings back with him the everlasting glory of being the best shot in the Empire for this year. Once again has a Canadian sportsman brought honor to his country, and it now appears that by land or water Canadians can meet all comers. This is certainly a fact to be proud of, and it was something more than mere curiosity that brought the crowd to the depot last evening. The cheers that were given were indicative of appreciation that such honor had been brought home by a native born Canadian, and that he had not a place which every young man of his nationality might seek to emulate.

PERRY IN SOUTH AFRICA.

Private Perry was born and educated in Toronto, and while all Canada rejoices in the success of her son, that city, in particular will do herself proud in honoring the lad. He is but 26 years of age, but his life so far has not been uninteresting. He joined the first contingent that went to South Africa, so it may be seen that Samuel J. Perry is not only a marksman but a soldier, and that a brave one, as every man on that contingent proved. In South Africa he did some "stunts" in the way of sharp shooting. At the battle of Paardeberg he had three bullets of his helmet shot away, and referring to it he says: "I am lucky and thankful to be alive."

As a lad, it is said he was of courageous disposition, and it is related that he once saved a man from drowning in Turner's Bay. Perry's father, Joseph Perry, was a draughtsman and his son while young assisted him. The youth developed his talent as a draughtsman by learning to cut stone findings and it was to do this kind of work that he went to Vancouver a couple of years ago. He there joined the sixth regiment, the Duke of Connaught's Own Rifles. "He followed the girl" is the explanation given by one of his friends for Perry's departure from Toronto. The family of the girl he admired went to British Columbia in the spring of 1902. He left Toronto in the latter part of March of that year, and his marriage in the western province followed immediately.

IS BUT A BOY.

It was a smiling, bronzed boyish countenance that Private Perry showed to the expectant multitude at the station yesterday for the brief space of three or four months. "Why he is just a boy," was the remark overheard as he came into view. In stature he is probably below medium height. His large, bright, blue eyes are set prominently in a face not embecomingly tanned. He has a frank expression but there is that about the countenance which indicates determination, and the grit which carried him so successfully through a great test of endurance and a power and character are stamped thereon. The hair is dark and wavy and the brow broad and intellectual.

CONGRATULATIONS.

The crowd at the depot edged as close as possible to the train last evening, anxious to catch a first glimpse of Private Perry. He issued from the front end of the dining car and walked back to the Pullman. He did not do this with ease, however, for he was held up by many eager to congratulate and shake hands. Not a few officers of the 57th regiment were among these, and there were some veterans among them Sergt. Tom Miller, late of the Scots Guards, a regiment that was well to the front in the South African campaign.

Cheer after cheer went up, and the last seen of Private Perry was as he stood upon the platform of the car, waving his hand to his well wishers. And it was all over. Had he remained here longer he would have been lionized.

It was on Saturday July 23rd, that Perry won the coveted prize, consisting of $1200, given by His Majesty, the National Rifle Association gold medal and gold badge. These prizes are carivalled among the great contests of skill and endurance, and a famous rifleman with many a victory to his credit has been known to say, "The King's prize and I die happy."

A VERY FINE SCORE.

As is well known, the prize is competed for in three stages, the first at 200, 500 and 600 yards, with seven shots at each distance. The first three hundred in this stage compete at the second stage distance of 600 yards, with 20 shots each. The first hundred in this stage may enter the last stage at the distances of 500, 600 and 1000 yards, with ten shots at each distance. The possible is therefore 300, and the score of 321 made by Perry is a remarkably fine one. His target at the 1000 yards range is one of the best ever made.

Perry learned nearly all of his shooting in the Toronto Grenadiers and at Long Branch ranges. He went to Ottawa in 1901 and got his place on the Bisley team, and accompanied it in 1902. He skipped the D. R. A. matches in 1903, but shot through in 1904 and was 45th man. The first twenty usually go to Bisley, but this year it came down to the 45th, mean and it was nip and tuck with him to catch the steamer. His accomplishments as a marksman come with all the more credit to himself since he had not advantages and gained himself along. He was exceedingly popular and very well liked by the boys. Of a somewhat retiring and very modest disposition, he was at the same time jolly and good natured and devoted to his work. He is a total abstainer and was always most reliable and steady.

His first exploit at shooting was seven or eight years ago when he won a prize of $5 in the section shield prize given by Major Glendenham of Toronto. The match was at 200, 500 and 600 yards, and the was so elated with his success that he determined to devote himself to rifle shooting. Therein lies the secret of his success for since then he has consistently done everything in his power to make himself a good shot.

GREAT YEAR FOR CANADA.

Private Perry's fine exploit at Bisley throws additional lustre on a year already made memorable for Canadians by Lou Scholes' victory at Henley. It would be an ungrateful and a useless task to compare the performances of these men, and declare one to be more worthy of praise than the other. Suffice it to say that

SERGT.-MAJOR BRITTAIN CARED

The Ottawa Foot Guards Send him a Swagger Stick With Regimental Crest.

A letter was received by Sergt.-Brittain this morning from Captain T. G. Rothwell, Quartermaster, of the Ottawa Foot Guards, thanking him, on behalf of the regiment, for the kindness he had shown to the visitors during their stay in town. He also sent a swagger stick with the Guard's crest, and a fob chain with the crest of Ontario, Ottawa and the Dominion.

Sergt.-Major Brittain worked very hard for the entertainment of the Guards, and we are glad to know that his services were appreciated.

ACCIDENT CAUSED DEATH

To Patrick Joseph Hefferman, a Young Man from Otonabee.

Patrick Joseph Hefferman died last evening at St. Joseph's Hospital. His death was the result of an accident which he had with a horse some twelve weeks ago, and from which paralysis seems to have developed. He was the son of Thos. Hefferman of Otonabee, and was 21 years of age. The death of a young man whose many fine qualities made him a favorite wherever he was known, will be received with regret, and will be a great bereavement in the family of which he was a member. In his death St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society loses an esteemed adherent. His father and mother, six brothers and four sisters are living—Messrs. Robert, John, Michael, Thomas, Francis and James, all of Otonabee; Mrs. Patrick Doherty, Mrs. Jeremiah Fitzgerald, of Otonabee, Mrs. Wm. Fitzgerald of Ashburnham and Miss Julia Hefferman at home.

The funeral will be held to-morrow from the home, lot 26, con. 9, Otonabee, to St. Peter's Cathedral and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

MR. DUMBLE HOME AGAIN

Enjoyed a Two Weeks' Trip in the West—An Interview That Will be Full of Interest to Peterborough People—Former Residents of the Town in Port Arthur and Winnipeg.

Mr. D. W. Dumble, Peterborough's police magistrate, arrived hom last evening from a two weeks' trip in the west. Mr. Dumble is a close observer of men and things, and to the Review this morning he gave an interesting interview.

"Yes, I had a very delightful trip," said he, "I went by rail from here to Owen Sound. This town is built on a bay running inland about 10 miles, forming a splendid harbor improved by docks and dredging. The town itself lies on a flat between a high ridge at the rear and the water, and is a tidy, well-built town of about 9000. There are here three cement factories and a chair factory, employing about 700 hands. These are among the chief industries of the place.

ACTIVITY IN SHIPPING.

The trip from Owen Sound by C.P.R. steamer to Port Arthur was very enjoyable, both going and coming. There is splendid accomodation on these boats, equal to any first-class hotel in the country. This with a good appetite, induced by the bracing atmosphere, all combined to make that part of the trip exceedingly pleasant. One feature of interest, besides the scenery, is the life on the waters owing to the great number of American ships, huge craft, some of them 450 feet long, carrying ore. Generally the steamer has one or two barges, almost as large as the boat. St. Marys River, from the mouth to the Sault, is simply alive with ships. The ore is coming from the northern Michigan mines, and is being taken to Cleveland and Pittsburg.

INDUSTRY AT THE SOO.

"Both of the Soos are greatly improved since I was there 15 years ago. The Canadian side is very attractive from the water owing to the Clergue buildings, which are imposing in structure. These have hardly, yet got started, and there appears to be little activity.

From the Sault I continued through the waters of Lake Superior to Port Arthur, a very pretty town, especially from the water, as it is situated on the side of a height which gives prominence to every building. There is much evidence of growth in new buildings, and the great elevators both at Port Arthur and Fort William stand out prominently. The former place is unique for natural scenery and can only be likened to Quebec or Montreal. As you stand upon the heights behind the town, you look out upon Thunder Cape, 12 miles distant, looming up 1500 feet high. On the right, and over the Kamidistiquia, is McKay Mountain, 1100 feet in height, while out in the lake are Pie Island, also lofty, and Isle Royal, which, though lying apparently in Canadian waters, by some kind of engineering of our English diplomats is American territory.—why, no one can explain. It is about 120 miles long.

MET FORMER TOWNSMAN.

"At Port Arthur I met our old townsmen, the Dawson boys, three of whom reside there. They carry on business at Port Arthur and Fort William and are apparently successful merchants. James Emmerson, who went out from Peterborough, has a splendid business ensconsed in a stone structure, built by himself. The world seems to have gone well with him.

"There is a rivalry between the two towns, Port Arthur and Fort William. They are connected by street railway, and for many purposes constitute a city. They are putting in drainage and have already municipal waterworks, municipal street railway and municipal 'phones, and these appear to be profitable assets.

"The Kamindistiqua River for several miles from its mouth, forms a splendid harbor, the water being deep right up to the shore. Here the ships enter and take their loads from the great elevators, of which there are five or six, all of great capacity, and more building."

TRENT CANAL UNKNOWN.

"Did you hear anything about the Trent canal?" Mr. Dumble was asked.

"No; the people know little if anything about it," he replied. "I took the opportunity of bringing out with me a couple of photographs of the lift lock and had them hung in the grain exchange at Winnipeg. This city has grown greatly since I was out nine years ago. The striking improvements are in the streets, and much granolithic and macadam are used. The thoroughfares are splendidly made, finely shaped and kept perfectly clean. Their boulevards are built by the corporation, sodded, watered and cut by the corporation and charged to the owners. The people are very careful about the appearance of their city, and the homes in the best part are worthy of any city on the continent. The people are passionately fond of flowers, which here in the long day and bright sun seem to attain a brilliancy not seen elsewhere. Sweet peas, nasturtiums, lobelias are seen everywhere in profusion.

GREAT WHOLESALE CENTRE.

"The banks seem to have rivalled each other in the splendor of their structures. The Union Bank is erecting a sky-scraper of eleven stories and built of steel and brick. Winnipeg has now a population of nearly 67,000. The wholesale houses are splendid massive structures, and in fact the city has become a great wholesale centre.

"The Winnipeg Fair was very excellent in the things which parties.

That New Coal

An official of the Connell Anthracite Mining Co., of Scranton, Pa., has been in town for a day or two conferring with Mr. George Stevens, who has taken the agency for the new coal. "Connell Anthracite" is the coal that has been so popular in Montreal, Toronto, Kingston, Belleville, Port Hope, Oshawa, Picton, Trenton and 29 other towns throughout Canada. It has no connection with the old People's Coal Co., and to put the people of Peterborough right, it might be said that it can be bought under the combination price. In Mr. Stevens the company have a real hustler. 1d

The Golf Match With Lambton.

A prominent local golfer who wasn't pleased with our reference to the match, made the following remarks in our hearing to-day:—"The Peterborough club was beaten because of the absence of four of the first team, Ray, Burnett, Dunnistoun and Bull. Lawrence, Hamilton and Burnham, our first three players, beat Lyon, Hood and Strath by eight to seven. The Lyon mentioned is Mr. George Lyon, ex-champion golfer of Canada."

FORESTERS TO MEET HERE

The High Court of Ontario Meet to Hold Its Annual.

The High Court of Eastern Ontario of the Independent Order of Foresters will open its annual meeting here on Tuesday evening next, when a meeting for Foresters will be held in the Hall on Simcoe-st., which will be in charge of High Court officers. Mr. G. N. Brown, D.H.C.R., is here making arrangements. On Wednesday morning the sessions of the High Court will be opened in the Court House. On Wednesday evening there will be a big publi meeting in the Brock-st. rink. This will be addressed by Mr. Barlow Cumberland, late Deputy Supreme Secretary, London, England; Dr. T. Millman, Toronto, Supreme Secretary; Dr. Herald, of Kingston, High Chief Ranger, Ontario East. A. W. Fraser, K.C., of Ottawa, P.H.C.R., will take the chair. The band of the 57th regiment will be in attendance, and entertaining will be done by W. Shea, of Kingston, R. Carruth, of Renfrew, and local talent.

The business of the sessions will be to receive reports and transact other business of importance. Mr. Brown states:—"The year has been a very quiet one, no protests and no kicks of any kind. Our net increase over and above deaths and lapses was over 1,400. Ontario East extends from the County of Northumberland, north to the Nipissing District and east to the border. There are 233 subordinate courts, and 44 companion courts. During the year fifteen new courts have been formed.

The officers for the Eastern High Court are:—

High Chief Ranger—Dr. Herald, Kingston.

H.V.C.R.—W. E. Crane, M.D., Chrysler.

Secretary—G. L. Dickinson, Manitoue.

Treasurer—J. C. R. McCann, Kingston.

High Counsellor—H. O. E. Pratt, Ottawa.

Past High Chief Ranger—A. W. Fraser, Ottawa.

High Physician—Dr. Wade, Wooler.

There will be about three hundred delegates here.

TRAINING VOICES.

Caught Music Teachers and the Harm They Do Pupils.

"Ninety-five per cent of all vocal teachers are quacks," said an old musician. Few singers would doubt the assertion. Probably in no other kind of work can a man who knows practically nothing about a subject do so quickly a lucrative amount of teaching. There are many common types—the piano teacher who cannot get enough pupils to make a living, the broken down old time singer, the derelict of the concert halls, who never could sing himself, and many more. Their half hour lessons may be said to consist one-third of chat and gossip, one-third of scales and exercises and one-third of the singing of the pupil's favorite songs, all interspersed with just enough commendation and criticism to keep the pupil's good opinion of both himself and of her teacher. There are teachers whose training has not only ruined voices, but temporarily harmed general health as well. Over against these charlatans of the profession there are conscientious men and women who can detect faults in a voice and know how to correct them and who work carefully and enthusiastically for each individual pupil.

It is not easy to tell the good teacher from the quack, and you will find bitter early experiences in many a successful singer's career.

AN ARBITRARY TYRANT.

This Autocrat Exists Solely by the Will of the People.

And it came to pass that in the very height of modern times an arbitrary tyrant ruled over a great country called America. The name of this tyrant was Everybodydoesit, and all the inhabitants of the land bowed themselves to his will.

Terror of the autocrat caused grown men and women to cast aside every dictate of common sense—sometimes of honesty as well. Children overstudied, wearing out precious eyesight, cramping growing organs, yet mothers whispered under their breath the name of Everybodydoesit and the evil went on. Men brought nurses and European passages, automobiles and other expensive luxuries, the cost of which was out of all proportion to their income. "Everybodydoesit" was the explanation they gave.

Sorriest of all was the case of the young girls. They patronized unwholesome plays, read books produced by diseased minds, they overdressed, abandoned the gentle ideals of their mothers' day and grew old before their time. "Everybodydoesit," they said.

And thus it was in all classes of society throughout the broad land. All men and women, young and old, recognized the sway of Everybodydoesit and bowed their necks to his yoke.

An Inexceptionable Moment.

Tommy had just said his prayers and climbed into bed when his brother Ned gave him a sharp pinch.

"Ow!" wailed Tommy. "I'd hit you a good sound whack for that if I hadn't just gone and attracted God's attention."—Lippincott's Magazine.

A Sure Sign.

"You say he has a visionary and impractical nature?"

"Yes," answered the girl who is employed in the postoffice. "He is one of those people who write 'Rush' on an envelope instead of putting on a special delivery stamp."—Washington Star.

Discerning Small.

Towne—Bramley has just been rejected by that haughty Boston girl.

Browne—How do you know?

Towne—I just saw him.

Browne—Saw him? You must have had a magnifying glass with you.—Philadelphia Prup.

Sufficient Reason.

"Why did father spank you?" asked the father of the small incorrigible whom he had just whipped.

"Because you were bigger than I am," replied the boy.—Chicago Tribune.

An Auto Odor.

"Ah, so you've got an automobile, eh?"

"No, indeed! My wife's been cleaning my clothes with gasoline, that's all!"—New York Evening Journal.

WHEN BOYS WERE MEN

By JOHN HABBERTON,

Author of "Helen's Babies," "George Washington," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1904, BY JOHN HABBERTON

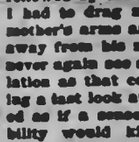
A message from the lieutenant broke up our party, Cleyne departing first, followed by Hamilton and his friends. I had to drag myself away from my mother's arms and then tear Brainard away from his mother. I hope I may never again see such a picture of desolation as that couple made while taking a last look at each other. It seemed as if a sense of my own responsibility would kill me, but suddenly Counie May relieved the feelings of all present by throwing her arms around Charley's neck and exclaiming:

"You poor, troubled little fellow, your mother shan't be lonesome while you are away."

How we got out of that room—why we did not fall dead at the final parting—I do not know. To my memory that is still the most dismal day of the entire war. We took pains not to tell our families where our rendezvous was or by what stands we would depart. We did not know ourselves. Just a quarter of an hour afterward, however, as we tramped down Broadway, a dog sprang upon me, and as I turned to cast him off I saw it was mine—that little Ned was right behind him, and my father was following Ned.

CHAPTER IV.

IN CAMP AGAIN.



We went south on a train which contained some squads of recruits for other regiments, and I cannot say that any of them impressed me more favorably than our own or that they looked like men from whom the Southern Confederacy had much to fear. Certainly they could not bear comparison with the average of our old militia regiment, at whom the cavalry had sneered and whom the regular artillerymen had called "Dough-boys." The great majority reminded me of the corner loungers in city and town. I said as much to Cleyne, who replied:

"For very good reason too. That's just the class from which they were recruited."

It was pleasing to think that we should see something different when we reached our camp, which was only about a day distant from New York. Our quartet wished we might soon reach there, too, for the trip persisted in recalling by contrast that of the Ninety-ninth, and the contrast made us gloomy. No natives wished us godspeed or brought fruit and refreshments to the train when it stopped at a station. Nobody sang patriotic songs in the cars or passed jokes from seat to seat. On the contrary, there was much vile language and drunkenness, with some fighting, for men who had received large bounties and were not accustomed to having much money had apparently tried to invest all their cash in whisky. Some tried to desert by jumping from the car platforms as we passed slowly through the larger towns, and apparently we all were suspected by the officers in charge of the various squads of being possible "bounty jumpers."

It was not until this trip that we came to realize recruiting officers though we had been, that the payment of bounties, which had not begun until the Ninety-ninth had taken the field, had developed a new and highly popular industry—that of enlisting, receiving bounties, deserting, re-enlisting to receive more bounties, and so on indefinitely until the bounty jumper was detected or sent to the front too suddenly and securely to escape. One of the officers, with whom Hamilton and Cleyne scraped acquaintance, said we were lucky not to be sent down in locked cars, with windows so arranged on the outside that they could not be opened enough to let a man through. He said also that a number of hard characters had enlisted only for the purpose of robbing their comrades and that those of us who had much money would do well to hide it securely before dropping asleep.

None of these revelations promised well for the Union cause, and I asked Hamilton why it was that the army did not get a better class of volunteers.

"Because," said Hamilton between his teeth, "most members of the better classes are trying to become officers, instead of first enlisting as privates, like several fools with whom I am acquainted."

"But they can't all become officers," I argued. "There are too many of them."

"Some of them will become a private soldier until there is a commission," said Cleyne, who stood by. "It's the only way that some of the better classes can get into the ranks of other regiments. Our regiment and the Thirty-eighth have been full of them from the start."

"But we are different," said I, with rising American pride. "Our better classes know they have more to be thankful for than the people of other nations, so they have more patriotism."

"They do, eh? From the appearance of this car and such others on this train I have gone through, I must say their patriotism is not hurrying them into the military service."

Then I had to change the subject of conversation.

Before reaching camp we became acquainted with some of the recruits for our own regiment and found enough varieties of human nature to interest us and to justify Cleyne's remark that it takes a net or an army to catch all sorts of queer fish. Hamilton, who had a head for statistics, took the trouble to ask each recruit for the Thirty-eighth what was his business before he enlisted. There were only 28 recruits, but 45 different trades and professions were named. Indeed, there was but one business or calling which more than one man designated. It was "soldier." Hamilton, Cleyne and I were three of the five who made this statement. The others were two stalwart Englishmen, almost middle aged. I engaged these subconsciously in conversation and was almost paralyzed at learning that they were survivors of the famous "Six Hundred" who formed the "Light Brigade" that charged at Balaklava and was immortalized by Tennyson in a poem which I and every other boy in our school had declaimed on "speech day."

"Ah, you want glory, eh?"

It was long before I could tear myself away from these fine fellows and tell Hamilton and Cleyne what an acquisition our regiment had made. Hamilton was as much surprised and delighted as I, but Cleyne twitched his face, looked out the car window in an absentminded sort of way and remarked:

"They'll make about 6,300 survivors of that 'Six Hundred' when I have personally met, yet I haven't been a great traveler."

"Perhaps," said I, "Lord Cardigan didn't carefully count his men before riding at the Russian guns, or perhaps Tennyson took poetic license as to number."

Cleyne laughed as he tried a pun.

"Somebody somewhere has ventured more lie than sense on the subject."

I thought this was very apt of Cleyne. Of course there are impostors everywhere, but splendid, straight, manly looking fellows like our own regiment's share of the "Six Hundred" could not be suspected of anything unfair or pretentious. They were superbly cool and composed, as great soldiers always are, and neither of them seemed to take ordinary interest in any thing around him until it chanced to mention one of them to the other. To my great surprise, they were not even acquaintances. This fact or some other seemed to surprise the one I spoke to, and when I brought them together and introduced them they did not look and act at all as I imagined old comrades in a historic battle would. Thinking perhaps they preferred to review old associations in private, I left them, after which they began to chat quite freely, and when next I met one of them he told me they had identified each other at last, and glad they were to find they were old friends. It was a long time before I could get Cleyne to take the slightest interest in them, but he finally aped them, first carelessly, then contrarily. Later I saw him in earnest conversation with one of them, and when I joked with him about it he put on a queer smile and gently [illegible] on the shoulder in a patronizing manner that exasperated me.

Our reception at the camp of the Thirty-eighth was not what I had expected. The veterans of the regiment did not turn out to cheer the brave youths who had come to help them put down the rebellion. They did not even offer us something to eat, although it was long after breakfast time and our haversacks had been empty since the night before. A few sauntered over to the adjutant's tent, to which we had been marched, and looked at us as if in search of familiar faces, but no one took special interest in us except the orderly sergeants of the various companies, whom the adjutant had the sergeant major summon by bugle call. The company in which we had enlisted had not yet been organized, so we were allotted temporarily among the older companies, and the orderly sergeants swore frightfully, as they marched us off, at the trouble they would have to squeeze an extra man or two into every tent of a lot already well filled. The men in the tents did not do much to make us feel at home, although one or two put on some appearance of friendliness as they asked us if we had brought down anything in pocket flasks.

We Summerton boys were not made any more comfortable by being separated, as we chanced to be. No three of us were assigned to the same company, much less to the same tent. There seemed nothing for us to do or see either, for no drill was ordered during the morning. Before dinner call was sounded I had lost all interest in the service and the war. I could think of nothing but our farm at Summerton and the people who occupied it. My father had promised to visit me in camp before winter if the authorities would permit. How I hoped he would not do it! I should have been glad to have him see the camp of the Ninety-ninth, but the cavalry camp was very different. There seemed no end of detached tents and huts, with no particular purpose that I could discover. Nothing was as I had expected.

After dinner we boys had an opportunity to see each other again. We enjoyed the meeting, but not its purpose, for each new recruit was given a shovel and set to digging post holes and ditches for some new stables that were to be built. I could have had plenty of digging without coming several hundred miles from home, for my father had long intended to put a new fence. An excitable young Frenchman among the recruits seemed somewhat of my way of thinking, for he suddenly dropped his shovel and shouted:

"I will not dig no hole! I enlist for to fight, not for dirty work like dis."

"Ah, you vants glory, eh?" said the German sergeant who seemed engineer in chief. "Don better it is you go back to your own country, vere dey ain't got no room."

The Frenchman said something between his teeth and thrust out his fist. The sergeant collared the Frenchman and dished him all the way to the guardhouse. There were no protests after that. Post holes and ditches increased rapidly, and I was somewhat astonished to discover that the short ditch dug by Phil Hamilton was the most shapely of the lot.

We recruits got some comfort after supper in criticising the movements of the cavalry at dress parade. They marched with less style than the most awkward company of the Ninety-ninth, and looked shabby by the lack of resemblance in their hats, no two of which sat alike, although all were of black felt.

Signs of hospitality continuing to the invisible, some of us Summerton recruits concluded to spend the night on the quartermaster's hay pile. Virginia dew, however, had grown cooler in the month that had elapsed since the Ninety-ninth went north, and we had to arise in the middle of the night and indulge in violent exercise to warm our blood. We talked a great lot, too, so much that the sergeant of the guard came over to see what was the matter. When we told him why we were there and how uncomfortable we were, he said:

"Serves you right. Men who've been in the service once before and got out and hadn't sense enough to stay out deserve all the bad luck they can find."

I was angry and miserable enough to believe for the moment that he was nearly half right.

CHAPTER V.

TERMS SLOW AND LIVELY.

WITHIN a few days our company was organized, and we recruits were gathered into tents of our own. But we continued to be thoroughly miserable. The regular camp seemed such a shiftless, do nothing place for all who supposed recruits that I thought seriously of writing a private letter to President Lincoln suggesting that he should have the large [illegible] duty of men go out and kill some rebels or do something else that would help end the war. It seemed to me that the men I saw lounging about me could not possibly be the same who had been all the talk of the post when the Ninety-ninth was there.

We recruits did very little lounging. We were drilled pretty steadily in the use of a saber, a weapon which did not feel or act anything like we had supposed. For days it seemed too heavy and clumsy for me ever to use to any purpose, and I doubted whether I ever should be able to injure the Confederacy or defend myself by any of the thrusts, points or cuts of the manual of arms. I told Cleyne so one day, and he replied:

"That's the reason you're being taught. There'd be nonsense in teaching you if you already knew how."

COL. HUGHES' QUESTION

Found Mr. Fielding Non-Committal on Chamberlain's Policy.

Could Not "Draw" Minister of Finance As to Policy Regarding Closer Relations With Britain—Eastern Division of the G.T.P. Line Must Be Located So As to Be Satisfactory to the Commissioners.

Ottawa, Aug. 10.—In the House of Commons yesterday morning Mr. Broder (Dundas) renewed his request that the Government do something more for Trooper Molloy, who was blinded in South Africa, and the Minister of Militia again promised consideration.

Mr. Sproule put up a fight for Mr. H. F. Page, of Mission City, who was, by an unexpected ruling of the United States authorities, mulcted in $1,085 duties on pure bred stock when it was expected they would be allowed in free. Mr. Fisher replied that Mr. Page had suffered great hardship, but nothing could be done unless a grant of grace were made by the Government, and he would ask his colleagues to consider it.

Closer Trade Relations.

Lieut.-Colonel Hughes asked if the Government were prepared to make any statement in regard to the matter of closer trade relations, which was now engaging the attention of the whole Empire.

Mr. Fielding replied that the views of the Government in this matter had already been placed before the House. He did not think there was anything that could be added to the statement already made.

Marine and Fisheries.

The House went into committee upon the supplementary estimates of the Marine and Fisheries Department. Hon. Mr. Prefontaine announced that it was intended to place Marconi apparatus on board the Government steamers Minto and Stanley and to establish stations at Charlottetown and Pictou, N.S. The idea of this was to maintain communication with Prince Edward Island in winter so that it should not be left at the mercy of the Anglo-American Cable Company.

Dr. Sproule proposed to place ice-breakers on the upper lakes the same as on the lower St. Lawrence.

Mr. Prefontaine said the lower St. Lawrence was the most important point, and this would be attended to first. If the experiment was successful, and he believed it would be, the system of ice-breaking would be extended to the upper lakes. The ice-breaker for the St. Lawrence was being built by Messrs. Fleming & Ferguson of Paisley, Scotland, who had promised to deliver the ship by the 15th of November.

Marconi Progress.

In reply to questions as to the progress of the Marconi station at Glace Bay, Cape Breton, Mr. Fielding said he understood that, while the Marconi station was exchanging signals with Great Britain, the system was not yet far enough advanced to apply it commercially. The power was greater on one side of the Atlantic than on the other, and efforts were being made to equalize it.

Mr. Johnston of Cape Breton, stated that the Marconi station was able to maintain communication with ships all the way across the Atlantic.

Our Northern Fisheries.

Mr. Boyd brought up the matter of the lease to F. M. Mackay of Montreal, a friend of the Minister, of the exclusive right to the fisheries, for purposes of sale, in the northern waters, among them Nelson River, to its estuary in the Hudson Bay; Pigeon River, and other streams in Keewatin, also the Great Slave Lake. He read the lease, which showed that for these enormous concessions the Government was to receive $10 per year, and the lease was only to transfer the lease to the British American Fish Company, who were to spend $1,000 a year in exploration. The terms of the lease provide that it shall run for twenty-one years, with the privilege of extension for another twenty-one years. Mr. Boyd denounced this wholesale alienation of public property in the fisheries of this immense district. Dr. Sproule, Mr. Haggart and Major Fowler joined in this denunciation.

Mr. Prefontaine said that there were no exclusive privileges, and that the company would be obliged to spend large sums of money, $50,000 to $100,000, in exploring and developing the fisheries.

Mr. Boyd read the lease in full, showing that while settlers, the Hudson Bay Company, Indians and tourists were permitted to fish in the waters named, the exclusive right to catch fish for sale was given to this company.

Mr. Fowler severely criticised the lease. He declared that Mr. Prefontaine had begun his Cabinet career by acting the pirate and robbing the Departments of Public Works and Railways and Canals to have more patronage wherewith to reward his boodling friends, and when they did not come fast enough he issued a circular in Montreal inviting them to come along.

Mr. Prefontaine made no defence to the indictment.

Census Work.

On an item of $15,000 to carry on statistical work between census years, Mr. Fisher was subjected to some enquiry as to the completion of the census of 1901. He said the work on the last two volumes of the census were in the printer's hands, and would be issued before long. The Minister did not consider there had been delay.

To Be Located By Commission.

There was a protracted debate on the item of $500,000 for the national Transcontinental Railway surveys, the Opposition endeavoring to obtain from the Government an assurance as to whether or not part of this money would be used to purchase surveys already made by the Grand Trunk, also whether the Government would be bound to follow the Grand Trunk surveys in the location of the transcontinental line.

Mr. Fielding would give no assurance as to the purchase of the Grand Trunk surveys. But, he said, the Grand Trunk Pacific would not be allowed to locate the eastern division of the line where it might choose. The line would be located by the commission on the advice of their chief engineer, who had not yet been appointed. If the engineer reported that the G.T.P. line was not located where it ought to be, it would not be adopted.

Senate's Quick Work.

Ottawa, Aug. 10.—The Senate concluded its sitting at 10.30 last night, after practically overtaking the work before it. The Militia Bill was put through with a couple of unimportant amendments, the Inland Revenue and Customs Acts and the bill to authorize the purchase by the Government of the Canada Eastern Railway were also passed, and today the Alien Labor Bill will be dealt with. That and the Supply Bill practically constitute the balance of the work of the session for the Upper House.

50 HOUSES DESTROYED.

Dwellings of the Poor in Victoria, B.C., Consumed—Loss Will Exceed $150,000.

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 10.—Fire, which commenced in the pattern shop of the Albion Iron Works at four o'clock, totally destroyed the northern portion of the building, with a lot of valuable machinery. A strong southeast wind carried sparks a distance of 300 yards to the corner of Pembroke and Government streets, where three residences were destroyed.

Almost immediately after it jumped to a house 300 yards north on Princess street, and soon many houses in that quarter were blazing. Fortunately, the wind kept steady from the southeast and the fire was thus confined to the blocks north of Douglas and Pembroke streets.

The fire had burned itself out by half past seven o'clock. In all about fifty houses were destroyed. The majority were homes of working people. The loss cannot be estimated, but must exceed $150,000.

In addition to the houses, sidewalks and much of the furniture was destroyed.

Later.—The fire now appears to be confined to several blocks of the northern residential quarter. The Albion Iron Works, including the pattern room, are a total wreck.

Big One at London.

London, Aug. 10.—About 11 o'clock yesterday morning fire broke out in Wolford's Broom Factory in the east end of the city. The factory was quickly consumed, being burned to the ground. The flames spread rapidly to the large street car barns, which were almost totally destroyed. The rolling stock was, however, all removed. The total damage is estimated at about $35,000.

Fire at Montreal.

Montreal, Que., Aug. 10.—Several warehouses were destroyed by fire as the result of an explosion which took

Why Were They Fired?

Ottawa, Aug. 10.—Corporals Swallow, Zimmerman and Worrel of the 13th of Hamilton, and Corporals Bindon and Mitchell of the 43rd D. C.O.R., have been dismissed from the Canadian School of Musketry, according to Lieut.-Col. Cartwright, the commanding officer, because they did not give enough time to study, but in the opinion of many people simply because they made themselves conspicuous in the Dundonald demonstration.

—The Town Council meets this evening.

—At the Police Court this morning a drunk was fined $1 or ten days. Not being able to pay the fine, he was taken to gaol.

—George-st. choir will practice tomorrow evening at 7.45 sharp. It is important that every member be present, as business of importance will be discussed.

—A party of Americans were at the G.T.R. station in their private car this morning. They proceeded to Lakefield at noon and intend spending a few days at Stony Lake. The same party were here last season.

—While a young man was having lunch at McCallum's restaurant last night, his wheel was taken from in front of the store. He notified the police of his loss and early this morning the wheel was recovered, and returned to the owner.

—The new barge that has been built lately by the Calcutt Company was taken on its initial trip to-day by the steamer Water Lily to carry the Brewery excursion of Port Hope to Idyl Wild. It is the best and largest barge on the river and has cost considerable money in its erection.

—Mr. W. J. Drope, principal of the Lake Lodge Preparatory School, Grimsby, has another success to his credit, as well as a well deserved promotion for one of his pupils. Master Armand Smith, son of Mr. R. D. Smith, M.P. for South Wentworth, and a pupil of the Lake Lodge School, obtained 950 marks out of a total of 11 at the recent high school entrance examinations. Those who are conversant with the results say that 950 marks is the highest ever taken on the entrance. Mr. Drope has just completed a course in military drill at the Stanley Barracks, Toronto, and received a certificate as an instructor of cadet corps. Military drill will be taught at the Grimsby School.

CHEMONG PARK NEWS

This Season the Gayest of Any in the History of the Park—All the Cottages Filled—The Hotel a Favorite With the Americans.

This season has so far proved the gayest and most enjoyable ever experienced by the cottagers and guests at Chemong Park and that favorite summer resort is proving to be a very pleasant and lively place in which to spend these long hot days. The fishing is good and there are plenty of little excursions to Burleigh, Buckhorn, Bobcaygeon and the Indian Village to keep one from being too quiet. Mr. R. M. Roy with his pretty little yacht has been at Chemong for the past few days and has contributed much to the pleasure of his many friends at the Park by taking them to different parts of the lake.

In regard to a statement that appeared in a local paper in connection with the regatta in which it was said that the Rob Roy blocked the course in the dinghy race, it was stated that this is in error for Mr. Roy had on board four of the judges who pointed out the position to be taken. An error also appeared in the report of the mixed paddling race in which Miss Helen Hay and Mr. Fred Roy came in third instead of fourth as stated.

There are a number of prizes left over from the regatta on Saturday last and it is the intention of the cottagers to hold another regatta shortly in which the events will be open only to residents of the Park and their guests.

Mr. Plant, Mr. Kennedy, Charles and F. Naismith of Toronto were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hopwood over Sunday.

The Misses Jewett of Toronto are the guests of their sister, Mrs. W. J. Hopwood.

Mr. and Mrs. McAllister and family are occupying Mr. Pope's cottage for a few weeks and have as their guest Miss Barron of Toronto. Mr. McAllister was lucky, yesterday, during a trip to Buckhorn in catching two maskinonge which weighed fourteen and sixteen pounds. The many friends of Mrs. McAllister will be pleased to learn that her ankle which she had the misfortune to sprain recently is improving rapidly.

Miss Lenore Sanderson is the guest of Miss Ada Mimms and Miss Hazel Sanderson is with Miss Lexa Dean.

Miss Daisy Sawers, Miss Mary Rush and Mr. Alf. Cox are guests at Mrs. Pearse's Cottage.

Miss Jennie Hall is with Miss Helen Hay and Miss Annie Burnham who has been Mrs. Hay's guest, returned to Stony Lake yesterday.

Miss Ruby Adamson is visiting Miss Pearl Mein.

Miss Isabella Hay is the guest of Miss Annie Burnham at Stony Lake.

An excursion to Sturgeon Point will be run on Saturday next to enable the cottagers to attend the regatta there, leaving Chemong at 9.30 a.m. It is expected that a large number will go in order to see what the Point people can do in the way of a regatta.

Mrs. A. H. Winger and Miss Gertrude and Mrs. J. H. Wetherburn of Toronto who have been the guests of Mrs. Rupert Gliddon returned to their homes to-day.

The following are the registrations at the Chemong Park Hotel since August first. This hotel has been crowded all season and is proving a favorite with the Americans and out of town visitors:—Martin Simon, Montreal; J. Bulenstool and wife, Rochester; G. S. Arnold, Toronto; R. H. McGrath, Ottawa; W. J. Wallace Beaver, Pa.; Wm. Wright, Toronto; Dan Denbeaker, Buffalo; Miss M. M. Boyd, and Miss M. V. Boyd, Toronto; A. Morton, New York, F. J. Lewis and wife, Bellevue, Pa.; F. E. Miss Anna Prescott's Letter.

Miss Anna Prescott, in a letter from 216 South Seventh street, Minneapolis, Minn., writes:

"I was completely used up last fall, my appetite had failed and I felt weak and tired all the time. My druggist advised me to try Peruna and the relief I experienced after taking one bottle was truly wonderful.

"I continued its use for five weeks, and am glad to say that my complete restoration to health was a happy surprise to myself as well as to my friends."—Anna Prescott.

Peruna a True Friend to Women.

"As a tonic for a worn out system, Peruna stands at the head in my estimation. Its effects are truly wonderful in rejuvenating the entire system. I keep it on hand all the time, and never have that 'tired feeling,' as a few doses always makes me feel like a different woman."—Florence Allan.

Peruna will be found to effect an immediate and lasting cure in all cases of systemic catarrh. It acts quickly and beneficially on the diseased mucous membranes, and with healthy mucous membranes the catarrh can no longer exist.

Peruna Makes You Feel Like a New Person.

Miss Marie Coats, a popular young woman of Appleton, Wis., and President of the Appleton Young Ladies' Club, writes:

"When that languid, tired feeling comes over you, and your food no longer tastes good, and small annoyances irritate you, Peruna will make you feel like another person inside of a week.

"I have now used it for three seasons, and find it very valuable and effective."—Miss Marie Coats.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

"There is at present very great anxiety about the crop. The weather has been cold and backward and the crop is two weeks behind time. The people are in a state of nervous anxiety with regard to the frost, which, if it came and found the crops in their present green state, would be disastrous. As everything hinges on the wheat prospects one can imagine the anxiety. When the frost has come, it was generally about the middle of August. If it keeps off there will be a large crop. But the grain now extends over such a wide country that the conditions in one section may not offset the total results.

"With regard to the Grand Trunk Pacific, there is a general feeling that it will absorb the Canadian Northern.

WINNIPEG REAL ESTATE.

Real estate has made rapid advances, as the citizens have got over the effect of the knockdowns they got after the first boom and are realizing their future destiny.

"The block that was purchased by Eaton & Co. of Toronto, on Portage avenue, cost $400,000. They are now taking out the foundation for a great departmental store. Our old townsman, Walter Orr, happened to own 40 feet frontage in this block, for which he got $40,000. A Mr. Strivel, who had a block of buildings on it got $90,000. Others were equally lucky. Simpson & Co. are now buying for their departmental store, and are going at it more cautiously with a view to buying at a lower price than did Eaton. The citizens generally do not welcome these great departmental stores, as it is feared that they will take the heart out of the retail business of the city and as a consequence lessen rents and values of property on the main street. The people at large are glad, however, as it means a reduction in price to them, for whilst there is ample room, at present it is said that two-thirds of the express packages business from the East comes from the departmental stores in Toronto. They cover a large territory, and the customs will get together and send away orders sometimes as high as $1000.

Winnipeg at present is exceedingly busy. The C.P.R. are building a magnificent station and hotel and right in the same neighborhood are putting in a subway on the main street. Numerous other great creep tions are going up and there is abundant employment for labor.

—The fire brigade had a run last night about 12.30 to Queen-st., where the barns belonging to Mr. Duncan were on fire. The flames were soon under control, but considerable damage had been done. Several horses were in the stable at the time the fire was noticed, and they were with difficulty released from their position.

JAPANESE PURSUING RUSSIANS

An Open Sea Battle Expected Between Opposing Fleets

KUROPATKIN ESCAPING NORTH

It is Averred That the Japanese Have Delayed Too Long for a Decisive Battle--Discretion Better Part of Valor Thinks Russian General.

Che Foo, Aug. 11, 7.30 a.m.—A Russian torpedo boat destroyer entered Che Foo harbor at 5.30 o'clock this morning and reported that six Russian battleships, four cruisers and half of the torpedo boats escaped from Port Arthur yesterday morning. The torpedo boat destroyer left Port Arthur last night, bringing in five passengers, who stated that the Japanese fleet is pursuing the Russian and that a battle on the open sea is expected.

Results Unknown.

Tokio, Aug. 11.—The Russian fleet emerged from Port Arthur Wednesday, and a severe engagement with the Japanese fleet, lasting all day followed. The Japanese destroyers attacked the Russians. The results of the engagements are unknown. The Russian battleships Retvizan and Pobieda were seen outside Port Arthur this (Thursday) morning.

A Land Fight Also.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 11.—(3.30 a.m.)—A despatch from Liaoyang, dated Aug. 7, reports that there was further fighting Aug. 6 and 7 at Houtaiatze, but gives no details. The despatch adds that a battle was expected at Aisyadzkan.

KUROPATKIN ESCAPING.

Have Japs Delayed Too Long For a Decisive Battle?

St. Petersburg, Aug. 11.—Again the chance of a decisive battle between Gen. Kuropatkin and the commander of the Japanese armies seems to be disappearing. According to a statement issued by the general staff last night rains are again falling over a wide area in Manchuria, with the prospect of impeding operations, but even more important is the information reaching the Associated Press from an exceptional source that the Japanese once more have delayed too long.

Gen. Kuropatkin has now withdrawn the bulk of his army safely north of Liaoyang, leaving only a strong rear guard line southeast of Liaoyang to contest the advance when it comes. According to this information the Japanese have about 300,000 men in the armies operating against Gen. Kuropatkin, rendering it too hazardous for him to risk a general engagement.

The general staff has no information bearing on the reported presence of a large force of Japanese at Faithubo, a place that cannot be located on available maps. The report agrees with the general tenor of the information received by the Associated Press and here given that Gen. Kuropatkin is already retreating north of Liaoyang.

Back to Chimten.

London, Aug. 11.—A correspondent of The Daily Mail, who visited Siaomintin, which is on neutral Chinese territory, about 30 miles west of Mukden, cables the following, under date of Aug. 10:

"There is an enormous garrison at Mukden, reinforcements having arrived rapidly.

"There are no Japanese north of the city. A force of some strength lies 25 miles to the south, and there is another Japanese army five miles east of Liaoyang.

"I learn from a reliable source that the main Russian army has fallen back on Chiutsu."

Firing at Port Arthur.

Che Foo, Aug. 11.—Admiral Sah of the Chinese Imperial navy arrived here last night from the Miaotao Islands. He says the firing at Monday night was at Port Arthur and was heavy all night long. Further firing, according to the admiral, was heard yesterday afternoon.

The steamer Kashing reports having seen a Japanese warship Tuesday night thirty miles northwest of Che Foo. The warship was patrolling the vicinity where firing was heard last Monday.

Chinese With Japs.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 11. — An alarming feature of the situation in connection with the Japanese western column is the report that it includes many Chinese, who are Japanese subjects from the Island of Formosa, whose influence on the local Chinese and the soldiers of Gen. Ma and Viceroy Yuanshikai is feared.

Nervousness at St. Petersburg.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 11.—Nervousness over the situation at the front seems to be increasing since the occupation by the Japanese of the Wolf Hills, before Port Arthur. It is admitted that the besiegers have an elevated position, whence unsilenced guns can command the fortress.

Pressing on Liaoyang.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 11.—The news received at the War Office yesterday indicates the concentration of the Japanese armies east of Simoucheng, which is interpreted as showing the intention to press direct on Liaoyang in an attempt to cut off Anshanshan (half way between Haicheng and Liaoyang). No confirmation has reached the admiralty at this hour of the repulse with heavy loss of the Japanese at Port Arthur Aug 8.

Reserve Men With Japs.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 11.—Emperor Nicholas has received despatches from Gen. Kuropatkin, dated Aug. 8 and Aug. 9, mentioning a few minor reconnaissances, but saying that there has been no particular change in the positions of either the east or south fronts. On the south the Japanese advance posts are nine miles north of Haicheng. Daily rencontres occur betwe the Russian and Japanese outposts. Gen. Kuropatkin points out the fact that the Japanese are using bullets of different calibre, some with nickel, and others with copper coverings, showing that their reserve men are now in the fighting line.

Cruiser Ural Sails.

Lisbon, Portugal, Aug. 11.—The Russian auxiliary cruiser Ural, which was off this port Tuesday, has proceeded. It is supposed that she is bound for the Mediterranean. Presumably the Ural is the vessel which recently held up the British steamer Manora off Cape Finisterre.

Russia Satisfies the Porte.

Constantinople, Aug. 11.—The Porte has definitely accepted the assurances of Russia as to the character of the volunteer fleet vessels seeking to traverse the Dardanelles.

Steamer Thea Condemned.

Vladivostock, Aug. 11.—The prize court yesterday condemned the German steamer Thea, which was sunk by the Vladivostock squadron off the coast of Japan, July 24, and declared that the Russian [illegible] were justified in sinking the vessels. Evidence was produced that they were chartered by a Japanese company, and that on March 25 she had been engaged exclusively in the Japanese trade between Japanese ports. On this ground the court declared that she had lost all rights as the vessel of a neutral nation, especially as her cargo, which consisted of fish, was intended for the use of the Japanese.

Has Appointed Successor.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 11.—There is a persistent rumor that the Emperor has signed the appointment of Minister of Justice Muravieff as Minister of the Interior, in succession to the late M. von Plehve.

ALL FOR TRENT WATERWAY

We have given to our readers the report in full of the discussion in Committee of Supply on the Trent Waterway, in spite of the sacrifice of space, on account of the deep interest felt in this subject. One satisfactory feature of this discussion is that both sides of the House vied in sounding the praises of this enterprise, and urging the necessity for its completion, the chief contention being as to which party had been most zealous in the past and was most favorable at present. There was none of the old-time virulent denunciation by the Opposition, but the Conservatives joined lustily in the chorus of commendation. This was a conspicuous example of the advantage which the present Ministers have over their predecessors. Whenever they are doing anything for the good of the Dominion they have the hearty concurrence and support of the Opposition, greatly facilitating their work. In former days the more beneficial a measure was likely to be, and therefore the more popular, the more virulent and determined was the opposition of the Liberals and the more they denounced it and misrepresented it throughout the country, for fear it should redound to the credit of the Ministry.

Far less satisfactory was the meddlesome interference of the Postmaster-General. He took the matter altogether out of the hands of the Minister of Railways and Canals, and occupied the greater part of the time of the debate. We can only suppose he was acting in the character of the political healer responsible for the corruption of the district. In this capacity he spoke at great length, every word being framed to make political capital out of the undertaking, if possible. Thus he falsified the record, as if it were a Farmers' Loan report or his departmental accounts, to pretend that the present Ministry had done more than their predecessors. For contracts let by Mr. Haggart he claimed the credit, and actually represented purchases of cement and iron to complete the works thus commenced as new and progressive efforts by his colleagues. But where he was even more dishonest was in his laboured efforts to influence as many constituencies as he could—by the hope of the expenditure of public money amongst them, pretending that the route for the outlet at either end was still undecided. Yet he knows very well that all the expert officials of the department, and all the engineers who have expressed an opinion are in agreement on this point. In pursuance of this object he occupied columns of Hansard in the effort to convict Mr. Haggart of expressing a view as to the route which the official report shows was a wilful misrepresentation on the part of Sir William. All the other speakers addressed themselves to the merits of the undertaking, in which they were in hearty accord, and it was only the Postmaster-General who had not a word to say on the prospective benefit to the country, evidently feeling no interest in the matter beyond the possibility of using it for political corruption.

The Ottawa Citizen says:—"Secretary Stratton is afraid to meet Mr. Gamey on the platform before the electorate, but he valiantly lams him in his newspaper."

The Liberal Montreal Witness held that Mr. Prefontaine was too dishonest a man to be an aldermen. Since he has been raised to a higher sphere he has shown that his dishonesty grows with his opportunities.

The Provincial Secretary, following the lead of the Minister of Agriculture, seems to think that he and his staff have a right to command the 57th Peterborough Rangers. Or does he act in the capacity of the Minister Responsible for the District? Has that unconstitutional and corrupt innovation been introduced into the Provincial Cabinet also?

Mr. L. F. Austin, in the Illustrated London News, speaks of "the advocates of a sheep army, which is to prove its peaceful intentions by total unreadiness for war, or the people who tell you that military training for the national manhood would be a sacrifice to the Moloch of aggression?" One could imagine that Mr. Austin had been in Canada lately.

The Hon. W. R. Scott says that Lord Dundonald is not a gentleman. How does he know? A gentleman does not sell himself as he did when he deserted J. S. Macdonald. A gentleman whose he is disavowed, repudiated and snubbed by his colleagues, as Mr. Scott was lately, sends in his resignation.

Ministers are still struggling to get through their estimates. Several more cases have been discovered of the stealing of public property to give it to their political friends. The majority of the Ministers are criminals, who if they were president and directors of a joint stock company instead of being members of a cabinet, would find themselves in the penitentiary, unless they bought themselves off, as one of them did, by the payment of an enormous sum of money.

Rounds Out the Form.

Persons who have become pale, weak and thin by overwork, worry or disease, find that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is wonderfully effective in forming new blood, restoring a healthful glow to the complexion and rounding out the form. You will soon feel the benefit of this restorative treatment and can prove it by noting your increase in weight.

A GALE ON THE CANAL

The Sad Tale of the Jule Laplante Hudsoew Nearly Repeated.

The opponents of the Trent Waterway are in ecstasies. After an interval of many years, as we are told, there has been a gale on Lake Simcoe. A little steamer that was exposed to it was in such straits that the passengers had to betake themselves to their prayers, while the waves rose and the foam and spray blinded them. Fortunately there was a Minister on board who conducted their devotions, who was called upon by a wide-awake passenger to lead in singing the appropriate hymn, "Pull for the shore, boys."

From this stirring incident the argument is evolved that a scow that has escaped the dire perils of Lake Simcoe and of the rocks in the canal—which a pound or two of dynamite would remove—might hope to face successfully the persistent autumn storms on Lake Ontario, even with the outlet at Port Hope. The further deduction may be made that a chaplain should be appointed for every barge navigating Lake Simcoe or Lake Ontario, and the cook should not be a woman for fear of the loss of a precious life like that of Rosie of the Jule Laplante.

We fail to understand how the perils (once in many years) of Lake Simcoe would be mitigated by proceeding to encounter the customary dangers of Lake Ontario. Even this forcible argument does not lead us to favor the abandonment of that national transportation route, the Trent Waterway.

Test the Kidneys

Allow urine to stand in a glass vessel for twenty-four hours and if at the end of that it is clouded or has left a sediment in the bottom of the vessel you may be sure that your kidneys are diseased. As a means of invigorating the action of the kidneys, and making them strong and healthy, there is no preparation so prompt and none so thorough as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Dry Scouring.

What the French call dry scouring—that is, rubbing a bare floor with dry brushes—is far more effective than might be imagined.

The Bagpipes.

A man was arraigned in a London court for creating a nuisance by playing a bagpipe. The court ruled that the bagpipe is a musical instrument, and he went scot free. Whether or not the decision is a musical one is a question.

Morocco Prisons.

The prisons of Morocco are the worst in the world. No care or attention whatever is given to the prisoners. They are left dependent on their friends for food, and if they have no friends the government provides only a bit of bread or a handful of grain daily to keep them alive.

Glued Clothing.

When your Child Suffers

For lack of knowledge of the value of Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for eczema, many a mother has been worn out in the effort to relieve her child of suffering. Eczema, scald head and other forms of itching skin disease are common to children, especially during the teething period. Though readily cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment, eczema, if neglected, becomes chronic and may last for years.

GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC

Construction Work Not to Be Started This Year.

President C. M. Hays Says the Company Admits Completed Surveys Before Locating the Line—Pacific Terminus Not Announced—Road Will Be Completed Within Three Specified—Organization Meeting of the New Company.

Montreal, Aug. 11.—The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company was organized yesterday at the first meeting of the shareholders and directors at the general offices of the Grand Trunk. C. M. Hays, general manager of the G.T.R., was elected president, and Frank W. Morse, third vice-president of the G.T.R., first vice-president and general manager.

The other officers are: Wm. Wainwright, second vice-president; Henry Phillips, secretary; Frank Scott, treasurer, and H. W. Walker, general auditor. These are also officials of the G.T.R., Mr. Wainwright being comptroller, Mr. Phillips secretary to Mr. Hays, Mr. Scott treasurer, and Mr. Walker general auditor.

Members of the executive committee are: Messrs. C. M. Hays, Hon. George A. Cox, F. W. Morse and W. Wainwright. The following are the directors who were elected: C. M. Hays, F. W. Morse, W. Wainwright, W. M. Biggar, Hugh A. Allan, and E. B. Greenshields of Montreal; Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson, Lord Welby, Col. Fred Firebrace, Alfred W. Smithers and John Alan Clutton Brock, of London, Eng.; Hon. Geo. A. Cox and E. R. Woods of Toronto; John R. Booth of Ottawa, and John Bell of Belleville.

The law firm of Messrs. Davidson & Wainwright, Montreal, were appointed local consulting counsel to the board.

President Hays Speaks.

C. M. Hays, when seen after the meeting, said that surveys for the new road would be pushed vigorously through from now until the completion.

"Surveys are now being made rapidly on that section of the road between Winnipeg and the Pacific Coast. They will be continued, and as soon as all the required information regarding grades, practicable routes and terminal points is prepared, a definite route will be chosen and construction work will be commenced. It will take considerable time yet for these surveys to be completed. There is no probability of any construction work starting this year."

"What about the section from Winnipeg to Moncton?"

"Oh, well, the Government will have to decide about that. As soon as the Government is ready for us to go ahead we will be in a position to start."

"Have you any idea as to what route will be chosen through the Northwest?" was asked.

"We will wait until all the data needed are collected by the engineers. On this data we will decide largely as to what route is most desirable. Before that time I could not say where the road may go."

Terminus Not Announced.

Mr. Hays said further that he could not state as to what place on the Pacific Coast might be decided upon as a terminus. Engineers would also prepare reports on the possible points, and when these reports were submitted the company would visit them, and taking into consideration the visits of the engineers, would reach a conclusion when necessary.

"Will you go West soon to visit points along the Pacific Coast, where it is likely that the road may terminate?"

"I will probably go out either this week or next to look over the ground."

"Where will the head offices of the new company be?" Mr. Hays was next asked.

"They will be in the general offices of the Grand Trunk at Montreal," he replied.

Mr. Hays added that the road would be completed within the number of years specified by the Government.

There have been several deputations in Montreal this last two or three weeks from Port Arthur, Fort William and other places waiting on Mr. Hays and offering inducements to the Grand Trunk Pacific to extend lines to the places they represent. One was present yesterday afternoon.

WILL LIKELY RETURN.

Private Perry Is Still Undecided As to His Future Residence.

Toronto, Aug. 11.—Private Perry spent yesterday in comparative quiet. He will go West in a few days, to keep faith, but as the fact that he intends to leave his presents here would show an uncertainty as his future. The Grenadiers want him to stay in Toronto and a new ammunition factory at Ottawa may make him an offer. He is the guest of his uncle, Joseph Price, at Kew Beach.

The cabinet of silver escaped without a scratch and the clock suffered only in broken cords as a result of the platform collapse. Examination of the wreck yesterday morning showed the heavy four-inch wire nails badly twisted, indicating a tremendous pressure.

Indian River News.

The farmers are busily engaged at their harvest. Threshing has already commenced and the mills can be heard in all directions.

The I. R. cheese factory shipped the last half of July cheese from Indian River station on Tuesday last.

Mr. John Duff is making an improvement in his grain house, as he is putting in a large elevator. It is hoped Mr. Hall will do likewise.

Miss Teheresa Garvey of Asphodel is visiting her sister, Mrs. Cavanagh.

Mr. Daniel Coveney and sister, Miss Teheresa Coveney were visiting friends of this part on Sunday last.

Mr. John Coughlin of Lakefield was the guest of Miss Clancy on Sunday last.

Mr. David Garvey and Miss Loretta Torpey were visiting at Mr. T. Garvey's on last Sunday.

Messrs. Patrick and Wm. Cavanagh and Mr. M. O'Leary were visiting friends in Percy last Sunday.

Mr. D. O'Leary has joined the Sons of Rest. He is expected to make an up-to-date member.

Mr. Joseph oDvlin of the C. P. R. mill gang, was home for a few days last week.

Mr. John Grady lost a valuable horse last Saturday last.

Mr. J. E. Devlin is thinking about disposing of his dwelling house and shop to an Armenian native.

Mr. Patrick Torpey, cattle and hog buyer, is doing a thriving business. His shipping days are generally Tuesdays and Wednesdays.

Mr. Richard Carmodim captured an 8-pound lunge at the mill dam on Wednesday.

Mr. Patrick Devlin and Mr. William Garvey passed through the village last Sunday.

The weather on Sunday last was disagreeable, especially for those who had long drives ahead.

Mr. O. Devlin captured twenty-five mud turtles in his granary. The largest weighed 15 pounds.

WHAT WOMEN SHOULD KNOW.

That the cause of a great deal of suffering, usually supposed to be on account of female disorders, is overcome by ANTI-PILL, the discovery of Dr. J. H. Leonhardt.

A great amount of womens' ailments are caused by the food that is taken being turned (through improper digestion) into poison instead of nutrition. This poison carried by the blood throughout the system, makes weak women—women who are hardly ever well—nerves in dreadful condition—thinks aches, back aches, head aches—biliious, constipated. ANTI-PILL, the Great System Treatment, will correct these troubles—it starts its work by making a well stomach—it insures strength to weak women—It is harmless at any stage or condition of a women's life, and there is no time ANTI-PILL cannot be used with safety. Any woman who cares to may use a bottle of ANTI-PILL free from any expense. If satisfactory results do not follow its use, mail us wrapper with name of druggist from whom purchased and get your money back by return mail. Wilson-Pyle Co., Niagara Falls, Ont. A month's treatment for 50 cents.

MASSACRING ARMENIANS.

Their Villages Destroyed But They Revenge Themselves Later

London, Aug. 10.—The Tabriz, Persia, correspondent of The Daily News, in a despatch dated Aug. 6, says: "On July 13 a band of Armenian revolutionists appeared at Outchkilissa. Turkish soldiers and Kurds, finding an excuse, attacked and destroyed the Villages of Outchkilissa, Koosnlouboujak, Goughan, Karabazar and Sayto, butchering men and outraging women.

"Two large Armenian bands marching to Samsun to help the insurgent leader Antranik, attacked the garrison at Mecsunary and Goutchagh for revenge on July 26. At dawn bombs were thrown into these places, killing many, and severe fighting ensued. A majority of the soldiers were killed and the garrisons resembled graveyards. One band forced through the Kurish tribes toward Arjess. The number of soldiers killed amounted to several hundreds.

VICTIMS NUMBER 100.

Several Persons Lose Their Minds Following the Shock.

Pueblo, Colo., Aug. 10.—Because of the railroad horror which cost 100 or more lives, many business houses were closed yesterday, and more than forty homes are in mourning. Several persons have lost their minds, following the shock of the deaths of loved ones.

The search for bodies was kept up all night. Bodies have been recovered more than ten miles from the scene of the disaster.

The death list shows a total of sixty-six identified dead, twenty-eight missing and six unidentified bodies, making an even 100 victims of the wreck.

Senator Gibson Married.

London, Aug. 10.—Senator Gibson was married yesterday to Margaret MacKie, second daughter of the late Alexander MacKie of Peterhead, north of Aberdeen. D. McKeller was best man. J. Grey, brother-in-law of the bride, gave her away. Miss Gibson, cousin of the Senator, was bridesmaid. The reception was at the house of Mr. Grey. Among the guests present were Wm. German, M. P., and Mr. Murray, Canadian Government agent, Cardiff. Mr. and Mrs. Gibson leave this evening for the continent.

THRESHER'S AWFUL DEATH.

Fell Off a House in the Barn Into the Rapidly Revolving Cylinder and Was Instantly Killed.

Killed at a Threshing.

Aurora, Aug. 11.—George Stafford, a farm hand employed by F. C. Welton, was killed at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon at a threshing on the farm of Levi T. Walton, near the village of Kettleby. He was climbing into a mow to start to pitch, and was pulling himself up by a brace of the barn framework, and was near the top of the barn when the brace gave way, and he fell head first into the cylinder of the threshing machine, which was running at full speed. He was instantly killed, the cylinder lacerating his head and shoulders. He has been out from Ireland a few years, and has always worked with farmers in this location.

ALL THREE DROWNED.

William Marcele, Wife and Child Lose in Deseronto Bay.

Deseronto, Aug. 11.—A drowning accident occurred about five miles up the bay from here on Saturday last, in which three people, Wm. Marcele, his wife and child, lost their lives. An empty skiff, with a couple of hats in it, was picked up on Monday morning, this being the first intimation that such an accident had occurred. Inquiries were made, and it was learned that the Marcles were missing. Yesterday morning the child's body came ashore, but the other two are still unrecovered.

Boy Found Drowned.

Sarnia, Aug. 11.—Word was received at noon yesterday to the effect that the body of a drowned boy had been found floating in the St. Clair River, near Marine City, Michigan. The lad was clothed in a bathing suit, and was apparently about 11 or 12 years of age. The description given leads to the supposition that the body is that of Chas. Forkin, the 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Forkin, who was drowned in the river here last Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Forkin and Undertaker L. N. Phippin left yesterday afternoon for Marine City to view the body and remove it to Sarnia if it proves to be his son.

No Water For 11 Days.

North Sydney, N.S., Aug. 11.—Their throats parched for eleven days, which they spent without food or water, exhausted, emaciated and nearly dead, Peter Gradley and Chas. Cooley, picked up from their dory by the schooner Hydrangea, were brought in yesterday. When found they were forty miles off Miquelon. Lost in a fog while fishing near their smack, the Indiana, the men drifted for nearly two weeks, and when found they were unable to lift their hands.

Blake Protests.

London, Aug. 11.—(C.A.P.)—In the House of Commons last night Edward Blake, M.P., (Nationalist), strongly protested against the course which had been followed during the session with respect to the Irish development grant. In the revised estimates that vote which was half the original vote had been withdrawn and a sum equal to the original estimate introduced without any explanation from the minister in charge.

May Have Been Murdered.

Toronto, Aug. 11.—A letter received in the city yesterday from Clan William, B.C., says that James Anderson, once of Toronto, and who was latterly bookkeeper for a railway contractor in the West, disappeared during the night of July 16 and next morning a lantern carried by him, letter and personal papers were found in the lake. Foul play is suspected, and the police are investigating.

Not Known in Ottawa.

Ottawa, Aug. 11.—The Government knows nothing at all to substantiate the rumor emanating from Detroit to the effect that the proceedings for the deportation of Mr. Bacon, harbor engineer of the Grand Trunk Pacific, are to be dropped.

SCOTLAND'S KILT.

The Origin of This Ancient and Picturesque Dress.

Some say that the kilt was the outcome of sumptuary laws enacted during the reigns of Mary and of her son, James VI. of Scotland and I. of England. These laws more or less directly suppressed the ancient tunic, which fell from the shoulders to below the knees, and had in the remoter parts of Great Britain and Ireland formed the outer dress of men from Roman times. When this was condemned, the wearers evaded the law by dividing the tunic at the waist, the upper part becoming a doublet and the lower the kilt.

The kilt, however, must have been of earlier date, for it is shown as a separate garment, neatly quilted from waist to knee, on many mediaeval crosses and memorial slabs, including those at Kilberran and Kilmorie, which date from before 1500.

It is from this plaiting, or "quilting," that it takes its name, and no doubt the sumptuary regulations promoted its general adoption.

Rough on the Doctor.

In the middle of the night not long ago there came a terrific ringing at a London doctor's bell. "Who's there?" he called down his speaking tube. In response a voice came back asking him to go at once to a house a mile and a half distant. The doctor got up, dressed and went out with the man whom he found waiting for him at the door. Together they walked over to the caller's residence. The disturber of his slumbers told the doctor that he had illness in his house and would like him to have a look at the case. When they entered the sickroom he said, "Now, be good enough to tell me if the case is serious enough for me to send at once for my own doctor or if it will do if I wait until morning."

BUILD FIRE HALL, REPAIR BRIDGES NEW BOULEVARDS

1.—We recommend that the tender of Mr. John Robson be accepted for the construction of sewers. A statement of the tenders received for the work is attached to this report.

2.—With regard to the proposed sewer on Park street south of Charlotte street the question arose as to the assessment for the cost of the sewer now in to Lownie street forming a dog leg south of Charlotte street and the question was referred to the Town Solicitor for his opinion as to the authority to assess all the properties on the east side for the sewer, and if there is any doubt about it to insert in the contract for the sewer construction a clause permitting the town to withdraw this section from construction.

3.—We recommend that the chairman of the board be authorized to make arrangements for the construction of the surface water drain on Simcoe street.

4.—We recommend that a petition for a grant of the walk as a local improvement on the south side of McDonnell street from Aylmer street to Bethune street, being sufficiently signed, be granted.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

The report was adopted.

MANY BYLAWS.

A bylaw was carried authorizing the chairman of the Property Committee, Ald. Batten, to appoint a janitress for the town offices at a salary of $5 a week.

Ald. Best introduced a bylaw authorizing the appointment of inspectors under Chapter 273 of the Revised Statutes, being an act to prevent the spreading of Noxious weeds and diseases respecting fruit trees. There has hitherto been no such inspectors, and those appointed to the responsible position are the Chief of Police and the police constables. The bylaw was carried.

A bylaw introduced by Ald. Best, authorizing the C.P.R. to build an additional crossing across George street to accommodate the George Matthews Company, was passed.

Ald. Best introduced a bylaw to stop up and authorize a conveyance to the George Matthews Company, that part of Wellington street lying between George street and the river lying along the River Otonabee which was read three times and passed.

Ald. Best still had another bylaw. This was one authorizing the setting apart of portions of public streets for the purpose of boulevards and making regulations for the protection of the same. The bylaw was carried.

Bylaws were passed authorizing the construction of granolithic walks and sewers on certain streets and parts of streets and to make provision for payment of the same.

The council also gave two readings to a bylaw authorizing the borrowing of $12,000 for the reconstruction and repair of bridges in the Town of Peterborough and to purchase land for the opening of new streets in the town. The bridges to be repaired are those over the creek on Hunter, Simcoe and George, and these are to have iron girders and concrete top, and a new bridge is to be built on Charlotte street. Ald. Scott proposed that a new surface be put on the bridge on Hunter street in Ashburnham. Ald. Best pointed out that the space occupied by this bridge would be filled up within a year and expenditure there at present would be wasted. The estimate placed on this work is $5,000, while the expenditure for extension of streets is $7,000; this includes the opening of George street from its present southern extremity straight to the exhibition ground. This bylaw will be submitted to the people on Tuesday, September 20th.

It was eleven o'clock and on motion the time was extended to permit the Council to finish the business. mit the council to finish its business.

Ald. Edgcumbe introduced a by-law to provide for the borrowing of $25,000 for the purchase of a site for and to pay for the erection and equipment of a fire hall the installation of a fire alarm system, purchase a chemical fire engine and other apparatus for fire protection. This bylaw was also read twice. The people will vote upon it on September 20th.

NEW RIGHTS OF WAY.

Mayor Roger brought to the attention of the Council that the Radial Railway Company had indicated a preference to obtain entrance to Jackson Park by way of the creek from Macdonell street, west of Park street and he pointed out that the property was easily available, the Hatton & Roger Estates agreeing to give a right of way, and it being possible to obtain another requisite piece of property belonging to the Ferguson Estate for $2 0.

Ald. Morrison moved, seconded by Ald. Batten, that a right of way for a street sixty-eight feet wide be procured from McDonnell street west of Park street to Jackson Park, at a cost not exceeding $500 and that the treasurer be authorized to issue a cheque for this sum to the solicitor for the said purpose and that the solicitor be authorized to carry out the transaction, provided the Radial Railway Company will construct their railway on said right of way to Jackson Park.

The mayor and chairman of the Finance Committee were on motion authorized to sell the debentures issued last year to pay for local improvements.

The payment of $450 to G. L. Hatch, for auditing the town's books was confirmed.

Ald. Adams moved, seconded by Ald. Hicks that the committee in charge of the outfall sewer for Ashburnham be instructed to ascertain what it would cost to secure the service of an engineer to prepare plans and specifications of work in connection and report to the council.—Carried.

Moved by Ald. Batten, seconded by Ald. Edgcumbe, that if the property owners on the east side of Park from Charlotte street to Weller street do not object, the Radial Railway Company be requested to construct the railway on the east side of the centre of said part of said street at such line as shall be approved of by the town engineer.—Carried.

With regard to the above matter Ald. Batten had brought to the attention of the Council the fact that if the street railway tracks were laid along the centre of the present road on Park st., south of Charlotte st., it would make it very inconvenient and indeed dangerous for rigs. The road allowance, however, was wide, though unused, and he suggested the advisability of the railway tracks being put as far to the east of the bed of the street as might be considered advisable. Other aldermen agreed with him hence the resolution. There is no sidewalk on the east side of this portion of Park street at present, and this fact will be taken into consideration in the construction of the track.

The construction of the electric railway along McDonnell street also renders advisable a resolution moved by Ald. Adams, seconded by Ald. Batten, that the town engineer be instructed to raise the grade of McDonnell st. a foot at the creek.

BAD PLUMBING.

Ald. Mason brought to the attention of the council the fact that a lot of plumbing in town made for unsanitary conditions and he thought some action should be taken to have an inspector appointed. Such a man might also act as drain inspector, and farther, he said, some attention should be given to electric wiring in town. He was informed that the town engineer had the powers of a plumbing inspector, but he doubted whether that official had time to look after this work. Everybody knew that there were few businesses in which there were as many tricks as in plumbing. Ald. Mason suggested that the matter be taken up by the Council at an early date.

Ald. Batten—I would like to ask on what authority people were ordered to cut their burdocks.

Ald. Adams—Why; have you some not cut?

The Mayor explained that action was being taken by the authorities looking to the setting and extermination, as far as possible, of all noxious weeds in town.

The council adjourned.

Insufficient Cause.

"There, mamma, I don't believe that your friend, Mrs. Newly, was to the manner born."

"Hush, dear. She's worth three millions in her own right."

"That's hardly enough to justify a woman in trying to eat soft boiled eggs with a fork."—Detroit Free Press.

Poorly Rehearsed.

"What is your favorite opera?" asked the young woman who was trying to make conversation.

Mr. Cumrex looked startled.

"I can't say," he answered. "My favorite poem is 'The Recessional,' and my favorite painter is Rembrandt, but I forget what mother and the girls told me to say my favorite opera is."

A Good Plan.

Mae—Are you going to the matinee this afternoon. Blanche—No, I must stay home. The hairdresser is coming. Mae—Why don't you have two sets? Then you could leave one.

If you can't tell all you know about any one, don't hint that you can tell something and make it worse.—Atchison Globe.

Council Passed Many By-laws at a Session Lasting Until Midnight.

PEOPLE TO VOTE ON SEPT. 20TH

Town Solicitor Gives Opinion on Certain Important Matters--$25,000 for Site, Fire Hall and Equipment--$10,000 for Repair and Reconstruction of Bridges and Extension of Streets --Several Reports Were Presented--Council May Buy Right of Way to Jackson Park.

When the Council adjourned from its special session last evening the hands of the clock in the council chamber pointed to a quarter of twelve. An immense amount of business had been done in the three hours preceding. It was by-law night, all right, for no less than nine were introduced and all passed save two, one one of which provides for the raising of $25,000 for the purchase of a site for and erection and equipment of a new fire hall, and the other authorizes the borrowing of $12,000 to reconstruct and repair bridges and extend streets. These were given two readings and will be voted upon by the people on September 20th. A by-law to provide for the setting apart of portions of streets for boulevards will be read with considerable interest. The Chief and police constables were appointed inspectors to prevent the spreading of noxious weeds and diseases respecting fruit trees. The town solicitor gave his opinion on several important matters. Much other business in the interests of the town was transacted last evening.

There were present His Worship Mayor Roger, Aldermen Best, Batten, Clinkskale, Adams, Scott, Hicks, Mason, Morrison, Edgecumbe, McWilliams.

The minutes of last meeting were confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From. G. A. Wilhems, Secretary of the committee in charge of the excursion which was run here form Oshawa on July 30th, expressing sincere thanks for courtesies shown here.—Received.

From J. H. Larmouth, secretary of the Hydraulic Power Co., asking that no action be taken as yet in the matter of constructing a siding from the C.P.R. along Simcoe st. until the arrival on Friday of the Co's traffic manager, Mr. Richards, as it was possible that the construction of such a siding would effect the shunting arrangements on the company's premises.—Received.

From A. Stevenson, Secretary of the Town Trust Commissioners, asking that the Treasurer be instructed to place to their credit in the Ontario Bank the amount of the interest on the waterworks debentures paid by them on July 1st.—Referred to the Finance Committee.

From A. Stevenson, Secretary of the Town Trust Commissioners, asking if the town desires to re-let the Hilliard farm at the expiration of the present tenancy, March 31st next. If so, the Commissioners wished a resolution passed approving of re-lease by the Commissioners, and authorizing some alderman to act with them in settling the terms upon which it is to be re-let, as the present tenant desires to know at the earliest possible time whether he is to have the farm or not.—Referred to the Property committee.

Mr. Ed. Courtney applied for a crossing into lot No. 9, north of Dourn, west of Cumberland st., fifth ward. —Referred to Board of Works.

From Thos. Ryan, acting for the Halpin estate, saying that in regard to the sale of a portion of this property for the purpose of opening up George st. south, the town wished to expropriate more than the required width of the street, which he did not agree to in his letter to Council. Mr. Ryan continued, should the town wish this extra piece of land, as an inducement to another party to sell, he would expect an additional $100, which would total up $1000 for the right of way in question.—Referred to the Special committee acting in this matter.

The Radial Railway Co. wrote expressing their regret that the laying of the sewer on Park st. had not been a little sooner, as they have their track lined up and in good shape on Park st., south of Charlotte st., and it seemed a pity they should have to tear it up again. They also asked for notification as to when the town expected to start operations on this sewer. In reference to the sewer on Park st., north of Weller, they explained that they are about to lay their new tracks immediately as according to their franchise they are obliged to operate a line to Jackson Park by Sept. 1st. The Company hoped the Council would rush the construction of these sewers, so that they may be in position to fulfil their part of the agreement; otherwise they will not hold themselves responsible. — Referred to the Board of Works.

From Town Solicitor E. H. D. Hall, expressing his doubt if the owners of the property fronting on Downie st. south of Charlotte st., can be assessed for the proposed Park st. sewer as their property does not front or abut on the street on which the sewer is to be constructed. It might be possible, however, to get their consent to be assessed, or failing this, the owners interested in construction of the sewer might be willing to be assessed for the whole cost of the sewer, less the town's share; and the owners of the land fronting on Downie street might be prevented using the sewer unless they pay their share of its cost. He was of the opinion that Council might withdraw that section of the sewer from construction, as it was advertised as a separate section. As to the case of Earl Selwoir, the solicitor gave it as his opinion that there seemed to be no doubt that the corporation is liable for the support of the boy in the Industrial school if he was a resident of the town. As to the Smith addition to the town, the Solicitor pointed out that the proclamation adding the property on the north of the town omits to provide for the collection of the taxes. The petition asked that the assessment of the land then being made should be the assessment for the year 1904, and the taxes thereon should be collected by the town at the general rate imposed, and in the same manner and at the same time. This matter has evidently been overlooked by the Provincial authorities, and it would be well to get an amended proclamation issued to provide for this and allowing a special roll to be made out.—Received.

From O. P. St. John, boiler inspector, saying that the boiler of the "Bisby" fire engine is in good shape, having been recently retubed.—Fire, Water and Light Committee.

R. Sheehy wrote that he had completed his five houses on Bolivar st., and is now building another five-house terrace. He asked that a 5-ft. cement walk be laid in front of these premises, so that he can finish the walks up to the boulevards, or if the town cannot conveniently do this now he would do so at figures recently received by the town. — Board of works.

W. J. Henry asked that a concrete walk be laid in front of his houses on south side of Cedar st. — Board of Works.

A PLEASURE GROUND.

Ald. Batten presented the following report:

Gentlemen,—Your Property Committee beg leave to report and recommend as follows:

1. That the chairman of this committee be authorized to have the brick work and wood work of the outside of the town buildings painted.

2. That the town purchase the land surrounded by Sherbrooke, Park, Dalhousie and Reid streets from Mr. Kelly for a park or pleasure ground for the sum of $1200.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Ald. Best moved that no action be taken with regard to the purchase of the land until Mr. Ryan arrived, as a portion of the parcel actually belonged to the town.

Ald. Morrison's opinion was that the south and west portion of the town needed a park and he moved that the clause be referred back to the committee with instructions to obtain options on other property as well.

Ald. McWilliams suggested that the Finance Committee be coupled with the Property Committee in this matter, as the question of the manner of payment would have to be considered. Discussing available lots, he proposed that Spaulding's Bay be filled in. He seconded Ald. Morrison's motion.

Ald. Best said this was not very complimentary to the south ward. A few years ago the town had an opportunity to get 34 acres on the water front for a park, but favorites was chosen instead. Now it is proposed to buy a little hole-in-the-corner lot and call it a park.

Ald. Morrison's motion carried, the first clause of the report being adopted.

REPAIRING BRIDGES.

Ald. Scott presented the following report:

Gentlemen.—Your committee of the Whole Council beg leave to report and recommend as follows:

1. That a by-law be submitted to the people to authorize the borrowing of $10,000 for rebuilding and repairing bridges and for opening streets.

2. That the Council secure a right of way thirty feet wide from George street to Water street, to extend Barnardo avenue and for that purpose purchase the property known as the White property and now owned by Mr. George Misnorgan, for $2500, and sell the balance of property not required for right of way, and that the Treasurer be authorized to issue a cheque for this sum for the purpose named and that the Solicitor be instructed to carry out the purchase and sale.

3. That the chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee be authorized to sell the horse in the fire hall with defective sight at not less than $100, and the grey team if he can get $300 for them.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

The report was adopted.

REMISSION OF TAXES.

Ald. McWilliams presented the following report:—

Gentlemen,—Your Court of Revision beg leave to report and recommend that the taxes for this year, except school taxes, of the Young Women's Christian Association on 168 Brock street be remitted for three months of the year and on No. 411 George street for six months of the year.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

The report was adopted.

BROCK STREET SIDEWALK.

Ald. McWilliams presented the following report:—

Gentlemen,—Your Legal Committee beg leave to report that they have conferred with Mr. W. G. Morrow, Manager of the Toronto Savings & Loan Co., and Mr. Hampden Burnham as representing residents on Brock street who complained of the removal of the sidewalk on Brock street between Chambers street and George street and referred the question of making an addition to the sidewalk as it is now so as to carry it out to meet the views of the residents, to the Town Engineer for a report. The engineer's report, which is attached to this report of this committee, says that the work may be done in that way and he estimated the cost, together with the cost of a connection with the sewer for drainage purposes, at $110. By doing this work in the manner suggested your committee believes that the street will be greatly improved and the residents on Brock street satisfied, while at the same time meeting as nearly as possible the wishes of the Toronto Savings & Loan Co., and we recommend that the Town Engineer be instructed to proceed with the work.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

The report was adopted.

LIFT LOCK OPENING.

Ald. McWilliams presented the following report:—

Gentlemen,—Your special committee on the opening of the Lift Lock beg leave to report that the programme for the entertainment of the distinguished visitors on the occasion of the formal opening of the lock by the Minister of Railways and Canals, accompanied by a large number of Senators and Members of the House of Commons, and other gentlemen, was carried out as formerly outlined. The expense incurred in carrying out the arrangements was as follows:—

Luncheon	$345 65
Supper	168 00
Steam Boats	116 00
Printing	30 92
Band	98 25
Decorations	20 00
Miscellaneous	36 85
	$746 67

We recommend that the County of Peterborough be requested to pay to the town the amount voted towards this purpose.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

The report was adopted.

On motion of Ald. McWilliams, seconded by Ald. Best, the town solicitor was instructed to take the necessary steps to secure an amended proclamation authorizing assessment for taxation of the property recently added to the town from Smith Township.

BOARD OF WORKS.

Ald. Best presented the following report:—

Gentlemen,—Your Board of Works beg leave to report as follows:—

POLICE COURT DOINGS

A Drunk Fined and a Cruelty to a Mule Case Dismissed.

At the Police Court this morning John Lomaks was charged with being found drunk on the streets. He was fined $2.

Thos. Bell was charged with driving a mule with a sore shoulder and beating it on the street. He explained that the mule was very obstinate and that he had rubbed the mules collar. The magistrate dismissed the case.

HOOKED A BIG FISH

But as he Was Being Hauled in the Hook Straightened Out.

Mr. G. E. Whitton and Mr. W. Walton, London-st., have returned from a week's fishing at Rice Lake. They caught seven fine maskinonge and lost five corkers. Mr. Whitton tells the following story: "We were still fishing one day and saw a big fellow floundering on top of the water as though in play. We manoeuvred and threw in our lines, and supposed he had taken hold before you could say Jack Robinson or any other name. I began to pull in the line sideways into the boat. He was a whopper, I can tell you, but with a heave I got his head to the gunnel of the boat when the darn hook straightened out and Mr. Fish rolled back into the drink. Yes, I saw his head and at a distance of 50 rod, I should say, I could have curled a stone into those jaws as easily as taking a picture. Say, he was a big fish!

VERY PRETTY WEDDING

Celebrated at 230 Perry St. Yesterday Afternoon.

A very quiet but pretty wedding took place yesterday afternoon at 4.30 o'clock at St. Andrew's Church when Mr. Henry Butler was married to Miss Martha Johnston, both of town. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. R. Hyde, who is supplying for Rev. Mr. Potter during his absence.

The bride was charmingly dressed and was assisted by Miss Irene Square of Warkworth, who was also prettily dressed. The groom was supported by Mr. Wm. Hall of town.

The young couple were very popular in town and received many presents. Mr. Butler came to this country from England about eighteen months ago and is employed in the Canadian General Works, where his fellow employees wish him every success in his married life.

Among the guests present at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Fleetwood of town and Mrs. Wm. Partridge, sister of the bride, of Warkworth.

Mr. and Mrs. Butler have taken up their residence at 230 Perry street.

A TERRIBLE FIASCO

How the Scribe Journeyed Afar to Greet the Hero.

Terrible must have been the disappointment, bitter the sense of failure when the promised ceremonial reception failed to materialize. There was the procession, there were the leading characters, were was the introducer and patron, the representative of the Examiner, and in his tow the hero of the day, the King's Prisoman, but where, oh where, were the 57th Peterborough Rangers, officers and men, drawn up in battle array to receive them? The Examiner was to introduce and stand sponsor for the hero, but behold the military pageant he had arranged, end of which he had boasted, had dwindled sadly. One officer in uniform, and two in mufti did not fulfil the bright anticipations he had raised. The failure of his silly end, some might think impertinent, attempt to exploit the Peterborough Rangers, must have been so galling as to account for the bitter tone of the lachrymose wailings with which the scene is depicted. After journeying like a second Stanley in search of Livingstone, such a prosaic ending was indeed lamentable.

One would, however, feel a little more sympathy, but that it seems as if the chief object was to glorify the representative of the Examiner rather than the Bisley hero. And this was in a measure successful. It is true that there is a somewhat insignificant portrait of Private Perry, but in there not spread over two columns a facsimile of that interesting historical document, the telegraphic announcement of the intention of the Examiner to meet, even at the cost of a journey, the returning hero. Even in the ruin of the programme there is some room for consolation.

There must be one proud man in Peterborough to-day. Capt. Roland McWilliams has the satisfaction of knowing that he, and he alone of all the corps, has come up to the Examiner's ideal of what is befitting an officer and a gentleman. The thought will intrude that there may be a little bit of favoritism in this. Is it possible that the Examiner in depicting this sad episode has made the shadows so gloomy that the figure of the gallant captain waiting in martial array to give a fitting reception to the scribe and the hero might stand out all the brighter for the contrast?

THE BOULEVARD BY-LAW

PORTIONS OF STREETS SET ASIDE FOR A GOOD PURPOSE.

The Regulations Governing the Boulevards—How they are to be Constructed and Maintained.

Among the by-laws that were passed last evening was one to provide for the setting apart of portions of public streets for the purpose of boulevards, and regulations respecting the same. This by-law will be of great interest to the citizens, and its clauses are given herewith.:—

1. All those portions of streets on which granolithic sidewalks have been and may hereafter be constructed outside the tree line, or where a space of not less than ten feet is left between the inside curb and the line of the adjoining private property, are hereby set aside for the purpose of boulevards, upon terms as to resumption by the municipality hereinafter mentioned.

2. Such boulevards may be constructed by the owners of the property abutting on any street, and to the extent of the frontage of the property of each owner respectively at the expense of such owner; but any such work shall be done so as not to unreasonably confine, impede or incommode public traffic, and no boulevard shall be constructed so as to be higher than two inches below the top of the inside curb of the sidewalk.

3. Such boulevards shall after the construction thereof be maintained, kept in good order and condition, and watered and the grass thereon properly cut by or at the expense of the owners of the property abutting on the same opposite, and to the extent of the frontage of the property of such owners.

4. The Council of the said town may at any time by resolution or by-law resume and possession and control of the said boulevards, or any portion or portions thereof, and declare that the portions of the streets hereby set aside for the purposes of boulevards, or any part thereof shall cease to be so set aside, and thereupon such portions of the streets shall cease to be boulevards, and the owners of the land opposite or abutting on such portions of said streets so declared not to be longer set aside as boulevards shall cease to be responsible.

5. No one shall walk or drive upon, across or along any of said boulevards, or in any way injure, destroy, obstruct or place any material on same.

6. Any person guilty of a breach of this by-law shall be subject to a fine of not less than one dollar, nor more than fifty dollars and costs, with fine and costs if not paid, may be levied by distress and sale of goods and chattels of the offender, and in case of there being no distress found out of which such fine can be levied the said offender may be committed to the common gaol for a period not exceeding twenty-one days, unless the fine and costs, including costs of distress and of the committal and conveyance of the offender are paid within the time specified by the Police Magistrate.

EKO CAMP NEWS

Boys are Enjoying Their Outing—Nearly a Drowning Accident.

This year's outing of Eko Camp is surpassing any of previous year. All the boys are having a good time and the weather has been perfect, not even enough rain to spoil the General's immaculate white trousers.

Willie Ackerman and the Commodore were in town yesterday piloting the camp's annual visitors from the land of the Stars and Stripes. Needless to say, the sunny smile of Johnny and the genial handshake of Willie captivated the visiting strangers, who immediately became enamored with their surroundings and fell in with the general spirit of the occasion. The visitors were met at the Landing by General Jackson and Gillis Garrow. The General was very chivalrous to the ladies, as usual, and is giving Johnny quite a chase for first place, and Gillis got his Quaker smile as soon as the hospital staff arrived.

During Commodore Gemmell's absence yesterday a couple of the members had a slight mishap. Bones and Froggie decided to go for a sail in a canoe, and when near Robinson's Island a heavy squall struck them and gave them quite a wetting. Bones was nearly drowned, as his efforts to save his picturesque hat entirely exhausted him, but he managed to hang on to the canoe until help arrived.

It is feared that Froggie Canniff is thinking of removing to the States to live in future. He is getting disliked on account of occupying too much of the canoe's time in helping the fair sex to learn the gentle art of angling. Yesterday he spent the whole day, and exhausted his supply of bait.

On Tuesday Bones and "Teddy" Gillespie had an enjoyable trip around the lakes with some friends from East Peterborough and Toronto.

Commodore Gemmell is wearing the Laurier smile since the visitors arrived at the hotel.

Gillis Garrow is also wearing a Quaker smile since another contingent of the nursing staff arrived, and he does not have time to call on the Eko boys now.

Pete Glover and Beefy Higgins intended to drive up Sunday, but remembering their sad experience of two years ago, decided they would wait for a full moon.

Trip Around the Lakes

It will be in the interests of excursionists to remember the Peterborough Lodges of Oddfellows' round trip through Kawartha Lakes, going by Lakefield and home by Lindsay, on Civic Holiday. SOCIETY MEN.

That Is What Society Needs, According to a Society Woman.

"What we need is society men," declared a weary matron. "Our men are so fagged by their attention to business that they are next to worthless. They regard the average social function as an awful bore and leave everything pertaining to entertaining and to going about to their wives. In case the poor wife succumbs to the strain they hunt around for a spinster or widowed sister or sister-in-law or other relative who will consent to take upon her shoulders this social side of the matter.

"As for looking after a daughter, their duty is done when they've given carte blanche with a check book. An Englishman of high title often chaperones his motherless daughter during an entire season and from his knowledge of ineligibles is able to keep her well informed. How about the American papa? His only ammunition consists in an occasional rabid, blustery remark about the slacompoop fortune hunters who hover about the daughter of the house. As for same, thoughtful counsel, he gives not a bit of it. Society is a game he got into without intention or effort, and he utterly refuses to take any trouble about his fellow players. Even his own daughters have to go it blind. As I said before, what society needs is society men."

SUSPENSION BRIDGES.

They Were Common in Peru in the Days of the Incas.

Suspension bridges, some of them of considerable length, were common in Peru in the days of the Incas. They were formed of cables of twisted osiers passed over wooden supports and stretched from bank to bank, then bound together with smaller ropes and covered with bamboos. The road from Cuzco to Quito is still noted for frail bridges of this sort, which are in constant use and span deep chasms.

The Chinese also, according to Kircher, have for centuries been familiar with the "suspension" theory and have constructed chain bridges in which the weight of the roadway is supported by the tension of the chains.

The first iron suspension bridge in Europe was built over the Tees, near Middleton, in 1741, for the use of miners. Two chains were stretched in a straight line, steadied by ties from the banks below, and the roadway for foot passengers was supported by the chains.

The modern suspension system practically dates from 1816, when bridges, both over 100 feet in length, were successfully completed at Galashiels and Peebles.—London Standard.

PAW'S METHOD.

When paw does somethin' wrong an' knows
That maw'll call him down,
He don't come home an' brave it out
An' throw the things around,
But he will kind o' heave a sigh,
Put pave to mighty slick,
An' look as though he'd like to cry.
An' not as if he's sick.

It's then he talks o' business cares
Till you kin feel the gloom,
An ginty says, come down the stairs
An' settle in the room,
Till maw begins to feel a throb
O' pity for him; so,
Instead of callin' o' him down,
She cheers him up, by jo!

The regiment—that is, the new companies—had no horses, and we Summerton boys would feel very dismal when we saw the older companies mount and go off on a scouting trip, as they did at least once a week, while we, instead, were marched out to drill or set to work on the stables, which were so many and large that it seemed they never would be finished. There were 12 of them, and each was more than 200 feet long and required 100 thick 10 foot posts, which had to be cut in the forest, besides hundreds of smaller ones for the roof and to divide the stalls. Many of the men made up their minds while this work was going on that a soldier's life was a dog's life, and they proved their sincerity by acting like dogs—growling, snarling, skulking and fighting.

During this wretched experience of cavalry life my spirits were strengthened frequently by observing the imperturbable manner of Hamilton, listening to Cleyne's sensible comments on whatever occurred and admiring the loyal spirit of little Brainard, to whom whatever the government did through any of its officials seemed entirely right. Whenever my mind was troubled because I didn't understand the full meaning of everything that was done or left undone Brainard would remind me that if I knew everything about the war I probably wouldn't be a private soldier, but general of the army or perhaps president of the United States.

"Leave something, a little something, to the colonel or the war department or at least the president," Brainard would say. "If you could do and manage everything, as you seem to wish, the higher officials wouldn't have anything to do but draw their pay, don't you see?"

There was some truth in this, and such a remark would generally pacify me for a few hours. I think, however, that I got most comfort out of my spurs and the joy I anticipated for the time when I should have a horse and tickle his flanks. My father had never allowed one of his horses to be touched with a spur—my experience with old Rover was unknown to him—so there was a pleasure in store for me. And what spurs they were! I had brought them from New York. They were "Mexicans," the wheels nearly three inches in diameter, with points as long as a shingle nail, and they gave out a bell-like jingle as I walked, which was such sweet music to my ear that I never was without them. I even wore them to bed, for, as no one removed any of his clothing when lying down for the night on the floor of his tent, where was the use in taking off one's spurs?

One night this question was answered to some extent. Our tent was round, and the 15 men who lived in it slept with heads toward the outside and feet to the center. By early November the nights were so cold that a man needed a blanket as well as his uniform to keep him warm. Several recruits who admired my spurs had purchased others as much like them as possible of the regimental sutler or storekeeper, and they wore them continually. One evening after our tentful had enjoyed a private supper of fricasseed goose, purchased from a colored woman, we all lay down peaceably to sleep. Whether the geese—there were nine of them—were undressed or too rich for men whose ordinary supper was dry bread and sauce of dried apples I don't know, but some of us were affected in our dreams very much like small children after Christmas dinner and unlimited candy. How the trouble began I do not know, but I awoke from a dream of being heavily shackled in a rebel dungeon to find a terrible uproar and struggle going on in the tent, which was as black as Egypt. Groping the plague of darkness. To make matters worse, the most serious part of my dream seemed still in operation, for I could not liberate my feet when I tried to crawl away from the center.

"What blanked cuss has been tying our feet together?" roared one man.

"Let go of my blanket," shouted another, "or I'll break your head!"

"You're a nice one to talk," said a third, "when it's you that's making all the trouble!"

Meanwhile I, who had just awoke and didn't know anything about the difficulty, was being dragged one way and another by my feet, so I raised my own voice and complained of unfair treatment.

The din awoke the first sergeant, one of the only two noncommissioned officers yet appointed for our company, and he opened the tent flap and roared:

"Keep quiet here or I'll send you all to the guardhouse!"

"I'd be greatly obliged, sergeant," said Brainard plaintively, "if you'd send me there right away, if only to get out of this frightful snarl."

"Strike a light," said the sergeant.

Hamilton, who always carried matches, scratched one and lighted the candle, which was in a socket on the tent pole; then, as I struggled to a sitting posture, I beheld an odd spectacle. Nearly all the men in the tent seemed bound together by the feet by blankets or held down by blankets stretched tightly across their legs. After each man had investigated for himself a little while it appeared that the men with Mexican spurs, like all the others, had been tossing uneasily in their sleep, all on account of the goose supper, and had worked the point of their spurs through the blankets over their feet. As the blankets greatly overlapped one another at the center, a spur as often as not had contracted an entangling alliance with some other fellow's blanket, and the harder the wearer tried in his sleep to free himself, tossing and straining, the worse became the misery.

"Unloose yourselves!" said the sergeant.

"Unloose thunder!" shouted a big dragoman from New York. "You can't unloose a tie till you find the end, and the ends of these blankets is all inside somewhere."

"Be jabers," grunted an Irishman, "I belave some spalpeen has stole the ends and tuk 'em away."

We picked and pulled and tugged and lost our tempers, and the few men who weren't in the tangle drew out of the crowd and laughed and jeered. Finally one desperate man drew his pocketknife and began to cut himself loose. The others followed his example, and after five minutes of hard work we were free, with an immense heap of woolen rags in the center of the tent and a hard tuft on each spur to tell how the wretchedness began.

"No spurs in bed hereafter," said the captain, who had come over to see the fun and was nearly choking in an effort to keep down his laughter and his dignity. It took an hour of time next day to get the fragments of blanket from my spur wheels, and I wasn't helped by the fellows who sat around and said I was to blame for the whole row, for no one would have bought those infernal spurs if I hadn't set the example.

CHAPTER VI.
AT LAST.

ONE night as we were falling asleep just after taps the first sergeant came to our tent and said:

"All men turn out to draw revolvers and ammunition. The whole regiment starts on a scout right after breakfast in the morning. The horses will reach camp tonight."

And that glorious, soul thrilling order was delivered in as careless tones as if the sergeant had merely come in for a man to carry wood for the cook. I made up my mind that the sergeant was not the man for his place and that the captain showed himself unfit for his business by appointing such a man.

Nevertheless I hurried to the sergeant's tent, and my soul thrilled with patriotic joy as I saw the great wooden box full of revolvers of the heaviest caliber. I knew something about revolvers, my father having invented one and allowed me to help him in some of his experiments. I mentally made the calculation right there that if each man in the regiment fired only one shot at close quarters, which is all the revolver is fit for in war, there would be about 1,000 fewer effective men in the Confederate army by the time we returned.

Besides the revolver each man received a holster, to be worn at the belt, a cartridge box and a box for percussion caps, for this was before the days of metallic cartridges. When the sergeant began to issue ammunition, however, his language suddenly became unfit for publication, for the department quartermaster, who was 30 or 40 miles away, had by mistake sent carbine cartridges, which, of course, were far too large for revolvers.

The sergeant reported the fact to the captain, while big Pat Callahan, of whom I had seen as little as possible, recalled old times by saying it was "all the gov'ment's fault, an' if the gov'ment's brains was turned into gunpowder there wouldn't be enough to blow it to"—perdition. The captain used language which proved that he was not a member of the church, but suddenly he dived into the big box in which the pistols had come and drew forth a bullet mold.

"Does any one I re know how to load revolvers with loose ammunition?" he asked.

"Aye, aye, sir," said Cleyne, touching his hat.

"I, too," said I.

"And I," said Hamilton.

"Good!" said the captain. "You three break up carbine cartridges, make a fire, remold the bullets and load all the pistols. Six shots apiece will be better than none. Sergeant, collect the revolvers."

Then the men returned to their tents, more than half of them joining big Pat Callahan in cursing the government. Hamilton and I began breaking cartridges, while Cleyne started a fire over the coalhouse and looked for something in which to melt the lead. After much searching he settled on one of the cook's frying pans. Then he had to melt the bullets in water to get the grease from them, so an hour passed before we had any new bullets.

That job of loading pistols hung on amazingly. Some of the cylinders did not work well, so we had to "nurse" them, for it would never do for any man to be without a pistol in the face of the enemy. I became so sleepy that I had to pinch myself to keep awake. Once in awhile Cleyne did not close the mold tightly before pouring the lead, so the balls would be a little too large to fit the cylinders, and we tried to make them smaller by scraping the sides with our pocketknives. Daylight began to dawn, and still 20 or more revolvers remained unloaded. Reveille blew, the captain came to look on, spoke impatiently and then said we were doing very well. Breakfast call sounded, and the men got not only their breakfast, but three days' rations to pack in their haversacks. Still we had some unloaded pistols. Then one man after another came up and told about the horses and made me almost wild with anticipation and fear, the latter because they said each man was allowed to select his horse, so what would be left for us but the poorest nags of the hundred?

Down beside me came Mick McTague,

Finally the last revolver was charged. I went at a double quick pace to the coalhouse for my breakfast and rations. The latter consisted of hard tack and a great piece of pork. How was I to get that lump of fat into my haversack? I had not even a bit of paper, much less a saucer or box. I settled the matter by throwing it away. Fat pork was disgusting stuff anyhow. Then, eating as I ran, I hurried to the stable.

The stable orderly looked at me grimmed most offensively and pointed to the only horse that remained. I burst into the stall to look at him, but got out again just in time to save myself from a kick. There was no time to be lost, for most of the men had already mounted and were being formed into some sort of line in the company street.

"Fall in on the extreme left!" roared the captain. I obeyed orders, being near there already. A mounted sergeant was already there, but he was not there a moment later. He went to the hospital with a compound fracture of the lower leg, caused by the heels of my horse, and he never saw active service again.

As we sat there and were again brought to some semblance of line, the captain remembered that he had not yet appointed his full complement of noncommissioned officers. The company was entitled to eight sergeants and eight corporals, of whom only five sergeants had been designated, and one of these had been sent to the rear by my horse. Of corporals we had none.

"Who loaded these pistols?" asked the captain.

"Cleyne, Hamilton and Frost," replied the first sergeant.

"And Brainard," said I from the left.

"Cleyne," said the captain, "you will act as sergeant; Hamilton, sergeant—and commissary; Frost"—

THE HOUSE PROROGUED

Sir William Mulock Withdrew His Alien Labor Bill.

His Excellency Lord Minto Relieves Members From Their Parliamentary Labors For the Last Time—Says Good-Bye to Canada—Review of Measures Passed During the Session to the Speech From the Throne.

Ottawa, Aug. 11.—The fourth session of the ninth Parliament was brought to a formal conclusion at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when Lord Minto (having previously given the royal assent to 29 bills) performed his final official function in the Senate by delivering the following speech from the throne:

Speech From the Throne.

Hon. Gentlemen of the Senate, Gentlemen of the House of Commons,—I am glad to relieve you from further attendance in Parliament, after a session that has been protracted to a longer period than I had anticipated when addressing you on the 11th of last March.

The terms and conditions upon which the national Transcontinental Railway will be built and operated, having been finally adjusted and agreed upon the work of construction will proceed as rapidly as the surveys of the line and the location of the road will permit.

The consensus of opinion expressed on the changes in the tariff affords very gratifying evidence that the alterations have met with general approval.

Our Foreign Trade.

The arrangements made by my Ministers with the Government of Mexico for lines of steamers between that Republic and Canada on the Atlantic and Pacific, will, I hope, add materially to our foreign trade.

The steadily increasing revenue has amply justified the liberal aid granted towards the improvements of our rivers and harbors and the construction of new ports which materially benefitting the trade and commerce of our country.

The changes made in the act respecting the militia and defences of Canada, providing for the increased strength and efficiency of the force will, I do not doubt, meet with general approval.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons: I thank you for the liberal provision you have made for the public service.

Good-bye to Canada.

Hon. Gentlemen of the Senate, Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

My official connection with the Dominion of Canada is drawing to a close. Be assured, I shall watch its future progress and development with deep and abiding interest, and pray that the peace and prosperity with which this favored land is now being blessed may under God's providence long continue.

HIS EXCELLENCY'S FAREWELL.

Reply of Lord Minto to the Farewell Address of Both Houses.

Mr. Speaker Power declared that it was His Excellency's pleasure to prorogue Parliament till September 19, and the fourth session would accordingly prorogue.

Then followed the presenting to Lord Minto of the farewell address that had been adopted by both Houses. Lady Minto attended the gala and stood beside His Excellency. It was read by Mr. Speaker Power, and His Excellency made the following reply:

Lord Minto's Reply.

"Honorable Gentlemen of the Senate, Gentlemen of the House of Commons.—I am deeply sensible of the honor the Parliament of the Dominion has to-day conferred upon me. I assure you, I shall always treasure the spirit in which the leaders of both Houses have alluded to my services, and I thank you from my heart for the appreciative words of your address now that I am leaving Canada, at the close of a term of office which I believe has somewhat exceeded the usual period of administration of my distinguished predecessors.

"I look back upon a past full of stirring incidents in the history of the Dominion, but marked with an ever-increasing prosperity. I look back upon it with a pleasure full of admiration for those magnificent resources which the world is now beginning to recognize, and the development of which my sojourn amongst you has given me the privilege of witnessing, and though bidding farewell to you in my official connection, I know that you will believe that I shall always continue to share in the hopes and aspirations of this great country.

"In delivering up to the King the charge Queen Victoria committed to me, I look forward not only to assuring His Majesty of the loyal devotion of the people of Canada, but also to the growing strength they are every day contributing to His Majesty's vast Empire.

"Gentlemen, Lady Minto is much touched by your kindly expression towards her. Her work in Canada has been very welcome to her. She hopes that, in the discharge of her social duties, she has made many friends, and she will always remember the encouraging assistance she has received in the furtherance of those organizations which she has so much at heart, and the future success of which she will always bear of with affectionate interest.

"In bidding you farewell, gentlemen, and in thanking you again for the kind words of your address, Lady Minto and I can but feel that we are not only severing official ties, but that our residence in Canada has brought us into very close touch with the daily life of the people of the Dominion. We shall carry away with us the warmest recollections of a happy home amongst them, and we assure them, through you, of our constant interest in their future prosperity and happiness."

Senator Edwards here called for three cheers for Their Excellencies, and the Ministers and members present heartily responded.

Winding Up Business.

The House had concluded its business at 1 p.m., but the Senate would not allow the Alien Labor Bill to be put through without discussion. After three hours wrestling with its author by two members of the Cabinet Sir William Mulock consented to its withdrawal this session. The deed was a bitter one, but its acceptance paved the way for the dissolution yesterday.

CANADIAN HORTICULTURISTS.

Elect Officers and Ask For Some Tariff Changes.

Ottawa, Aug. 11.—In session last evening the Canadian Horticulturists' Society elected the following officers for the coming year: President, George Robinson of Montreal; first vice-president, W. Suckling, Truro, N. S.; second vice-president, O. J. Johnson, Kingston; H. Summers of Toronto and A. H. Ewing of Woodstock were re-elected treasurer and secretary respectively. A. Pinoteau and J. Walsh of Montreal and A. Anandale of Toronto were elected to the executive council. The society adopted a resolution that the duty be taken off apples or cuttings of new varieties of plants and that a duty of 25 per cent., with ½ preference to Great Britain, be placed upon farm, [illegible] and lilacs, also other plants that can be grown by Canadian florists.

NO FISCAL CONFERENCE.

Premier Balfour Makes Announcement in Session.

London, Aug. 11.—In the House of Commons yesterday, Premier Balfour, replying to Sir H. Vincent and Charles McArthur, said the House was aware that, twice during the course of the past few years, there had been conferences held in this country with representatives of the self-governing colonies. In his opinion, that was one of the greatest additions to the machinery of the Empire ever made, and he hoped the conferences would be repeated. He did not, however, propose at the present moment to call an Imperial conference to thoroughly examine the fiscal situation of the Empire, nor to institute an enquiry by royal commission.

In Stratford Jail.

Stratford, Aug. 11.—At noon yesterday Daniel Schneider was arrested at his home on con. 14, Ellice, by Constable Hartmeier of Milverton, and taken to Milverton. He was arranged there in the afternoon before Magistrate Weir on serious charges, alleged to have been committed at the home of and on the person of Mrs. Bahn, a widow living on con. 14, Logan. He pleaded not guilty and was given his preliminary hearing at once. The evidence of Mrs. Bahn was taken, and the prisoner was sent up for trial at Stratford before Judge Barron. He is now in the Stratford jail.

Liberals Gain a Seat.

London, Aug. 11.—In the northeast division of Lanarkshire, Scotland, yesterday the Liberals won another election victory, the poll resulting in the return of Provost Findlay, the official Opposition candidate. The figures were: Findlay 5,619 votes, G. A. Touch (Unionist) 4,667, Robertson (Labor) 3,984. A comparison of the result shows that the Liberal and Unionist candidates have practically reversed the figures of 1901, while the labor vote has increased by upwards of 1,000. This is a Liberal gain and reduces Premier Balfour's majority by two votes, counting on a division.

She obtained her physician's permission on the promise of returning in half an hour. The young man stuttered badly, and, overjoyed at seeing the girl again after her long illness and knowing her keen delight in tormenting him, his difficulty was greater than usual.

"W-w-w-w-where," he stammered as they started off, "sh-sh-sh-sh-sh-shall w-w-w-w-w-we g-g-g-g-g-g-go?"

"I think," she replied demurely, "it is time now to go home."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Waived Extradition.

SHOOTING PAINS
THROUGH THE BACK
Not a Day Without Suffering Until Cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mr. C. Noyes, for many years section foreman, and now flagman for the G.T.R. at Peterboro, Ont., states: "For twenty-one years I was section foreman on the C.P.R. and was exposed to all sorts of weather. As a result my kidneys became affected and there was scarcely a day that I was not troubled more or less. At times I would have sharp shooting pains through my back and would get so used up that I felt like giving up work. During this time I was also a great sufferer from constipation. As I had heard so much about Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for kidney disease and constipation I began using them, and am sure that I was entirely cured of my old troubles in a short time. I cannot say anything too good about Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and never lose an opportunity of recommending them."

WALDECK-ROUSSEAU DEAD.

Paris, Aug. 11.—Former Premier Waldeck-Rousseau died yesterday afternoon at Corbeil as the result of an operation.

Dr. Armour, a celebrated surgeon of Canada, and Dr. Hans Kehr, a German specialist, decided yesterday that an operation was the sole chance of saving the patient, whose weakness was extreme, the liver having ceased to perform its functions.

The operation, in which the above-named surgeons were aided by Drs. Cunco and Maurice Bourdeau, began at noon and lasted two hours, the patient sinking and expiring shortly after its completion.

No Ultimatum Yet.

London, Aug. 11.—The Foreign Office authorizes the Associated Press to positively deny the New Orleans report that the British Minister of the Central American States has been ordered from Guatemala city to Managua to deliver an ultimatum to the Nicaraguan Government regarding the seizure of Cayman (Jamaican) fishing schooners and their crews by the authorities of Nicaragua.

Guelph Going Ahead.

Guelph, Aug. 11.—City Assessor Hart estimates the population of Guelph at close to 13,000. There is a great scarcity of homes, about 75 families finding it necessary to board.

THE ROY'S LENGHTY TRIP

A LINDSAY PARTY'S EXCURSION THROUGH TRENT CANAL.

First Power Boat That Has Traversed the Canal Through its Many Locks to Healey's Falls.

(Lindsay Post.)

Summer brings its pleasures, and one casts around for the best and most inspiring place to enjoy a vacation. Messrs. G. H. Wilson, of The Post, two sons, Bruce and Roy, and Mr. F. W. Wilson, of The Port Hope Guide, returned on Tuesday morning of last week from a most delightful trip covering ten days in the gasoline launch "Roy" through the beautiful waters along the course of the Trent Valley Canal. The "Roy" enjoys the distinction of being the first power boat that has traversed the Canal through its numerous locks to its extreme eastern end—Healey's Falls—some thirty miles east of Rice Lake, on the Trent river. The party had with them, besides the launch, a canoe and a complete camping outfit, which enabled them to stop whenever night overtook them.

The first stage of the trip was down Sturgeon Lake to Bobcaygeon locks, which are carefully looked after by Lockmaster Walker, whose position is one of the prettiest on the canal. The locks at this look are the most difficult to handle of the fourteen we passed through. The trip down Pigeon Lake was sufficient to sharpen our appetites for more adventure. Passing through Gannet's Narrows the scenery was such as to almost invite us to make camp and enjoy a day's fishing. Here the floating bridge had to be opened to allow us to pass into Buckhorn Lake, east of Oak Orchard, through a passage in the weeds and stumps that would puzzle a New York pilot.

At Buckhorn, after passing through the locks, we met the Hon. Oquse, in charge of Captain Maurice Lunc, who enjoys the popularity that unfailing care and attention exercised for years entitled him to at the hands of every of the boat. This route is becoming very popular and many Americans and Torontonians spend their holidays in this locality. The trip through Deer Bay, Lovesick and the connecting waters, was very much enjoyed. After passing the look at Lovesick several picturesque cottages may be seen nestling among the trees. A short run brought us to the double lock at Burleigh Falls where a good hour's work resulted in letting our craft into the waters of Stony Lake, which undoubtedly is the most romantic and beautiful of the whole chain. Its hundreds of islands each dotted with one or more cottages, the many steamers dodging among the islands, and the green foliage on the islands and shores, combine to form a scene that is worth many a mile of travel to have a peep at.

That the hotels and boarding houses are generously patronized, their balconies, bear witness—crowds of tourists are everywhere in evidence. Our camp at Stony Lake was most enjoyable—made more so by the kind attentions of Mr. B. Neill and family, and also of Mr. and Mrs. Crane, of Peterborough; both have very handsome cottages at the narrows of Stony and Clear Lakes. The sail down Clear Lake to Young's Point locks in a down pour of rain was not very pleasant, but Lakefield locks was finally reached—the beginning of the new portion of the canal.

TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION MEETS

Some New and Amended Rules Agreed to at St. Louis Convention.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 10.—At the second day's session of the International Typographical Union it was decided that in cities, in which a German union exists, no members of the International Union shall be employed on German or English work at any other scale than that demanded by the International Union.

It was also decided that any officer or member who should conceal from his union any information regarding a strike would be liable to suspension or expulsion, and also that members under permit in non-union offices should not engage in a strike ordered by any other party than their own union.

The International Stereotypers and Electrotypers' Union is holding a six day's session here.

THE ODDFELLOWS ARE PROSPEROUS

THE 50TH. ANNUAL SESSION BEING HELD IN TORONTO.

Membership is over Thirty Thousand and a Quarter—Officers Were Elected.

Much important business was transacted at the 50th annual session of the Grand Lodge of Ontario of the Independent Order of Oddfellows, which opened yesterday morning in Victoria Hall, Toronto, Mr. J. B. Turner, of Hamilton, Grand Master, occupying the chair.

The report of Mr. J. B. King, Grand Secretary, was a very carefully prepared document and covered thoroughly all the business of his important office. The report referred to the death in Montreal of Bro. George Varey, one of the oldest members in Canada and the first permanent Secretary. The death of several other prominent members was also noted. Various recommendations for the benefit of the order were made. Great praise was given to the work of the Oddfellows Relief Association. A table was given showing that during the forty-seven years which have elapsed since the establishment of the Order in Canada more than $4,127,000 have been paid in benefits. Tables are also given by the Grand Secretary, which show the total membership to be 30,010. The sick pay for 20,791 weeks amounted in 1903 to $57,966, and the total benefits paid for that year reached $94,893, and for the first half of this year the benefits paid amount to $17,784. The funds on hand amount to $1,...7,7 4.

Past Grand Master Colgate presented the report on the Oddfellows' Relief Association, which gained 1,274 members, giving a total of 16,835. The insurance in force is $21,...0,2 0, and the annual income $209,476.92, the surplus of receipts over expenditure $1,282.26, and death claims paid $61,2 0. The work of the relief boards and Triple Link clubs was commended.

Representative R. R. Brett, in presenting the report on the Rebekkah Degree, highly commended the action of Ivy Lodge, D. of R., Galt, in furnishing a room at the Ontario Oddfellows' Home, and hoped that the other Rebekkah lodges in the jurisdiction would do likewise.

The election of officers was conducted on the Hare-Spence system and the scrutineers reported that the voting had resulted in the election of the following officers:—Grand Master E. B. Butterworth, Ottawa; Deputy Grand Master F. R. Blewitt, Listowel; Grand Warden W. S. Johnston, Toronto; Grand Secretary J. B. King, Toronto; Grand Treasurer, W. J. McCormack, Toronto; Grand Representative Robert K. Cowan, London; representatives to home board, Colonel T. Campbell, P.G.S.; W. H. Heyl, P. G. M.; Henry White, P.G.M.

THE NEWEST CRAZE

Mats, Baskets and Mats made of Raffia.

The use of raffia in making fancy work are becoming very general and it is one of the most popular materials in vogue this summer. Cushions are being embroidered with it, hats are made of it, and pretty baskets and mats are also woven of the pretty colored grasses. The fad has had a great run in the United States and anything made of raffia is quite the style. The raffia in all shades and reeds for basket weaving may be procured at the Review office. These baskets would make charming Christmas presents when prettily lined and finished or in the form of a waste paper basket they are both useful and ornamental. Start your Xmas work now and avoid being hurried later on. The Review office open every evening.

DIED.

MITCHELL—In Peterborough, on Wednesday, August 10th, 1904, Isabella Weir, beloved wife of Mr. R. J. Mitchell, aged 63 years and four months.

RECOVERED THE TEETH

How Dentist Mallory Dealt with a Non-Paying Customer.

The Toronto World has the following story with reference to an experience that punctuated the career of a young dentist who is well known here:—"Miss Glueck, the young woman, who had Dentist Mallory in police court on Tuesday on the charge of assault, is talking of a civil action against Mallory. The young woman's story, as told in police court, was that she ordered a set of false teeth from the dentist, to cost $7, and paid him $5 on account. When she tried the teeth on or rather in, they did not fit, but she consented to try them. The dentist followed her out into the hall, asking for the $2 balance. She did not have the money with her. She claims that Mallory caught hold of her roughly, dragged her back into his office and forcibly got with the forceps, but with his hand, took the teeth from her mouth. She told the magistrate that she was minus both teeth and the $5 dope it. The result was dismissed."

Brevities.

—The excursion to Jubilee Point this afternoon under the auspices of St. John's Girl's Guild, was largely attended.

—All Saint's Choir will practice this evening at 7.45 and all members are requested to be present as matters of importance are to be discussed.

—Mr Geo. Fitzgerald was called upon to repair the front axle of an automobile to-day. The machine was one of those which passed through to Chemong.

—The natives of the town gazed with wonderment yesterday afternoon on two automobiles, which, with a party of Americans, came around by Niagara Falls from Rochester, and went through here to Chemong. They stopped at Murty's for gasoline.

—Something extensively unique in advertising was seen on the streets yesterday afternoon, when a huge bottle of Japanese ink, several feet high, enjoyed a walk much to the amused interest of the people.

—A citizen to-day expressed himself as follows:"—After long and persistent effort on the part of indignant ratepayers on Brock street west, the Council decided to order that the sidewalk be restored to its original line with the pavement farther west. There has been an immense amount of trouble over this thing, which of course was wholly unnecessary if the cars of the streets had been left where it belonged namely in the hands of the Council and Chief Engineer."

Cancelled for Aug. 12th.

The Steamer Ogemah having been chartered to run a Regatta Excursion from Chemong Park to Sturgeon Point on Saturday, August 13th, there will be no connection given on that day between Chemong Park and Burleigh Falls. 4dlw

A New County Map.

The Review has issued, for general distribution, a new edition of its well known map of the County of Peterborough. The map has been re-drawn and brought up to date and is the most accurate map existing of the county. It is of convenient size and yet legible and handy for reference. Copies may be had by calling at the Review Stationery Store, or will be sent by mail on receipt of 5 cents in stamps to cover postage.

SUNLIGHT SOAP

With ordinary soap a woman has to work so hard and so long on wash day she has no time for preparing any of the family meals. Wash day is a trial, and the good wife faces each with a sigh of despair.

Sunlight Soap makes all the difference in the world. No toiling—no rubbing—no boiling—less than half the labor with much better results. Most women are all through their wash by twelve o'clock when they wash with Sunlight Soap the Sunlight way. It makes child's play of work.

FOOTBALL.

The Bridgenorth football team herewith gives notice that it will play any Peterborough team at present organized and made up of players who have registered with that team in the Midland League previous to July 1st, the contest to take place on the Bridgenorth football field on the afternoon of any of the following Saturdays: Aug. 20th or 27th, Sept. 3rd or 10th. The visiting team to give one week's notice of acceptance and the losing team to pay all expenses. The notice also includes the picked team which played at Chemong Park on Aug. 6th.

LACROSSE.

Those who go to Orillia on Civic Holiday with St. Peter's Court, Catholic Order of Foresters, will have an opportunity to see one of the best lacrosse matches in the intermediate C.L.A. series. It will be a semi-final between Brantford and Orillia, two of the swiftest teams in Ontario today, and the match itself will be alone worth the trip.

FOOTBALL.

The Quaker Football team will practice on the Oval this evening.

BASEBALL.

At the printers' picnic at Jubilee on Monday afternoon next, the Examiner and Review teams will play another baseball game, and the result of the last event between these two teams will undoubtedly be reversed. Mr. M. J. Hutchinson, in discussing the lay of the Diamond at Jubilee, states that the bar is immediately behind the catcher's box, and a ball once missed cannot fail to enter there. Mr. Hutchinson, of course, may catch for the Examiner.

—It is to be presumed that the interesting and important telegram from the Examiner to Private Perry announcing that one of the staff would journey to Havelock to receive the champion has been mounted and framed. It certainly should be presented to the Peterborough Historical Society for the edification of future generations.

VERY LARGE FUNERAL

The Remains of Late P. J. Heffernan Followed by Many Sorrowing Friends.

The funeral of the late P. J. Heffernan, whose sad death occurred on Tuesday, took place this morning at 9.30 o'clock to the Roman Catholic Cemetery and was very largely attended. The service at St. Peter's Cathedral was conducted by Rev. Father Galvin, and at the cemetery by Rev. Father McColl. The six brothers of the deceased, Messrs Robert John, Michael, Thomas, James and Francis, acted as pall bearers.

LATE MRS. KINDRED

Funeral Took Place Tuesday Afternoon and was Largely Attended

The funeral of the late Mrs. Wm. Kindred took place from the family residence, 69 Hunter-st., at three o'clock Tuesday afternoon, and was one of the largest seen here for some time. The pall-bearers were Mr. H. Sanders, of Toronto, and her five sons-in-law, Mr. George Carruthers, Mr. John Anderson, Mr. Noble Graham, Mr. Fred. Whatley, all of town, and Mr. A. F. Saunders, of Toronto. Mr. Kindred and family wish to take this opportunity of thanking the public in general for the kindness shown, and more especially the friends who contributed so many flowers.

DEATH OF MRS. MITCHELL

Highly Esteemed Resident Passes Away.

A death that will be lamented among many friends was that which occurred Wednesday, when Isabella Weir, daughter of the late Robert Weir, of Otonabee, and wife of Mr. R. J. Mitchell, Hunter-st. (Ashburnham) passed away. She was 63 years of age and had been ill since Christmas, an attack of la grippe developing into heart disease. She married her now bereaved husband in 1865, and they lived in Otonabee until four years ago, when the family removed to Ashburnham. There are seven sons and two daughters living—Messrs. Robert Wellington and George Charles, of Otonabee; William James, of Hamilton; Walter Elliott, at home; Herbert Graham, of Winnipeg, and Harry Edgar, at home. The daughters are Mrs. Henry Girvan, of Ashburnham; Mrs. John Mortimer, of Minden. Mr. John G. Weir and Mr. Francis Weir, of Otonabee, are brothers. Mrs. Mitchell was a member of the Mark-st. church and very highly esteemed.

The funeral will take place to-morrow (Friday) afternoon, at 3 o'clock, from the family residence, Hunter-st. (Fifth Ward) to Little Lake cemetery.

RUSSIAN WARSHIPS DAMAGED

A Tokio Despatch Says That Russians Were Driven Back.

THE JAPS RECKLESS COURAGE

Port Arthur Fleet Has Not Returned to Harbor--Japs Carry Off a Disarmed Russian Ship and There is Great Anxiety in St. Petersburg.

Che Foo, Aug. 12.—The Russian fleet emerged from Port Arthur at 7 a.m. Wednesday morning. It is stated that only the smaller Japanese vessels engaged and pursued it. The pursuit lasted two hours and a half. Captain Reatchavoski of the Russian torpedo destroyer Ryeshitelni, which emerged from Port Arthur with the fleet Wednesday morning, and which arrived here early yesterday morning, states that his engines broke down when he was midway between Che Foo and Port Arthur. He proceeded at a speed of twelve knots to this port. He says he saw no Japanese vessels.

Japs Reckless Courage.

Capt. Reatchavoski stated that the recent firing heard at Che Foo evidently came from Port Arthur, where the Japanese continue to attack daily. The Japanese line, he said, now extends from the north shore of Louisa Bay to a point immediately east of Taiche Bay, about seven miles east of Port Arthur. The Japanese are, he alleged, wasting lives with reckless courage. Their positions are frequently lost, or taken, then lost and re-taken again.

Battleships Damaged.

The Russian squadron left Port Arthur in response to imperative orders from Vice-Admiral Skrydloff. A semi-official telegram reports that the Russian battleships Pobieda and Retvizan have returned damaged to Port Arthur. Three Japanese torpedo boat destroyers are now outside this harbor watching the Russian torpedo boat destroyer Ryeshitelni, which still flies the Russian flag.

Jap Cruiser Kasaga Sunk.

It is reported that the Japanese protected cruiser Kasaga was sunk off Round Island, 48 miles east of Port Arthur, in the recent engagement. The Russian ships before leaving Port Arthur took on board heavy stores, machinery and materials for ship repairing. The torpedo boat destroyer Ryeshitelni has been dismantled by the removal of the breeches of her guns.

Forced to Disarm.

Shortly after the arrival of the Ryeshitelni here the Chinese admiral, Sah, sent an officer on board who demanded that the destroyer either leave the port or disarm. It had previously been asked that her engines be disabled. The captain of the Ryeshitelni agreed to render the engines absolutely useless and to disarm in such a manner as Admiral Sah demanded. The captain of the Ryeshitelni inquired the Chinese admiral to indicate a position nearer the shore where the destroyer could rest until after the war under the protection of the Chinese Government. It is evident that grave reasons caused the Ryeshitelni to undertake her hazardous voyage. Presumably she came here to file urgent despatches.

Japs Tow Ryeshitelni Out.

A boarding party from two Japanese torpedo boat destroyers, which entered the harbor last night, boarded the dismantled Russian torpedo destroyer Ryeshitelni this morning at 3.30 o'clock. The Japanese discharged their small arms, and during the firing a Russian was wounded in one of his legs.

Daybreak showed a third Japanese destroyer towing the Ryeshitelni out of the harbor, and all disappeared.

The Japanese consul claims that the Japanese ships were ignorant of the dismantling of the Ryeshitelni.

It is understood that the Chinese admiral discovered the presence of the Japanese torpedo boat destroyers and presented the same demands to them that he had earlier given to the Russian destroyer Ryeshitelni, namely, either to leave port or to disarm.

Askold and Novik Get Away.

The Russian protected cruiser Askold and Novik and one torpedo boat destroyer entered the Kiauchau Bay last night and exchanged salutes with German vessels.

Fleet Has Not Returned

According to the latest information obtainable, the Russian squadron has not returned to Port Arthur.

Anxiety Unrelieved.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 12.—Public anxiety regarding the fate of the Port Arthur squadron was unrelieved last night. The squadron is believed to have passed the Shantung Promontory.

A Tokio Version.

Tokio, Aug. 12.—Evidently driven to sea by the fire of the Japanese land batteries, the Russian fleet emerged from Port Arthur Wednesday morning. Admiral Togo immediately closed in and opened a severe engagement, which lasted until nightfall. Afterwards the Japanese destroyers and torpedo flotillas delivered a series of attacks. The Japanese fleet withdrew at dawn yesterday, the battleships Retvizan and Pobieda steaming towards the harbor of Port Arthur. It is thought here that the Russians attempted to escape seaward from a base which is no longer tenable, but that they again refused to attempt to force Admiral Togo's lines.

There Was a Fight.

Washington, Aug. 12.—The State Department has received the following cablegram from the American Legation at Tokio, dated yesterday:

"Yesterday the Russian fleet which has been harboring at Port Arthur came out, and there ensued a battle which continued throughout the day with the combined Japanese fleet. The result has not yet been officially announced."

From Che Foo, Consul-General Fowler telegraphs, under yesterday's date, as follows:

"A Russian torpedo gunboat has arrived from Port Arthur. Fierce naval engagement yesterday."

THROUGH THE DARDANELLES.

Two Vessels of Russian Black Sea Fleet Have Passed.

London, Aug. 12.—The Brussels correspondent of The Daily Telegraph declares that two vessels of the Russian Black Sea fleet have already passed the Dardanelles without the interposition of any difficulty on the part of the Turkish Government.

Told to Be Ready.

Cronstadt, Aug. 12.—Admiral Birtleff, in command of the naval forces here, yesterday ordered Vice-Admiral Rojestvensky, commander of the Baltic fleet, and his staff, to take up their headquarters on board the battleship Souvaroff and to be in readiness to sail on Aug. 14.

Japs Reconnoitering.

Liaoyang, Aug. 9.—(Delayed in transmission.)—A correspondent who has just returned from Anping (thirteen miles east of Liaoyang), says the Japanese are occupying Hentsiatze (about fourteen miles west of Liaoyang.) They are not advancing, but are carefully reconnoitering within a mile of Anping. Two strong Japanese columns are reported to be hurriedly pressing forward, one towards Mukden and the other in the direction of Yantai coal mines.

THE PACIFIC SCANDAL

In another column we republish from the Toronto News an interesting protest by an old school Liberal writing under the sounding name of Pater Patrcnicus. The writer appears to have formed a just appreciation of recent events, but far more ancient history he seems to have had recourse to the inventions of the Liberal press, instead of going to the records. He says that Sir John Macdonald's government received some $30,000,000 for a charter to build the C.P.R. It would be unjustifiable to pretend that the government was blameless in the matter, and the Conservatives punished them severely — for the Liberals would have voted that way in any case—by turning them out of office. Conservatives do not, like the Liberals, consider the wrongdoing of their leaders as a claim to party support and gratitude. In a great measure, however, the adverse verdict was obtained by a disreputable Grit trick. Mr. Lucius Seth Huntingdon, M.P., a dishonest company promoter, a Canadian Whitaker Wright, or Terah Hanley, made a charge that Sir John Macdonald had sold to foreigners a charter for a transcontinental railway for a large sum of money to corrupt the electors. He knew that he was a slanderer, for it was because Sir John had refused to have any dealings with certain Chicago adventurers that they went to Mr. Huntingdon and concocted this plot. It was this designedly false charge of a sale of Canadian interests to foreigners that turned popular feeling against Sir John. There was indeed no sale of a charter to foreigners or others for Sir Hugh Allan was only one director all being leading men to represent the different Provinces, one them being Sir Sandford Fleming, and they never succeeded in organising the undertaking. As to the $300,000, Sir Hugh is the only evidence, except the Chicago blackmailers, for that sum being expended and he swore that he spent more than half of it against the Government and in favour of the Opposition. He had a difference with Sir Geo. Cartier about his transportation policy, so he determined to defeat the Quebec leader and his followers. He describes how he bought or subsidized newspapers, engaged young advocates to make speeches, subscribed to churches and other buildings and in many other ways helped the Opposition candidates by this enormous expenditure. He succeeded in driving Sir George to find a seat in another Province and reduced his following to a corporal's guard. Too late at the intervention of Sir John he endeavored to counteract the mischief he had done by large subscriptions to the Conservative campaign fund. There never was any evidence that one cent of it was spent corruptly, and it must be remembered that in those days large expenditures for conveying voters, etc., were legal, which have since been prohibited. It is certain that the Liberals have expended far larger sums less honestly acquired and less honestly spent. The rake off from the Crow's Nest steal alone was probably greater than the amount obtained from Sir Hugh Allan. They had to postpone the general election last year because the boodle from the $35,000,000 of promoters' money did not materialize, and they are at present uncertain as to the date of dissolution because they are not sure when the funds from this source will be ready.

Pater Patrcnicus is more accurate than most Liberals as to the accession to power of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. He is quite right in ascribing it largely to Messrs. Dalton McCarthy, and Clark Wallace, who with their reckless denunciation led some of their friends astray as to the Remedial Bill, while Sir Wilfrid in Quebec was deceitfully promising better treatment to the French Catholics of Manitoba if he were placed in office.

Is the Globe lapsing into "militarism" that it gives Private Perry credit for his achievements at Bisley? Does it think that Mr. Perry learned to shoot that he might kill becoming birds for ladies' hats?

Chester Cox has been chosen, not only a director but a member of the executive committee of the Great Greft Railway. His private letter to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, ending "And your petitioner will ever pray," has been effectual.

The independent Toronto Sun says, "The Jackson affair is vile; that one man only on the ministerial side should have been found to refuse condemnance is deplorable; the electors of Ontario would show themselves utterly unworthy of the franchise if they failed to condemn any government which clung to power by such means."

"Our troops" says the Globe, "have captured Lhasa and the Dalai Lama has fled." And our fleet says a man of war to take off the missionaries who were in danger in the Corea. Our army and our fleet are part of our possessions, but for us to pay any money to aid them in our defence is "militarism." It is a rather ignoble position for a community out of leading strings.

A LIBERAL'S PROTEST

How One of the Old School Regards Recent Developments.

The Toronto News has published the following letter:—

To the Editor of The News:—As an old Liberal, or, rather, as a Liberal of "The Old School of Liberals," I would like space in your columns in discussing some matters of a political character now before the people of Canada,—and at the commencement I have no hesitation in saying that there has never been a time in the history of Canada when it so plainly became the duty of all honest and honorable men of every shade of politics to unite, as now, for never before has there been a time when corruption and criminality in the political life of the country had such brazen and unblushing defenders in the Government of the country. We have had corruption and bribery under Conservative Governments, as in the instance of what was known, and is now known, as the "Pacific Scandal," but when it was apparent and proved that Sir John Macdonald's Government was guilty of receiving some three hundred thousand dollars for a charter to build the Canadian Pacific Railway, and that money was used to carry the elections of 1872—I say, when this corruption became known, and Sir John's Government retired from office, and Mr. Mackenzie took the reins of power and went to the country, the honest men of the Conservative party voted against Sir John's candidates, and the result was that the Liberal Government met the House with a majority of fifty-four. Again, in the elections of 1896, was it not, those two eminent, able and honorable Conservatives, D'Alton McCarthy and Clarke Wallace, who did more to put out of office the Conservative Government then in power, than any thousand Liberals of Ontario did? And in this instance there was no charge of corruption against the Government, but simply a difference of opinion as to the merits, or demerits, of the 'Remedial Bill.' To my mind, and I speak as a Liberal of fifty years' standing in the political life of Canada, I say, to my mind, the 'Pacific Scandal,' considering all the circumstances, sinks into insignificance compared with the quite recently exposed scandal in connection with the amended contract entered into by the Government of Canada with Mr. Davis, before the elections of 1900. In this instance, the Government could not make, or even try to make a secret of their raid on the treasury for money to carry the elections of 1900, as the noble old soldier on duty at the gates had to be considered. Let me say just here, Mr. Editor, that if there is a man in Canada who deserves the thanks of the honest men of the country, it is that noble man, Mr. McDougall, the Auditor-General. Imagine one man, and that man a lifelong Liberal, forced into a position to oppose some of his lifelong friends, who wished to plunder the treasury. Sir John Macdonald was not by any means above corruption and bribery, but Sir John Macdonald never was guilty of conduct so inexcusable as that displayed by the Laurier Government in this instance. It was not public money that Sir John took, but private money of the late Sir Hugh Allan's—which would never have reached the treasury in any event. And now we have the spectacle of a Government of Canada virtually persecuting a man because he was honest enough to make them restore half of the stolen property. If I am not very much mistaken, if a British Government were guilty of such damnable conduct as that I have had under review, every member of that Government would be arrested for high treason—as they should be. Thirty years ago, when the Hon. Edward Blake and the Hon. George Brown were the Nemesis of honesty in political life in Canada, they would hardly have believed that some of their pupils would have turned into robbers of the treasury of which they were the trustees. Again let us compare the Government's conduct in this matter with the speech of Sir Richard Cartwright, bravely defending the man Jackson, who every reading and honest man in the country knows, as it was proved by more than one witness in Court, was guilty of subornation perjury. Imagine a man who once held the position that Sir Richard did in the political life of Canada, calling such an act by no harsher name than "a lie or." What will the people of Leeds think of our dominant political party in Canada, when they read some of the speeches made in Parliament when Jackson's acts were exposed. Let me say, in conclusion, to the old school of Liberals, can we not perform our duties to our country, as did the honest Conservatives in Canada in 1874 and in 1891? The platform that was erected in Ottawa by the Liberals of Canada in June, 1893, is moth eaten, as it has never been used; in fact, it is torn to pieces. Richardson, of Lisgar, Manitoba, tried to carry one plank of that platform that was so solemnly erected, but for even trying the experiment—unsuccessful though he was—he was hounded out of politics by the very men who erected the platform. Every plank of that platform was thrown into the gutter by the pirates who got away with a cool million, but restored half of that amount when they were caught.

THE COALITION OFFER

Let us have the Whole Truth of this Proposal.

The Stratford Herald has the following editorial:

Mr. J. P. Whitney, the Provincial Conservative leader, the other day stated categorically that he was offered a place in a Provincial Coalition which was to have been equally divided between Liberals and Conservatives. There had been a rumor before that Mr. Whitney had such an offer, and the agitation begun by the Globe in favor of a coalition corroborated the rumor to some extent, but the fact that a coalition proposal was made was repudiated by some one assuming to speak for the Liberal leaders. Now Mr. Whitney bluntly says an offer was made to him and it will be seen whether it will be again denied. Mr. Whitney rejected the proposal because joining such a coalition merely for the sake of attaining to office on his part and of retaining a proportion of the offices on the part of his opponents, would have been fatal stultification of his record. Like an honorable man he has shown there are things he will not do to gain office. Mr. J. S. Willison, who at the time of the coalition move was editor of the Globe, in all probability knows the inside facts but is not at liberty to use knowledge confidentially gained. (We can be sure, however, that he would like to see answers given to these questions which he now asks in the Globe:

"What terms was Mr. Whitney offered? Surely, Ontario is entitled to know the truth about this extraordinary episode. Are we to assume that Mr. Ross and some of his colleagues were willing on two occasions rather than resign, to share half the spoils with their leading opponents, and thus cynically declare to the Province that the sweets of office alone determine the course of public men? Or, on the other hand, was Mr. Whitney offered a program of reforms which would only be carried by a union of parties, and which would fully justify him in joining hands with his political antagonists? That is the crucial point in judging the propriety of a political coalition."

Rounds Out the Form.

Persons who have become pale, weak and thin by overwork, worry or disease, find that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is wonderfully effective in forming new blood, restoring a healthful glow to the complexion and rounding out the form. You will soon feel the benefit of this restorative treatment and can prove it by noting your increase in weight.

BOILER EXPLODED.

Two Men Killed in South Norfolk County in Sawmill Wreck.

Langton, Aug. 12.—About five o'clock yesterday afternoon a fatal boiler explosion occurred at Smith's saw mill, on the 9th concession, Walsingham Township, two men being killed and one seriously injured.

The dead are: Isaac Lewerg, Norman Wingrove. The injured man is John Lafverage. He will recover.

The explosion wrecked the mill, which caught fire. The men were just about preparing to quit work for the night.

Ran Amuck With Razor.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 12.—While six laborers from McMillan's Canadian Northern Railway camp were driving into Shoho, N.W.T., on Tuesday night, John Masters drew a razor and slashed at his companions, seriously cutting the throats of Severn Jefferson and Edward Zuiskie and slightly slashing another. He was knocked out of the wagon, bound and handed over to Mounted Police. The injured men are doing well and will probably recover.

When your Child Suffers

For lack of knowledge of the value of Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for eczema, many a mother has been worn out in the effort to relieve her child of suffering. Eczema, scald head and other forms of itching skin disease are common to children, especially during the teething period. Though readily cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment, eczema, if neglected, becomes chronic and may last for years.

BRITAIN DISSATISFIED

Russia Must Make Change in Her Contraband List.

Lord Lansdowne Presses For Some Substantial Modifications—Russia Prepared to Modify Her Regulations Provided Great Britain Would Accept Regulations and Bind Herself to Observe Them in Future Wars—Premier Confident.

London, Aug. 12.—Great Britain is dissatisfied with Russia's attitude in the case of the British steamer Knight Commander, and continues to press the latter to make substantial modifications of the list of articles regarded as contraband. Count Benckendorff, the Russian Ambassador, called at the Foreign Office Wednesday afternoon and conferred for an hour with Foreign Secretary Lansdowne, the latter bringing up the question of the changes which should be made in the Russian regulations in order to make them acceptable to the commercial nations, besides pointing out the inadvisability of declaring food, fuel and clothing contraband under all circumstances. Lord Lansdowne dwelt on the sweeping character of Russia's proclamation, some of the provisions of which, after specifying various goods as contraband, closed with the word "etcetra," which, Lord Lansdowne pointed out, can include anything and everything the Russian authorities desire. As this is a serious restriction on neutral shipping, Lord Lansdowne insisted that the regulations should not contain generalities of that kind.

Russia Will Modify.

In reply Lord Lansdowne was assured that Russia had no desire to unnecessarily hamper neutral shipping, but she cannot afford to permit Japan to receive supplies which would facilitate her military operations. Russia was prepared to modify her regulations, providing Great Britain, on her part, would accept the regulations and bind herself to observe them in future wars in which she may be involved. Lord Lansdowne is now considering how far in this direction he can go without creating regulations embarrassing to Great Britain. The latter does not wish to take action which might possibly hamper the British navy.

Premier's Confidence.

In the House of Commons yesterday Premier Balfour, speaking on the same lines as Lord Lansdowne in the House of Lords, said he was perfectly confident that no neutral ships would again be sunk by the Russians. He fully agreed in the statement that such a sinking was an international outrage, and the Government had expressed to Russia in the clearest way possible that view, with the above result.

$25,000 BAIL FOR TELFORD.

Justice Martin Indicates Most Serious Charges Against the Prisoner.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 12.—Justice Martin yesterday admitted Dr. Telford to $25,000 bail. He said the charge was very serious, the evidence being to the effect that Telford had given young McHarg surgical instruments to use on the girl. He said he also thought the jury might find that the girl was not responsible for the lacerated condition of the body, found by post-mortem, but the prisoner.

This statement made by Justice Martin was made in answer to an assertion by Jos. Martin, K.C., Telford's counsel, that the evidence against the prisoner was of the flimsiest character. Telford had volunteered the statement that he had never seen McHarg, which made McHarg's evidence as to Telford giving him a catheter to use on the girl more damaging. Telford raised the bail during the afternoon.

Killed in Brushes Brest.

Ottawa, Aug. 12.—A story has reached Ottawa from L'Annonciation of a fatal fight between two men. The quarrel was between Adelard Auger, a blacksmith of Rapide De L'Original, and a man named Primault, a mason by trade, of L'Annonciation, and the latter received injuries from which he died a few hours afterwards. An inquest will be held. It is said that Auger was under the influence of liquor. Auger has been arrested.

A Mine Flooded.

Salisbury, N. C., Aug. 12.—Information was received here last night that the Barringer gold mine, located near Gold Hill, N. C., Rowegan County, was suddenly flooded with water late yesterday afternoon, causing the instant death of eight men employed in the mine. Thomas Moyl, manager of the plant, was the only one to escape death.

Against Penny Postage.

London, Aug. 12.—(C. A. P.)—The Postmaster-General of the Commonwealth of Australia, replying to the British Postmaster-General's proposals for the establishment of a penny post between Britain and Australia, stated that the arguments against the adoption of such a system were at present unanswerable.

DROWNED WHILE RAVING DRUNK.

Wealthy Minnesota Lumberman's Awful Death in Nor-Ontario.

Port Arthur, Aug. 12.—Edward Mackie of Stillwater, Minn., a wealthy lumberman, met a horrible death in Rainy Lake.

He, with his brother William, a man named Hans Patterson, and a man whose name is unknown, were on a drinking bout at International Falls.

Leaving there in a canoe they went down Rainy Lake, where Mackie and Patterson were seized with an attack of delirium tremens. Patterson was not violent, but Mackie was beyond the control of his companions. They attempted to restrain him by tying him with pack sack straps, but failed, and leaving him on shore, for fear he would drown, all hands took the canoe and proceeded down the lake.

They encountered the little steamer Seagull and sent it in search of the demented man. The steamboat people in the search encountered a band of Indians, who reported that they had found the body of Mackie in about four feet of water.

The body was recovered with the clothing covering it torn to shreds and the ground in the vicinity torn up, showing the frightful struggle the man had undergone. The body was sent to his home in Stillwater.

THE LONELY PRAIRIE.

A Trackless Waste Without Water or Human Habitation.

"I had almost as soon be set adrift in a small boat in midocean as to be dropped down on the vast prairie near the Kansas-Colorado state line," said a man who is familiar with the west.

"One cannot realize the loneliness of the western plains until he has crossed them. There are very few human habitations, comparatively little of the land is under cultivation, and water is a scarce and precious commodity. In every direction nothing meets the gaze of the eye except a trackless, treeless waste which is bounded only by the lowering sky. Prairie dogs are the chief denizens of this region, and as the rain whirls past they perch themselves on their hind legs and sit bolt upright as motionless as a statue. There are a few houses, but they are at wide intervals. The one single advantage that a lonely pedestrian has in that region is that by following the railroad track sufficiently far he will reach a town some day.

"It is positively tiresome to the eye to ride across the prairies in a comfortable Pullman car surrounded by all the luxuries of life. This being true, it must be next to appalling to have to tramp over this region without food or water except what one begs at the few way stations along the route. I have never been able to see anything picturesque or inviting about the wide stretching plains."

WINDSTORMS.

The Distinction Between a Cyclone and a Hurricane.

The term cyclone is applied to a tornado of limited diameter and destructive violence. All storms, therefore, in which the wind has a circulating movement about a central area of low barometric pressure may properly be termed cyclones. Cyclones occur most frequently in those parts of the world which are subject to monsoons and take place at those seasons when the monsoons are changing. They sometimes extend over many thousands of square miles.

Tropical storms are known in the West Indies as hurricanes. These violent windstorms are of a diameter of from fifty to a thousand miles, wherein the air moves with a velocity of from 80 to 120 miles an hour round the central calm. Hence this term to applied to any storm or tempest in which the wind blows with terrific violence. In the Philippine Islands and on the southeastern coast of Asia such tropical storms are known as typhoons. The general disturbances of the middle latitudes are usually referred to as simply storms or areas of low barometric pressure.—London Answers.

WOMAN'S WORLD

MRS. HANNAH G. SOLOMON.

A Chicago Woman of International Fame In Reform Movements.

Mrs. Hannah G. Solomon of Chicago is a noted leader in Jewish reform circles, and the influence of her work has been felt far and wide. It is not confined alone to her home city or to the United States. Mrs. Solomon is the founder and president of the American Jewish Women's Council. She was a member of the committee of religious congresses during the World's fair in 1893, representing the Jewish women of the United States and organizing a very successful congress. Out of this was formed the permanent association, now numbering 10,000 members, of which she has been continuously elected president. Its objects are a study of Jewish history and literature and practical work in philanthropy, education and civics. It conducts manual training and industrial schools, kindergartens, mothers' and children's clubs, circulating libraries, reading rooms, free baths, employment bureaus and many other lines of public work. This council contributed $10,000 in money and supplies to the Spanish-American war. Mrs. Solomon was one of the organizers of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs and its vice president, is an active worker in the Chicago Woman's club, chairman of one of the charity bureaus of the city and widely known for her effective public work.

MRS. HANNAH G. SOLOMON.

The Power of Beauty.

During a discussion on the power possessed by a beautiful woman the conversation turned upon the frailty of such beauty and the slight accident that would serve to destroy the loveliest features.

Thinking it over, it is perhaps as well that beauty and brains are so rarely combined, for, considering the sway either allows to a woman, the combination would certainly mean absolute power to the fortunate possessor.

But the women in question are somewhat to blame for this themselves. Is it that a beautiful woman does not think it necessary to cultivate any mental grace, imagining that beauty while it lasts is all sufficient? Does the brainy woman think it a waste of time to spend hours over her personal appearance?

If women could only realize that neither a pretty doll nor an unwomanly woman is in herself satisfying, the world would be a different place. It is generally the fairly good looking, fairly clever, but thoroughly womanly little woman who is most desirable in masculine estimation. But, aside from the marriage standpoint, no woman has a right to neglect her education or yet to cultivate her mind to the total exclusion or loss of all that is becoming to her sex.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Morally Beautiful.

To a recent discussion of the woman and business question a woman sent this contribution: "I am engaged in the business of being beautiful in face, form and dress, I find that men pay the highest wages to women in my trade."

That sounds clever and seems plausible. But will it bear examination? Do the "highest wages" go to the women who devote themselves exclusively to being physically attractive?

One does not need to think long of the women of his acquaintance—those who have married well and those who have not—to reach the conclusion that those women who have had only physical attractiveness, only the ability to please the eye, have been, as a rule, the reverse of successful. On the other hand, neither is physical attractiveness a guarantee of success—that term is here used in a purely material sense. The secret of success lies, for women no less than for men, in qualities that lie below the surface, and very often the development of those qualities is prevented by devotion to the development of the surface advantages.—Philadelphia Post.

A Cause of Nervousness.

A prominent physician said recently in my hearing, "The furnishing of American homes is a reflection of American nervousness, and, conversely, American nervousness is aggravated by the furnishings of American homes." The dullest human being, we know, is affected to some degree by environment, and it is easy to conceive that where there is not a respectful spot in a room to which one can turn the eye there must be a constant though perhaps unconscious strain upon one in that room. The trouble is our unconscious minds have so largely the determining of our health, while we foolishly imagine that only our conscious impressions are of importance to our well being. If we were influenced only by what we actually realize that we see, hear and feel, we might regulate largely the effects received, but there is that unconscious receiving to be dealt with, and that is what makes the living in a home that is a species of disorderly or ungoverned museum a strain upon nerves, a tax upon health.—Good Housekeeping.

Women and Church Work.

The church universal is suffering humiliation to depths unfathomed for the want of noble, unselfish, untrammeled womanhood at the front—yes, all the way back to the rear. Men in the church, as well as out of it, need the helpfulness of womanhood at the front, at the rear, and all the way along, from foundation to capstone, quite as much as womanhood needs it for herself. Womanhood is humiliated by the menial service of her monetary contributions, and men have the effrontery to accept her mites and pounds while they usurp authority and prevent the church from enjoying the benefits of her best ability in office and coleadership.—Era Magazine.

A Hint For the Hemmer.

Some one has made such a clever little discovery anent that troublesome work of hemming table linen. Hand hemmed it must be, of course; but, thanks to this bright idea, the machine can still be made to do the greater part of the work. Here is the suggestion: Have your tablecloth ready as if to sew by machine and turn the hem all along with the hemmer, but without threading the needle. This turning in of the hem is, every one knows, the most laborious part of the task. With this accomplished, it is a comparatively easy matter to complete the sewing by hand.

The Full Length Mirror.

A long mirror, full length if possible, should be in every woman's dressing room. One should know how she looks from head to foot. A milliner's advice to her patrons is to observe the effect of a hat sitting as well as standing. Sometimes a hat is too large for a seated figure when it does very well while the wearer is standing. No one wants to lose in effect by a change of posture any more than one wants to wear a hat that is becoming in front and hideous in the back.—New York Post.

Redyed Carpets.

If worn and faded, brussels and velvet carpets may be much improved by redying. After the carpet is cleaned and laid wipe off with vinegar water and allow to dry. Prepare any good dye, selecting the predominating color in the carpet, and apply with a wide paint brush. All colors and shades will not absorb the dye just the same, and a design will remain, and all worn places will be colored.

Folding the Head.

To gain the correct poise of the head it is a good plan to walk about a room with a book balanced on the top. Keep the back of the neck well up, and if the book stays on you will do, but take care it is not supported by your hair. It must remain steady on its own account, or else you have not acquired the right way of carrying your head.

Salad Dressing.

A salad dressing warranted to keep better than mayonnaise comes from England. Stir together in a small saucepan a teaspoonful of sugar, a little salt and dry mustard, three tablespoonfuls of vinegar and three of cream. Stir well and add two beaten egg yolks. Place in a double boiler and stir until the mixture is like cream.

The Salt Bath.

A cupful of ordinary rock salt is an invaluable addition to the bath. It is especially soothing to a person with jaded nerves and will often insure a restful sleep to an invalid or a little child. The salt should be dissolved and thoroughly mixed with the water, which is a measure takes the place of sea bathing.

Police Matrons.

The office of police matron was instituted twenty-two years ago in Chicago when Carter H. Harrison, Sr., then mayor of the city, had a matron placed in the Harrison street police station as an experiment. His interest was enlisted by the Woman's Christian Temperance union of Chicago.

Whitewashed Ceilings.

When a whitewashed ceiling has become blackened apply a layer of starch and water to it with a piece of soft flannel. Allow it to dry, then brush off lightly with a brush. The blackness will have disappeared, leaving no marks whatever.

When pouring hot fruit into a glass dish place the latter on a wet cloth. This prevents any chance of the glass cracking, which would otherwise be very likely to happen.

Scrap booklets of birch bark are a pretty addition to any library or den. With their delicate grays they harmonize with every style of furnishing.

Mattings should always be swept in the way of the weave—that is, the way of the warp—and never across it.

Candles burn better and more slowly if stored in a dry place six or seven weeks before using.

Its value is incalculable. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup and take no other kind.

CANADIAN LOYALTY

Lord Dundonald Approved by the Country — His Patriotic News.

The Globe, not of Toronto, but of London, says:

Lord Dundonald's farewell to Canada has evoked a demonstration gratifying alike to himself and to the best friends of the imperial connection. His departure from Ottawa the night before last was a triumph. Its great feature was the proof it afforded that the retiring general has won the approval not only of a party, but of the best elements in the Dominion, irrespective of political bias. Among those who united to do him honor were the municipal and county authorities, soldiers and private citizens of all classes and creeds, and not a voice appears to have been raised to break the universal harmony. The question whether Lord Dundonald had or had not failed in discretion in his difference with the colonial government was by common consent forgotten. It was as a sturdy representative of true imperialism that he was saluted by the people of the federal capital and its vicinity, and the attempts made by a few partisan journals to give a political complexion to the gathering proved a signal failure. It was assuredly no mere Conservative demonstration, when, as the Ottawa correspondent of the Times puts it, the chairman of the local committee was a life-long Liberal, and several of his colleagues professed the same political faith. Lord Dundonald put the right interpretation upon the manifestation. "Men of Canada," he exclaimed in bidding farewell last he Ottawa crowd, "keep both hands on the Union Jack," and his words are reported to have been received with the wildest enthusiasm. "Both hands on the Union Jack." It is a happy phrase, and despite what has been said and written by party politicians, it clearly embodies Canadian public sentiment.

FOUR HANDSOME ELECTRIC CARS

Are Being Built at Ottawa for the Peterborough Radial Railway Company—Workmen are Busy Upon Them and the Cars When Completed Will be as Fine as Any in the Dominion.

The employees of the Ottawa Car Company, Limited, are now working night and day on the construction of an handsome a quartette of cars as the factory—which is one of the leading industries of the capital — has ever turned out.

The cars are for the Peterborough Radial Railway Company, and when completed will be equipped with all the latest devices and conveniences. Everything will be of the most recent design and build.

Each car is thirty feet over all, and eight feet two inches wide. There will be a vestibule at either end — large, attractive and fitted up with double folding glass doors, the very newest thing in car construction.

The wood work will be of the most substantial character. The outside of the car will be whitewood sheeting the color of its finish not yet being decided upon. Inside each car will be finished in quarter cut oak with fine British plate glass mirrors at either end and double sliding doors dividing the interior from the respective vestibules.

The seating capacity of each car will be about thirty persons. There are fourteen seats—seven on either side—with a wide aisle intervening. The seats are upholstered in rattan and have reversible backs, being seat, cane and rung.

The windows are double sash and in warm weather can be dropped below the sill. They are thus out of view and the car has every appearance of being the open, airy summer trolley conveyance seen in the larger cities.

The roof is finished in quarter cut oak veneer and is of the monitor pattern, being extra wide and giving the car a splendid appearance. The roof is provided with chipped glass ventilators on either side.

Each car—for all are of exactly the same design, build and workmanship—will be lighted by fifteen incandescent lights, three circuits of five lights. The candle power is 16. There will be a self acting switch head light with powerful reflector. When this lamp burns the one at the top of the vestibule is automatically extinguished.

The cars are single truck ones, and will each be equipped at the Canadian General Electric Company's works with two thirty horse power motors and suitable electric heaters.

The Peterborough Radial Railway will soon have a rolling stock as superb and well appointed as that of any similar line in the Dominion.

LOCK WORKING WELL

Rob Roy Made its Passage in Record Time.

The steamer Rob Roy returned last night at five o'clock from a week's trip through the Kawartha Lakes. Mr. R. M. Roy states that he explored all of the lakes between here and Chemong, and that it was a very pleasant outing. Stony Lake is at present in her gayest garb and he secured some elegant views during the trip.

It is interesting to note that the Rob Roy had made the record passage of the Hastings lock, for the length of time which it took to put her through yesterday—from entrance to egress—was eight minutes and forty seconds. The boat was lowered in the sixty-five foot drop in two minutes and ten seconds; this is a lowering of the theoretical time by fifty seconds. These facts go to show that the lift lock is in perfect working order. There is not a tremor or a jar during its operation, and everything runs as smoothly as possible. It might be added there that the average time of an ordinary lockage on the canal is 15 minutes.

VERY SAD CASE

In the Police Court this Morning—Another Case Dismissed.

The Police Court this morning assumed its usual busy appearance after a long rest, but there were only two cases to be disposed of. The first one was a charge against David Evans of obstructing the public highway, and trying to prevent people passing. The evidence brought out showed that the defendant had more cause for complaint than the plaintiff, and the case was dismissed.

The other case was a very sad one. Chas. Yeoman, a man of about 40 years of age and unmarried, was charged with being insane, and suffering with a cancer of the upper jaw, which the physician claimed was incurable. He has been in Nicholls' Hospital since July 2nd, and has been a source of great trouble to them. After hearing the evidence of Miss Douglas, nurse, and Dr. Amys, the Magistrate committed him to jail.

Police Magistrate Dumble said that this was a case where the cancer affected the brain. The man was brought to the Hospital and kept there as he had no relatives or friends. The hospital was no place for him as he would not be confined and had to be continually watched. There is no provision in the law in such cases, and the magistrate had no power but to send him to jail. This is again a case of the need of a poorhouse where God's poor can be cared for. The magistrate wondered how long the rich county of Peterborough was going to be without a place for its indigent poor and insane, and suggested, as often before, that they provide one at once.

DELEGATES HAVE RETURNED

From the Meeting of Oddfellows' Grand Lodge.

Lieut.-Col. Miller, Mr. Harry Mowry, Mr. R. Matchett, of Otonabee Lodge, and Mr. Bert. Wallace, Mr. T. Hooper, Mr. T. Scott, of Peterborough Lodge, and Mr. A. W. Wringer, of the Encampment, I.O.O.F., have returned from Toronto, where they attended the Oddfellows Grand Lodge sessions. They state that at the concluding meeting many changes were made in the constitution. A motion was introduced to reduce the number of members to the Grand Lodge to two members for lodges of over 150 members and one for lodges under that. It was defeated. The following clause was added —"In case any brother entitled to sick benefits shall be or at any time become insane, the benefits payable to such brother during the period of such insanity may be paid to the wife, children or dependent relatives of such brother." In future there will be a proposition tax of $2 specified in the transfer of a member from one lodge to another. In future, also, the past grands and past noble grands, who are members, shall have a right to vote for assembly officers in Rebekah lodges. The committee recommended that this clause be added to the constitution: "The nurse fund, when established, shall consist of all moneys at the credit of the fund at the time of the adoption of this clause, and all moneys that may be levied, from time to time, by special assessment and donation. No money shall be taken from the general fund, and all payments for nursing shall be made out of this fund." Brockville got next year's session.

MORE NEWS FROM EKO CAMP

The Best Outing and Lots of Visitors from Town.

The boys are still enjoying their outing and having a good time. Last night Teddy Gillespie left for home, but is expected back for Sunday.

The General had a very narrow escape last night from being swamped. He had gone to visit Bentley's cottage, as was his usual duty two or three time a day, and remained until after dark. The boys forgot to put up the red lantern, and Georgie roamed around the lake until he reached Viamede, where he remained all night. He is now thinking of getting lost again, as he says the ladies at Viamede are most chivalrous.

Froggie has abandoned fishing and is now sporting a nice pin, emblematic of the Stars and Stripes. The visitors were thinking of going home on Saturday, but rumor says that they have changed their minds, especially since Willie has arrived with his canoe.

We were all glad to welcome Jimmie Marks again. He is occupying his old corner for a day or two.

It has been suggested that Freddie Morgan be made an honorary member of the camp. He certainly used the fellows white.

Commodore Gemmell's arms are two strong since the boat arrived yesterday.

Scottie had some visitors from town, too, on Wednesday. He had to be on his good behaviour.

Bones and Gillie are as busy as usual, and the latter's smile is getting broader all the time. Bones is thinking of vocal aspirations now, and on the club's return to town the people on George-st. will no doubt reap the benefit of his accomplishments.

DRILL ON TUESDAY

Orders Issued To-Day by Lieut.-Col. J. W. Miller.

Orders by Lieut.-Col. J. W. Miller, C.O., of 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers—

Regiment will assemble for drill on Tuesday evening next, Aug. 16th, at 8 o'clock. All officers, non-commissioned officers and men are required to turn out.

By order,

D. WALKER, Capt. Adjt.

The above order, issued to-day, is for the purpose of preparing the Regiment for its annual trip, which takes place this year on Sept. 2nd to Barrie. It is very important that all the members turn out on Tuesday night next, as the Regiment has their old reputation for smart drilling, etc., to keep up. At Barrie the troop will be performed and some other ceremonial parades.

QUARTERLY BUSINESS MEETING

Held at Park St. Church when Reports were Presented.

Quarterly business meeting of the Park st. Baptist church was held last night, the Rev. A. H. Brace in the chair. Mr. David Holt, church clerk, read the minutes. His report follows: Increase for the quarter—Baptisms in May 1, June 3, July 19th 5, July 31st 2, increase by 2, total increase thirteen.

The weekly offering report was given by Mr. T. G. Gillespie and Mr. John Reed. The treasurer's report revealed a steady growth in finance all accounts being paid to date and a balance on hand. Reports from other departments were encouraging.

A new heating apparatus is to be attached to the Baptistry. A service of song under the direction of the choir on behalf of missions will be given early in September.

The officers of the church thank God and take courage.

STONY LAKE NEWS

Visitors Still Arriving — Caught Some Small Fish.

Miss C. Lightfoot of Lakefield is spending a week at Viamede.

Mr. J. C. Grylls was at the Mount Julian hotel this week.

Messrs. S. Baisden and Roy Kidd are camped in Clark's Bay.

Miss Fraser and Miss Ray spent Sunday at "Forest Nook."

Messrs. W. A. Dudge, J. A. Robb and H. Montgomery of Toronto are spending two weeks at "Hillsboro."

Misses E. Headren, A. Hunter and M. Morrison and Messrs. R. Headren, R. Morrison and C. Hunter have been spending a week at their cottage at the lake.

Mrs. S. Ridpath, Miss Bella Ridpath Miss Lillian Podger of Lakefield, Miss Brooker and Miss Glover of Toronto, and Messrs. T. Glover, J. I. Ridpath and G. Ridpath of Toronto, and Jas. Isbister of Lakefield, are camped on Juniper Island for two weeks.

One day last week two Americans had a very unpleasant experience at Stony Lake. They had been out fishing and on their return home happened to meet in with Fishery Overseer F. J. Moore. The fishermen deposited their fish on the wharf and Mr. Moore saw at once that a number of them were under the size required by law. As the Americans pleaded ignorance of the law, Mr. Moore did not inflict a fine, but confiscated the fish, sending them down to the Orphans Home, Peterborough. It is altogether likely that in future the two gentlemen in question will keep strictly within the law. A number of complaints have been made in respect to catching small fish, and Mr. Moore is taking active steps to see that the regulations regarding the size and number of fish to be taken are strictly complied with.

BUSINESS IS INCREASING

A Meeting of Shareholders of the Port Hope Brewing and Malting Company.

(Port Hope Times.)

A large and representative meeting of the shareholders of the Port Hope Brewing and Malting Company was held in the brewery reception room Thursday afternoon when the following shareholders were present: Messrs. F. Bleecker, R. J. Munro, G. Sabolier, G. Whitty, J. Maguire, S. Carrie, A. P. Pennette, J. M. Martin, J. H. McNicholl, J. J. Wardrobe, H. L. McLean, J. Grieg, L. G. Bennett, J. E. Ketchesom, N. F. Doye, L. O'Connor, S. N. Doyle, C. Gauthier, J. Haw, E. Field, F. J. Maugher, I. Eastwood, J. J. Roberts, W. Irwin, E. Holland and H. Tye.

Officers were elected for the ensuing year as follows:

President—A. Elliott.

Vice-pres.—E. Field.

Secretary—R. W. Smart.

Executive committee—A. Elliott, E. Field, G. L. Shaffer, R. J. Munro, W. A. Bleecker, A. P. Pennette.

The meeting was very enthusiastic and the directors were highly pleased at the way the business was increasing. In the last three and a half months there has been a net profit of $6,666.73.

The advisability of installing a lager beer plant was discussed, but was left over until the next meeting.

The annual meeting has been changed from the first Tuesday in August to the first Tuesday in February.

A BACK YARD DEPICTED

CLEANLY MAN VIEWS CONDITIONS ABOUT HIM

Draws Attention to a Detestable Collection of Rubbish that Should be Removed.

"We might have a nice little back yard here," remarked a Hunter street business man yesterday as he viewed with some degree of pride the very neat appearance of the little patch of ground in the rear of his own buildings. His lip curled disdainfully as he waved his hand in the direction of the adjoining premises, which was littered with a most deplorable looking collection of stuff, a list of which would include everything that could possibly find its way into a scrap heap, and he designated "back yard rubbish."

There were about ten old dilapidated stoves, all promiscuously hurled about the place, some standing on one leg, some on two, some on none some with their insides torpedoed, some with their heads blown off, and some with their fronts exhibiting not the slightest semblance of their former selves. These stoves have all had their day. They have all known what it is to cook a good or bad meal as the case may be, quite a few of them perhaps have had four feet on their fenders, at different periods in their careers, and all have gone through experiences in which they figured both usefully or ornamentally. There is an old frame shed which is something of a fire trap, there is a pile of black, red, white, straight and curly hair, which is a barber's contribution to the unseemly collection and as one stands afar off he can discern other things too numerous to mention, but which might justifiably be called a disgrace to a civilized community and a discouragement to anyone who by example seeks to "uplift down trodden humanity" in the matter of cleanliness.

"Yes, we might have a nice little back yard here," observed the man sadly, for he is one of those who has a fondness in his heart for things that conduce to a quiet cleanly and respectable life.

WHO IS JAS. DORRIS

Was Killed in Duluth, Minn. and Claimed to be from Peterborough.

Chief Rossel received the following letter this morning, but has been unable to find out anything about the deceased. Any information would be gladly received.

Duluth, Minn., Aug. 9, '04.

To the Chief of Police, Peterborough:

Dear Sir,—If you please you will do me a great favour by complying with my request, and that is this. There was a man by the name of Jas. Dorris killed here and as he had nothing on his person to identify his designation, and as I was informed of the same as being acquainted with him, I would like to have you try and find his people at once. They live in Peterborough or that vicinity. You could look at the register and find out, or if not in that city try Campbellford, as the way he got killed they claim his people have a good chance for damages. Answer as soon as possible.

Yours truly,

HENRY ROSE,

LINDSAY HOLDS THE BOND

BURLEIGH FALLS MORTGAGE MADE SUBJECT TO MORTGAGE OF $ 6,000

Town Was Given an added Guarantee of $1,500 Worth of Stock — Mr. Culverwell at Council Meeting.

(Watchman-Warder.)

Mr. J. A. Culverwell was on hand at the last session of the Council, for at this meeting the mayor's suggestion to release him from the town's mortgage on the Burleigh power—a suggestion adopted by the committee in the absence of two members—was to be finally adopted or rejected. It was rejected.

Ald. Cinnamon read the report of his committee, which in the absence of Alds. O'Reilly and Storer, had advised cancelling the mortgage, and then he moved its adoption. Ald. Maunder seconded the motion.

"I cannot agree to cancelling the mortgage," said Ald. O'Reilly. "As a member of the Council I would do a good deal to help Mr. Culverwell to bring the Burleigh power to Lindsay. As a private citizen I would be willing to have even more done. But to vote away a mortgage of $1,500 which is bearing interest at 6 per cent., and is now worth $1,900,—to vote that away in exchange for stock that if the power is not developed will be worth nothing, is—

Mr. Culverwell—I beg to differ. You shouldn't—

Ald. O'Reilly—I do not wish to be interrupted. To make an exchange, such as is proposed is going too far. I have said that as a private citizen I would be willing to bonus Mr. Culverwell's company to get 1,000 horsepower brought to Lindsay. But to give up a mortgage that we have as a guarantee that the power will come, for stock that is of at least uncertain value, does not seem to me to be a very good way of getting the power here.

Mr. Culverwell—I beg Mr. O'Reilly's pardon for interrupting him, but it is not fair to say that if this power is not developed the company's stock will be worth nothing. You might as well say that any undeveloped property is not worth anything.

The mortgage you have is not worth the paper it is written on. I have showed you the opinion of a leading King's Counsel to that effect, and you have heard Mr. McLaughlin, another King's Counsel, express the same opinion. At all events, $1,500 mortgage would not compel the power to come here. Your refusal to surrender it might work in the other way—and I do not say it as a threat. But I assure you that if I can't get a little consideration, you can't expect any help from me to get electric power for this progressive community. I am able to help in a very decided way to bring it here. I have said that the town's future largely depends on having electric power. You have to compete with other towns that have that power. You are now in a good position with regard to railroads, and it will be too bad if you do not have the power to run manufactures that the railways would attract. I have arranged with the people to give you the stock and have it right here with me. It is just as good security as the mortgage.

At that saying Ald. O'Reilly took up a parable of a father and his dozen sons. Suppose one son had a mortgage against the estate, would he be willing to forego that and share equally with his brothers? In the alderman's opinion he would not. That was what the town was asked to do.

Mr. Culverwell said he did not believe that the people of Lindsay wanted the council to exact the pound of flesh with regard to this Burleigh power.

Then the vote was called, and only a few hands went up on Ald. O'Reilly's amendment to hold the mortgage.

"Are you voting, Ald. Robinson?" asked the mayor.

"I hardly know ho wto vote," replied the teamster alderman, and apparently there were others in the same boat.

"Mr. McLaughlin made it so plain that the town had lost nothing, that I thought we might cancel the mortgage," went on the puzzled alderman, making a speech in the midst of the voting. "But I feel like Ald. O'Reilly, that we should hold on till the power gets here. Yet Mr. Culverwell seems to want us to cancel it so bad. I don't think the stock would be much good. The town took stock in the old waterworks, and I don't think they ever got a dollar for it.

At the next call for the vote Alds. O'Reilly, McCrae, Storer and Robinson voted not to cancel the mortgage, and Alds. Cinnamon, Maunder and McWalters to cancel it. So the mortgage stayed.

The result badly disconcerted Mr. Culverwell, who had built a good deal more on what the council did in committee than anybody would who had seen committee reports torn to bits in council as often as some other people have. He considered council's action as unbusinesslike, and took a turn around the corridors to think it over. Business went on just as if a great financial proposition had not been shattered. Accustomed to great affairs the aldermen of this town thin knothing of putting $200,000 concerns out of business. They are giving one two million dollar proposition a pretty hard jolt—with that 20-mill rate.

Business went on and eleven o'clock drew near. The mayor went home and Ald. O'Reilly took the chair Then Mr. Culverwell came on with a new proposition. It was this: The town's mortgage was subject to a first mortgage of $3,000, would the town allow another $3,000 to be added to that? That is, would they be willing to come after $6,000 instead of $3000?

Ald. Cinnamon proposed that $15 0 stock should be given the town as additional security if council did as Mr. Culverwell asked. Here was where the chairman of finance shone. Whereas an hour before he moved tat the mortgage be cancelled, for $1500 took, he now demanded that

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

Copyright, 1904, by Duncan M. Smith.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

There is nothing like a good dinner and harmonious surroundings to make one's heart glow with philanthropic feeling for the poor and downtrodden.

After being married two weeks a bride thinks she understands men, but after two years she has her doubts.

Some people are always wanting to know where Cain got his wife. Perhaps he patronized a matrimonial bureau.

Even a new broom will not sweep clean in the hands of some women.

Did you ever notice that there is plenty of room at the top of a barrel for the largest apples?

Those who missed June brides will find the July article every way as desirable.

In writing a sketch of his life the successful man always skips over the year that he tried to be a book agent.

It is wonderful how attractive a few thousand dollars can make a crop of freckles.

It takes a lot of explaining to make the average man understand why there should be such a thing as a social function, and then he doesn't understand.

The Sweet Girl Graduate.

Beat the drums
Softly; here she comes,
Clothed in wisdom and I rather guess
A white dress
As well;
Casting a magic spell
Over the land
And helping us to understand
The whichness of the whence
And a few other things which the average man is too dense
To understand alone
Without being shown.
We are up to the date
When the sweet girl graduate
Steps forth with stately grace
And a smiling face
And tells you with eloquence and wit
All about it.
Your will leave her when
You see her by this description, though she should be among ten Thousand. Not another one in the whole
Lot could touch her with a ten foot pole.
When she speaks it is law.
The constitution may disagree, but, pshaw,
That does not count
Or amount
To a row of pins.
She wins
Out on her fines
Regardless of the facts in the case.
She can take the stand
And settle offhand
All the questions of the day
In her own sweet way.
Peace, war
And a score
Of the intricate questions of the hour
Melt before her power.
She knows
How, when, which, what, wherefore, whence and all these Things.
She brings
Her mind to play
In her modest way
And handily settles all affairs of state
While you wait.

WHEN BOYS WERE MEN

By JOHN HABBERTON,

Author of "Helen's Babies," "George Washington," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1901, BY JOHN HABBERTON.

How did my jacket buttons succeed in holding in my heart during that glorious outset of anticipation? I forgot every annoyance and disappointment of the past. Military ability, even if only displayed in leading recruits, was to be recognized and rewarded. The captain was a splendid fellow. I wanted to order three cheers for him at once, but just then a familiar grating voice rose from the center of the line.

"I was promised to be earliest mouth. Didn't I recruit nineteen men?"

"So you did, McTwyny," said the captain, looking at the ruffian a moment before he spoke. "Well, you shall be the remaining sergeant. Front, first corporal; Brainard, second corporal."—

The captain continued through the list of corporals, and my heart sank. "Twas better to be corporal than private, but to have had my expected honor snatched from me by some one else, and that somebody Mick McTwyny—to have Mick for my official superior! Oh, it put my spirits to flight, and some of my patriotism tried to go with them.

"Sergeant McTwyny to his post!" shouted the captain.

Down beside me came Mick McTwyny. Oh, if he had but been there when I first arrived and his leg instead of the other sergeant's had been broken by my hoeing! With he was there now, and so was my horse. I could hope.

From the parade ground, where the colonel and adjutant sat mounted, a bugle blew the "assembly," the signal for forming line.

"Atten-tion!" the captain roared. "Sergeant Clayne, front! You will command the third platoon. From the right count fours."

"One, two, three, four! one, two, three, four," ran down the line in rapid succession.

"Forward!" blew the colonel's bugler.

"Fours right, march!" shouted the captain. "To the left, march!"

We obeyed orders as well as we could according to the tactics in which we had been drilled on foot. Between the tops of the tents we could see the other companies filing out of their respective streets and forming column in the road in front of camp. There was some trouble and a great deal of profanity, which began to seem an army necessity, as different captains endeavored to take place in column according to seniority and were hindered by other captains whose lines of march crossed their own. Some of the men in the newer companies got dreadfully mixed up and made a lot of trouble before they were set to rights, for they were not accustomed to horses, much less to riding. Finally, however, the whole force was in columns of fours in the road, and when the adjutant, learning this by galloping down the flanks, signaled the colonel, the latter had his bugler once more sound "Forward!"

"Forward!" repeated the bugle of each of the 12 companies.

"Forward!" shouted each captain.

With a confused trample of horses' hoofs, clank of sabers, rattle of carbines, jingle of spurs, a jumble of "Whoa!" "Git up!" "G'long!" and "Damn ye!" from the recruits and in a great hale of dust the regiment was off.

And yet—a regiment two-thirds of whose men had never seen their horses until that morning and half of whose recruits had never before been on horseback, who had to have their pistols loaded for them and who had never been drilled together nor taught even the simplest company movements on horseback!

Well, 'twas the way with hundreds of other regiments during the earlier years of the war, and 'twas nobody's fault apparently. As a nation we could bring men together faster than we could arm and drill them. Fortunately for us, our neighbors at the south were having the same ill luck.

CHAPTER VII.

IN THE ENEMY'S COUNTRY.

We rode into and through the town, out by the road on which we used to do picket duty as infantry, across the bridge which we had laid and relaid so many times, far out to where we used to see the cavalry outpost's picket. We rode past the picket also. He was in the same place, as if he had been there ever since the ninety-eighth went away. After that we began to eye each tree and fence for rebels, for were we not in the enemy's country?

Except for this feature of the ground we might as well have been anywhere else in Virginia for anything that was of interest. The fields of yellow corn-stalks looked as much alike that one might easily have been taken for another, and the bits of woodland between were as like as two fragments of a single forest. The negro cabins were all of logs, the farmhouses of wood, painted white, and there were not many of either. The road, like all other roads in the south and everywhere else in farming countries in the United States, was just about wide enough for two wagons to pass each other, so it allowed us to ride only four abreast.

Sometimes the road bent and suggested that there might be a change of view beyond, but there wasn't. There was absolutely no change of scenery that we could remember for the first 12 miles of our ride that day, so we really felt some pleasurable excitement when we halted at a railroad crossing and saw near by a station building, a freight depot, a tankhouse, a blacksmith shop and a store building, though our captain told us that all had been unoccupied for months.

We fed our horses with oats which we had taken with us on our saddlebows, with instructions as to just how much to give at a meal, and dined on hard tack from our haversacks and water from a brook. The long ride had given me such an appetite that I was sorry that I had not brought at least part of my ration of pork. It might pass for better when a man was very hungry. I was somewhat comforted, however, to note that my horse, which was tied next to Mick McTwyny's at the long rail fence beside the road, had frightened Mick's horse and eaten that animal's oats before tasting its own.

Brainard and I met at lunch, and I had just asked him how he liked being a trooper, and he had expressed the hope that the Confederacy might feel as shaky on its legs as he, when we heard a shot or two in the advance. A sensation passed down the line, and we all started on foot to see what was the matter, but the captain ordered:

"To horse! Mount! Remember your fours! Forward!"

Looking out the road, we could see by the dust cloud that the other companies were in the saddle and moving forward. We rode about five minutes, hearing from time to time a few shots, but no bullets. Suddenly, however, across a field of wheat stubble came one of our men on horseback, making a great noise as he appeared to be trying to check his horse's gallop.

"A cavalryman ought to be able to manage his horse without so much fuss," said I, with some pride, for I had been taught to manage horses by the rein alone.

"The poor fellow is hurt," said the lieutenant who commanded our platoon. "Seems to be his thigh. I guess his horse is hit too."

Down went my heart into my boots or up into my throat. I couldn't determine which. If this was war, I wanted it to stop at once. Just to imagine myself coming wounded and screaming across a field like that poor fellow made me feel deadly sick. I strained my eyes in the direction from which the wounded man had come, but saw nobody else. Meanwhile the surgeon had gone out to meet the man, who now was quite near us, and called to some one to take down part of the fence so the horse could reach the road. By the time the poor fellow reached the roadside he was very pale and leaning low on his horse, and we could see a broad red stain along the leg of his light blue trousers. He was helped to the ground, and the surgeon quickly cut away his clothing and examined the wound, while we moved on, my heart still being elsewhere than in its proper place.

On, on we rode, and the farther we went the more I wished we were going in the opposite direction. I am ashamed even now to remember how many different kinds of coward I was that day, but I was giving my entire mind to the subject, and in such circumstances a man can accomplish a great deal. Fortunately it was impossible to keep up the strain a long time, so within an hour or two I was cool enough for anything. I was too exhausted to be anything else.

When I regained my senses sufficiently to think of something besides myself, I was astonished at the coolness or carelessness of our lieutenant. He had once been a private soldier in one of the older companies, which were at the head of the column, but he did not ride ahead to ask questions, nor did he even dismount to speak to the wounded man, though he must have known him. In the middle of the afternoon we passed a member of one of the old companies going to the rear for something, and our lieutenant asked:

"What is it?"

"Rebble' scrub," said the man. "Their pickets was layin' for us."

"Nothing else?"

"No, except Big Brown's hoss was killed. He got one of theirs, though; that's all."

"Nothing much!" "That's all!" If a poor fellow, shrieking with agony over a broken thigh, which was being hurt still more at every step of his horse, was "nothing much," what would be regarded as something? If the "pickets layin' for us" could inflict so much misery, what would be the result of a full battle? Again I wanted to go home.

But no battle occurred that day, and we dismounted before dark and prepared to bivouac in the woods for the night, a stream crossing the road supplying ample water for men and horses. Brainard and I wanted to go right up to the front and learn all about the fight with the pickets, but the captain told us not to stray far from our horses. Some of the men began to ask when and where were the cook and the evening coffee, and when they learned that the cook had not come and that he should have dealt out ground coffee with the other rations, so that each man could make some for himself, there was a terrible hubbub, which reached the captain's ears and made him say dreadful things about the cook. But none of the fuss yielded a bit of coffee.

I was fortunate in never having contracted the coffee drinking habit, but what I lacked in thirst I made up in hunger. I already had eaten a full day's ration of hard tack, but it seemed only a mouthful. I consulted Hamilton, who had been named commissary sergeant, about the possibility of our getting anything else to eat during the three days, but he gave me no encouragement. Nevertheless I borrowed one biscuit of the nine which constituted the next day's ration and promised myself I would eat a light breakfast. Then I reminded myself that at home I often had gone without breakfast for the sake of starting early for a morning of fishing. Why could I not do likewise in Virginia? I regarded the proposition with enough favor to borrow another biscuit. But those bits of hard bread did not seem to fill the aching void that longed for them, and when I learned that most of the company were as hungry as I and were acting according to the sentiment, "Eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow we may die," even though the death was to be by starvation, I followed their example with such industry that by the time I was ready to sleep my haversack was as empty as when it first came from the quartermaster's. Never before had I enjoyed any meal so thoroughly, yet 'twas nothing but hard bread sprinkled with Virginia air.

He was very pale and leaned low on his horse.

It seemed only a minute to breakfast time, so soundly did I sleep during nature's effort to make amends for the wakeful night before. No sooner was I awake, however, than I began to think of breakfast and of not having anything of which to make it. If misery loves company, our troop ought to have been a most sociable lot, for nearly all had been as improvident as I. Soon I began to stroll desperately about the forest in which we were camped. I hoped to find at least a slippery elm tree from which to tear some bark to eat, but the trees were mostly pines, among which the elm seldom grows. At the edge of the wood was a cornfield, into which I sprang and tore open some husks, hoping to find a belated ear which might be soft enough to chew, but all the corn was hard. I plodded so long between the rows that suddenly I saw before me the roof of a cabin. There might be rebels in it, thought I, but if they took me prisoner they couldn't refuse me something to eat. No matter how rebellious, the southerner never lost his reputation for hospitality.

I was greeted at the cabin door by an old colored woman who looked at me savagely and said:

"Dem' yo' comes no further, Mas' Sojer. Dey ain't nuffin lef' to steal. Yo' mess done took ev'ryting in de house las' night."

I took a silver quarter from my pocket. 'Twas a birth year pocket piece which I had carried for years; but, as Satan remarked the only time on record when he told the truth, "All that a man hath will he give for his life." I held the coin up between my thumb and finger, and as the old woman's countenance changed pleasingly I said:

"I don't want to steal anything, aunty. I'm almost starved, and I'd like to buy a mouthful to eat, I don't care what."

To be continued.

"Dem' yo' comes no further, Mas' Sojer."

THE CROPS OF ONTARIO

Advance Notes of the August Departmental Bulletin.

Fall Wheat Poorest of Cereal Crops. But Spring Wheat in Excellent Condition—Barley Average, With Oats Most Satisfactory in Crop's History—Rye Below, But Peas Above the Average—Fruit Crops Light.

Toronto, Aug. 12.—The August Crop Bulletin about to be issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, will contain the following regarding conditions on the first of the month:

The acreage and estimated yields of the field crops for the current year are now being compiled and will be published in a few days.

Fall Wheat.

Cutting began as early as July 20, but considerable of the crop remained to be cut on Aug. 1. The grain, which in 1902 and in 1903 gave most generous yields, will this year be, compared with its own average, the poorest of the cereal crops, taking the province at large; for while in some localities a good return is reported, in other sections the crop has been so great a failure as to give back no more than the quantity of seed sown. The crop appears to have sustained but little injury from Hessian fly or other insect pests, most of the more recent injury to the crop resulting from rust and rain. Very little is said by correspondents as to the quality of the grain, a fact which carries its own comment.

Spring Wheat.

This crop was not so far advanced as usual on Aug. 1, and cutting was not expected to begin until the 10th or 20th of the month, according to location. Rust was threatening in some quarters, but aside from that the crop was in excellent condition as regards both straw and grain, and the yield was expected to be well above the average. There was little or no complaint of insect pests.

Barley.

The cutting of barley was general in the last week of July, although much of the crop remained to be harvested after that period. In respect of color, the crop has turned out well. The yields generally are well up to or above the average, and the heavy returns much outnumber the light ones. The chief injury to the crop is said to have resulted from "lodging" and rust, but even these drawbacks have not been serious.

Oats.

Some big yields of oats have been reported, and only a few poor ones, and the probabilities are that the general result will be one of the most satisfactory in the history of this important crop. The straw is described as being rather short, however, and a few correspondents were fearing damage from rust. Some also alluded to the likelihood of "lodging," owing to the weight of the heads. Odd mention only was made of smut, and practically nothing was said of hurt from insects. The harvesting of this crop was not expected to be general before the second week of August.

Rye.

Crop badly winter-killed, and the yield per acre will be below the average. Where the crop survived the winter, however, it came along in fair condition as to quality.

Peas.

The bulk of the crop will probably be harvested between the 15th of August and the end of the month. Owing to ravages of the "bug" during the last few years, only a small acreage of peas was planted this season. The pest does not appear to be so general as in recent years. Present prospects are for a yield rather above the average.

Beans.

Beans are much later in growth than usual, being still in the blossoming stage, or else just beginning to pod, on the 1st of August. The crop was then looking very promising, and some correspondents thought the yield would be considerably above the average.

Hay and Clover.

Taking the Province as a whole, this crop may be briefly described as a fairly large one, and it has been well saved in most cases. Notwithstanding the great injury to clover in many parts of the Province during the winter by ice forming on low-lying fields, a good recovery was made owing to the favorable growing weather of May and June, and timothy has done even better than clover relatively. Hay harvesting covered nearly all of July. The poorest average yields were reported from the Lake Erie counties, where much damage had been done by winter-killing. New meadows did much better than old ones, and spring seeding is turning out well.

Corn.

Corn received a bad start generally, while parts of some fields had to be resown with buckwheat, or with oats and peas for green feed. Some correspondents speak of the crop as promising, but most of the returns made are more or less unfavorable.

Tobacco.

Only a few correspondents make mention of tobacco as a growing crop. The plant is reported as doing well, although rather late in growth, owing to the wet and generally backward spring.

Potatoes.

The bulk of the reports are to the effect that the average yield will be a good one. Complaints were made in some quarters of more injury than usual by the bug. A few cases of blight were mentioned.

Roots.

Spring was not favorable to the getting of land into good shape for the sowing of roots, and the wet weather continued so far into the season that much of the seed was put in late. Consequently all classes of roots were backward in the first of August, although then growing vigorously; and while many fields were somewhat thin in the row, others were giving fair promise. The sugar beet fields of Western Ontario are reported to be in very fine condition, showing decided improvement over previous years. No injury was reported from insect pests.

Fruit.

Harvest and fall apples will give an average yield in most orchards, but the winter sorts, more especially Spys and Baldwins, will be comparatively scarce. Pears will range from poor to good in yield, but peaches will be light. Cherries varied greatly in yield, but on the whole the crop was not nearly up to the average of previous years. Plums yield poorly. Grapes at the present time give promise of being a good crop. Strawberries were not so large a crop as usual, but good reports have been received regarding raspberries and other small fruits. Complaints of injury to fruit from insect pests, spot, etc., were much less than in other years.

Pastures and Live Stock.

Midsummer found pastures in a splendid state, and live stock were also reported to be in excellent condition. The prospects are good for an abundance of fall and winter supplies for farm animals. The flow of milk has been large, but prices for dairy products have not been encouraging, more especially in the case of cheese. The consequence is that calves have been getting much more milk than in recent years, and a correspondent remarks that this will be a good thing for both the calves and the farmers.

Bees and Honey.

The winter was a most trying one for bees; they came out weak, and there was considerable spring dwindling. Swarming was late, and was hardly so general as in recent years. Clover was in fair supply, but there was not much linden. Extracting was rather backward, owing to the season being a late one. The average yield per colony, spring count, will hardly reach 40 pounds.

Scarcity of Farm Labor.

There is a decided scarcity of farm labor, although the lack of help has not been felt so keenly as in the two or three years immediately preceding. The situation has been slightly relieved by the arrival of more British immigrants, but skilled agricultural laborers are yet very hard to procure. Farmers are having recourse to improved labor-saving machinery, and are endeavoring in this way to keep the work more within their own families. Wages are fully as high, or higher, than formerly.

Crop Prospects Improved.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 12.—With the thermometer over 90 and warm nights crop prospects have greatly improved and country reports generally agree that the continuance of this weather should ensure a bountiful harvest.

DELAY IS DANGEROUS.

Throughout the Negro Hosts is Confidence Trusty of Peace.

Lhasa, Tibet, Aug. 5.—(Delayed in transmission.)—Col. Younghusband head of the British mission, to-day returned the Ambans Ceremonia visit. He urged the appointment of delegates for the purpose of negotiating terms of peace, at the same time intimating that every day's delay would increase the indemnity to be demanded by the British.

No attempt has yet been made by the Thibetans to start the negotiations. It is stated that the Dalai Lamai left behind the seal of State so that the treaty could be signed in his absence.

The inhabitants are freely supplying the mission with necessaries.

Mr. Gamey at Smith's Falls.

Smith's Falls, Aug. 12.—At a picnic held in Livingston's Grove, about four miles from here, yesterday afternoon, the speakers were: John R. Lavell, M.P., John Haggart, M.P., Col. A. J. Matheson, M.P.P., and R. R. Gamey, M.P.P. There was a large attendance, there being over one thousand present, many driving twelve and twenty miles to hear the much-talked-of man in Ontario politics.

Models For Exhibition.

London, Aug. 12.—Very valuable models will go on Tuesday in charge of an expert to Toronto for the Exhibition. They are of the Japanese warship Hatsuse and the English warship Sworddish. Models of the Canada, the Hogue, and the Japanese Mikasa were sent yesterday.

Awful Fall to Death.

Montreal, Aug. 12.—John Burrows, 50 years of age, while cleaning windows at the Presbyterian College yesterday, missed his footing and fell a distance of four stories, landing on the pavement, knocking the upper part of his head completely off.

Little Girl Had Eczema

Which Defied All Treatment Until Dr. Chase's Ointment Was Used and Cured Her.

Many children suffer from scald head and eczema who could be cured if their parents only knew about Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mr. C. Wiley, who is employed as cooper by the Kennedy & Davis Milling Company, Lindsay, Ont., states: "I used Dr. Chase's Ointment for eczema on my little girl some few years ago, and soon brought about a thorough and permanent cure. She suffered for considerable time, and although we tried a great many remedies, Dr. Chase's Ointment was the only preparation to prove effective. I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Chase's Ointment, as it certainly effected a prompt and permanent cure in this case."

Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Company, Toronto. To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

REVOLUTION IN URUGUAY.

Government Forces Said to Have Met Serious Reverse.

Buenos Ayres, Aug. 12.—The revolutionary movement at Asuncion was initiated with the object of overthrowing the Administration of President Emourra. The Government forces are concentrating at the capital, and requisitions have been made for arms.

The steamer Sajonia is ascending the Uruguay River to make an attack, and it is expected that there will be a naval engagement between the Sajonia and an armed passenger river boat manned by national troops.

Foreigners are taking refuge in the Legations of their respective countries.

Heavy fighting was reported yesterday, and the revolutionists are said to have inflicted a serious defeat on the Government forces.

Accident at Hamilton.

Hamilton, Aug. 12.—Patrick Handers fell 25 feet onto a cement walk from a window in the bricklayers' and masons' hall, East King street, about 10.45 last night. The story told the police was that Handers accidentally fell out of the window. He was taken to the city hospital, and the doctors fear that his injuries may prove fatal. His skull was fractured and his neck injured.

No Difference.

No distinction is made as to the kind of Piles that Hem-Roid cures. The names internal, external, bleeding, blind, itching, suppurating, etc., are simply names of the different stages through which every case will pass if it continues long enough.

Piles are caused by congestion or stagnation of blood in the lower bowel, and it takes an internal remedy to remove the cause.

Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid is a tablet taken internally.

It is a permanent cure and no case of Piles has ever been found it failed to cure.

FRIDAY, AUG. 12, 1904.

IN THE REALM OF SPORT

SWIMMING.

The Toronto Star says:—The prospects of a swimming race between the champions of vegetarianism and roast beef do not at present look promising. Mr. Jones, the English swimmer, has engagements that will presently require his return to the old country, while Mr. Strickland, the vegetarian, when seen to-day by a representative of this paper, expressed a dislike for the notoriety such a race would occasion, together with a feeling that a race to properly test the merits of diet, should take place, not in the tepid and enervating water of summer, but in the cold and bracing fluid of autumn or winter. He suggests that such a race might very well occur on Christmas day, or, if more convenient, on Thanksgiving day. The distance from the Yonge street wharf to the island is, he says, may limit the speed of a swimmer but not the endurance of a vegetarian. As Mr. Strickland has the record of having gone swimming in Lake Ontario in every month of the year, he would probably have the advantage over Mr. Jones, who has never gone in for that kind of thing. Altogether it is to be feared there will be no race, and people will have to judge of the rival merits of the vegetarianism and beef eating by private experiment and personal energy.

SON AND HEIR BORN TO RUSSIAN THRONE

The Empress and Her Child are Doing Well---Name Will be Alexis.

JAPANESE ATTACK THE RUSSIAN FLEET

Admiral Togo Reports the Battleship Czarevitch was Probably Sunk on August 10—Berlin Foreign Office Sends Instructions That Russian Warships Must Quit Within 24 Hours.

Special to the Review.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 12.—A son and heir to the Russian throne has been born. The Empress and child are doing well. The birth occurred at 12.30 p.m. The child will be christened Alexis.

London, Aug. 12—A despatch from Tokio to the Japanese Legation here says: "According to reports received up to the present, the Russian squadron emerged from Port Arthur, was attacked by our fleet south of Yentao and dispersed. The Askola, Novik and another cruiser and a destroyer took refuge at Kiaochow. Another destroyer took refuge at Chefoo. On Aug. 11, five Russian battleships, a cruiser, probably the Diana, a hospital ship, and several torpedo destroyers, seemed to regain Port Arthur. Our fleet is believed to be undamaged.

Tokio, Aug. 12—Admirable Togo reports that the Russian battleship Czarevitch was probably sunk on Aug. 10.

Chefoo, Aug. 12.—The Berlin Foreign Office is sending instructions to-day to the German authorities at Tsingchou, to the effect that the Novik and the torpedo boat must leave the harbor within the 24 hours prescribed by international law.

CANOEING.

The Toronto Canoe Club will send only two men to the races of the Northern Division of the A.C.A. at Sugar Island this year. They will be Brent and Blomfield. They will compete in the singles and the tandem. This is the first time in many years that the Toronto Canoe Club have not been represented in the war canoe event, but as the club have to depend on the juniors this year it was impossible to get a crew away. Blomfield is well known in town, and is a star canoeist.

THE TRANSVAAL CUP

Large and Handsome Silver Trophy on View in Lieut. Clarke's Window

The Transvaal Cup, a very large and handsome trophy, is on exhibition in the shop window of Lieut. Fred Clarke. This cup is the prize to be competed for by members of any of the Canadian contingents who served in South Africa, at any of the Provincial Rifle Association meetings. The cup has travelled extensively, having been won first three years ago by Sergt W. A. Smith of the 43rd Regiment, Ottawa, who scored 95 points, second by Private A. L. Malcolm of the 8th P. L. N. B. Hussars, St. John, N.B., who made 91 points, and last year by Private J. Macgregg of the D.C.O.R., Vancouver, who made 98 points. The cup is on its way back from the coast, in charge of the Dominion Express Company, and to-morrow night it will be sent on to Brockville. The winner of each year is engraved upon a shield.

PLEASANT OUTING

Enjoyed by St. John's Girls' Guild and their Friends Yesterday.

About 125 people took in the Girls' Guild excursion to Jubilee Point yesterday afternoon by the Str. Sovereign, and spent a most enjoyable afternoon. The Point was reached shortly after five o'clock and a general table was spread. After tea a game of baseball was played between the Girls' Guild and the Young Men's Guild, resulting in a win for the former by a large score. The base running of some of the girls was a feature of the game and caused much amusement. A race amongst the members of the Guild resulted in a win by Miss Edna Caniff, with Miss Maud Gould a close second.

The committee in charge, Mrs. Caniff and Miss Layfield, made everything enjoyable for the excursionists, and everyone pronounced the trip to be the best ever held by the Guild. The committee were materially assisted by Mr. W. H. Walkey, who looked after the arrangements for them. The officers and crew of the Sovereign were very kind in helping the people on board, and made the trip most enjoyable.

Brevities.

—Band in the park this evening.

—It was on August 17th, 1615, just a matter of 289 years ago, that Champlain visited the Narrows of Lake Simcoe and Couchiching.

—Mr. E. R. Wood, of Toronto, an old Peterborough boy, was elected director of the new Transcontinental railway line, in Montreal Wednesday.

—Rev. Mr. Archibald of Stouffville, who is supplying for Rev. Mr. Davidson at St. John's, will conduct the services at Chemong Park on Sunday afternoon next at 3 o'clock.

"The town should let that horse die here," said driver John Montgomery, referring to a fine looking grey in the stalls, which he said was nineteen years of age, and had been owned by the town for 15 years.

—The International Typographical Union which has just closed its session in St. Louis will meet in Canada for the first time next year. The meeting will be held in Toronto and the local union will likely send a representative.

—Hon. Geo. A. Cox, president of the Bank of Commerce, was elected director of the Grand Trunk Pacific in Montreal on Wednesday. The Toronto News of last evening contained excellent pictures of Hon. Mr. Cox and Mr. E. R. Wood, directors.

—The bicyclists who ride down George-st. every day and have worn a smooth path on the east side, are much obliged to the individual who raked all the stones upon the path just above the Methodist church.

—At the convention of the Canadian Association of Master Bakers in Hamilton Wednesday, some of the smaller bakers objected to city bakers shipping bread into villages and country places, and a resolution was passed which suggested that those shipping bread outside their own localities should co-operate with the local bakers, particularly where the organization existed, so that harmony should prevail.

—The reference made in the report of the Chemong regatta that the Bob Roy was lying in the course of the dinghy race seems to have been made in error. An authority states that the dinghys had a fair wind, which, had the boats been handled properly, would have brought them to the flags easily without manoeuvring. The Roy had three judges on board her, and the claim is made that she was not lying in the way.

BASEBALL.

What will undoubtedly prove to be an exciting game of ball will be pulled off to-morrow afternoon on the Murray-st. grounds between the T. A.S. and the Y.M.C.A. The latter organization is just so mysterious that those on the outside are looking for surprises, and these will come to-morrow afternoon, it is said. It will be a great game of ball and will begin at three o'clock. The admission is 15 cents.

Manager Smith of the Rochester team, in the Eastern League, was in Galt this week, and made an offer to George Marshall to catch the Rochester games in the Toronto series on Sept. 7, 8 and 9. Marshall is a big fellow and undoubtedly the best catcher in the Canadian League. He has played 15 games this year with a fielding average of .967. His average at the bat is 2.17.

Windsor Salt is all salt—pure, clean, crystals, and nothing but salt.

Miss Gannon, Sec'y Detroit Amateur Art Association, tells young women what to do to avoid pain and suffering caused by female troubles.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I can conscientiously recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to those of my sisters suffering with female weakness and the troubles which so often befall women. I suffered for months with general weakness, and felt so weary that I had hard work to keep up. I had shooting pains, and was utterly miserable. In my distress I was advised to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it was a red letter day to me when I took the first dose, for at that time my restoration began. In six weeks I was a changed woman, perfectly well in every respect. I felt so elated and happy that I want all women who suffer to get well as I did."—MISS GUILA GANNON, 359 Jones St., Detroit, Mich., Secretary Amateur Art Association.

It is clearly shown in this young lady's letter that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will certainly cure the sufferings of women; and when one considers that Miss Gannon's letter is only one of the countless hundreds which we are continually publishing in the newspapers of this country, the great virtue of Mrs. Pinkham's medicine must be admitted by all; and for the absolute cure of all kinds of female ills no substitute can possibly take its place. Women should bear this important fact in mind when they go into a drug store, and be sure not to accept anything that is claimed to be "just as good" as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for no other medicine for female ills has made so many actual cures.

How Another Sufferer Was Cured.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I cannot praise your wonderful remedies enough, for they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. For the last eight years and more I suffered with female troubles, was very weak, could not do my housework, also had nervous prostration. Some days I would remain unconscious for a whole day and night. My neighbors thought I could never recover, but, thanks to your medicine, I now feel like a different woman.

"I feel very grateful to you and will recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all. It has now been four years since I had the last spell of nervous prostration. I only weighed ninety-eight pounds at that time; now I weigh one hundred and twenty-three.

"I consider your Vegetable Compound the finest remedy made. Thanking you many times for the benefit I received from your medicine, I remain, Yours truly, MRS. J. H. FARMER, 2809 Elliott Ave., St. Louis, Mo."

Remember Mrs. Pinkham's advice is free and all sick women are foolish if they do not ask for it. She speaks from the widest experience, and has helped multitudes of women.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness. Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass.

it should be retained and the $1500 stock given in addition. Ald. Meander, his seconder to cancel, shows similarly now, and questioned Mr. Culverwell closely as to giving the stock in addition. Then do great men get new light. Strangely enough, Mr. Culverwell did not object for a moment to giving the stock extra and the bargain was closed at 11.15.

In editorial comment the Watchman-Warder says:—

The way is now clear for the town to make an effort to secure the Burleigh power. The hope that it would sometime get it has never died completely out of the hearts of our citizens, since it was first planted there. It seems as though the prospects of its being realized are now brighter than ever. We are told by Mr. Culverwell that if Lindsay offers a reasonable amount of business the power will be developed and brought to Lindsay. Now, a promise of that sort might not greatly impress cautious people, but for the fact that it states a reasonable proposition. Peterborough already furnishes a big and rapidly growing market for power. If there should be added to that any considerable market in Lindsay, it is thoroughly reasonable that the Burleigh power should be developed, and profitably, to supply that market. So, then, assuming that the power is there, the proposition to develop it is no wildcat scheme. That the power is there seems to be well assured.

MONEY AND ABILITY.

To develop the power is a task Burleigh proposition seriously that requires money and ability. This town has seen much of Mr. Culverwell, but has seen nothing of the men who are to co-operate with him if the power is developed. Nobody expects that he is going to do it single-handed. The sort of men that compose a company must very largely determine the confidence the public will have in any of the company's projects being carried out.

We have taken the trouble to find out who the men are who constitute Mr. Culverwell's company. The company is incorporated under the Provincial Act. It is registered as the Central Ontario Power Company, Limited. The president is Mr. Frank Turner, a civil engineer, a member of the Trent Valley Government Commission of 1896, a man who is worth a good deal of money, and has built parts of South America's railway system.

The vice-president is E. T. Adams, M.D., of Toronto.

The second vice-president is Mr. W. Vandusen, of Toronto Junction, a man of means, president of the Sun & Hastings Savings & Loan Company, director of the Grey & Bruce Cement Company, and of the Dominion Life Assurance Company.

One of the other two directors is Mr. Eugene Coste, Toronto, mining engineer, president of the Canadian Mining Institute, late chief engineer of the geological surveys of Canada, and probably the chief natural gas expert on the continent. The remaining director is Mr. Culverwell himself.

These men constitute a company that may be taken seriously—a thing which it is very necessary that the town shall know before it takes the

RUSSIANS MAKING PROTEST

Against the Action of the Japanese Destroyers

THE CHINESE GAVE WARNING

To the Japanese to Keep Their Hands Off—The Clash was Thrilling and the Ten Minutes' Battle Which Preceded the "Cutting Out" was of the Most Strenuous Character.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 13.—Russia has formally protested to Japan, through France, against the action of the Japanese torpedo boat destroyer Ryeshitelni torpedo boat destroyer Ryeshitelni at Che Foo and towing her away from that port, and that the protest has been communicated to the powers.

This prompt action is based upon the official report of the Russian Consul at Che Foo, which is very explicit on the subject of the dismantling of the Ryeshitelni, saying that not only were the breech blocks of her guns and all her small arms removed, but her engines were rendered useless. The vessel therefore was reduced to the condition of a hulk. The Consul also reported that the Japanese fired upon the Russian sailors while they were in the water, but that the majority of the crew survived. Capt. Shestakovsky was severely wounded.

It is stated here that both France and Germany are supporting at Pekin the protest of the Russian Government against the action of the Japanese torpedo boat destroyers in attacking the Russian torpedo boat destroyer Ryeshitelni in the port of Che Foo.

Chinese Tell the Story.

Interviews with Admiral Sah and Capt. Ching, who is in command of Saiyung, indicate that Admiral Sah informed the commander of the Japanese destroyer that the Ryeshitelni must be returned, as neutrality had been flagrantly violated.

Capt. Ching says that when the Japanese destroyers entered the harbor of Che Foo he sent an officer on board and assured Commander Fujimoto that the Ryeshitelni was disabled, and that his officers and crew had signed a parole. Later the admiral followed his messenger and personally repeated his information at length, whereupon Commander Fujimoto said he had no designs on the Ryeshitelni.

Capt. Shestakovsky, feeling insecure, requested that his ammunition and one torpedo be returned to him or a China cruiser prepare to guard him. To this the Chinese officer on the lightship replied that he had been ordered merely to report developments. Accordingly, Captain Shestakovsky assembled his crew and addressed them, saying that an attack was possible. All the men of the Ryeshitelni slept that night on deck with life preservers under their heads.

Prepared to Blow Up.

When the lieutenant from one of the Japanese destroyers boarded the Ryeshitelni, at 3.30 o'clock in the morning, the crew which brought him, with rifles in their hands and bayonets fixed, followed their officer. Captain Shestakovsky protested against this, saying: "I am unable to resist, but this is a breach of neutrality and courtesy." Capt. Shestakovsky then secretly commanded one of his lieutenants to prepare gunpowder with which to blow up the Russian destroyer. To gain the time necessary to make ready for this step, Capt. Shestakovsky argued the point of international law with the Japanese officer, whose reply to all the contentions of the Russian was: "Come to the open sea and fight, or prepare to be towed out."

In the meantime the command was issued quietly to the Russian soldiers to resist the Japanese with their fists in the manner which would be shown them by their captain.

Went Overboard Together.

Continuing his account of the occurrence, Capt. Shestakovsky said: "The Japanese officer told me to surrender and that as a prisoner my life would be spared. This insult so stung me that I struck the Japanese before I intended to. I was afraid that the explosive to blow up our vessel had not yet been prepared. My blow knocked the lieutenant overboard. In going he dragged me with him. I fell into the water. I clung to his throat and pummelled him until my hold was broken."

The crew of the Ryeshitelni meanwhile had been fighting with the Japanese sailors, who used their rifles and bayonets. The fighting men scurried over the deck and fell overboard in struggling pairs after the example accidentally set by the captain.

Shot Four Times.

Capt. Shestakovsky, seeing his men fighting on the deck of the destroyer, attempted to climb back on board and command them. He was shot at four times, and while in the water he received a deep wound in the right leg.

There were 51 officers and men on board the Ryeshitelni, and up to this hour (noon yesterday) 36 have been accounted for. A number of the Japanese attackers also are believed to have perished.

Being unable to regain the deck of his ship, Capt. Shestakovsky swam towards a nearby junk, from which he was driven away by blows from a boat hook. He remained in the water for 50 minutes swimming in spite of his wound, and was finally picked up by one of the three boats sent by the Haiyung.

The Japanese Version.

Che Foo, Aug. 13.—The Japanese claim that they sent in a gig to the Ryeshitelni under a flag of truce. A lieutenant and an interpreter made a demand that the Russians come outside and fight. The Russian captain replied that his ship had been disarmed, her engines disabled and that the whole matter was in the hands of the Chinese. The Japanese were asked to investigate the disarmament. The Japanese interpreter claims that he overheard the Russian captain give a hurried order in a low tone, the words not being distinguishable to the interpreter. Immediately following the Russian captain seized the Japanese lieutenant and jumped overboard with him. Meanwhile the Japanese destroyers had their searchlights turned on the Russian ship. From the deck of the lightship observers could see this act, which was followed by the shooting of rifles and more strokes and Russians jumping overboard.

The fighting had lasted ten minutes, when an explosion followed. The explosion blew away the main bridge but did not damage the hull. The Russians by this time were mostly all overboard. The Japanese at once hoisted their flag.

ADMIRAL TOGO REPORTS.

Russian Fleet Is Scattered—Japanese Casualties Number 170.

Tokio, Aug. 13.—Admiral Togo has reported as follows:

"On Aug. 10 our combined fleet attacked the enemy's fleet near Dagon Rock. The Russian vessels were emerging from Port Arthur trying to go south. We pursued the enemy to the eastward. Severe fighting lasted from 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon until sundown. Toward the close, the enemy's fire weakened remarkably. His formation became confused, and then his ships scattered. The Russian cruisers Askold and Novik and several torpedo boat destroyers fled to the southward. Other of the enemy's ships retreated separately towards Port Arthur.

"We pursued them, and it appears that we inflicted considerable damage. We found life buoys and other articles belonging to the Russian battleship Czarevitch floating at sea. The Czarevitch probably was sunk. We have received no reports from the torpedo boats and the torpedo boat destroyers, which were engaged in the attack of the ships of the enemy. The Russian vessels, with the exception of the Askold, the Novik, the Czarevitch and the cruiser Pallada appear to have returned to Port Arthur. Our damage was slight. Our fighting power has not been impaired."

The casualties in the Japanese navy numbered 170.

At Kiaochau Bay.

Che Foo, Aug. 13.—The report that two Russian cruisers and one torpedo boat destroyer had entered the port of Tsingtau, Kiaochau Bay, last night (Thursday) is confirmed. The cruisers are the Askold and the Diana, not the Novik, as previously reported. The German cruisers Fuerst Bismarck and Thetis are preparing to leave Che Foo for that port. Two Russian torpedo boats are said to have been captured on the Chinese coast. It is believed that the attempt of the Russian ships at Port Arthur to join the Vladivostok squadron has been thwarted.

SUPPRESSING REPORTS

Fresh from his attempt to suppress the report on the Treadgold graft, a high-minded proceeding for which he had to be disavowed by his colleagues, the Hon. R. W. Scott had the insolence to villify Lord Dundonald for withholding a report on Col. Ponton. Lord Dundonald was quite justified in declining to take any farther action in this disgraceful affair. No officer, civil or military, is bound to make himself a criminal by becoming an accomplice in illegal proceedings. Neither is any man in any position under any moral obligation to make himself a party to an act of cowardly tyranny. Furthermore, Lord Dundonald was lent to us by the Imperial service, and was appointed general commanding the Canadian Militia that he might perform the duties required by statute, among others that of maintaining the discipline of the force, not to act as a pump for the politicians. Col. Ponton had as much right to criticise the disbandment of the Canadian volunteers at Halifax, as Mr. Kemdry or Mr. Lang, and the Minister had no more right to bulldoze him than to resent any remarks from these gentlemen.

It was because Lord Dundonald would not submit to the degradation of doing dirty work of this character that the corrupt politicians at Ottawa determined to get rid of him, hoping to find the Otters and Pinaults more pliant.

Did Mr. Scott give his approval in Council to the dishonest suppression of Lord Dundonald's official report in order to calumniate the general by misrepresenting its contents while concealing from the House and the country the document that would expose the falsehood?

CHURCH AND STATE

The ex-reverend editor of the Toronto Globe has become terribly mixed in an article on "Church and State," and a discussion of the recent decision as to the funds of the Free Church of Scotland. In fact, he turns things topsy turvy. Speaking of the assumption of civil authority over the doctrinal and ecclesiastical rights of the church he says:—

"Such authority is admitted in the case of a State Church, like the Church of England or the Church of Scotland, for which no power of independent action in matters of creed or polity is claimed. But for the Free Churches it would seem to mean another struggle over the principle which was essential in the Disruption. If that be true, it is a struggle for life and liberty."

In the United Kingdom the State claims no such authority. But the so-called free churches generally hold their funds and real estate by trust deeds defining their doctrine, and the State on its judicial side enforces the observance of these trusts as it does of any other lawful bargain. That is its only concern with their doctrine or polity, which is thus stereotyped. The Church of England does not hold its property under such trust deeds, but as a body that was in existence before the Kingdom of England. It has certain powers of legislation and very considerable rights of administration and discipline. It makes no such admission of state control as the Globe asserts. The Reformation in England is too big a subject and too contentious for a newspaper article, but it is sufficient for our present purpose to point out that from the legal point of view the Church of England is the same body that it was previously, and any changes made were effected by itself. The Church of England has really greater power in such matters than the free churches. The same is true in a measure of Scotland.

The Toronto World defends against Col. Denison the mob rowdyism which caused a number of broken bones and narrowly escaped occasioning much loss of life. The World might be better employed.

The Globe believes that Col. Lake will be the new Chief-of-Staff, and thinks that in him we will have secured an officer possessing the highest qualification. What is the good of a highly qualified officer when he is only to act as a sort of orderly room clerk under Mr. Fisher and other Ministers responsible for their districts?

The Ottawa Citizen has an unfair attack upon the Laurier Administration for completing the hydraulic lift lock here. It invents unfounded reasons for belittling the Trent Waterway. The Government deserves credit for carrying on, though in a too leisurely manner, this great work commenced by their predecessors. In the debate in the House all who had seen the look and visited these waters were united in approval regardless of party. The Citizen should not allow itself to be blinded by party prejudice.

Great distress is felt by the Ottawa Free Press because the people of the capital were cool and even boorish in their reception of the Governor-General, and this is contrasted with their ovation to Lord Dundonald. Lord Minto was going to the Parliament buildings to be the mouthpiece of his Ministers, even to the length of glorifying their successful raid on the public purse. This being the case, the unpopularity of his Ministers overshadows him in a measure. The people were cool not to Lord Minto, but to the figure head of the Governor-General-in-Council.

Dye to any Color

Test the Kidneys

Allow urine to stand in a glass vessel for twenty-four hours and if at the end of that it is clouded or has left a sediment in the bottom of the vessel you may be sure that your kidneys are diseased. New Military Feature

As a regular feature of the programme before the Grand Stand, both afternoon and evening, at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, August 29th to September 10th will be presented an Artillery Musical Drive. For the first time outside of England this exhibition will be furnished by the famous Black Watch Band, the musical feature of this year's exhibition and which visits Canada for this event by the gracious permission of His Majesty King Edward VII and the Commanding Officers of the 42nd Royal Highlanders.

Take the Case of Niagara Falls

What is the attraction? It is one of the scenic wonders of the world, famed for three hundred years. Yet there are thousands of Canadians who have never viewed the Falls and this magnificent wonder, at their doors, almost. If the point is raised that it costs more than a dollar or two to go there, that point is easily settled by the reminder that by taking advantage of the Civic Holida excursion of the Canadian Order of Foresters from Peterborough that expense is held down as lo was it ever will be held. Consider for a moment, only $2.20 from Peterborough to Niagara Falls and return. Tickets good for three days, returning by any regular train up to and including August 20. You go by special G.T.R. train the morning of Civic Holiday at 6.20 o'clock, and take the steamer in Toronto right at the wharf. If you merely wish to spend the day in Toronto then the fare is $2.05, tickets good for two days. Money spent in seeing Niagara Falls is money well laid out. There is something to remember and talk about as long as one lives. Get a folder and learn full particulars. Tickets for sale by members of the committee, at the G.T.R. up town ticket office, W. Buntin, and at the train the morning of Civic Holiday.

Brevities.

—Cement walks are now an assured fact in Lakefield. A few weeks ago the council called for tenders for the building of granolithic walks, the tenders being opened last week. Four tenders were received, ranging from 15 cents to 16 1-6 cents, which the council considered too high. At a special meeting the members decided that the walks would be put down by the village by day labor, and on Monday work was commenced on the walk on the west side of the bridge. Mr. E. R. Blackwell is the engineer in charge and Mr. S. Kennedy of Peterborough is foreman.

—A couple of Lindsay men are making good money raising sunken logs out of the river, above and below the town. The other day they disposed of a bunch of logs to Mr. J. Carrow for $300, and since then one man operating above the town has realized $80 from two days' work. The news revives the old tradition about the sinking of a big raft of oak logs in the vicinity of Pleasant Point about fifty years ago, and in search of which Mr. F. K. Begbie, Superintendent of the Waterworks, engaged in several diving expeditions.—Lindsay Post.

—On Monday morning last Fred Hogg met with a serious accident at the Dinkum Co's saw mill. He was working on the log rollway in the mill and was engaged in rolling a log with a cant-hook. In order to roll the log more effectively he placed his left foot on top of it, when he slipped and fell, his weight going on his right leg, with the result that the large bone was broken about two inches above the ankle. Dr. Robt. Fraser was summoned and the injury attended to. It will be some time before Mr. Hogg has the use of his leg.—Lakefield Herald.

BETTER THAN A VICTORY

Czar Says He Can Now Face the Future Calmly.

Believes the Birth of His Son Is a "Sign That the War Will Be Brought to a Happy Conclusion"—Greatest Rejoicing Consequent on the Coming of An Heir—Mother and Boy Progressing Satisfactorily.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 13.—(4 a.m.)—This morning the Empress and the heir to the throne are both making satisfactory progress.

An Imperial manifesto invites all Russian subjects to offer their prayers for the prosperity of the heir to the throne. In receiving congratulations yesterday, the Emperor in a brief reply said:

"I am happier at the birth of a son and heir than at a victory of my troops, for now I face the future calmly and without alarm, knowing by this sign that the war will be brought to a happy conclusion."

HEIR TO RUSSIAN THRONE.

Boy of Sunshine Pierces the Gloom of Peterhof.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 13.—A son and heir to the Russian throne has been born. The Empress and the child are doing well. The birth occurred at 12.30 p.m. yesterday. The child will be christened Alexis.

The birth so greatly wished for, that of an heir to the Russian crown, occurred in the Alexandra Villa, one of a group of four small palaces in a secluded corner of the magnificent Peterhof Park. In one of these buildings the Empress has been living for weeks. The other three are occupied by members of the Imperial family, gathered there in expectation of yesterday's event.

The birth of the heir to the throne was attended by all the ceremonial ordained by Imperial tradition. In accordance with the Russian law there were present, besides the Emperor, Baron Frederick, the master of the ceremonies, and Prince Dolgorouky, the grand marshal of the court, Dr. Rott, the Emperor's family physician, was the accoucheur, and Dr. Hiruch was the surgeon in attendance.

Dr. Rott personally announced the birth of the heir to the awaiting Imperial family. A formal announcement will be published in The Official Messenger. An Imperial salute of 101 guns was subsequently fired, first from Peterhof, and it was then repeated by all the forts around St. Petersburg.

The christening of the heir will occur in a fortnight. It will be a ceremony of the most elaborate sort. In accordance with Russian Imperial custom it will be performed in the Imperial chapel of the Peterhof Palace.

May Mean a Constitution.

Berlin, Aug. 13.—The Kleine Journal says it expects that the birth of an heir to the Russian throne will be followed in a few days by the proclamation of a constitution, claiming to have been informed that Emperor Nicholas vowed he would give a constitution to Russia if the Empress gave birth to a son.

NOT A PERMANENT STAY.

Britain to Vacate Lhassa, But to Demand Respectful Treatment.

London, Aug. 13.—In the House of Commons yesterday, during the discussion of the India budget, Indian Secretary Brodrick, replying to criticisms of the Thibet expedition, said he was unable to say when it would return.

It was the intention to vacate Lhassa immediately after terms had been arranged. The Government did not propose a permanent occupation, but it must insist on the authorities at Lhassa giving assurances that Great Britain's name would be treated with proper respect.

The Secretary added that Russia had been fully advised and agreed with Great Britain's plans.

Unique Gathering in Toronto.

Toronto, Aug. 13.—About 1,500 people attended the formal public welcome of the Friends' General Conference, held for the first time in Canada, at Massey Hall last night. Dr. Janney of Baltimore, occupied the chair. Addresses of welcome for the city by Mr. S. Alfred Jones, Acting-Mayor, and Hon. G. W. Ross for the Province and Canada, were both fine efforts in this direction, and were as unique in this respect as the visitors from the South and from England. The feature of the evening was an address on "The Friend and His Message" by Principal Graham of Dalton Hall, Manchester, England, who prefaced his set address with the remark that he could not avoid replying to the words of the Premier. No word brought the heart to the throat and the moisture to the eyes of Englishmen like a reference to their countrymen overseas, who helped to preserve that Britannic peace under which to-day dwelt one-fourth of the human race. The sessions continue three times daily until Thursday night of next week.

Tartarin Protests.

Tangier, Aug. 13.—Haimet Jalya, principal secretary to Mr. Mansfield, the Moroccan Minister of War, has been arrested and imprisoned here and his goods confiscated under the orders of the Sultan. Jalya is a British subject, and the European residents are indignant at his arrest. The British Legation has strongly protested to the Moroccan Government, but so far the protest has been entirely ignored.

LATE THOMAS B. TATE

Some Interesting History of the Life of a Gentleman well Known Here

Referring to the account of the death of Mr. Thos. B. Tate, C.E., Mr. R. F. Tate, his nephew, has written to the Toronto News to correct the statement that his uncle constructed the St. Lawrence and Lake Huron Railway. These gentlemen were well known in Peterborough. In 1857 Mr. Thos. B. Tate and John W. Tate together made the survey of the Grand Junction Railway from Belleville to "Hog Bay," on Georgian Bay, now called "Victoria Harbor," having been so re-named by him after her late Majesty the Queen. At the time of the latter's decease he was chief engineer of the then Port Hope, Lindsay and Beaverton Railway, now a portion of the Grand Trunk Railway system, and also made examinations and reports on many of the older sections of the railways of Canada. Mr. Thomas B. Tate, just deceased, was associated with his brother on some of these projects, but in the early 50's accepted the position of City Engineer of Ogdensburg, N.Y., which he held continuously almost up to the time of his death—a most unique occurrence, and probably the longest occupancy of such a position on record, and during which time he laid out the larger portion of St. Lawrence County, N.Y.

FAKED PRESS DESPATCHES

The Government Pays for them and its Agents Supply them.

Mr. Fielding says that the Government has no voice in th emanagement of the Canadian Associated Press, and no control over what it does, and that upon the whole he considers its despatches fairly interesting. The Minister of Finance underestimates the influence of the Government in the management of the institution. In fact, Mr. Fielding himself could put a stop to the sending of false despatches by the Canadian Associated Press inside of an hour if he wished to do so. The Government grants a subsidy without which the service could not be maintained, and the Government can withdraw the subsidy. We are under the impression that if the despatches were systematically falsified in the interests of the Opposition the Government would speedily find a means of displacing the management. The despatches may be, as Mr. Fielding puts it, "fairly interesting."—that is a matter of taste. The complaint made against them is that they are not fairly, or even approximately true; that they are, to use a vulgar expression, "faked" in the interests of the Dominion Government.—Montreal Star.

Rounds Out the Form.

Persons who have become pale, weak and thin by overwork, worry or disease, find that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is wonderfully effective in forming new blood, restoring a healthful glow to the complexion and rounding out the form. You will soon feel the benefit of this restorative treatment and can prove it by noting your increase in weight.

Fashions Vagaries in Warm Weather Fabrics Seen Here and There — What is in Vogue This Season.

In Woman's Realm
Summer Styles

Interesting Paragraphs Mainly About Women and Her Sphere in the Home as seen through Eyes Feminine.

FOR WARM WEATHER.

Picturesque Muslin Frocks—Panama Hats With Lace Veils.

Some of the muslin frocks are quaint revivals of old fashioned styles. They are made up very simply with full plaited skirts, shemisettes and yokes of embroidered lawn or muslin. With these are worn large flower trimmed hats. Vivid violets, odd blues and mauves are much to the fore.

A great deal of panama is being used for summer hats. The crowns of some of these are high and square, while others are tall and conical, with rather severe brims. The chief trimming is a wreath of roses and foliage, with a lace or chiffon veil hanging down.

Taffeta suits are being worn. These are made with jacket and skirt, and they are worn with soft blouses of net or lace. The favorite colors are tan and red.

Green is the most up to date shade this season.

The plaited skirt precedes all others, and this is used for silk as well as for serge. These skirts all barely escape the ground, and they are much fuller than the skirts worn last year.

The picture shows a veiling gown trimmed with yellow applique lace. Notice particularly the fashionable fichu effect. JUDIC CHOLLET.

IN WOMAN'S REALM.

Heavy Linens Are Fashionable—Peculiarity of Browns and Tans.

Heavy linens will be the fashion for walking costumes. A smart gown seen recently was of the linen canvas, trimmed with lace and having a short Eton coat with a deep shoulder cape, while the vest was of white and gold.

In Paris brown is a great deal worn and will be so during the summer. It is combined with coral pink, shading into flame color.

Changeable taffetas promise to be worn this summer both for shirt waists and for taffeta made suits. There is a new shade of ecru, verging on the yellow, but this is only becoming to the woman with pink cheeks and a clear complexion.

Primrose pink and violets combine well on the fashionable hat. They are worn with the shaded taffetas and shaded chiffons which are now all the vogue.

All the new gowns are made with gaugings, flouncings and ruchings, and a good many of them are unlined.

Quaint picturesque fichus of taffeta silk edged with ruchings of silk and lace medallions are decidedly effective. For later wear they will be superseded by thin muslin or chiffon, lined with delicately toned silk and trimmed with puffs of lace.

A simple bridesmaid's dress was of white brocade, with a Louis Seize design in pale pink and blue (the touch of color being most effective), draped with flowers and festoons of lace, the pointed bodice terminating between two draped panniers in the watteau style.

The illustration shows a tan veiling gown over brown silk, trimmed with darker velvet. JUDIC CHOLLET.

WHAT TO WEAR.

Costumes For Horseback Riding and Automobiling—Street Gowns.

A very dark shade of gray whipcord is the smart thing for horseback riding at present.

Gray and drab are also the favorite tints for automobile wear, for they show the dust least. Pongee and linen make admirable dust coats, particularly when relieved by a touch of red. The automobile cap to match generally has a curtain at the back.

The round walking length has been so generally adopted for street wear that costumes for the country do not differ materially from those intended for town wear. These ankle length skirts are now entirely made of the thinnest materials, such as veiling, pongees and embroidered linens. Mohair also plays an important part in the season's tailor modes, both for the dressier costumes and those intended for rough wear.

The loose swinging jacket is the favorite mode, as it is even more generally becoming than the blouse.

Among the season's novelties are suits of black heavy mesh linen embroidered in white.

One of the modifications of the Napoleon hat has four sections turning upward, giving a hollow at the back a little to the right.

Bolero effects are here to stay and are to be seen on every hand. The new bolero, however, is very wide and quite without any attempt at being fitted. Quite often there is no visible shoulder seam, shoulder and seam being in one, after the fashion of a cape.

The picture shows a pongee gown trimmed with ecru applique worked in red. The hat is of ecru straw trimmed with cherries. JUDIC CHOLLET.

THE STORY OF LIFE.

Making the best of life is getting the best health you can out of it—good digestion is the key. What you eat may or may not do you good. It depends upon how it is handled by the digestive apparatus of the stomach—If it is deranged, the blood, instead of taking new life and strength to the various organs of the body, takes poison which clogs the kidneys, irritates the nerves, distresses the heart, causing headache, sleeplessness, worry, dull feeling, backache, rheumatism, neuralgia—makes the complexion sallow—causes biliousness and constipation. The great, new discovery ANTI-PILL has a marvellous influence in correcting a crippled or rebellious stomach, and the results that follow—ANTI-PILL is the most perfect help to have when you feel wrong, out of sorts, sick or getting sick. It brightens you up—makes you feel better. 50 cents per bottle at druggists or Wilson-Fyfe Co., Niagara Falls, Ont.

KATE WALLER BARRETT.

The Superintendent of the Florence Crittenden Missions.

Mrs. Kate Waller Barrett of Washington, vice president of the Women's National Council of the United States, is known on two continents through her labors as general superintendent of the Florence Crittenden missions, established nearly twenty years ago by a wealthy citizen of New York in memory of a daughter. As the wife of the dean of St. Luke's cathedral in Atlanta, Ga., Mrs. Barrett was revered and loved for her philanthropic work and in order better to minister to the sick and needy she took a college course and degree in medicine. She is a woman of fine intellect and remarkable executive ability, and after her husband's death, a number of years ago, the founder felt that in her he had found the one woman of all the world fitted in every respect to assume charge of the Crittenden missions for unfortunate women. These now number sixty-six in this and other countries and care annually for about 4,000 girls, finding permanent homes for them and extending continued protection. The national headquarters and training school for those who are placed in charge of these missions are in Washington, under Mrs. Barrett's direct supervision. She has studied methods of rescue work in most of the European capitals and in Japan, China and Mexico, and she frequently visits the missions throughout the United States and Canada, making personal inspection of their work. Mrs. Barrett was a delegate at large and secretary of the woman's board of the Atlanta exposition in 1895, was sent abroad to represent its interests and was also a representative of philanthropic work at the Paris exposition in 1900. She founded a medical college and training school for nurses in the south and inaugurated and built a home for women, where an average of fifty women and children are constantly cared for. She is a strong writer and eloquent speaker.—Independent.

MRS. KATE WALLER BARRETT.

Punctual Housekeepers.

We hear and we read and we talk about the business woman, meaning the woman who is employed downtown.

Every woman who is responsible for the home and household duties is or should be quite as much of a business woman as her office sister.

A few business principles applied to the management of the home would change many homes from chaos to paradise.

Punctuality is one of the first principles of a business man. It should be one of the first principles of the housekeeper.

How many women regularly practise punctuality?

How many make a business of having breakfast on time?

How many are sure that luncheon is placed before the children promptly? A child's favorite excuse for afternoon tardiness at school is, "Mother didn't have lunch on time."

Punctuality in the home is more important than punctuality in business, for the housekeeper is responsible for the habits of the children of the home, and the formation of character is more important than the management of any branch of business.

False Lovers.

He is a callous individual who after breaking a girl's heart will congratulate himself upon having got out of his engagement. He is the type of the false lover, for he will promptly go and make love to some other girl. He is always in love with some one in his own short lived fashion. Believing himself to be truly in love, he sets about making the girl return his affection, and after much wooing she may give him the love of her life. Once engaged the false lover gives up much of his love making, and his weak affection dies completely out. He has not intended to be hard hearted. It is only that he does not feel so keen upon marrying as he did. He begins to picture some other ideal, and before long things have come to such a pass that he feels he must jilt the girl he has asked to marry him, must throw her over and be free again. Hard it may be for the girl, but if she only could see it in the right light how thankful she should be that she has escaped. For a heartless husband is far, far worse than the inconstant lover.—McCall's Magazine.

Proper Adjusting of Hosiery.

Annoyance from premature tearing of hosiery may be avoided to a degree by a little precaution in adjusting it to the foot. The following cautions will prove helpful:

Move the stocking upward on the foot by holding between the soft parts of the hands. Never use the ends of the fingers, as the nails are liable to cut the threads of the delicate weaves now so popular. Turn the hose inside out, properly adjust to the foot and then bring the upper portion in place by slowly drawing up with the soft parts of the hands. Never catch by the extreme top and pull. Hose supporters should be attached to the double portion or hem of the stocking, as the buttons will invariably break the single weave. Supporters should be shortened until they just reach the hem of the stocking. In warm weather a slight sprinkling of talcum powder will both cool the foot and facilitate adjusting the hose.

A Music Roll.

For the girl student in music a roll in which to carry selections is almost a necessity. An inexpensive one may be made of dress lining, using two sixteen inch square pieces quilted with straight rows of machine stitching. One end is rounded for the flap and the edges are bound with brown braid. A strap one inch wide and twelve inches long is made of linen and braid stitched together and finished with a buckle. The strap is fastened on the center of the outside. A handle is made like the strap and is stitched on about three inches of the edges, near the rounded end of the roll. If the linen is stretched and pressed thoroughly to make it stiff the roll will wear as well as a leather one.—Woman's Home Companion.

Nurses and Matrimony.

The latest report of the royal national pension fund for nurses of England practically states that there is no other work for women which so surely gets them married as nursing. This fact is not hard to understand. Nurses are often literally angels of mercy, gliding into the sickroom, gently but firmly dispelling awkward helpers and quieting the patient by their very calmness. While a nurse's personality does count for something with the patient, still many of those little qualities which appeal to him so strongly are as mechanical as a rule in mathematics.

Pianos and Plants.

A growing plant should be kept in the room with a piano, says a piano tuner. As long as the plant thrives the piano will. The reason that a piano is injured by a dry, overheated room is that all the moisture is taken out of the sounding board. The board is forced into the case so tightly that it bulges up in the center and, though the wood is supposed to be as dry as possible when this is done, it contains some moisture and gathers more on damp days. When this moisture is dried out the board flattens and finally cracks.

The Real Reason.

A chief reason why so many of the very best women, who would make the best mothers, remain unmarried is because there are not enough good and worthy men to provide them husbands. The fact is that there are two good, pure, high minded women to one such man. Many such women do not meet the man worthy of them who can seek them in marriage, and they will not marry a man whom they cannot respect. They do right. The only remedy for this evil is the cultivation of nobler men.—Independent.

One Girl's Comfort.

A New Orleans girl spends her days in pajamas. The moment her father has left the house she divests herself of her skirts and dons her pajamas and sandals, to spend the remainder of the day till dinner time in these easy going garments. She says no woman who persists in wearing her skirts has the remotest notion how "comfy" it is to practice, read, take a nap and do a girl's little chores free from the bother of them.

Ice Cream and Pepper.

A prominent physician once advised peppering ice cream with cayenne when eating it after a hearty meal. The cream, he said, was so cold it was apt to retard digestion, sometimes with serious results, but the cayenne taken with it warmed the stomach, and unpleasant results were averted. There is no taste whatever of the cayenne, the coldness of the cream preventing any peppery taste.

WE'RE A NATION OF DYSPEPTICS

Our Stomachs Need Rest and Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Will Give Them the Rest They Need.

Medical men declare that nine out of every ten have stomach trouble of some kind or other, that quick lunches, half-chewed food, excitement etc., are all doing their share towards making us a nation of dyspeptics. They claim that our stomachs need rest.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets give tired stomachs rest by doing their work for them. That's why they cure indigestion. Dyspepsia and all other stomach ills. Edward Brennan, of Bruce Mines, Ont., says:

"For upwards of ten years I was a severe sufferer from Dyspepsia. I doctored almost continually and used almost everything I could hear of, but never got any permanent relief until I used Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

"I have taken two boxes of them and words cannot express the great good they have done me. I am now feeling like a new man.

Constipation

Fruit is nature's laxative. Plenty of fruit will prevent Constipation, but won't cure it. Why? Because the laxative principles of fruit are held in peculiar combination and are very mild.

After years of labor, an Ottawa physician accidently discovered the secret process by which

Fruit-a-tives or Fruit Liver Tablets

are made. He used fruit juices, but by combining them in a peculiar way, their action on the liver, kidneys, stomach and skin is increased many times.

BIRTH.

MATTHEWS.—At Peterborough, on August 13th, to Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Matthews, a son.

Posters are now out for the Peterborough Lodge of Oddfellows' Round Trip through the Kawartha Lakes going by Lakefield and home by Lindsay on Civic Holiday. You have only to ask those who were there last year to be convinced of the fact that this trip is gaining in popularity every year. DROWNING IN CLEAR LAKE

Miss Lizzie Bickell, of Lakefield, Lost Her Life—Was One of a Party of Four—The Three Survivers had a Very Narrow Escape —Timely Arrival of Mr. R. B. Rogers and His Son Harry.

News which cast a gloom over the town came from Stoney Lake last evening—the drowning of Miss Lizzie Bickell, daughter of Mr. G. A. Bickell of Lakefield in Clear Lake about half past six o'clock. The details of the very sad occurrance were learned this morning from Mr. R. B. Rogers, who, with his son Harry, went to the rescue of the party of which Miss Bickell was one, the others being Miss Eva Hathaway of Young's Point, Ernest Boldson, and Roy Kidd of Lakefield.

Mr. Rogers states that he happened to be at his cottage on Clear Lake last night, and about 6.30 his attention was directed to a canoe containing four people, which was being paddled in the direction of Young's Point. Hardly had he noticed the craft before he observed that it was in difficulty—it had swamped and the four occupants were struggling in the water. Hurrying to a punt hauled up on the shore, the oars had been all taken away by the children at the cottage—Mr. Rogers and his son rowed as hurriedly as possible to the scene. The distance was about three quarters of a mile. There were two young men in the party, and they were struggling hard to keep up the ladies. All were evidently at the point of exhaustion and had gone down twice. The canoe was full of water and right side up, and in their brave efforts to save the girls, the young men undoubtedly found it impossible to turn the boat over, and thus use it to assist them in keeping afloat.

The rescuers succeeding in getting all four into the punt, and immediately set about the work of resuscitation upon arriving on shore. For three quarters of an hour everything possible was done to revive Miss Bickell, but the spark of life had fled. The others were very far gone, but after some minutes showed signs of reviving. Had the rescuers been fifteen seconds later in arriving, the other three would almost undoubtedly have likewise lost their lives, as they were quite exhausted and the strength of the young men must have given out.

The girls had gone up from Young's Point in the morning to visit a camp on Hunter's Island near Hurricane Point. It was here that the young men were spending an outing, and in the evening with four in an ordinary canoe, they started to paddle back to Young's Point, a distance of about two miles. It is said that Clear Lake was very choppy, and the canoe was undoubtedly overloaded. This undoubtedly accounts for its very sudden swamping.

The Steamer Empire conveyed the body of Miss Bickell and the survivers to Lakefield last night. It was indeed a very sad mission. Not only the people of Lakefield but of the surrounding country will sympathize with those who have been so sadly and suddenly bereaved. Miss Bickell had many friends in Peterborough and her death will by them be deeply lamented. She was nineteen years and seven months old, the eldest daughter of Mr. G. A. Bickell, of Lakefield.

Mr. R. B. Rogers speaks in the highest terms of the two young men in endeavoring to keep the girls above water, and states that their efforts were such as to be most praiseworthy.

This is the second drowning that has occurred this summer in this district, the other occurring some few weeks ago, when Mr. Ives, of Toronto, Junction lost his life. Had it not been for the prompt action and hence the very timely arrival of Mr. Rogers and his son Harry, four lives would have perished last night.

The funeral of the late Miss Bickell will take place on Monday afternoon at three o'clock from the family residence Smith street, Lakefield, to Lakefield Cemetery.

Drunk Fined and a Wages Case Settled.

At the Police Court this morning a young man named John Pogue was fined $1 and costs, amounting in all to $ 5.5 for being drunk and disorderly.

In a wages case, the plaintiff was given judgment for the amount, $4.75 and the costs $2.60.

OBITUARY

Death of Mrs. Henry Taylor this Morning.

The very sad death occurred early this morning of Minnie Martin, wife of Mr. Henry Taylor, at Nicholls Hospital. Deceased had been about four weeks, and was taken to the hospital a few days ago suffering from typhoid fever, from which she never recovered. Deceased was only 29 years of age, and leaves one child to mourn her demise, besides a sorrowing husband.

The funeral will take place from her late residence, 28 Albert-st., on Monday afternoon, at three o'clock, and proceed to the Little Lake cemetery for interment.

ALEXANDER DUFFUS DEAD

Born in Otonabee Sixty-one Years Ago.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat contains reference to the death of Alexander Duffus, who died in that city on August 5th, 1904. The late Alexander Duffus was 66 years of age and was born in the Township of Otonabee, where he has a brother, James Duffus. He left there when quite young, and it is 34 years since his last visit to Peterborough. Other brothers are Rev. Father Duffuam, of Kingston; John, of Rochester, and Mrs. James Woods, of Washington, is a sister. The late Alexander Duffus was a veteran of the American war.

Eight Hours at Bobcaygeon

To Bobcaygeon by rail is a new trip. Take it in on the Civic Holiday, going by special C. P. R. train from the Peterborough station at 7.20 a.m. The new line runs through the garden of the Midland district, and passes Lindsay and along the beautiful Sturgeon Lake. Nearly eight hours at Bobcaygeon to see the famous village, enjoy some fishing and see the buffaloes at Mr. Boyd's island. Returning, leave Bobcaygeon at 6 p.m. Watch for posters giving full particulars. This trip will give you the most for your money of any of the day.... Tickets 75c adults, 40c children, to be had at Nugents' and Ormond & Walsh's drug stores, and from committee.—1d.

DIED.

DUFFUS.—At St. Louis, Mo., 1904, Alexander Duffus, aged 66 years, brother of Rev. Father Duffus, of Kingston; James, of Peterborough, Ont., John, of Rochester, N.Y., and Mrs. James Woods, of Washington. Interment August 7th.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

EXTENSIVE BUYING TRIP

MADE BY MR. A. W. CRESSMAN AND HIS ASSOCIATES.

Visited the Large Manufacturing Centres of the Old Country and also France and Germany.

After an absence of some eight weeks on a buying trip to the Old Country and the Continent, Mr. A. W. Cressman is again in command of affairs at his store—"the store that never disappoints." The trip across the Atlantic was made on the White Star liner Cymric, sailing from New York. Mr. Cressman and his associates purchased a very large quantity of goods, and it will be of interest in this connection to state that he is one of eight proprietors of stores similar to that of which he is here the head, so that it can readily be seen that the quantity and quality of the purchase would be of the highest order and also very extensive.

The large manufacturing centres, Belfast, Glasgow, Manchester, Leeds, Bradford and Leicester, were visited and as a result the purchasing public may expect to have presented for their approval goods that have all the merit of Mr. Cressman's personal selection and hence are very choice. Of course the trip included also London, Berlin and Paris, in each of which he spent a week, and all of the time, save two days, was devoted to business. Mr. Cressman states that he was somewhat surprised, on the continent particularly, at the opinion which large business men have of Canada, the fact being that they recognize in this country one of the best markets for their goods. It was Mr. Cressman's first visit to France and Germany, and hence the buying trip was of all the greater interest. Canada, he says, is a country that is written large in the opinion of manufacturers both in the Old Country and on the continent and all eyes are turned in this direction.

Discussing the amount of goods purchased Mr. Cressman states that it is three times as large as any made on previous visits, and that this means expansion of business here. Purchases were made entirely from the manufacturers, and not from the wholesalers. The advantage in this is of course the saving of the middleman's profit, which will undoubtedly be shared to an appreciable degree by the retailers' customers. Not only is there this advantage in direct purchase, but there is also that of personal selection, and this is a feature not to be overlooked by the consumer. Some very interesting announcements will assuredly be made from "the store that never disappoints," on this the advent of a new season.

GREAT LACROSSE MATCH

Those who go to Orillia on Civic Holiday with St. Peter's Court Catholic Order of Foresters will be able to see the semi-final Intermediate C.L.A Lacrosse Match between Orillia and Bradford. This match will alone be well worth the trip. Excursion tickets $1.15 and 60c. Good to return next day. On sale at Lane & Kane's Furniture Store and from members of committee.

THE PERSONAL COLUMN

Mr. and Mrs. R. Hicks are visiting in Orillia.

Miss Dolly Comstock is visiting friends in Millbrook.

Miss Mabel Bentley is down from Stony Lake to-day.

Mr. J. Forman has returned from a week's vacation at Rice Lake.

Miss Franks of St. Catharines is the guest of Mrs. H. P. Kennedy.

Mr. E. H. D Hall left for Detroit this morning on business.

Mrs. Gillis of Toronto is the guest o Mrs. Dawson Kennedy, Water st.

Mr. John Corkery of the post office leaves this evening upon a holiday trip to Boston.

Miss Effie McWhinnie came down from the lakes to-day for a day or two in town.

Mr. Enos Maybee left on Thursday for Montreal, where he has secured a position.

Mr. Dickson Hall is expected home from his trip to the Old Country on Monday.

Miss Lillie Derry leaves on Monday for Toronto to attend the fall millinery openings.

Miss Margaret Duggan left this morning for Guelph, where she will be the guest of friends.

Miss Maud Halpin left this morning for Buckhorn and the back lakes for a few weeks' holidays.

Miss Mina Ross of Barrie has accepted a good position on the Peterborough public school staff.

Miss Henderson of Montreal, who is connected with the Deaconess' Home in Toronto, is the guest of Mrs. Dawson Kennedy.

Mrs. A. F. Saunders of Toronto, who called here on the death of her mother, Mrs. W. A. Kindred, left for her home in Toronto to-day.

Miss Victoria Patte, who has been the guest of Miss Ella Ray the past week, left this morning for Oshawa and Toronto before returning to her home in Brantford.

The engagement is announced of Miss Louise Sullivan, and Dr. F. P. McNulty, both of Peterborough. It is arranged to have the wedding take place in September.—Globe.

Mr. E. A. Frowde will sing, "O Eyes that are Weary," by Beckett, at the evening service at the George-st. church to-morrow, and will also take the solo in the antham, "Now the Day is Over."

Mr. Robt. Malowan who has been in the employ of the C. G. E. Company for some time past, left to-day for Kingston, where he will enter Queen's University when the fall term begins.

Mr. H. D. Kennedy, who for the past few weeks has been conducting services at Aultsville, Ont., is spending a week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dawson Kennedy, before leaving on a trip to California.

The engagement is announced of Miss Annie Arnold Brace, only daughter of the Rev. A. H. and Mrs. Brace, Baptist Parsonage, Park-st., Peterborough, to Mr. Arthur J. Black, of Chatham. The marriage is to take place on September 21st.—Globe.

The holiday trip to Peterborough had a special interest for Miss Kate Humphreys and Mr. T. Alex. MacDonald, says the Barrie Examiner. While in Peterborough they visited Rev. Mr. Hyde a Presbyterian clergyman and he performed the ceremony which made them man and wife. Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald returned to Barrie on Tuesday night and are now receiving the congratulations of their friends.

MANY ADVANTAGES HERE

AND THE BIG HASTINGS TANNERY MAY SETTLE HERE.

Such a Thing Has Been Seriously Considered and Peterborough May Soon Have a New Industry.

Things appear to be shaping well in the village of Hastings for the addition to Peterborough's industrial hive of the large tannery, which for about a score of years has been very successfully operated there by John Welsh & Sons. Communication with Mr. Welsh reveals that removal hither has been seriously considered, and that he is awaiting developments in a proposition from a gentleman who was a successful tanner in the West, who takes an interest in the concern. Should all negotiations terminate favorably the change will undoubtedly be made.

Mr. Welsh says there would be many advantages in moving to Peterborough, the shipping facilities being the greatest. It is an interesting fact that the tannery in Hastings consumes about 500 cords of tamarack tan bark each year, and that the greater part of this comes from the district north of and quite adjacent to Peterborough. The tannery also uses large quantities of lime, and much water is necessary in the different processes through which the hides are passed. It is a fact also that some 10,000 hides and sheep skins are sent from Peterborough to the Hastings concern every year, so that it can readily be seen that location here would be particularly advantageous. The concern at present employs about 60 hands, but on its removal here would enlarge to such an extent as to employ one hundred hands or over.

Mr. Welsh states that he will be in Peterborough next week on business, and that he expects by that time to have made definite decision. There seems to be a great opening here for such an industry.

DRILL ON TUESDAY

Both Bands Will also Parade—A Good Turnout Wanted.

Orders by Lieut.-Col. J. W. Miller, C.O. of the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers:

The regiment will parade with both bands, in drill order, on Tuesday night next, at eight o'clock, at the drill shed.

By order.

Adjutant.

A NOVEL IDEA

Lift-Lock Being Painted in Water Color by New York Artist.

A fine painting is being made of the lift lock by a New York artist in the window of Grafton & Co's store, and which attracts great attention of the passers by. We had no idea that there was such power in a bucket of water, which seems to be the main medium in which the artist works. Of course we know there is a great power in water, as that is the lifting power of the lock. The picture, when completed, will be exhibited in the different stores of the Grafton Company.

Concert and Entertainment.

Remember the I.O.F. concert and and entertainment in the Brock st. rink, Wednesday evening, August 17th. Addresses by prominent members of the Order including Barton Cumberland, S. S. Secy, and Thos. Millman, M.D., S.P., and John Herald, M.D., A.C.R. Music by the 57th Regt band, and vocal selections. Chair will be taken by Bro. A. W. Fraser, K.C., P.H.C.R., of Eastern Ontario. Admission free. All invited. Big time expected.

MOST ENJOYABLE OUTING

By the Peter Hamilton Employees to Jubilee Yesterday.

The employees' excursion of the Peter Hamilton Mfg. Co. took place yesterday by S.r. City of Peterborough to Jubilee Point, and it proved to be the most successful ever held by that concern. The men, accompanied by their wives and families, and sweethearts, boarded the boat at 9 o'clock and Jubilee Point was reached about 11 o'clock. The day was a good one for an excursion as the weather was perfect, and everyone seemed to gather the picnic spirit, and spent the day very joyously. After dinner the following races were run off:

Girls' race, under 8 years — Miss E. Elliott, Miss .P Brisbane, Miss A. Carr.

Boys' race, under 8 years — H. Hatcher, R. Armstrong, J. Adlum.

Girls' race, 8 to 12 years—Miss Murray, Miss Booth, Miss Coltman.

Boys' race, 8 to 12 years—G. Gray, F. Hatcher, F. Barrie.

Girls' race, 12 to 16 years — Miss J. Gillespie, Miss L. Rome, Miss M. Fair.

Boys' race, 12 to 16 years—N. Barrie, V. Lawin, A. Armstrong.

Married women's race—Mrs. Fredenberg, Mrs. Fair, Mrs. Adlum.

The winners of the different events were presented with prizes after the races.

A baseball game was also played between the machinists and the moulders and resulted in a victory for the former by the score of 17-9. It was very interesting and the crowd was about evenly divided in supporting the teams. Mr. W. Menzies made a most impartial umpire. Following were the teams:

Machinists—G. Crow b, S. Plummer p, R. Fair 1b, F. Leplante 2b, G. Logan 3b, A. Armstrong ss, G. Worboy lf, S. Thomas cf, B. Fair rf.

Moulders—T. Andrews c, W. Law p, W. Mowry 1b, R. Eastland 2b, T. Starr 3b, T. Connors ss, F. Rosie lf, J. Hatcher cf, C. Theabold rf.

A football game between the O. C. W. and the moulders proved very exciting, and resulted in a win for the O.C.W. by 2-0.

A start was made for home about 5 o'clock and the wharf was reached about 8 o'clock. The committee in charge of the excursion are to be congratulated on the good success of the outing. Following was the committee: Messrs. T. Distin, chairman; J. Hatcher, R. Fair, C. McBrien, J. Law, and Fred Leplante. The committee were also materially assisted by Mr. Miles Hamilton, to whom a great portion of the success of the picnic is due.

MR. M. H. QUINLAN DELEGATE

To the 24th Annual Convention of the C.M.B.A.

Mr. M. H. Quinlan will represent the local branch of the C.M.B.A. at the 24th triennial meeting of the Association which opens in Toronto on the 24th of this month. This will perhaps be the most important meeting of the association since it separated itself from the American Association in 1880. For some time past there has been a clamoring among the members for a general house-cleaning. While other fraternal organizations have been adopting up-to-date methods and working for an increase in membership the C.M.B.A. has been going on in the old way paying its policies by the call system. One of the proposed amendments to the constitution is the addition of sick and funeral benefits. There is very little doubt that they will be added. A second proposal is to introduce a regular system of assessments as in the other fraternal societies. At present special calls are made to meet the circumstances that arise. These calls are in addition to the regular assessments. If the proposed amendment carries there will be only six assessment for fixed amounts. The age grading of the assessments in all likelihood will be rearranged. The chartered accountant to audit the accounts, the matter of admitting women to the association, and a thorough overhauling of the organization department are also contemplated. There will be over 400 delegates from all parts of the Dominion, one from each branch of the association at the convention.

ANSWER TO JUSTICE

To the Editor of The Review.

Dear Sir,—Kindly allow me a little of your valuable space to correct some of the foolish criticisms of your correspondent "Justice" in last Monday's issue. The name signed is really a misnomer, being written by one who forgets that he should not bear false witness against his neighbour and apparently with malice aforethought, when he refers to the steamer as being in places rotten, so much so that it would not hold the pipe railing stanchions, for does he think the inspector, Mr. Davis, would have passed her as all right and seaworthy, and granted a certificate, if in the condition he alleges. Then he speaks of the deck as being a pleasant place to go on. It does not follow that it is a proper place for passengers—their places are inside the enclosed portions of the boat and the crews are often annoyed beyond endurance by just such persons as our wise friend Justice, who, when they board a train or boat, think they own it, and no amount of warning will dispel the illusion. If they are spoken to they get offended and vow they will never again travel with such an ungentlemanly crew. Now as to the jury's verdict being criticised by "Justice." The gentlemen who composed that jury need no defence from any source, as they were chosen from among our best and most intelligent citizens, and in opening the case the coroner stated that the inquest was being held not only to inquire into the death of the young lady, and see if there was any negligence or other cause for the accident, but to see also if the law governing those boats and crews was not lax or defective, and if found so, to make a recommendation to have the law amended, which was done. Now, I find that on the night of the inquest about a dozen witnesses, out of about thirty, were summoned, which would be quite as many as could be examined the first night. The others would be summoned when wanted. If an adjournment took place to some subsequent evening, but all that were present were not called. First, came Messrs. Davis and Donnelly, the government officers; then three young girls who had been on the deck of the boat at the time of the accident in company with deceased, whose evidence did not coincide in some phases of the affair; then three or four gentlemen took the stand, some of whom could give very material evidence. The crown offered no more evidence and Mr. Reid gave his statement in regard to the railing being in place leaving the wharf, and also that he heard the captain warn passengers off that part of the boat, as also did the mate. Had the jury adjourned to meet again other witnesses would have been called to substantiate Reid's testimony regarding the warnings of the crew, but evidently the jury thought the Crown had failed to make a case with their own witnesses, consequently no benefit would accrue to anyone by adjourning to meet again to hear further testimony. Hence the jury retired and reached a verdict such as would be expected from an intelligent lot of men, sworn to give a verdict according to the evidence.

Now it appears to me that no good purpose can be obtained by such men as your friend "Justice" keeping this sad affair paraded through the press, for it in no way will be likely to help to heal the broken hearts of the parents and friends of deceased, who have the sympathy of the entire community in their bereavement.

Thanking you for your space, yours truly,

OBSERVER.

For the Housekeeper.

Executive ability and originality are the two assets of successful hospitality, and the limitation of the purse need not keep one from the attainment of this purpose, says Eleanor Maudsley in the September Delineator, and in proof thereof gives a number of original plans that will guarantee the maximum of entertainment at the minimum of expense. A unique popcorn party, a house picnic, supper or luncheon served in true outdoor style and a peach fete are some of the suggestions. In the same number are given recommends for a garden party, and among the culinary topics are various recipes for "cosplant and oyster-plant," and for sweet sandwiches and frozen deserts.

CHANGES IN MILLINERY

SALVATION ARMY WOMEN WILL ADOPT NEW STYLES.

New Hats, New Bonnets, New Gowns Will take the Place of those Long the Vogue.

There is something new in millinery which will appear in no shop window nor be mentioned in any fashion notes. It is among the first changes in many years for those who will wear it, and it is expected it will extend into as many more. This novelty is not confined to one hat, but will be reproduced in very many thousands, for those who wear it are the women of the Salvation Army in Canada.

From the first there has always been associated a navy blue dress and a dark poke bonnet with these busy women, but henceforth in the warm weather they may be seen in a costume better adapted to the conditions of our climate in summer. The new hat is a modification of the sailor, with a slight droop back and front, is of a deep straw color, and has for its simple decoration tastefully arranged folds of Pongee silk. The scarlet band of the Army, with its gold of white initials, lies across this. If one were using ordinary fashionable terms both the hat and the dress which accompanies it would be said to be of a champagne color, but we are quite sure the Salvation Army lass gives it no such frivolous name, and anyway, the color was used long before its present name was invented.

A LIGHT COLORED GOWN.

The sensible gown which goes with this hat, and which is somewhat of an innovation here, though it has been worn for some time on the other side of the water, is of a linen color and is simply made. It has a plain skirt and short sack coat buttoned downthe full length, a plain little turndown collar at the neck, for the rank of the wearer will be indicated by the number of stars or the color of the crest on the collar, instead of on the epaulet, as formerly.

The familier type of bonnet worn by the Salvation Army has also been recently modified somewhat by a change, a slight shortening just at the ears, which might not be noticeable to unaccustomed eyes. These bonnets are of the finest black straw, are trimmed with the best blue ribbon, and the cost of them is $6.50. This seems at first sight rather costly, but only at first sight, for it must be remembered that this bonnet is worn winter and summer, for all times and all occasions, and a careful matron is frequently known to wear her's for six or seven years. It does not take much calculation to find the average cost per year for head covering at that rate. Besides that, there is no useless worry and thought wasted on what to get, when to get it, and how to have it trimmed. A cheaper bonnet may be had for $4.50. Should the evidence of wear become too marked ribbon can always be freshened up and replaced in a way known to women, and the cost of redecking is only 40c.

For those who prefer the hat there is the regulation shape in black, similar to the light hat, for $1.75, and for the worker in the slums of the big cities there is a still plainer little round hat, on which is the plain red hat band, the only sign of their work, for the Salvation Army lass in the slums dresses as much as possible like the people she is among.

HEADGEAR IMPORTED.

Both hats and bonnets are imported from Luton, England, where the Army has its own factory in the big straw centre of the straw hat industry. Toronto is the distributing centre for these goods for the whole of Canada, even the Eastern Maritime Provinces ordering through the headquarters here, although the goods are delivered direct. There is a millinery salesman who is well versed in all the qualities and in the slight changes that have recently taken place in the well established shape.

In Japan the Army worker wears her kimona and goes without a hat, as the women of the lower class do in the Flowery Land. In India she wears a chudda drawn gracefully over head and shoulders, and so on in other countries.

And at the last, the very last, when all that remains here of the busy worker is to be laid in the dust, above her is placed the Salvation Army flag, her Bible, and the bonnet with the familiar red band that for so many years has been her constant companion.

Piles It never fails to cure. Dr. Chase's Ointment has never failed in a single case, no matter how long standing. Every form of Piles yields to its soothing, healing influence. BAD BOILER EXPLOSION

Demolished Western Wing of Kinleith Paper Mills.

In a Few Minutes Only a Heap of Ruins Making Out of the Old Welland Canal at St. Catharines Was All That Remained to Mark the Spot—Narrow Escape of Four Men—Two Were Hurt.

St. Catharines, Aug. 13.—About 6.30 last evening, just after the members of the night gang had got well started to work, the two immense boilers in the Kinleith Paper Mills situated on the old Welland Canal in the western part of the city, suddenly blew up. The boilers were used for boiling rags into pulp.

The explosion entirely demolished the western wing of the mills, in which the boilers were situated, three storeys in height, scattering bricks and timber in all directions. A few minutes later there was only a heap of ruins sticking out of the canal to mark the spot.

Escape Miraculous.

How the four men who were working in the vicinity of the boiler escaped with their lives is a question unanswerable. They were working right under the arch leading from the main building to the wing which was demolished. The men were Edward Hudson, William Sneath, Hugh Doherty and John Lawrence.

Hudson and Sneath were nearest to the boilers, and while Hudson was struck on the head by falling pieces of board and got some bad cuts, Sneath was only scratched a little. Doherty and Lawrence were untouched. The men were blinded by the escaping steam. Doherty had just changed his clothes beside the boilers, and he had left his pay envelope, containing two weeks' pay, in his pocket. He lost everything.

Boilers Ran Dry.

The explosion was probably caused by the boilers running dry. The loss to the paper mills will be heavy, though the amount is not yet known.

After members of the Kinleith Company had taken a look over the ruins, they concluded that the force of the explosion had damaged the main building also, but to what extent they were unable to say. It is probable that one boiler in exploding knocked the other one out into the canal.

Boilers Have Disappeared.

There is no trace of either boiler anywhere. The rag boilers which are wrecked were of only twenty-five or thirty pounds capacity and were fed with steam from other boilers in another part of the mills altogether, which were of about 125 pounds capacity. The explosion was probably caused by the regulator on the boilers failing to work properly.

What Might Have Been.

Had the explosion occurred a few minutes sooner, fifteen or twenty men would undoubtedly have been blown to pieces, as most of the night shift were in the wing where the boilers are, changing their clothes, just shortly before, having just come to work.

There is a large hole knocked in the rear of the main building facing the canal, which is unaccounted for.

RUNAWAY FREIGHT TRAIN.

Buried in Pulp Wood—Station Is Smashed —Track Plowed Up.

Quebec, Aug. 13.—A runaway freight train on the Quebec and Lake St. John Railway early yesterday morning, ended in a disastrous wreck at Hedleyville, on the north side of the River St. Charles, half a mile from Quebec. The loss to the company is estimated at $40,000.

A lumber freight train, consisting of an engine, thirty heavily loaded box cars, and the conductor's van run away at Lorette, nine miles from this city.

The engineer realized the condition of things, whistled down brakes. This was accordingly done, but it was of no avail.

On nearing Hedleyville the engineer and fireman realized that if they remained at their posts it meant certain death, and finally jumped. They were followed by the brakeman, who sprung from the roof of the box cars to the ground. The engineer, named Boucher, was afterwards picked up with one of his legs fractured and otherwise badly injured. The fireman escaped, as also did the brakeman.

The runaway train kept on its career until it reached within two hundred feet of the Hedleyville station, when the engine struck the switch connection and forced the rails apart, and then the big locomotive commenced to plough its way through the ties and earth. The tender broke its couplings and moved off the track. It was followed by the freight cars, which ploughed their way into the station. The premises were overturned and smashed into kindling wood. Twenty-six cars piled up on top of one another, making matchwood of the cars and scattering pulpwood in every direction. The pile of wrecked cars was fully twenty-five to thirty feet high.

Girl's Body Found.

Toronto, Aug. 13.—While the inquest on the Coatsworth Cut infant was in progress last night at the morgue, the patrol wagon drove up with another body. It was found floating in the bay at the foot of Bay street by P. S. Irving, and P. C. Dynes. It was identified as that of Isabella Snow. The deceased was 18 years of age, and lived with her parents at 204 Elizabeth street. The young woman has not been in good health, and was subject to fits.

Girl's Sweet Kiss Last.

Ottawa, Aug. 13.—William Lloyd, aged 21, was drowned in the Gatineau River, near this city, yesterday afternoon. He was out boating with two young ladies, when their craft upset. Lloyd succeeded in placing his companions on the overturned boat, from which perilous position they were rescued with difficulty. He, however, was swept down to death over the rapids.

Killed By His Own Auto.

Winnipeg, Aug. 13.—W. F. Laing, resident engineer of the Canadian Pacific, was instantly killed at Killarney, while riding a motor car. He attempted to kick a piece of dirt off the rail, when he fell under the wheels of the rapidly moving machine.

Fall Was Fatal.

Hamilton, Aug. 13.—Pat Landers, who fell out of a window in the Bricklayers' and Masons Hall Thursday night, died last night about 11 o'clock. His neck was broken, but he lived 24 hours after he fell.

Fears For Canoeing Party.

New York, Aug. 13.—Fears are entertained that the wife and son of William Wood, New York manager of the United States Life Insurance Company, who have been canoeing on the Canadian lakes, have been lost. In two 16-foot canoes, with an Indian in each, Mrs. Wood, her son, Irving C. Wood, 21; Percy Blimsordwald of Pittsburg and Hugh Debett of Erie, the three latter being Princeton students, embarked three weeks ago on Muskoka Lake. It was agreed that the party should telegraph its whereabouts every day, but eleven days have now elapsed without any word having reached Mr. Wood. When last heard from the party were in Parry Sound.

OUR INVESTIGATORS ABROAD.

Ontario Railway Commissioners Have Reached the Quebec City.

Philadelphia, Aug. 13.—How to equalize taxes on railroads is the question which the Commission of the Ontario Government has been investigating in this country for a month, spending yesterday in Philadelphia. H. J. Pettypiece, chairman of the Commission, stated that Canada was getting no taxes at all out of a great deal of railroad property. Their tax was simply based on the same value as the land through which the roads run.

They have been interviewing railroad commissioners in nearly all the United States and find many systems. Michigan taxes on the whole value of the railroad property; Connecticut takes one per cent. of the capital; Minnesota takes three per cent. of gross earnings; Pennsylvania combines three systems, but the average of all the States amounts to $154 a mile on 200,000 miles of railroad. In Canada it is about $50. In Massachusetts it is $1,100 a mile.

The Commissioners are meeting railroad tax experts as well as state officials wherever they go. They will next go to Baltimore, then to Washington, to Albany and home. The scope of their investigation takes in telegraph, telephone, express and like business.

Patrol Makes a Haul.

Port Stanley, Aug. 13.—The Dominion cruiser Petrel, Capt. Dunn, arrived here last evening with 120 gill nets, which Capt. Dunn found set in Canadian waters off Long Point. Very few fish were in them. The nets will be confiscated and sold.

Brantford's Collector Dead.

Brantford, Aug. 13.—E. H. Simon, collector of Inland Revenue, passed away yesterday morning. He has been ill for some months.

Little Girl Had Eczema

Which Defied All Treatment Until Dr. Chase's Ointment Was Used and Cured Her.

Many children suffer from scald head and eczema who could be cured if their parents only knew about Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mr. C. Wiley, who is employed as cooper by the Kennedy & Davis Milling Company, Lindsay, Ont., states: "I used Dr. Chase's Ointment for eczema on my little girl some few years ago, and soon brought about a thorough and permanent cure. She suffered for considerable time, and although we tried a great many remedies, Dr. Chase's Ointment was the only preparation to prove effective. I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Chase's Ointment, as it certainly effected a prompt and permanent cure in this case."

Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Company, Toronto. To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

Brevities.

The Lindsay Watchman-Warder says: The following Fenelon Falls parties on board the steamer Kawartha, called at Lindsay the other day on their way to the Lower Lakes for a two weeks' outing under canvas: J. Minnes, S. E. Pearce, L. McKillen, H. Littlestan, M. Quigg, B. J. Moore, C. Daymon, B. Burgess, G. Calder, J. Powers, Geo. Quibell, cook, Collie dog, mascot. They intend going over the lift lock to Peterborough.

Miss Florence Ramsden of Port Colborne, Ont., is the guest of her brother, Mr. Leslie Ramsden, at Mrs. Kelly's, 377 Stewart st.

When your Child Suffers

For lack of knowledge of the value of Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for eczema, many a mother has been worn out in the effort to relieve her child of suffering. Eczema, scald head and other forms of itching skin disease are common to children, especially during the teething period. Though readily cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment, eczema, if neglected, becomes chronic and may last for years.

Elder-Dempster Liable.

London, Aug. 13.—(C.A.P.)—Justice Walton's judgment in the C. P. R.-Elder-Dempster case is that the latter pay £2,500 at once, and costs. The Elder-Dempster Company also are liable for the balance of the C. P.R. claim, subject to the scrutiny of the Master-in-Chambers, who will fix each amount after examining the ticket orders.

Mr. Dymont Around Again.

Ottawa, Aug. 13.—A. E. Dymont, M.P., was out yesterday, after being for five weeks in St. Luke's Hospital. The member for Algoma was on his way to Gore Bay to address a meeting on July 12, when he caught a severe cold, which utterly prostrated him.

Wm. Taggart's Kidney Disease Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Well-known Tilbury East Farmer Tells the Tilbury News How Easily He Got Rid of His Trouble.

Tilbury, Ont., Aug. 12 (Special) — Mr. Wm. Taggart, a well known and highly esteemed farmer of Tilbury East, tells of his remarkable cure of long standing Kidney Disease by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"For about four or five years," says Mr. Taggart, "I was a sufferer from Kidney Trouble, and the scores of medicines I used gave me no relief. I was forced to get up three or four times every night and my life was simply miserable.

"At last I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills and I got relief from the first. After using two boxes I was completely cured and you can bet I was a happy man. I cannot speak too highly of Dodd's Kidney Pills."

All urinary complaints are caused by Diseased Kidneys. Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure the Kidneys and therefore always cure urinary complaints.

—Yesterday provided a notable event for Bobcaygeon. For the first time since its foundation the town boasted of an excursion by rail. A downfall of rain did what it could to mar the glory of the occasion, but succeeded to a small degree only. About 500 filled the special of eight coaches at 7.30 a.m., over the new C.P.R. line to Burketon, and thence to Toronto. The excursion was nominally that of the Sylvester Mfg. Co., of Bobcaygeon, though the firm employed only a small portion of the crowd. Arrangements had been made with the Niagara boats for an extension of the trip to the Falls, and the major part of the Bobcaygeonites went on there.

NEWS OF THE CHURCHES.

Services to be Held in the Different Churches on Sunday.

PARK ST. BAPTIST.

The sixteenth anniversary of the Sunday School to-morrow, combined with Flower Sunday and the presentation by the School of a thousand bricks to commence building. Sermons suitable to the occasion by the Rev. A. H. Brace. Morning subject, "Nature's luxuriance." Evening — "The church's problem." Afternoon a programme by the children with recitations, etc., addresses by the Rev. J. Trotter and the pastor.

There will be a very unique display of flowers. Each person is asked to bring a bouquet morning and afternoon. The children are full of enthusiasm and the teachers are sparing no pains to make it a day of joy.

BETHANY TABERNACLE.

In the absence of Pastor Steurnagel. Pastor Zimmerman of Toronto will have charge of the services for the day. Everybody is cordially invited.

ST. PAUL'S.

Rev. G. Yule will preach at 11 a.m. and Rev. J. A. Wilson at 7 p.m. Sabbath school and Bible class at 10 a.m. during the summer. Lesson for to-morrow, "Obadiah and Elijah."—I Kings; 1-16.

ST. PAUL'S MISSION.

Morning service will be conducted by Rev. J. A. Wilson, and the evening service by the Rev. G. Yule. Sabbath school at 3 p.m. as usual.

SALVATION ARMY.

A series of special services will be held in the S.A. barracks to-night, all day to-morrow and Monday night, conducted by Brigadier Turner, of Montreal, and Brigadier Howell, of Toronto. The service to-night will take the form of a welcome meeting, and at 11, 3 and 7 to-morrow the addresses will be of special interest. On Monday evening at 8 o'clock Brigadier Turner will conduct a Hallelujah wedding. All are heartily invited.

ST. LUKES', ASHBURNHAM.

Rev. Fred Sawyers, M.A., will officiate at St. Luke's to-morrow in the absence of the rector, who is to preach at Stony Lake. There will be no holy communion at 8 o'clock.

CHARLOTTE-ST.

At the Charlotte st. church on Sunday morning the subject will be, "Hope as an anchor," and in the evening, "A great question answered." Everyone cordially invited. Mr. R. B. Beavis will preach.

HANDSOME MEMORIAL STONE

Placed over Grave of Rev. Father McCloskey.

The Campbellford Despatch of Aug. 11th, has the following:—

The first anniversary of the death of Father McCloskey, the late lamented pastor of St. Mary's church was duly observed by the celebration of a solemn Requiem Mass by the Rev. Father Whibbs, P.P. A large congregation attended, and included Mrs. McCloskey, Miss McCloskey and Mr. Frank McCloskey, of Chestervill, the mother, sister and brother, respectively of the deceased.

The relatives have placed a handsome memorial stone at the head of the grave. It was manufactured by Coughlin Bros., Peterborough, and is a tablet shaped monument of a new and very appropriate design. The central block contains the following inscription:—"In memory of Rev. M. J. McCloskey, who died August 10th 1903 in the nineteenth year of his priesthood and the 47th year of his age. He was pastor of Campbellford parish for eight years. R.I.P." On the upper part is carved a chalice and on the opposite, shamrocks. The monument is of granite and is from the Canadian quarries at Ithorville, Quebec. It is cut and polished and shows to advantage the beauty of the granite in three states; in the rough, after the hammer, and the finished polish. It is enclosed by railings with granite corner posts. There is also a marble tablet for the interior of the church wall, of a very neat design with about the same inscription.

DUNDONALD'S GRAND-DAD

Successful Conspiracy by Corrupt Politicians and Money Grabbers of these Days.

The London (England) News gives the following parallel case:—"The reprimanding of Lord Dundonald has occurred, it may be noted, just upon ninety years after the final step was taken in the much more serious disgrace of his grandfather (then Lord Cochrane), who had been sent to prison, besides being expelled from parliament and the navy, on a charge of guilty knowledge of frauds on the Stock exchange. On August 12, 1814, Bath King of Arms, acting on an official mandate, tore down Lord Cochrane's arms from a knight's stall in Henry VII's chapel, Westminster Abbey, and hished his banner, in accordance with old custom, along the floor and out of the chapel precincts. The innocence of Lord Cochrane was afterwards established, and one of the worst blots on the record of English law was tardily effaced.

CURRENT ITEMS OF PASSING INTEREST

TRENT CANAL NAVIGATION.

Indications are that a freight business of no mean proportions will develope upon the stretch of canal that has been opened up by the completion and operation of the lift lock. Already there has passed to and fro a number of well ladened scows which, had it not been for the opening up of the stretches, would have had this service performed by the railways. Curtis Bros. yesterday shipped from their brick yards, situated on the Warsaw road, a large scow load of building material, consigned to a customer on a Rice Lake port. Fortunately, the yards are situated near the canal, and it is only a short haul from the place of manufacture to the point of shipment. The service which the canal has performed for this firm will, of course, be adopted by others along its course, and in a short time it is fair to assume that the canal will present a busy scene. This is not a brisk season of the year, but in those months in which the farmers do much hauling, and when the mills are looking for produce of the farm, and are busy shipping there will undoubtedly be a great increase in traffic.

DID NOT LIKE THE JOB.

They were playing at band, and in the middle of a rehearsal a serious problem confronted them—they had no bandmaster. All wanted to play—none envied the position of "Mr. Gliddon." One of the youngsters had an axe-belve, from which he was trying to coax some music in imitation of the style exhibited by the flute section of the 57th, another had a tin box, which had once been full of biscuits, but now served the purpose of a drum, and that very successfully, as far as music was concerned. The little girl of the party was blowing the head from an India rubber doll, by way of its feet, and making a fairly successful contribution to the show, while the quartette was completed by a young man, in possession of a broom stick, who was doing the drum-major stunt to perfection. There was nothing half way about the noise they were creating, and a young man who was trying to sleep in the back room of a George-st. residence immediately above the back yard, felt that it was useless to attempt to smash up the combination—he worked at night. But there suddenly came lull, and the voice of the drum-major was heard proclaiming, "Billybillybustered, who wants to be Mister Gliddon?" Nobody spoke, and afterwards a repetition of the proceedings was quite as fruitful. A consultation of the male section was held, and it was the decision of the party that the girl must be Mr. Gliddon. She was told what glory there was in the position, but she didn't see it. She, of course, must not play on the rubber doll; but she wouldn't think of the sacrifice. She turned up her nose, made a face at the drum-major and announced her resignation. She would play no longer at band. That settled it; the band was busted and the man rolled over and was soon snoring.

BETTER FIRE PROTECTION.

There seems to be no difference of opinion with regard to the advisability of the action taken by the Town Council looking to the erection and equipment of a new fire hall and the the installation of a new alarm system. The fire record of the past few years seems to have emphasized the necessity for improvement — not that the best possible service has not been made of appliances at present in use, but that the growth of the town points to conditions which demand a change. The town is widening out on every side, it is taking on city appearances, and must be well prepared for emergencies. One improvement mentioned—the proposed new alarm system—is very timely, and the sooner it is installed the better, as the present system is certainly out of date, and does not give the greatest degree of satisfaction. With the change proposed will also come a better insurance rate and this will be welcomed by property holders. It would seem that the proposal to expend $25,000 will be well received.

BASEBALL.

The game on Monday afternoon between the Examiner and Review teams at the park promises to be very exciting. The Review team has been re-organized and the players will be picked from the following: Wilson, Hubbs, Robinson, Mowry, Jones, Lewis, Moore, Barringer, Canniff, Pearson, Dobbie, Smith and Dawe. The Examiner has sent a telegram to Jelliffe to return for the game, but Hutchinson has offered to twirl in his stead if he does not return. Mr. J. Lynch has kindly consented to act in the capacity of umpire.

Galt Reformer: The leaders of the Canadian League can show their heels to most minor league teams. Lindsay, the strongest Eastern Ontario team, came here yesterday on the C. M. B. A. excursion and in the match in the afternoon in Dickson park were easily trimmed by a score of 15-6. McLaughlin, the much boasted left hander, started in to twirl for Lindsay, but he was pounded all over the lot and was jerked out of the box in the fourth. The Lindsay team were completely outclassed. Their field work was ragged. On the other hand, the locals put up a clean game. Tab Johnson's throwing from third was a feature. Saunders pitched seven innings and Flaherty finished up. Only six hits were made off Saunders and none off Flaherty. In the first innings Flaherty pitched he struck out the side.

Lindsay Post: Probably "the less said the better," about yesterday's game at Galt. Lindsay sent a makeshift team, without first and second baseman. They picked up two players at Toronto, but the Galt boys fell upon the locals with a thud. Score 15-6. Flaherty only pitched two innings. Lindsay hit well in the first, getting five runs, but the umpire, according to reports, was away out. "Curly" was replaced in the 4th innings by Cinnamon, Teddy Miller catching, Marks playing third, Menzies shortstop and "Curly" in the field. Cinnamon held them down good, only allowing four runs to come in. Menzies made a sensational catch.

Galt Reporter: The rules of hospitality had to be swept aside Thursday afternoon when the Lindsay baseball team in the presence of a huge bunch of their supporters were defeated at Dickson Park, but, in the language of the small boy, it had to be did. It was an exhibition game, and Lindsay furnished the exhibition, the worst that has been seen on the local diamond this year. The visitors' outfield was very bad and McLaughlin, the much vaunted southpaw from the east, was knocked out of the box in the third innings when 11 runs had been scored. Saunders pitched seven innings for the locals and was quite capable of finishing the game but the management put Flaherty in for the last two innings. Saunders after the bowls of the first innings was very effective and not only succeeded in keeping batters guessing but played a remarkable fielding game as well. One feature of the game was the work of Johnson on third base. His throwing was worth the price of admission. The Galts were all on their mettle, however, and gave a good exhibition of how baseball ought to be played.

The T.A.S. and the Y.M.C.A. are playing a City League game this afternoon.

The Examiner will play the following nine in the game with the Review on Monday afternoon at Jubilee:—Jelliffe, p.; Hutchinson c.; Paxman, 1st b.; Dorcester, 2b.; Gilman, s.s. Glover 3rd b.; Shearrard, l.f.; Long, centre; Graham, r.f.

LACROSSE.

On Tuesday evening at 6.30, says the Millbrook and Cameron Mirror, an exhibition game of lacrosse was played between the third T.A.S. of Peterborough and the juniors of Millbrook, resulting in a tie, the score being 2-2. The game was fast and clean throughout, and considering that the same twelve from Peterborough defeated Barrie by a score of 10 to 0, it speaks very well for our junior twelve to be able to even up with the fast bunch from our sister town. For juniors there was some hard checking on both sides, but no one was hurt and both teams enjoyed the game very much. The T.A.S. are all splendid stick handlers and if they hang together for a few years they will be able to put it all over the first T.A.S. and the juniors here are slated ,and well they might be, at having evened up with their opponents, as they only organized last week and had but two short practices.

A great game may be looked forward to on Wednesday evening next when Havelock and the T.A.S. come together in the final game for the Trent Valley League championship. Both these teams have won their respective districts without a single defeat on either side, so that this game will be well worth going to see. Havelock has a husky bunch this year including Jack Main of the old Peterboroughs, Maguire of Belleville, O'Sullivan from Campbellford, and Muldoon of last year's T.A.S. team, and will no doubt make the local team go the limit to win out. Everybody should witness this game as it will be a good one and also the last league game of the season. Tickets can be had at J. Lynch's drug store and W. O'Brien's cigar store.

In semi-final junior C.L.A. game at Guelph yesterday, Elora defeated the home team by 9—4.

The Capitals, of Ottawa, are in rather peculiar circumstances. Twelve of their men have been suspended by the N.A.L.U., but they intend to finish the schedule with other men, if necessary. The manager has written the president of the N.A.L.U., and made a fair proposition, but it will not likely be accepted. It is quite probable that the Caps will be seen in C.L.A. company next year.

Poor old Lindsay! They journeyed to Galt yesterday with bright prospects, in fact, they couldn't see how they were going to lose, but they did, and were trimmed by the large score of 15—6. They had their best team on, but they soon realized that they were not in the same class. Flaherty, their old rival, was in the box for Galt, and they could not hit him at all. The World has the following to say about the game:—

"The chief event of the afternoon was a baseball match, between Galt, the leaders of the Canadian League, and Lindsay, the leaders of the Midland League. The home team put it all over the visitors, winning by 15 ot 6. McLaughlin, the southpaw, was knocked out of the box after the third innings, when 11 runs had been scored on him. The Lindsay field was lamentably weak.

Score by innings. R.H.E.
Lindsay... ... ...5.0.0.0.0.0.1.0.0—6 6 9
Galt... ... ...4.1.0.0.2.1.0.2.0*—15 15 4

There will be something doing at Orillia on Civic Holiday, when the T.A.S. baseball team bump up against the nine of that place. Excursionists to the town on that day may be assured of a good exhibition game.

The final championship lacrosse match in the Trent Valley League will be played on Wednesday evening, August 17th, on the Murray street school grounds. Game called at 8 p.m. sharp. A great game may be looked for as each of the contesting teams won its district without a loss. They are the finest in the league and the match will be well worth seeing.

BENSFORT.

Campers and pleasure seekers, now at the different resorts on the river and lake, indicate the holiday season of the towns and cities.

Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Thompson, a few weeks ago celebrated the twentieth anniversary of their wedding.

Amongst those present for the evening other than relatives, were Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Morrison, and Mr. and Mrs. John Finnie.

Bensfort we understand is to be favored with the looked for daily mail. Recent improvements in that line provide for the distribution of daily mail here, and also at the new Post Office Lorneo, which will be situated about the middle of our township. When these are in operation we shall have four places in South Monaghan for daily delivery of mail. Mr. J. Andrews will be our Postmaster.

The pioneer whistle of the season was sounded on Thursday 4th instant, when Mr. D. U. Dodds had a separator threshing the wheat grown on west half of lot 15, in the middle concession. As the lot is not conveniently accommodated with buildings, the work had real semblance of Northwestern methods. The season's threshing so far shows a fair yield in wheat, but quality and bulk or rather weight, are both somewhat under last year's.

RUSSIAN CRUISERS DISABLED

One of Vladivostock Squadron Sunk and Two Damaged.

THE JAPS AGAIN SUCCESSFUL

Particulars of Battle With the Port Arthur Fleet--Battleship Attacked by Torpedo Boats--Slight Damages to Japanese.

Tokio, Aug. 15.—Vice-Admiral Kamimura encountered the Russian Vladivostock squadron at dawn yesterday north of Tsu Island in the Strait of Corea, and attacked the enemy at once.

The battle lasted for five hours and resulted in a complete Japanese victory.

The Russian cruiser Rurik was sunk and the cruisers Rossia and Gromoboi fled to the northward after having sustained serious damage.

Vice-Admiral Kamimura cables the Navy Department that the injuries inflicted upon his vessels were slight.

The fate of the crew of the Rurik is not known. It is presumed that many of them were killed or drowned.

The strength of the fleet under Vice-Admiral Kamimura is not known, but it is presumed that he had the Asumi, Idzumo, Iwate, Takashiho and other light cruisers.

Tokio is joyous over the news, as it gives Japan mastery of the sea and restores commerce.

REPORT OF THE BIG BATTLE.

Russians Tried to Gain Passage, But Mines Were in the Way.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 15.—Viceroy Alexieff, in a despatch to the Emperor, gives the following report from Captain Matouzevitch, the late Rear-Admiral Witthoft's chief of staff, under date of Aug 12:

"At dawn of Aug. 10 our Port Arthur squadron began to make for the open sea and emerged from the port at 9 o'clock. The squadron consisted of six battleships, the cruisers Askold, Diana, Pallada and Novik, and eight torpedo floats.

"The Japanese opposed us with the following force: A first detachment consisting of the battleships Asahi, Mikasa, Fuji, Yashima and Shikishima and the cruiser Nisshin and Kasuga, a second detachment consisting of the cruisers Yakumo, Kasagi, Chitose and Takasago, and a third detachment consisting of the cruisers Akitsushima, Idsumo, Matsushima, Itsukushima and Hashidate and the battleship Chin Yen, with about thirty torpedo boats.

"Our squadron manoeuvred to gain gain a passage through the line of the enemy's ships. Meantime the Japanese torpedo boats were laying floating mines in the way of our squadron, thus rendering evolutions very difficult.

Fought For Hours Without Advantage.

"At 1 p.m. our squadron, after forty minutes' fighting, succeeded in effecting a passage and shaped its course toward Shantung. The enemy following at full speed, caught up with us slowly and at 5 o'clock fighting again began and continued for some hours without either side obtaining any advantage.

"In the battle the commander of our squadron was killed and the captain of the battleship Czarevitch was wounded and lost consciousness. Almost at the same time the engines and steering gear of the Czarevitch were damaged and she was obliged to stop for forty minutes. This forced the other ships to manoeuvre around her. The command of the squadron devolved upon Rear-Admiral Prince Ouktomsky and the command of the Czarevitch upon the second in command.

Pursued By Torpedo Boats.

"After night fall the Czarevitch, being unable to follow the squadron and losing sight of it, took a southerly direction in order to attempt to reach Vladivostock under her own steam. She was attacked by torpedo boats during the night and at dawn was in the vicinity of Shantung.

"The officer commanding the squadron, having examined and determined the extent of the damage to the Czarevitch, concluded that she could not make Vladivostock and allowed her captain to proceed to Kiaochou for repairs.

"Those killed included Rear-Admiral Witthoft, Navigating Flag Lieutenant Azarieff and Navigating Lieutenant Draguishevitch. Those slightly wounded included myself and eight others. A number of sailors were killed or wounded, but just how many has not yet been ascertained.

"I arrived at Kiaochou at nine o'clock in the evening and found there the cruiser Novik and the torpedo boat Bezshumi.

"I am happy to bear witness to Your Majesty to the unexampled bravery of the officers and men during the desperate encounter."

Matouzevitch Dead.

Che Foo, Aug. 15.—Captain Matouzevitch, the late Rear-Admiral Witthoft's chief of staff, who was wounded during the Japanese attack on the battleship Czarevitch, is dead.

The Japanese Losses.

Tokio, Aug. 15.—The following are the casualties sustained by the Japanese in the action of Aug. 10:

"On board the battleship Mikasa, Admiral Togo's flagship, there were four officers and twenty-nine men killed; six officers and twenty-nine men severely wounded and four officers and twenty-nine men slightly wounded, while the armored cruiser Yakumo had one officer and eleven men killed and ten wounded, on board the armored cruiser Nisshin seven officers and nine men were killed and two officers and fifteen men were wounded. Ten men were wounded on the armored cruiser Kasuga. On the torpedo boat destroyer Asagiri two men were killed.

"On board torpedo boat No. 38 one man was killed and eight others wounded."

The Imperial Prince Kwacho was hit in the region of the heart, but his wound is slight.

Tokio Rejoices.

Tokio, Aug. 15.—Flags are flying, lanterns are glimmering and crier of "Banzai" are ringing in the streets of Tokio in honor of victories gained at sea by Admiral Togo and Vice-Admiral Kamimura. The Russian squadron, which confronted Admiral Togo, refused battle. It was stronger than Admiral Togo's squadron in battleships and armored cruisers, and had it elected to fight the result might have altered the fortunes of war.

Only Four Left.

The best possible naval force that Russia can now concentrate at Vladivostock is four cruisers. In the fight of Aug. 10 the squadron under Admiral Togo was practically uninjured. The battleship Mikasa suffered the most, but she continues on the fighting line. The cruisers Yakumo, Nisshin and Kasuga also were hit, but temporary repairs already have been made and they are fully serviceable.

Admiral Withoft Killed.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 15.—Rear-Admiral Withoft, who was in command of the Russian naval forces at Port Arthur, was killed during the engagement on Wednesday. The Emperor has received a telegram from Tsingthou, signed by Capt. Matousevitch, the rear-admiral's chief of staff, reporting that Withoft met his death aboard the flagship Czarevitch. Both his legs were blown off. Capt. Wanoff of the Czarevitch, Commander Sameff and several officers were wounded. Several officers besides the rear-admiral also were killed. The battleship sustained severe damage. Her rudder was broken beyond hope of repair.

Five Badly Damaged.

Tokio, Aug. 15.—Admiral Togo reports that five Russian battleships appear to have been badly damaged in the engagement of Aug. 10. The Pobieda lost two masts and one of her heavy guns was disabled. The flagship Retvizan, which was hit several times at a distance of 3,500 yards, seems to have ascertained the greatest injury. The damage inflicted on the Russian cruisers was comparatively slight. The Bayan has not appeared since the engagement.

The damage sustained by the Japanese vessels has been temporarily repaired.

Land Batteries Rule.

It is believed here that the Russians will not be able to repair the five battleships reported by Admiral Togo to have been damaged in the recent sea fighting at Port Arthur. The Japanese land batteries now commanding the entrance to the harbor could render this work impossible.

Novik Has Cleared.

Berlin, Aug. 15.—The Russian protected cruiser Novik left Tsingthou within the 24 hour limit, according to an official despatch. Several other vessels are still in the harbor in a disabled condition.

Burni Blown Up.

London, Aug. 15.—A despatch from Wei-Hai-Wei says the Russian torpedo boat destroyer Burni was beached Aug. 12 on the south of the Shantung Promonptory and was blown up. Three of the officers and sixty men, who walked from the scene of the accident, have arrived at Wei-Hai-Wei.

BRITISH ANNEX BIRD'S ISLAND.

Naval Party Landed Guns and Raised the Flag.

Kingston, Island of St. Vincent, B. W.I., Aug. 15.—The British cruiser Tribune, on August 11, landed a party, under command of Lieutenant Theifellat Aves, on Bird's Island, 127 miles west of the north end of the Island of Dominica, and annexed it as a British possession. Guns were hauled through the surf and landed, the British flag was hoisted and a royal salute was fired. The Tribune left St. Vincent Saturday, being ordered to Venezuela to protect British interests at Caracas.

THE EAST INDIAN SERVICE

It is surprising how some people in the British Empire, and a few even in Canada, delight in belittling their own country. The Bobcaygeon Independent gives a doleful account of India under British rule, and says the Indian service is the stumping ground of younger sons and wasters of well-to-do and noble British families, who get appointments in India to earn a living. The writer must imagine that things are now as they were half a century or more ago. An appointment in India can only be obtained by passing an examination and that for the Indian Civil Service is considered the most severe of all these tests. In many cas a too there is careful training in England before the aspirant embarks for the East. There is no larger percentage of noblemen in the service in India than in Canada, that is they are very rare birds. The writer of this mis-statement himself supplies the correction. He quotes a globe-trotter as saying:—"When I was in India I stayed on one occasion with a gentleman of an old anglo Indian family. His father had been a Colonel of an Indian regiment, his two brothers and himself were in Government service, and he was actually more at home in India than he would have been in England. He spoke Hindostani, Cujarati, and Mahrat, like a native, and in short he knew the native character thoroughly." This is not an uncommon example. It frequently happens that the sons of men serving in India after qualifying in Great Britain return to the place of their nativity to take up the work that has become almost hereditary. Is it not likely that men with such antecedents and such qualifications as those mentioned, should not only understand the native character, but be to a great extent in sympathy with the people? It is such officials as these, and there are enough of them to give a tone to the whole service, that make it possible for a comparatively small handful of white men to administer the public affairs of such masses of men of other races. It is through them that the native princes are so loyal to the Empire. It is through them that the people respect the Sahibs, especially looking upon them as scrupulously just and undeviatingly truthful. In these respects any thirteen or fourteen Indian officials taken at random would be far the superiors of the present Canadian Cabinet.

As there is only one rifle among three militiamen, it is to be hoped that Private Perry will be allowed to carry the rifle for his batch of three.

Advertisements should be accurate. Those of the Toronto Exhibition say that the Black Watch Band will visit Canada by the gracious permission of His Majesty King Edward VII and the Commanding Officers of the 42nd Royal Highlanders. Surely this should read that these foreigners are visiting us by the gracious permission of Sir Frederick Borden, M.D., and Mr. Sydney Fisher.

The Auditor-General in pursuance of his functions objects to an improper expenditure. The Administration by self-acting machinery reverses his decision, thus removing the safeguard from the Treasury, and reducing the Auditor-General to the status of a mere clerk, publishing the figures of receipts and expenditure over which he has no check. The grafters in office want no interference with their operations.

The independent Ottawa Journal says:—"The story of Ananias and Sapphira has always been accepted to illustrate the truth that truth partially told wilfully, may be a very bad kind of a lie. We once more command the story to the careful attention of the Globe, which has once more come out and loudly in justification of what it said originally about Dundonald's militia recommendations. It is enough to make the rest of us fall down dead. And a reverend editor, too!

We are told by the Ottawa Free Press on the authority of a party lawyer that the Auditor General has no right to question the validity of contracts but there appears clear provision in the statute for bringing all such questions to the notice of Parliament. And when the Auditor General brought to the notice of Parliament a dishonest and corrupt contract providing for the theft of millions of the people's money, the Free Press and its kind vilified him as though he were a criminal, even accusing him of personal dishonesty.

HOW TO QUALIFY

The Needed Proof of Intelligence in Militia Officers.

The Montreal Gazette says:

"Referring to a report that Sir Frederick Borden is asserted to have agreed that it would be a useful thing to allow intelligent members of the militia force to give suggestions, say, once a year, the Toronto News remarks that this would seem to entail the delicate duty of deciding as to what members of the force are intelligent. But at all. Every officer desiring to be branded "intelligent" by Sir Frederick Borden would only require to begin his criticism with the declaration that Sir Frederick Borden is the greatest Minister of militia that has ever been."

THE SCOTS AT WOODSTOCK

How they were Misrepresented by a Dishonest Party Wirepuller.

To the Editor of the Express:—

Dear Sir,—For conceited cheek and impudence the resolution "re Dundonald" comes hom. Can a half dozen members of Camp Edinburgh led by a political party pusher speak for all Scots and sons of Scots in this neighbourhood? Some of us think not. We are not all party blind. We are not all lick-spittles. All of us cannot sit still and allow our bravest and best countryman to be sneered at and called "foreigners and strangers" by any Canadian Frenchman at home or abroad. Yet we consider ourselves as good Liberals as the father of this unseemly resolution, who foolishly proclaimed on the street that he drew up the resolution and pushed it through. This same individual, who is now preaching loyalty to party, a few years ago, when it suited his own personal interests, put up as "independent candidate" against the regularly appointed nominee of the Liberal party. We feel sure that had all the members been present he would have pushed much harder before getting it through. If he has for a purpose forgotten—all Scots have not—the grand old motto "Nemo me impune lacessit." What's in the stour wi' this puir body anyway? Is an office door likely to be opened soon, and has he an eye thereon? He's awful strong on dangerous attempts on peace an' good wul, historic tradestons o' Scots, equal rights, resentment o' Scots, polemical purposes, justice an' fair play for a bit his ain folk.

Question—If the pairty was no in power wad he be sae particular about sic things? We doot it. SCOT.

The Liver to Blame

So long as the liver is active in filtering the bile from the blood there is no biliousness and no constipation, because the bile is passed from the liver into the intestines where it acts as a cathartic in keeping the bowels active. Because of their direct action on the liver as well as the bowels, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills thoroughly cure constipation, the real cause of nine-tenths of the common ills of life.

ENCOURAGING DUMPING

Sir Richard Cartwright Speaks only for himself and his Party.

Sir Richard Cartwright made a serious mistake when, in his place in the House of Commons, he defended Jackson, the lawyer who was so scathingly rebuked for endeavoring improperly to buy the testimony of witnesses for an election trial in South Oxford. Jackson's offence, which approached the subornation of perjury was past even the political limit and his conduct seemed to appeal to Judge Street as being singularly detestable. Jackson was rewarded with an appointment as a Canadian Commercial Agent in England by Sir Richard, who in his speech took the whole responsibility of the transaction. Sir Richard defended Jackson's offence as being by no means unusual in politics, and adopted a cynical tone which jarred on even the hardened offenders who listened to him. Politics are bad enough, as everyone who has dabbled in them can testify, but it ill becomes an old man whose record has been particularly free from political crookedness to retard his himself and his party by accepting any such degraded and degrading standard as the one by which he judged Jackson's offence. If politics have sunk to the depth which Sir Richard's speech would lead us to believe, it is time that some effort were made to drain the swamp of corruption where putrefying principles are strangling the good impulses and even the pride of such veterans as Sir Richard. If he has lost his clearness of vision in the dank mists of the evil-smelling bog of politics, if even he no longer breathes and speaks as if he were an honest man, hating baseness, and above degrading tricks, what chance has a decent young fellow to survive the miasma which seems to hang heavy over all our politics? that Sir Richard's speech and his retirement from politics should not be far apart.—Toronto Saturday Night, independent.

In Women's Favor

Few treatments stand so high in woman's favor as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This is not only because of the extraordinary control which this preparation has over diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women, but also because of its power as a tissue builder. By weighing yourself while using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food you can prove that new flesh and weight is being added to the body.

GRIT TRICKERY

Ministerialist Conspiring to Culminate Lord Dundonald — Woodstock Sons of Scotland.

The independent Woodstock Express says:

"The Express is assured by a member of the Sons of Scotland that the resolution was prepared by a well-known Liberal worker, who is also an official, and was carried by the efforts of himself and a few friends. We are assured that there was not more than a dozen members present at the meeting at which the resolution was passed, and these were drummed up for the express purpose of passing it. The resolution does not represent the views of the Sons of Scotland of Woodstock; many of them are indignant at the efforts to introduce party politics into an institution that for the sake of its well-being must be strictly non-partizan; it represents nothing more than the skill and influence of one or two party workers."

THE FOOLISH FRENCH PRESS

And as Wicked as Foolish in their Racial Campaign.

There is no doubt that the general elections are close at hand. A sure sign is the resurrection of the race cry by the French papers of Quebec that support the government. Led by the Presse of Montreal and the Soleil of Quebec, they have begun the campaign in the old familiar way by attacking the people of Ontario, accusing them of being dominated by Orange lodges and fanatically opposed to Laurier because he is a French Canadian. The Quebec French of all classes and parties are summoned to rally to the support of the French premier who is the object of Ontario "orangeist" hatred, fanaticism and persecution.

We don't suppose the writers of this sort of stuff are under any illusions on the subject. Probably they know quite well that prejudice against the premier because of his race is almost nonexistent. They know that he is regarded by Ontario Liberals with quite as much esteem and admiration and almost as much affection as he is regarded by the Liberals of Quebec, and that if Ontario Conservatives do not so regard him it is because of party prejudice and not because of racial prejudice. These writers are politicians who are "playing the game," and unfortunately they think that the strongest cards to play in Quebec are appeals to racial sentiments of ignorant French-Canadians who do not know much about Ontario and its people.

Well, it may be a good game to play in Quebec. It succeeded admirably in the last campaign so far as that province was concerned. But it may be doubted if, upon the whole, it proves to be a good game for the Liberal party throughout the Dominion. It may secure for Sir Wilfrid the same overwhelming majority in Quebec that he received four years ago; but it is not unlikely to cut down the Liberal representation from other provinces.

If no such appeals were made very few English-speaking Canadians would think of voting against the government because the premier is a French Canadian. But when they read the inflammatory appeals of the Quebec papers to the Quebec people, calling upon them to support the government for no other reason than that the premier is a French-Canadian, many English speaking Canadians, through resentment and disgust, will be tempted to vote against government candidates.

If it is in the power of Sir Wilfrid Laurier to check the racial appeals of his foolish friends he ought to do it. These appeals are the very best campaign literature that the Ontario Conservatives could desire. What shall it profit Sir Wilfrid if he retain his present Quebec majority and lose support in the other provinces? —Hamilton Herald, indep

THE GLOBE'S REPUTATION

Independent Journal thinks it has lost its Honesty and Manliness

The Independent Hamilton Herald says:

"Alas for the Globe's ancient reputation for honesty and manliness! There is no difference that can be noticed between the policy of militia improvement said to have been proposed by Lord Dundonald and that which is frankly favored by Colonel Denison; but Dundonald is denounced and ridiculed and hounded because of the policy which the Globe assumes him of having recommended, while the Toronto colonel is complimented as a man man of moderate opinions and reasonable temper.

The explanation is that while there is probably little difference between the views of these two officers, there is a wide difference in their positions. Dundonald had a quarrel with the government which the Globe serves, and it therefore became expedient to vilify him and misrepresent his views. Denison is a Liberal, and so generally respected as a citizen and a soldier that it would be inexpedient to treat him as Dundonald was treated."

FRUIT CROP REPORT

How the Prospects Looked in July Selection of Strawberry Plants

FRUIT CROP REPORT.

A very full return for July has been obtained by the Fruit Division, Ottawa, with reference to the fruit crop of the Dominion.

APPLES.

Dividing the apple crop into fall and winter varieties the reports show a medium to full crop of the former. In the apple sections, from which the bulk of the winter fruit will be obtained for export, the crop is not as large as last year but may be classed as light to medium. A very clear distinction must be made between fall apples and good storing stock. The reports from Great Britain and Europe generally show a very large crop of fruit that will come into direct competition with our fall varieties and may slightly affect the market for winter fruit; but up to the present time European fruit has not competed seriously with our best keeping varieties. The apple crop in Canada appears to be singularly free this year from the attacks of insects and fungous diseases. It is quite probable that the codling moth will not be a serious pest but there are indications that the spot may yet develop to a slight if not a serious degree.

PEARS.

Pears, except in British Columbia will be a light crop. There will be very few for export but the quality of these will be good.

PEACHES AND PLUMS.

Peaches and plums are almost an absolute failure. There are, however, a few favored sections where the winter did not materially affect these two fruits and in such orchards the crop will be medium.

The grape crop will be fairly good but in the large producing districts of the Niagara Peninsula black rot has shown to a serious extent and it is impossible to predict the extent to which the crop will be curtailed by this pest.

SMALL FRUITS.

Strawberries have been very uneven. Where they were not winter killed the crop has been good, but the winter killing was so general that the yield has been a small one. Raspberries were also a light crop.

CHERRIES.

Cherries in British Columbia have been a full crop, but a slight crop throughout Ontario. In the rest of Canada, wherever grown, they have been light to medium.

Black currants are a full crop. Red currants not quite so good but still a large crop.

INSECTS AND FUNGI.

Only one or two districts report serious depredations of insects and the indications at present are that fruit growers will be little troubled this year by either insects or fungous pests.

OTHER COUNTRIES.

The reports from the United States, particularly those portions that compete with Canada, indicate a large but not an extraordinary crop of fruit. The indications in England France, Germany, Holland and Belgium point to a crop somewhat above the average.

GENERAL COMMENT.

The export trade for Canadian and American fall apples will be somewhat restricted, but owing to the better quality of our apples they will have the preference in the European markets. There will be the necessity, however, of rigidly excluding all second quality fruit. Fall fruit of first class quality will in all probability bring a fair price, but it is almost certain that second quality fruit will not bring much, if anything over the cost of marketing. The supply of good winter stock of apples suitable for the British market during the months of January, February and March is not excessive, and it seems reasonable to expect that the demand will be almost equal to that of last year.

SELECTION OF STRAWBERRY PLANTS.

A striking illustration of the value of plant and seed selection, as advocated by Prof. Robertson, is reported in the 'Maritime Farmer' of July 19th by a New Brunswick correspondent. He says:—"A few days ago while visiting a neighbour, the conversation turned to berries, and he then showed me his patch. It was small but they were plants to be proud of. His plan is as follows:—He tells his children, when they are picking, to carry along some little sticks, pieces of laths, and when they find an extra strong plant with a good fruit stem and plenty of berries, to put a stick down alongside it. After the berries are picked he takes up these plants and sets them out in a bed, letting them throw out runners in all directions. In the spring he has some fine plants to set, and his berries are improving every year.—Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

For Over Sixty Years

An old and well-tried remedy.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for sixty years by millions of mothers for their children while teething, with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Sold by all druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Its value is incalculable. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup and take no other kind.

Listerine Soap—disinfectant—is strongly recommended by the medical profession as a safeguard against infectious diseases.

NOT IN HER CLASS.

There's a maiden fair and slender,
With an air just like a queen.
Oh, to see her eyes grow tender
I would bow with abject mien!
I would humbly kneel before her
Might I whisper I adore her.

But I hardly dare address her,
Hardly dare to press my suit.
Though I gladly would caress her,
Eyes and voice alike are mute.
I can only guess and wonder,
While I keep my passion under.

Ah, I see her very often
As she lightly comes and goes!
Would sometimes her eyes might soften,
Somehow showing that she knows
Something of my passion sleeping
Underneath the calm I'm keeping!

But, alas! there isn't any Chance at all to get in work.
She is heiress to millions many;
I am just a ribbon clerk.
I've no chance to go a-wooing,
So, you see, there's nothing doing.

Delicate.

"I do so like to travel," said Miss Oldish, "but it is so expensive."

"One as young as you," said the polite man, "should be able to travel for half fare."

The Dimple.

Science may point out that a dimple is a blemish and that it has no business on a perfect face, but science could not write books enough to convince doubting man of this great truth.

In fact if a young lady has a couple of dimples mixed in with her other features the average man will overlook several other faults. She may perhaps be a trifle shy on education and not have money enough to buy a slightly damaged duke, but if a girl has a few dimples as her stock in trade she can come pretty near taking her pick of the young men of the neighborhood. She may marry for love or money, whichever she sees fit.

It is mighty easy for a man, if he is convinced that a dimple is a blemish, when he has won the favor of a girl who is afflicted with them to console himself with the thought that none of us are perfect anyway.

Sweet Words.

There is no sweeter word than home.
You think so when afar you roam
And drain at times a bitter cup
In hunting joys that don't turn up.

But some folks take a different view
And, looking out, can find a few Words that are sweeter to their ears
Than home, if rent is in arrears.

He who the ticker's tick attends
A sweeter word finds dividends,
And some men who for power aspire
Think office more to their desire,
But for your little household lamb
There is no sweeter word than jam.

A Sure Thing.

"If Johnny had four apples and gave two to Mary and two to Fanny, how many would he have left?"

"You can bet he would have a dozen left in his pocket if he opened his heart that way!"

Evidence Failing.

"Do you believe in ghosts?"

"I used to, but I have not seen one walk for so long that I am beginning to have my doubts."

Ungrained.

"Has your uncle made a will yet?"

"No, he is so contrary that if you would call it a won't he would make a couple of them."

Limited Eternal.

Hope springs eternal in the human breast,
But by and by
When things are put to the eternal test
The springs go dry.

FIRST PARAGRAPHS.

FRENCH MAY QUEENS.

A Pretty Custom Which Is Still in Vogue in Some Villages.

An ancient custom which still obtains in many villages in the south of France is a pretty variation of the choosing of the May queen with which we are so familiar. The mayor and six of his political officers choose from among the village maidens the most beautiful girl. As soon as the choice is made known the queen, dressed in white, even to a long white veil and a wreath of white roses, assembles with her parents and all the villagers in front of the mayor's house. Here he and six friends, dressed in frock coats and top hats, form in procession, the mayor and queen leading, and march to the church, where there is a short ceremony.

They then march back to the mayor's house, where a favored few are entertained at luncheon. When he proposes her health he enumerates her virtues, kisses her on both cheeks and hands her an envelope which contains the prize, $200 in money. But the ceremony does not end here. They form in procession, the band leading this time, and in a sort of "follow my leader" game walk through the village, up lanes and over hills for three hours. That evening a ball is given at the inn, where the queen dances first with the mayor and his six friends and afterward with the lads of the village, and so the celebration ends. The queen's white veil, with the veil and wreath, are carefully folded away and are brought out again only when she becomes a bride.

A HEAVY DIET.

What the Pikes in Tipperary Waters Like Most as Food.

There is a professional fisherman of my acquaintance in Tipperary who kills many pike during the winter months, for which he finds ready sale in the town. He told me of one customer of his who was in the habit of so beating him down in price that he felt justified in resorting to somewhat questionable means to increase the weight of his fish. In the manner of the winner of the stakes in the celebrated "Jumping Frog" sporting event, he would introduce some weighty substance into their interior, stones, bits of iron railing, etc.

Once he went so far as to stuff two old bandiron flatirons he had picked from a refuse heap down the gullet of one before taking it to his customer, who, having weighed it carefully and, after much haggling, paid him a fraction less per pound for it than he might have perhaps obtained elsewhere. Meeting him next day, he was instantly aware there was trouble in the wind by the opening remark, "What do pike feed on, Paddy?" "Och and indade, your honor, but there's mighty little that comes amiss to thim lads," he answered. "Frogs and fish, sticks and shtones they like well, but they would give their two eyes for flatirons."—English Country Gentleman.

BLOTTING PAPER.

It Was Known and Used as Far Back as the Year 1675.

There is a pretty prevalent belief that blotting paper is a modern invention; that a hundred years ago it was unknown, white sand being used in its stead.

Blotting paper, as a matter of fact, was a recognized convenience of the writing desk as far back as 1675. In that year there was issued a book called "Townsend's Preparative to Pleading," a copy of which is in the possession of a Chicago antiquary, and this volume contains on page 8 the following paragraph:

"Let the dusting or sanding in books be avoided, rather using fine brown paper to prevent blotting if time of the ink's drying cannot be allowed, for sand takes away the good color of the ink, and, getting into the backs of books, makes them break their binding."

The sand that was used for blotting in the past was, the Chicago antiquary says, very clean and white and fine, and it was called silver sand. It was kept in a cruet with a perforated lid, like a salt cruet, and thence it was sifted over the wet writing. An odd thing about it was that the ink never seemed to stain it. It could be used over and over and it remained to the end as white as snow.

BATTLE STANDARDS.

So Ancient That Their Use Is Mentioned in the Bible.

The custom of carrying flags or standards in battle dates back at least to 1490 B. C. We find in Numbers ii, 2, that "every man of the children of Israel shall pitch by his own standard with the ensign of his father's house." Each standard of the twelve tribes thus distinguished was supposed to have been of a color to correspond with the stone in Aaron's breastplate which bore the name of that tribe. Under the generic name banner are included many species, such as standard, ensign, pennon, flag, etc. These have been used from earliest times and in all countries to direct movements of troops.

The earliest Roman standard was a bundle of straw fixed to the top of a spear. This was succeeded by figures of animals, such as the horse and the boar, which soon gave place to the eagle, the chief Roman ensign, afterward assumed by the German and French emperors. By every warlike people the banner has been regarded as an emblem of national honor, in defense of which each soldier was at all times ready to die, while banners and flags taken from the enemy have always been special trophies of victory to which places of honor in public buildings have been assigned.

BOOTS AND SPURS.

Quaint Account of Hungarian Cavalry in Olden Days.

A contemporary manuscript account of the diet of Ratisbon, held in 1630 by the Emperor Ferdinand II. on the occasion of the landing of Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden in Germany, mentions as a remarkable fact that the Hungarian cavalry who rode through the streets to the ceremonial wore their spurs on their boot soles.

It is difficult to credit that these spurs were fixed on the flat of the boot, for thus shod the horsemen could neither walk nor stand, especially when the large size of the spurs worn at the period is considered. Probably the writer intended to indicate that instead of being fastened to the heel in the usual fashion they were made to project from the fore part of the military boot, which is a portion of the sole.

Frederick von Raumer, who quotes this in his "History of the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Centuries, Illustrated by Original Documents," passes the matter over without comment. The same manuscript adds that the Hungarian horses had their manes, tails and feet painted red.

Ancient Drinking Guilds.

It is gravely said by an authority that the Dutch guilds, the most ancient of workingmen's organizations, had their origin in the drinking guilds, which, although they did not, as in the case of the Greeks and Romans, exalt drink to the rank of a deity, made it a kind of civic dignitary. These drink guilds and drink brethren existed from the earliest times until the latter part of the sixteenth century, when their excesses led to their suppression. It is held that men who worked together drank together and thus formed the primitive club which developed into the guild.—Notes and Queries.

Hose of Olden Time.

In the very long ago hose were not stockings as now worn, but made long and were often drawn up even to the waist, and, oddly enough, had pockets in their sides. We read, moreover, that in the time of the Tudors and Stuarts they were of great variety, both of material and color, and for such as could command the luxury were richly trimmed and costly; they were often called "nether stocks."

Useless Labor.

"Don't be afraid of making me angry by telling me your candid opinion of my verses, old fellow. Criticism doesn't make any difference with me."

"I know that, my dear boy, but the trouble is that it doesn't make any difference with your verses either."

Singular and Plural.

"Funny! There was a time when the barbers used to speak of my hair."

"You mean before you began to get bald?"

"Yes. Now they speak of my hairs."—Philadelphia Press.

In the hour of distress and misery the eye of every mortal turns to friendship. In the hour of gladness and conviviality what is your want? It is friendship.

A fanciful fool may not fill you chock full of wisdom, but he is a cheerful chap to see on a rainy day.

People who have rubber necks are apt to have the same kind of consciences.

A fault does not seem half as bad when we commit it ourselves as it does when our neighbor commits it.

Some people's children are almost as well cared for as some other people's dogs.

HANG THE PRISONERS!

An Exclamation That Was Interpreted as an Order.

The young laird of Lochnow was a character in the Scotch camp life of the early eighteenth century. He was cool in action and full of fun in daily life. One day he was detailed to command a burial party, and as he strolled over the battlefield his orderly came to him in great perplexity.

"Sir," said he, "there is a heap of fellows lying out yonder who say they're only wounded, and they won't let us bury them like the rest. What shall we do?"

"Bury them at once," replied young Agnew, without moving a muscle of his countenance, "for if you take their word for it they won't be dead for a hundred years to come."

The man saluted and started off in all simplicity to carry out the order, and Agnew had to dispatch a counter order in haste to prevent his joke from becoming a tragedy.

This recalls an "o'er true" tale of border life. Some Galloway moss troopers were brought before Sir William Howard, who was an enthusiastic mathematician. He was deep in his studies when the prisoners were marched into the castle courtyard, and a lieutenant came running up to get orders as to their disposal. Enraged at being interrupted, he cried, "Hang the prisoners!" and went on with his work.

He finished his problem and went down with a cheerful mind, only to learn that his exclamation had been taken for an order, and the prisoners were all hanged.

ATHLETICS IN GERMANY.

Wrestling Is One of the Most Popular Forms of Exercise.

Wrestling is one of the most popular forms of athletic exercises in Germany, and it seems as if the heavy and muscular build of the Germans peculiarly adapts them for this kind of sport.

The general public interprets the word "athlete" as meaning a wrestler, weight lifter or "strong man." When the English style of athletics was introduced into Germany, it was termed "light athletics." Wrestling is termed "heavy athletics." In every town there are many clubs indulging in "heavy athletics," and numerous public contests are arranged, in connection with which challenges to "all comers" are issued. Here one can often witness a pitched battle between science and brute power—see an "all comer" of stupendous build, probably a butcher, brewer or furniture remover, laid flat on both shoulder blades in the most approved style by a little, wiry fellow as slippery as an eel. On the occasion of the world's championships held in Berlin an open arena, roofed only in the center, where the wrestling took place, was erected, with tiers of seats for the public all around. As luck would have it, the weather proved boisterous and the public shy of the fair. The championships ended dismally, and the impresario, unable to pay the men's retainers, very discreetly decided to "leave town."

Flying Fish.

Flying fish swim in shoals varying in number from a dozen to a hundred or more. They often leave the water at once, darting through the air in the same direction for 200 yards or more, and then descend to the water quickly, rising again and then renewing their flight. Sometimes the dolphin may be seen in rapid pursuit, taking great leaps out of the water and gaining upon his prey, which take shorter and shorter flights, vainly trying to escape, until they sink exhausted. Sometimes the larger sea birds catch flying fish in the air. The question whether the flying fish use their fins at all as wings is not fully decided. The power of flight is limited to the time the fins remain moist.

The Meaning of Orange Blossoms.

The orange tree is regarded as a prince among trees and the emblem of genius. A peculiarity of this tree is that it bears fruit and flowers at the same time. Its leaves are evergreen and as it grows older it grows in beauty and fruitfulness, its blossom filling the air with its fragrance. It is indeed a fit emblem of marriage promise and hopes. The orange tree is considered typical of love because, though its fruit is golden and its flavor and scent delicious, its rind is bitter, and as every one knows who has experienced it Cupid's dart causes pain. The orange is emblematic of gratitude as well as of genius and love.

Poultry Demonstration

Mr. Elford, the poultry expert, of Ottawa, will superintend the showing of a complete model hennery under the auspices of the Dominion Government at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, August 29th to September 10th. Poultry raising during recent years has become such an important industry, both with exclusive breeders and with general farmers throughout Canada that the Government wisely decided to demonstrate all that was most modern and most successful in incubation, brooding, caring and feeding. For those who keep poultry, whether for profit or pleasure, the information derived from this exhibit will be extremely valuable.

PARK ST. ANNIVERSARY

A RED LETTER DAY FOR CHILDREN OF THE SABBATH SCHOOL.

A Novel Plan Adopted with Erection of a New Church in View — Rev. A. H. Brace Speaks upon Nature's Luxuriance.

Sunday was a red letter day for the little people of Park st. Baptist church. The occasion was the sixteenth anniversary of the Sabbath School—another year's work has been accomplished and another one stretches before them with its enterprises and responsibilities. The children of the Sabbath School were present in large numbers at all of the services—morning, afternoon and evening. Many beautiful flowers had been brought by the little folks and their friends and these fragrant offerings of nature graced the platform in rich and artistic profusion. It was pre-eminently such a day as the children rejoice in—and they of Park st Baptist church are wide awake and progressive.

During the past year the Sabbath School took the initial step towards the erection of a new church—the present one is much too small for a growing congregation's requirements Some fifty dollars were raised as a nucleus. The congregation heartily showed their approval and co-operated to the extent of purchasing the lot upon which to erect the church, and have gone forward still farther with the final end in view. Now the children have purchased a thousand of brick and have given each member of the congregation an opportunity to purchase as many of these as he or she pleases at 10 cents each. It is a somewhat novel idea and yesterday met with hearty response, for Park st. people are enthusiastic in their work and have determined to have a becoming place of worship.

Yesterday being flower Sunday it was a very appropriate sermon which Rev. A. H. Brace delivered in the morning the subject of which was "Nature's Luxuriance," being a most interesting talk upon the flowers, his text being "Consider the lilies." The speaker stated that people could have lived without flowers, but that they were of a divine plan whereby life was made happier, more luxurious, according to the idea of the Creator, than it otherwise would have been. By considering their characteristics he drew lessons from the lives of the flowers that were applicable to everyday life, pointing to their utter dependence upon their Maker, and their performance of a purpose effectively and unostentatiously, in delighting both young and old, in bringing sunshine to both rich and poor, to the well and to the ill, and in breathing a sweet message of remembrance.

In the afternoon the children of Park st church gave a programme of music and recitations, and addresses were delivered by Rev. J. E. Trotter and the pastor. The occasion was a very happy one. In the evening Rev. A. H. Brace's subject was "The church's luxuriance." The choir during the day gave very effective service.

A VERY FINE CHURCH.

Park st. congregation will have a very handsome place of worship according to the plans that are on view in the present edifice, executed by J. Francis Brown, architect, of Toronto. The structure will of course be of brick and is to be erected on the lot where the present church stands and which is capable of accommodating a much larger building. There will be four entrances, and the building is rendered most imposing by a square tower, permitting of a vestibule main entrance, and crowned by an ornate spire. There will be about 400 sittings in the auditorium. A basement will afford excellent accommodation for the Sabbath School, and in the church there will be a gallery. The congregation have in prospect a very creditable undertaking and seem to have realised their present very prosperous condition and the progressiveness of the town.

LATE MARCILLUS O'DETTE

Funeral Took Place this Morning at 9 o'clock.

The death occurred on Saturday night of Mr. Marcillus O'Dette at his residence on Chamber st., at the age of 78 years. The deceased was well and favorably known in town, and his friends will extend their sincerest sympathies to the bereaved wife and daughter, Mrs. W. O'Brien.

The funeral took place this morning at 9 o'clock to St. Peter's Cathedral, thence to the R. C. cemetery for interment.

MR. MELDRUM'S ENTERPISE

ERECTION OF A 500 BARREL MILL BEGAN TODAY.

A New Elevator With Capacity of About 50,000 Bushels and a Cereal Mill Will Also be Built.

In a very short time another large building will rear its massive bulk above the Otonabee river, and add to the industrious appearance of what is destined to be Peterborough's busy water front. To-day work was started upon the concrete foundation of a large flour mill, the capacity of which will be 500 barrels. It is the first step in an enterprise which Mr. W. H. Meldrum hopes to successfully launch here. The buildings will include the flour mill, the dimensions of which are 96 by 400, and three and a half storeys high. The next building will be a cereal mill of the same size, and the third will be an elevator, forty-six feet square and with a capacity of from 30,000 to 50,000 bushels. These buildings will be situated on the south end of Simcoe-st., occupying property from Miss Mills' residence to the town's newly acquired road allowance. The building at present under construction will be the base of Mr. Meldrum's local business, his purpose being to move thither from the building which he occupies on Simcoe-st., and the lease of which expires in October. The cereal mill will manufacture split peas, rolled oats, corn meal, oatmeal, toasted wheat, flakes and other breakfast foods well known to the public. The mills will have the most modern equipment.

Mr. Meldrum is at present awaiting the action of the Council in regard to his application to have a siding run into his premises from the C.P.R. spur along the south side of Simcoe-st., a distance of 350 feet. This would give the new concern excellent shipping facilities.

When asked if he expected that the canal would ever be of service to him, Mr. Meldrum evinced a hopefulness. His buildings are near an arm of the river, which if properly dredged and docked, would make available good accommodation for shipping by water. The excavation from this arm, if removed to the other side of the present spur, would fill in to a considerable extent the lots which the town owns these and thus makes improvements that might be put to use when the question of wharves was considered.

The Otonabee Power Company's sub-station is situated near the site of the new building and of course the machinery will be operated by this power so plentiful and so easily available in Peterborough. The citizens of the town will be pleased to learn of the industrial advance which Mr. Meldrum is making and which eventually will give employment to a large number of hands.

COBOURG WANTS A CANAL

Another Crazy Scheme to Obstruct Utilization of Trent Waterway.

Now Cobourg is stirring and wants a canal. The proposal to abandon the Trent Waterway for this ditch is similar to the Port Hope craze, and needs no further refutation. It may be remarked, however, that the advocates of the Trent River route make no claims on account of having a sheltered harbour although they have one. They have learned too much about canals to entertain the silly idea that a harbour is of any value in the middle of a navigable route for barges. Another blunder showing that the Cobourg people have not taken the trouble to inform themselves on the subject is that there are extensive rock cuttings on the Trent river. They are talking of plans superceded many years ago by the modern style of canalization. The rapids will be converted into fine stretches of water with connecting locks and the rocky banks will not suffer from the fastest navigation. The excavation by either the Cobourg or Port Hope route would be far greater than on the Trent River leaving banks of friable earth which will not permit the use of even moderate speed. Easily damaged banks have been one of the greatest drawbacks to the Erie Canal. But the main point is that the object in view is to avoid Lake Ontario and to go down the Bay of Quinte and the St. Lawrence River to Montreal.

A PROSPEROUS CONCERN

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE COLONIAL INK COMPANY

The Industry is in a Very Satisfactory Condition — President is Mr. C. C. Martin of Hamilton.

The second annual meeting of the directors of the Colonial Ink Company was held Friday evening in the offices of the company. Mr. A. H. Stratton, vice-president, was in the chair. The annual report was presented and it was shown that the affairs of this company are in a very satisfactory condition, the factory organization complete and its policy most progressive.

The Colonial Ink Company is a concern of which Peterborough might well be proud. At the factory, situated on Hunter street, there are manufactured printing inks, carbon papers, typewriter ribbons, writing inks, and mucilage, and the output of these goods is increasing every month, a fact which indicates the approval of the market—and this means a great deal, especially with regard to the ink business in which a very high standard of quality is set. An indication of recognition of merit is the fact that the goods of the Colonial Ink Company are in increasing demand, and the mail order department is becoming quite a feature.

For the past year the managing director of the concern has been Mr. J. F. O'Connor, a gentleman of progressive ideas, and who has done much to obtain for the products of the company that place in the appreciation of the trade which they now enjoy. He has shown himself an energetic business man, thoroughly conversant with detail, and with an insight into the requirements of the large field reached by the company. He leaves on Monday to take charge of the western district. His place here will be taken by Mr. G. W. Jones, of Hamilton, a young man of ability. The manufacturing department is in very competent hands, Mr. E. B. Quackenbush being in charge. The officers who were elected last evening are:—

President—Mr. G. C. Martin of Hamilton.

Vice-President—Mr. A. H. Stratton of Peterborough.

Directors—Messrs. C. B. McAllister J. F. O'Connor, G. W. Holmes, John Crane, Hugh Waddell, Wm. Marshall Hamilton.

The head office of the company is located here. It is a pleasure to note the progress that is being made by this industry.

YOUNG MEN GOING WEST

Mr. Eddie Seawright made the Recipient of a Purse.

On Saturday, at noon, employees of the Canadian General Electric Company said good-bye to Mr. Eddie Seawright, who has been employed in the Stores Department for some time, and who goes to his home in Norwood to prepare for a trip out West, where, it is understood he will permanently reside. Mr. Seawright has been a great favorite among the employees of the C. G. E. Co., and on Saturday they presented him with a handsome purse as a token of their appreciation and as indicating their interest in him. An address was read by Mr. Art Noble and the purse presented by Mr. Percy Adie. Mr. Seawright in his reply, expressed his gratitude for the kind expressions and for the gift. He will leave on Saturday for the Northwest and will probably be accompanied by two other young men who are held in high esteem—Mr. Bert Turner and Mr. George Allen.

ANGLING CLUB'S OUTING.

Large Crowd Attended and Enjoyed a Pleasant Afternoon

The excursion to Idyl Wyld on Saturday afternoon under the auspices of the Angling Club of the C. G. E. Co. was a great success and was attended by about three hundred people. The Str. City of Peterborough took the excursion, and reached Idyl Wild in time for supper, but none was to be had, as no previous arrangements had been made with the hotel there, and they had not provided for such a large crowd. The few people who took baskets were very fortunate, as the boat did not reach the Peterborough wharf until about 12 o'clock. The day was an ideal one for an excursion and all seemed to enjoy themselves.

Brevities.

—The Finance committee meets this evening.

—A young man was fined $2 and costs this morning, amounting in all to $6.60, for being drunk on Saturday night.

—The Grand Trunk Railway's half yearly report shows gross receipts amounting to £2,559,300, working expenses £1,998,600, net receipts £560,700. The net revenue charges less credits were £519,700, leaving a balance of £144,000. Deducting from this a debenture of £149,400 leaves a surplus of £124,800, which, added to the balance from December, makes £127,200 available for dividends.

Smith, Cleveland; Adelaine Armstrong, Peterborough; Mrs. Mildred De Clancy, Cleveland; Harriet E. Smith, Cleveland; Mrs. T. N. Armstrong, Mrs. L. Turner, Peterborough; Herb Martin, R. M. Glover, H. Gillespie and other members of Eko Camp.

The dance on Saturday night at Juniper Island was the best of the season, and the pavilion was crowded.

The service at the pavilion yesterday morning was attended by over three hundred campers. The service was conducted by Rev. E. A. Langfeldt of town, and Mr. R. N. Jolliffe sang the solo, "The Lord is King." In the evening the pavilion was again crowded and a male quartette sang.

On Saturday evening a young man had a narrow escape from drowning. When going to his canoe at the wharf he made a slight mistake and jumped into the water, which was pretty deep at that place. After considerable difficulty he was assisted out of his perilous position.

Eko Camp intends breaking up today, and everyone here is sorry that they are going so soon. The boys have made themselves very popular around the lakes, and especially at McCracken's. Everyone expresses the wish that they may meet at the Landing next year.

Mr. L. Scott and W. Garrow return home to-day from a two weeks' stay at Victoria House.

Mr. R. McKee returned home on Saturday night.

A number of the Eko boys drove up from town yesterday morning and spent the day at the camp.

A member of Eko camp landed a nice ten pound lunge on Saturday.

SOME STONEY LAKE NEWS

What the Cottagers are doing to make the Days Fly.

Stony Lake, August 13.—Viamede was on Tuesday evening the scene of a progressive euchre party. There were seven tables, with six prizes. To Miss O'Malley, of Toronto, fell the honor of getting the first prize; Miss Gilmer, of Toronto, was second, and Mrs. Crimpfield, of Rochester, was a close third.

The pavilion Saturday evening was the scene of a successful dance. The young people are looking forward to this evening, when one of the orchestras of Peterborough is to be present.

A very enjoyable dance was held at Viamede Wednesday evening. Miss Dowling and Mr. Sutherland, of Rochester, contributed to the pleasure of the evening by several selections.

A large and enjoyable pedro party was held at the Victoria House Monday evening in honor of the various guests. About forty enjoyed the game. Mr. Harold Armstrong, of Peterborough, won first prize, and Mr. Wm. Sutherland, of Rochester, was second.

A very successful musicale was held at Kilkenny on Wednesday evening. Guests and cottagers from all parts of the lake contributed to the entertainment, with the following programme: Piano solo, Mr. Sutherland; reading, Miss Spraig; violin solo, Miss Dowling; recitation, Mr. Bailey; cornet solo, Mr. Harvey Jeneer; solo, Mr. Scase; piccolo solo, Mr. Diener; reading, Mr. Norris White.

On Friday evening one of the boats was chartered and a very enjoyable sail was taken around the lakes, which was enjoyed by a great many of the cottagers and guests of the hotels. It ended with a marsh mallow roast at Mount Julian. This proved one of the most delightful affaire of the season.

The guests of Dulce Domum enjoyed a corn roast Thursday evening.

T. A. S. DEFEAT THE Y'S

By the Score of 16-5—Put Four Men out in last Innings.

The first game of baseball in the city league took place Saturday afternoon on the Murray pt. grounds between the T.A.S. and the Y.M.C.A. The game was not a very good exhibition, as many costly errors were made on both sides, and the final score was 16-5 in favor of the T.A.S. Quinlan, who twirled for the T.A.S, was not as good yesterday, but this was probably due to their big lead on their opponents. Roddy and Lamont occupied the box for the Y's, and both played hard to win. It was Lamont's first appearance here as a twirler, and it was a feature of the game. He fanned several heavy hitters of the T.A.S. and fielded well, pulling in some nice running catches. Roddy also worked hard but was hit freely. McDonald relieved Thornton for an innings behind the plate, as the latter got a bad hit with the ball.

The Y's were first to bat and McDonald, Miller and Lamont made unsuccessful hits. For the T. A. S. Pilling, Callahan and H. Latermouille scored.

In the second innings Fitzpatrick flew to centre field and scored on an overthrow. The T.A.S. failed to tally.

The Y's were shut out in the third and Grady and Latermouille added two more for the winners.

In the fourth Waram scored on an overthrow to Callahan, Lamont now took the rubber and Pilling, Callahan and Treanor were put out.

The Y's were again unsuccessful in the fifth and Lamont again retired the side.

In the sixth the Y's side was shut out and Pilling, Quinlan and Callahan chalked three more.

Waram again scored in the seventh for the Y's, and Derouchet, Latermouille, Parnell and Quinlan did a similar trick.

In the eighth Lamont scored, and for the T.A.S. Callahan, H. Latermouille, Derouchet and A. Latermouille tallied.

In the last innings Thornton, Adamson and McDonald were put out, but the T.A.S. seemed to have a generous streak and allowed the Y's to go on and bat. Roddy scored and Lamont was caught out by Treanor.

Following was the score by innings:

Y. M. C. A.	0 1 0 1 0 0 1 1 1—5
T. A. S.	3 0 0 2 0 0 3 4 x—16

The teams were:

Y.M.C.A.—Thornton c, Roddy p, Waram 1b, Pedlar 2b, Miller 3b, McDonald rf, Fitzpatrick cf, Lamont ss, Adamson lb.

T.A.S.—Quinlan p, H. Latermouille c, Treanor 1b, Grady 2b, Callahan 3b, Derouchet rf, Pilling cf, A. Latermouille lf, Parnell ss.

Owing to the absence of rinks in Toronto the regular schedule will be withdrawn for a few days.

Millbrook wants two or three rinks to go and bowl there about next Thursday. Who will go? Please report to-night so that they can be advised.

BASEBALL.

The Charlotte-st. baseball team will accompany the Oddfellows on their trip to Bobcaygeon on Civic Holiday and will play the Kawartha team of that place.

LACROSSE.

At the game on Wednesday evening between the T.A.S. and Havelock, for the championship of the Trent Valley League, the ball will be faced by Mr. R. R. Hall, Hon. Pres. of the League, and donator of the trophy.

The Chips beat the Tecumsehs by the score of 7—3 at the Island on Saturday.

George St. Church

The music at George street Methodist church yesterday was very pleasing and large congregations attended both services. At the morning service Mr. Frank Turner took the solo in the anthem, "Thy will be done," and during the offertory Messrs. Bert and Frank Turner sang a duet, "The door of God's mercy is open." In the evening the anthem, "Now the day is over," was sung very nicely by the choir, Mr. Archie Prowde taking the solo. Mr. Prowde sang "Oh eyes that are weary" during the offertory and was listened to with much pleasure. The choir rehearsal will be held on Saturday evening at 7.45 sharp, instead of Thursday evening, and it is hoped that all members will make it a point to be on hand.

HUMOR

RICH WOMAN BAFFLED.

Entertainment Devised For Her Friends Enjoyed by the Servants.

An Englishwoman socially intrenched behind great and new riches once engaged a well known entertainer to give an entertainment at her country house. She left instructions that when the entertainer arrived he was to dine with the servants. The butler, who knew better, apologized, but the entertainer was not a man easily disconcerted. He dined well and after dinner arose and addressed the assembled company in the servants' hall.

"Well, now, my good friends," said he, "if we are all finished and if you are all agreeable I shall be pleased to present to you a little show."

The servants cheered. The piano was dispensed with and he amused them for half an hour without it.

At 10 o'clock a message was sent to him. "Would Mr. —— kindly come up into the drawing room?" He went. The company in the drawing room were waiting, seated.

"We are quite ready, Mr. ——," remarked the hostess.

"Ready for what?" he inquired pleasantly.

"For your entertainment."

"But I've given it already," he explained, "and my engagement was for one performance only."

"Given it! Where? When?"

"An hour ago—downstairs."

"But this is nonsense!" she exclaimed.

"It seemed to me somewhat extraordinary," he assented, "but it has been my privilege to dine with the company that I am asked to entertain. I took it you had arranged a little treat for the servants."—Chicago Chronicle.

A Great Story.

A well known suburbanite who had been greatly troubled by the depredations of a neighbor's goat was driven to desperation one day when he learned that the animal had consumed a favorite red flannel golf coat of his. Determined on the goat's destruction, he employed an unscrupulous small boy who lived in the neighborhood to secure him to the railroad track just before the daily express was due. Some days afterward a friend inquired with interest if the goat had been effectually disposed of.

"Not on your life," was the disgusted answer; "that goat has a charmed life. He coughed up that red golf coat of mine and flagged the train."—Harper's Weekly.

Limitation.

The little fellow was extremely fond of doughnuts. His eyes sparkled when his grandmother set a plate of them on the table the night of his arrival at the farm. Frankie did not eat much until the doughnuts were passed, then he slyly seized one in each chubby hand.

"Why, Frankie," whispered his mother reprovingly, "you have taken two doughnuts!"

"I know it, ma," he whispered back, with a longing glance at the plate, "and if I had free hands I'd taken free."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Got Back at Him.

"Well, young man," said the portly capitalist to the college graduate whom he had employed, "I suppose that by this time you have practically given up most of your ideas about how to run the world."

"Yes, sir," answered the graduate, starting out with the waste basket, "and I understand also that you have ceased writing magazine articles on 'how to succeed.'"—Judge.

His Stagy Appearance.

Mr. Crimsonbeak, rubbing his upper lip—What do you think of me now?

Mrs. Crimsonbeak—Why, John, you've gone and shaved off your mustache!

"Yes; don't I look like a great actor?"

"Well, I can't say you look like an actor, John, but you do resemble the fellow who carries off the furniture and shifts the scenes!"—Yonkers Statesman.

WHEN BOYS WERE MEN

By JOHN HABBERTON,

Author of "Helen's Babies," "George Washington," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1904, BY JOHN HABBERTON

The major dropped back to the rear company, for which I was profoundly grateful. It wasn't pleasant to think of any one, even a member of our own regiment, observing all that was occurring in our company during these few moments. Men who were not accustomed to riding were bouncing briskly in their saddles and looking as wretched as the poor fellow who came in wounded the day before. Mick McTwyny lost his temper, blamed his horse for everything and, turning to the roadside and halting, began to pound the poor animal with both fists and kick him in the flanks with his spurred heels, a proceeding which the brute resented by leaping suddenly forward and tumbling his rider into the road. The lieutenant, who had chanced to look backward, turned and threatened to saber Mick then and there unless he at once remounted and acted like a soldier instead of a donkey, and Mick returned the threat, upon which the lieutenant, using his saber as a paddle, gave Mick a tremendous spank, and Mick swore an awful oath, which he chewed to extreme laceration as he uttered it, that he would get even with the lieutenant, and the lieutenant promised to give him a season of arrest in which to think up his vengeful plan.

Meanwhile another man bit the dust, for my horse stepped on the heels of his file leader, who had slackened his pace suddenly. The injured horse reared his hind quarters to kick, and over his head shot his rider, breaking his fall by rolling between two horses in front of him. A similar fate befell several other men, who, trying to brace themselves by holding their bridle reins tightly, curbed their horses so severely that the animals halted suddenly and unhorsed their riders. It seemed to me they must be trampled to death, but it was impossible to halt and ask questions or offer any assistance.

During these scenes of humiliation my heart was strengthened somewhat by the demeanor of our couple of survivors of the historic charge at Balaklava. Each rode as steadily as if he and his horse were one. Neither man looked to the right or left, but straight ahead, and each carried his saber as if on parade. I afterward told Cloyne about this, and he said:

"Why not? They did nothing but drill from the time they first enlisted in England, and a charge isn't half as hard to go through as a regimental drill of mounted troops."

Soon the major was on our flank again, shouting:

"Captain Bright, what has become of your company? There's only about half of it in the ranks."

The captain, who had ridden forward to close the gap between him and the company in front, dait back and looked along the column, which had lost all regularity of formation. Then he screamed:

"Lieutenant, why have you let so many men fall out, sir?"

The lieutenant commanding the rear platoon had been getting ahead of his proper position. He turned his horse, looked toward me and roared:

"Where's the sergeant of the left of the line?"

"You ordered him to remount several minutes ago, sir," I replied.

"And he hasn't returned to his post? Then 'twas your duty as a noncommissioned officer to keep the men from straggling to the rear."

This sudden and new load of responsibility seemed more than I and my horse could carry, but I afterward learned to bear similar inflictions better, for I found they were in accordance with military custom. When anything goes wrong during a march, the highest officer with whom fault is found immediately unloads the blame upon the officer next below him in rank, and so the scolding passes downward until it reaches some lowly noncommissioned officer, who gets rid of it by giving it to a private soldier.

But I had no time to absorb this wisdom during my first charge, for the major suddenly ordered our captain to hurry along with such men as he had, leaving the stragglers to the tender mercies of the rear guard. It seemed strange that we had not yet closed the small distance between us and the troop ahead of us, but as we hurried on we had the melancholy consolation of learning that ours was not the only new company whose men had come to grief through ignorance of their duties and by failing out had made many successive gaps in the column. Not all the unfortunates were bad riders, but some of them had pricked their horses with their sabers during spasmodic endeavors to keep those weapons well in hand, and no self respecting horse could be expected to be even tempered when prodded with a yard of steel with a sharp point at one end and 150 pounds of greenhorn at the other.

Such as were left of us went faster and faster, the horses, becoming excited, unconsciously taking the gallop. This being a gait at which a child could keep the saddle, there was no more straggling. Assisted by some vigorous language from the captain, we formed new sets of fours and went along in really handsome style.

When our rush had lasted about a quarter of an hour, I began to wonder when we would strike the enemy. If we had already suffered so severely, what would be left of us after we had met the foe and been thrown into the confusion which always befalls a cavalry party at the instant of absolute clash? Well, if it must come, it were better that it should come while we and our horses were nerved up to fighting pitch.

There came a time in our mad rush when the road led through a bit of low, damp ground on which there was no dust, so we could look along the column. Dusty though we were, the spectacle was really inspiriting, with its hundreds of flashing sword blades and its successive guidons—small flags, one at the head of each troop. We ascended a gentle slope near the top of which and perhaps a quarter of a mile in advance rode a man with a broad felt hat and a very small horse. I asked the lieutenant who he was and was told:

"He's the reb we're chasing, I s'pose."

What! All that effort to catch one man—a man who was apparently getting away? All the scare, the terror, the wild thoughts, the helplessness, the disorder, the suffering, merely to overtake one man! I felt angry enough to desert. I lost my temper and expressed my thoughts so loudly that the lieutenant overheard me and, looking angrily at me, said:

"Be quiet, you little fool. There's no better way of finding their main body than by chasing a man who is trying to get back to it, is there?"

"No, sir," I replied meekly as a flood of light descended upon my wits, and I longed to shrivel within my uniform so that I could not be seen. I did not long have to chew the bitter cud of reflection, however, for soon we heard some shots in the advance. Our pace was slackened; we became tightly packed in the road, breaking our formation and causing much trampling on horses' hoofs, with the consequent kicking and swearing. Then down the column was passed in rapid succession the orders:

"Halt! Dismount!"

Were we to fight on foot? Well, whatever might befall the enemy, I was sure it would be far safer for us. Then came the orders:

"Loosen your saddle girths. Tie your horses to the fence. Stand by and prevent them from rolling, or your saddles will be broken."

What an inglorious conclusion! I did not dare ask the lieutenant what it meant, but he evidently saw I was curious, for he approached me and said:

We went faster and faster.

"I guess the advance has gobbled them. There's never more than a company of these fellows on the road at a time around here."

That was better than I had expected, and I was wild to go forward and see the prisoners. Soon there was something else to look at, however, and I don't believe the prisoners could have presented as sorry a spectacle—it was the mass of stragglers being urged forward by the rear guard. There seemed no end to the dismal line of men without horses, horses without men. Some of the stragglers were asking where their companies were, and once in awhile a member of our company would recognize his place by the letter which each of us wore on his cap. What astonished me most, however, was Mick McTwyny plodding along on foot and carrying little Brainard on his back. I was so astonished that it was some time before I could ask Charley what had happened, and he told me that something was biting his side awfully. When the surgeon, of whom we had three, reached our company, Brainard learned that in falling from his horse he had broken two ribs.

Soon the colonel came riding down the column, looking keenly to the right and left. I asked him about the engagement, but he stared coldly at me and did not answer. When, however, the captain saluted, the colonel told him that the enemy's entire party had been captured, being unsaddled and therefore unable to get away. He also volunteered the information that our dash had been worth more to the regiment than a month of battalion drill in camp and that if half of the new men had kept up with the procession they had done better than he expected.

Thus ended the first charge of the Thirty-eighth, and it had been quite as successful in results as early cavalry dashes in general. But what would have happened had we, with 600 or 700 raw men and only a third as many experienced members, encountered a well armed, well trained regiment as large as our own? Well, either we would have run away or been badly whipped.

It is unlikely, however, that the colonel, who knew his business, would have led us against such a body, and it is less likely that he could have done it if he would, for there was not at that time a well armed, well trained cavalry regiment anywhere in the southern army. Greenhorn against greenhorn was the rule in those days, and not only in the cavalry service either.

To be continued.

The First Ice Cream.

A French chef who prepared a snow-like dish for the Duc de Chartres in 1774 is said to have been the first to make that cool luxury known as ice cream. Lord Bacon was possessed of the knowledge that there was a process of congelation by means of snow and salt. But to him this was a scientific fact, and he little dreamed of the idea that in after years this congelation would prove such a delightful refreshment.

The Value of a Sunny Soul.

The world is too full of sadness and sorrow, misery and sickness. It needs more sunshine. It needs cheerful lives which radiate gladness. It needs encouragers who will lift and not bear down, who will encourage, not discourage.

Who can estimate the value of a sunny soul who scatters gladness and good cheer wherever he goes instead of gloom and sadness? Everybody is attracted to these cheerful faces and sunny lives and repelled by the gloomy, the morose and the sad. We envy people who radiate cheer wherever they go and fling out gladness from every pore. Money, houses and lands look contemptible beside such a disposition. The ability to radiate sunshine is a greater power than beauty or than mere mental accomplishments.—Success.

The Most Qualified Graduate.

It is the custom of the graduating class of the medical department of Queen's university of Kingston, Canada, to designate by ballot the fellow student who they believe could be expected "to do the right thing under all circumstances." The successful student is honored with a special prize by the faculty. We believe that such a man is really the most capable of his class and if not identical with the gold medalist is probably his superior in all that goes to make up the scientific and successful practitioner.

Aloes.

The most valuable aloes come from the island of Sokotra, which lies just off the east African coast from Cape Guardafui. The drug itself is the bitter resinous juice of the leaves of the aloe plant that has been hardened in the sun. These leaves are of a fibrous, fleshy nature, and, in addition to the juice, the natives make this fiber into rope, many insisting that it makes a better rope than hemp.

Cause and Effect.

Mrs. A.—You say brandy is a good remedy for colic, but I don't agree with you. Mrs. B.—What do you know about it? Mrs. A.—A great deal. Before I had brandy in the house my husband never had colic more than once or twice a year, but as soon as I kept a supply he had colic almost every day.

A Different Thing.

"I didn't suppose that Cupid could move a stony hearted man like Jones."

"Cupid has nothing to do with it. Cupidity is what moved him."

Ambition is pitiless. Every merit that it cannot use is contemptible in its eyes.—Joubert.

Toasted Bread.

We toast bread not merely to brown it, but to take out all the moisture possible, that it may be more easily moistened by the saliva and thus easily digested. Then we brown it to give it a better flavor.

Food Accessories.

Many articles that are eaten have no value as true foods, because they do not build up the body or supply force. These are known as food accessories. Among the chief food accessories are tea, cocoa, beef tea and broth of various kinds, together with spices and spices.

Ostrich Feathers.

Abyssinia, it is claimed, produces the finest ostrich feathers.

The "President's March."

The "President's March," composed by Fyles in honor of President Washington in 1788 and to which the words of "Hail Columbia" were set in 1798, was probably the most popular patriotic air about 1800.

Waterproof Cloth.

Cloth may be rendered waterproof by rubbing the under side with a lump of beeswax until the surface presents a uniform white or grayish appearance. This method, it is said, renders the cloth practically waterproof, although still leaving it porous to air.

CLOUD BAROMETERS.

HOW TO FORETELL THE WEATHER BY LOOKING OVERHEAD.

Cirrus is the Highest of All Clouds, and Cumulus Is Much the Biggest of Any Form of Cloud—The Wettest Cloud of All Is Nimbus.

"It is clouding up. It must be going to rain." This is a remark you may hear constantly, and few people seem to realise that the one thing is by no means a consequence of the other. True, all clouds are composed of water vapor, but it is absurd to imagine that because clouds become visible in the sky they are therefore going to discharge their contents upon our heads.

On the contrary, some clouds are actually prophets of fine weather. Cirrus, for instance, or curl cloud, as it is often picturesquely called, is, as a rule, a fine weather harbinger. Cirrus is the highest of all clouds. You can tell that by the fact that its thin, twisty, fibrous streaks are illuminated by the last rays of the setting sun long after the earth below is wrapped in shadow. Threads and groups of cirrus clouds, the finer the better, appearing after a gale, presage a long continuance of settled weather. On the other hand, if after several fine days cirrus appears in long parallel bands stretching right across the sky in the form popularly known as "mares' tails," there will almost certainly be a change of wind and probably rain to follow.

Unlike other clouds, cirrus is composed not of water vapor, but of tiny crystals of ice. You can tell by its motion what the pace and direction of the highest current of wind. Quietly as it appears to be moving, careful observation has proved that cirrus sometimes travels at the rate of a mile in eighteen seconds.

Another form of cloud which is usually an accompaniment of fine, warm weather are those cottonlike, whitish balls which are scientifically termed cumulus.

Early in the morning of a fine summer day cumulus begins to form as a few soft, scattered specks in the blue above. These specks grow and enlarge without, as a rule, traveling very fast, for they are formed by vapor ascending from the earth in columns. By early afternoon they often cover the whole sky, but toward 4 or 5 o'clock they usually decrease and finally vanish by sunset. If they behave in this way you may be almost certain that the ensuing twenty-four hours will be fine.

On the other hand, if the cumulus clouds increase toward sunset, turn black in their centers and shine at the edges with an angry light, rain will follow, or, in very hot weather, thunder. Thunder is specially foretold by the cumulus clouds showing rounded, sharply marked tops with silvery white edges. Cumulus, which turns very dark with black, shaggy edges, means cold rain accompanied by wind.

Cumulus is much the biggest of any form of cloud. A single cloud of this description will measure six or even seven miles from its flat, dark base to its rounded, glistening summit—that is to say, its bulk and height far exceed those of earth's greatest mountains. The temperature in such a cloud as this has been measured to vary over 600 degrees—that is, from 60 degrees Fahrenheit at the base to 75 degrees below zero at its summit.

Stratus is still another form of cloud which presents no special indication of rain. It is more common at night than in the day and consists of long, horizontal bands of dartish cloud, which lie very low and near the earth's surface. It rises on calm, clear evenings after warm days and may often be seen in mountainous districts slowly creeping up the hillsides. If the sun rises through layers of stratus it is usually a sign of a fine, warm day to come. After sunrise, stratus, as a rule, rises higher into the air and slowly disappears.

In early summer, when the weather is showery, you may perhaps notice, through breaks in the rain clouds, an appearance of dense white cloudlets in small, irregular tufts brightly irradiated by sunshine. The children call it mackerel sky. Its real name is cirro cumulus, and it is a sure sign of heat and probably fine weather. Seen in winter, mackerel sky portends a thaw and wet, mild weather. It is the next highest cloud to the cirrus and is sometimes called sonder cloud.

A sure prophet of wind and rain is cirro stratus or vane cloud. It consists of long, thin clouds with torn edges flying at a great height above the earth. It is dull in color and irregular in shape.

The wettest cloud of all is nimbus, which is seen in its most perfect form during a thunderstorm. It is a mixture of other clouds, a dense black or gray sheet which often appears to come up against the wind. Usually when it first appears driving up over the horizon its edges are fringed and tipped with rolling masses of cumulus. The most ominous sign about a nimbus cloud is when its advancing summit is tipped with a mass of dense, white, smoky cloud, which seems to roll over and over. This is an omen of severe electrical disturbance and a furious squall.

A Cool Hand.

"Mamie, girl, that young man of yours has been coming now for almost a year."

"Yes, mother."

"Isn't it about time he was breaking the ice?"

"I don't believe he intends to break the ice. He's going to wear it out."

A woman in Russia until the day of her death, if she remain unmarried, is under the absolute sway of her parents.

A Nerve Skeleton.

One of the most interesting possessions of the museum at the Hahnemann Medical college in Philadelphia is a complete nerve skeleton made by Dr. Rufus B. Weaver, the famous neurologist. It is the only specimen of the kind in the world.

The Best Goats.

The best goats, say experts, are to be found in Nubia.

The Toad's Appetite.

In one toad's stomach have been found seventy-seven thousand-leg worms, in another's thirty-seven tent caterpillars, in another's sixty-five gypsy moth caterpillars and yet in another's fifty-five army worms. Thirty large caterpillars have been fed to a toad in less than three hours.

Hair.

Hair cut from the heads of dead women never proves satisfactory, an experienced hairdresser having no difficulty in detecting it.

Prunes.

A good prune should have a tough, shiny and elastic skin. Prunes with broken skins must have been overripe or rotten before they were dried.

The Sorrowful Tree.

A unique tree on the island of Goa, near Bombay, is the "sorrowful tree." That name is given to it because the tree has a drooping, sad appearance during the daytime, but its aspect changes as the sun goes down, when its leaves open and no longer droop, and fragrant blossoms come into bloom upon it.

Meal Beverages.

Milk may serve as a beverage at a meal consisting of fish, fruit, eggs and cereals, but should not be taken with meat. Neither should it be used when vegetables are eaten.

Coffee goes with meat.

Tea goes with eggs and fish, but not with meat, the tannin of the tea having a tendency to harden the meat fiber.

Sleeping Room Windows.

Simple hemstitched hems and a tuck or two in sheer muslin are by far the best window hangings for sleeping rooms. Easily laundered and looking well until they are worn out, they look much better after seeing service or being washed than the ruffled kind.

An ever ready glue pot is a most useful piece of property. It is easily prepared by putting naphtha in a wide mouthed bottle and dissolving shellac in it.

Two long linen runners, one each way of the table, are now used in some fashionable circles in preference to the whole cloth or doilies.

Rub a drop of olive oil on your knives and forks before putting away, and they will retain their brightness.

A calm room is one decorator's motto for all bedrooms.

WINDSTORMS.

The Distinction Between a Cyclone and a Hurricane.

The term cyclone is applied to a tornado of limited diameter and destructive violence. All storms, therefore, in which the wind has a circulating movement about a central area of low barometric pressure may properly be termed cyclones. Cyclones occur most frequently in these parts of the world which are subject to monsoons and take place at those seasons when the monsoons are changing. They sometimes extend over many thousands of square miles.

Tropical storms are known in the West Indies as hurricanes. These violent windstorms are of a diameter of from fifty to a thousand miles, wherein the air moves with a velocity of from 80 to 120 miles an hour round the central calm. Hence this term is applied to any storm or tempest in which the wind blows with terrific violence. In the Philippine Islands and on the southeastern coast of Asia such tropical storms are known as typhoons. The general disturbances of the middle latitudes are usually referred to as simply storms or areas of low barometric pressure.—London Answers.

SCOTLAND'S KILT.

The Origin of This Ancient and Picturesque Dress.

Some say that the kilt was the outcome of sumptuary laws enacted during the reigns of Mary and of her son, James VI. of Scotland and I. of England. These laws more or less directly suppressed the ancient tunic, which fell from the shoulders to below the knees, and had in the remoter parts of Great Britain and Ireland formed the outer dress of men from Roman times. When this was condemned, the wearers evaded the law by dividing the tunic at the waist, the upper part becoming a doublet and the lower the kilt.

The kilt, however, must have been of earlier date, for it is shown as a separate garment, pretty quilted from waist to knee, on many mediæval crosses and memorial slabs, including those at Kilkerran and Kilmoris, which date from before 1500.

It is from this plaiting, or "quilting," that it takes its name, and no doubt the sumptuary regulations promoted its general adoption.

Rough on the Doctor.

In the middle of the night not long ago there came a terrific ringing at a London doctor's bell. "Who's there?" he called down his speaking tube. In response a voice came back asking him to go at once to a house a mile and a half distant. The doctor got up, dressed and went out with the man whom he found waiting for him at the door. Together they walked over to the caller's residence. The disturber of his slumbers told the doctor that he had illness in his house and would like him to have a look at the case. When they entered the sickroom he said, "Now, be good enough to tell me if the case is serious enough for me to send at once for my own doctor or if it will do if I wait until morning."

Not Timid.

"They say capital is very timid," remarked the young man with the gold headed cane.

"Well, I guess you wouldn't think so," answered the young man with the cigarette, "if you'd have seen the way Maxie Goldrox's father treated me when I asked for her hand."

The Open Door.

"I—I would k-kiss you," stammered the diffident young man, "if I d-dared."

"Oh, don't be afraid!" rejoined the girl in the parlor scene. "I wouldn't strike a defenseless man."

Between Two Evils.

Mamma—Why, Johnny, aren't you ashamed of yourself to come into the house with such dirty hands?

Johnny—I'm going right out again, mamma, and I'd be awfully ashamed to be seen by the boys with clean hands.—Boston Transcript.

Severe Pains in the Back

Caused from Deranged Kidneys—Now Well and Gives Credit to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mrs. H. Trollope, 860 Water st., Peterboro Ont., states:—"I have used two boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and found them an excellent medicine. I had severe pains across the back which came from my kidneys being out of order, and after using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for a time I began to feel a wonderful improvement in my health. I have no more pains in my back now and am feeling as well as ever I did. Consequently, I am glad of an opportunity to recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Company, Toronto. To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

THE LONELY PRAIRIE.

A Trackless Waste Without Water or Human Habitation.

"I had almost as soon be set adrift in a small boat in midocean as to be dropped down on the vast prairie near the Kansas-Colorado state line," said a man who is familiar with the west.

"One cannot realize the loneliness of the western plains until he has crossed them. There are very few human habitations, comparatively little of the land is under cultivation, and water is a scarce and precious commodity. In every direction nothing meets the gaze of the eye except a trackless, treeless waste which is bounded only by the lowering sky. Prairie dogs are the chief denizens of this region, and as the rain whirls past they perch themselves on their hind legs and sit bolt upright as motionless as a statue. There are a few houses, but they are at wide intervals. The one single advantage that a lonely pedestrian has in that region is that by following the railroad track sufficiently far he will reach a town some day.

"It is positively tiresome to the eye to ride across the prairies in a comfortable Pullman car surrounded by all the luxuries of life. This being true, it must be next to appalling to have to tramp over this region without food or water except what one begs at the few way stations along the route. I have never been able to see anything picturesque or inviting about the wide stretching plains."

MATHEMATICAL SIGNS.

The Process by Which the Familiar Characters Were Evolved.

The sign of addition is derived from the initial letter of the word "plus." In making the capital letter it was made more and more carelessly until the top part of the "p" was placed near the center; hence the plus sign was finally reached.

The sign of subtraction was derived from the word "minus." The word was first contracted into mus, with a horizontal line above to indicate the contraction, which was a printer's freak that may be found in almost any book bearing a date earlier than the beginning of the eighteenth century. After the lapse of a long period of time the letters were omitted altogether, leaving only the short line so well known to all.

The multiplication sign was obtained by changing the plus sign into a character resembling the letter x. This was done simply because multiplication is but a shorter form of addition.

The radical sign was derived from the initial letter of the word "radix."

The sign of equality is said to have first been used in the year 1557 by a sharp mathematician, who adopted it as a substitute for the words "equal to."

HACKNEY COACHES.

They Were First Used in London in the Seventeenth Century.

In a letter dated April 1, 1639, Mr. Garrard, writing to the Earl of Strafford, says: "Here is one Captain Baily. He hath been a sea captain, but now lives in London, where he tries experiments. He hath erected according to his ability some four hackney coaches, put his men in a livery and appointed them to stand at the Maypole in the Strand, giving them instructions at what rate to carry men into several parts of the town, where all day they may be had.

"Other hackney men seeing this way, they flocked to the same place and performed their journeys at the same rate, so that sometimes there are twenty of them together, which disperse up and down."

Citizen shopkeepers bitterly complained of this, saying:

"Formerly when ladies and gentlemen walked in the streets there was a chance of customers, but now they whisk past in the coaches before our apprentices have time to cry out, 'What d'ye lack?'"

The word cab, a contraction of cabriolet, was not used until 1823.

THE WORD PICNIC.

Many Theories as to Its Origin, Which Is Uncertain.

The derivation of the word picnic is uncertain. In London Notes and Queries of 1853 attempts were made to trace its origin.

One correspondent says: "Under a French form the word appears in a speech of Robespierre, 'C'est ici qu'il doit m'accuser, et non dans les piquenniques.' An earlier instance occurs in one of Lord Chesterfield's letters, dated October, 1748."

Another writer of the same date tries to trace the word through France into Italy. Starting with the assumption that pique-nique in French implies a party at which each guest provides some particular dish or performs some special duty, he finds the Italian expressions nicchia (duty) and piccola (a trifling service), and from these he coins piccola nicchia (picnic.)

A French encyclopedia, 1863, has it that the word is compounded of the simple English pick (to choose) and nick (in the nick of time, on the spur of the moment). In France the term is also used for indoor picnics.

Trash in Love Letters.

Referring to love letters, who indeed does not write rubbish when he writes a love letter? The greatest geniuses have proved themselves to be temporarily the merest simpletons when they correspond with the fair ones whom they profess to adore. Byron, who was a very astute as well as a very eloquent poet, was thoroughly aware of this fact. A master stroke of determination not to become ridiculous in love letter writing was made by the Scotch writer to the signet, who always concluded his communications with, "Yours, dearest madam, without prejudice." But we cannot all of us be Scotch lawyers.—London Telegraph.

A Wonderful Spring.

An Arkansas farmer, describing to a tourist some of the wonderful properties of the mineral springs of that state, said, "Do you see that spring over there, stranger?" He said that he did, whereupon the farmer added: "Well, that's an iron spring, that is, and it's so mighty powerful that the farmers' horses about here that drink the water of it never have to be shod. The shoes just grow on their feet nat'rally."

No Longer.

A soft answer turneth away wrath. "Sir," wrote an angry subscriber to a provincial journal, "I don't want your paper any longer." To which the editor replied, "I wou'ln't make it any longer if you did."—London Globe.

His Position.

"What was at the bottom of that fight between Thompson and Jimpson?"

"Jimpson was till Thompson was pulled off."

Practical.

Young Alumnus—Yes, sir, I would like to enter your employ. I think I can fill the position satisfactorily as I've just been graduated and have diplomas in two degrees.

Busy Man (interrupting)—Come around again in about three months. In that time the edge will have worn off your diplomas and you'll be fit for business.—Detroit Free Press.

Technical.

"You little brat! You told your ma I broke that china dish!"

"Honest, I didn't, Bridget. I told her you dropped it, but I didn't tell her it was broke!"—New York American.

The Worst Kind.

After Piles have existed for a long time and passed through different stages, the suffering is intense—pain, aching throbbing, tumors form filled to bursting with black blood.

Symptoms indicating other troubles may appear to a thoroughly Pile-sick person.

This is when Hem-Roid, the only internal, the only absolute Pile cure brings the results that has made its fame.

It will cure the most stubborn case in existence and a bonded guarantee to that effect goes with each package.

It is to be had at the drug store. Sold in Peterborough by James Lynch, 168 Hunter-st.

MONDAY, AUG. 15, 1904.

STR. TUTTLE HAS ESCAPED.

Tug Violated Rules to Aid and Fleets Will Be Investigated.

Amherstburg, Aug. 15.—The steamer H. B. Tuttle, seized here by order of the maritime court, Saturday went aground when rounding to after being detained for six hours was released from the bank by the tug Home Rule after two hours work, and left at midnight for Buffalo without permission of the authorities and without clearance from customs.

This is the first time in 25 years that any boat under seizure left this port without permission. The officers will investigate and report the facts to Ottawa and Toronto, as it is claimed the tug had no right to move the vessel without permission.

A Minister Deported.

Washington, Aug. 15.—Alfred Burleigh Hall, who was arrested at Ellis Island as he landed from England on the charge that he was attempting to enter the country in violation of the immigration laws, Saturday was ordered by the immigration authorities to be deported. It was alleged that he had been convicted in Great Britain of a crime involving moral turpitude. The enquiry developed the truthfulness of the allegations. Hall established the Church of St. Mary's in Brooklyn.

British Torpedo Boat Sunk.

London, Aug. 15.—The British torpedo boat destroyer Decoy sank off the Sicily Islands Saturday night as the result of a collision with another destroyer. The crew were saved.

LAUNCH TURNED TURTLE

Ten Persons Drowned at Potomac Regatta on Saturday.

Washington District Officials Protested Against Continuance of the Races, But Officials in Charge Declined to Stop the Sport—Cheering of Competing Crews the Accompaniment to the Recovery of Victims Bodies.

Washington, Aug. 15.—Ten persons were drowned by the capsizing of a naptha launch on the Potomac River, Georgetown, the western section of this city, during the annual Potomac regatta Saturday. Four others who were on the launch escaped. The dead:

A. J. Boase, about 35 years of age, a salesman; J. George Smith; Charles F. Blumer, 40 years old, a druggist; J. Herbert Coates, about 35 years old, a tailer, of McKeesport, Pa.; John Waldman, 20 years old; William Smith, about 25 years old, an employe of the navy yard; Mrs. Lulu Dreyfuss; Miss Bertha Selbach, Helen Hiser, Helen Moore. All of the victims except Coates lived in this city.

Many of the spectators, including officials of the District Government, protested against the continuance of the racing, in view of the tragedy, but the officials in charge declined to stop the sport.

The cheering for the competing crews as they passed the scene of the tragedy, and the shrill and deafening whistles of the pleasure craft continued while the bodies of the unfortunate victims were being grappled for, dragged into view, and sent to the police station.

Twenty Were Drowned.

London, Aug. 15.—The British barque Inverkip, from Melbourne for Queenstown, was sunk and 20 persons were drowned as the result of a collision off Fastnet Rock, Ireland, Saturday night, with the British ship Loch Carron from the Clyde.

Man Burned to Death.

Arnprior, Aug. 15. — Saturday night, about half-past ten, John Berthiaume, a Frenchman, was burned to death in a fire in C. A. Dagenais' hotel here. The unfortunate man, who had been overpowered by the flames, died a few minutes after assistance reached him. It is supposed that deceased had been smoking while in bed. Deceased was about 36 years of age.

Accidentally Shot.

Cookeville, Aug. 15.—Sidney Miller was accidentally shot by Stanley Rayliance at the Reserve House yesterday morning. The men were drunk, when Rayliance took a revolver from his pocket and, not knowing it was loaded, pulled the trigger. The ball entered Miller's left side, struck a rib and glanced downwards, lodging in the fleshy part of the hip. It is not thought serious results will follow. Miller and Roylance are cousins, 21 and 19 years of age respectively, and are here on a two months' holiday. Their home is in London, Eng.

Discharged Gun in Face.

Montreal, Aug. 15.—At the Valois regatta Saturday the starting gun was discharged, almost point-blank, into the right cheek and ear of Gilbert McGibbon, the 12-year-old son of R. D. McGibbon, K.C. The result will not be fatal, but the injuries are serious.

DEATH IN THE STORM.

Three Deaths Caused By the Lightning on Saturday Night.

Cayuga, Aug. 15.—An electric storm of great violence passed over the village Saturday evening. Several places were struck. Mrs. Edmund Cousins was sitting in her house when an electric bolt struck the window, and piercing the glass killed her instantly. The bolt apparently struck her arm and neck. Her baby, about one month old, was in the mother's arms at the time and escaped, apparently unhurt.

Found Mother Dead.

Wingham, Aug. 15.—A severe electric storm passed over this section on Saturday. In Turnberry the barn of Wm. Robinson was burned and another in East Wawanosh. Mrs. Alex. Bruce was upstairs in her residence near Marnock when the electric fluid struck the house, setting it on fire. Her son ran up and found his mother dead and her clothing on fire. She was 72 years old. The family were all shocked by the lightning stroke.

Storm Concealed Engine.

Welland, Aug. 15.—At the crossing of the G. T. R., about three miles north of Port Robinson, Robert Misner, a prominent farmer of Thorold township, lost his life. He was driving with a lumber wagon from Allanburg and was probably blinded by the storm and did not notice a Wabash engine, which was running light. One horse was killed and the other badly injured.

Power House Ablaze.

Hamilton, Aug. 15.—Saturday the power house at Beamsville was struck by lightning and burned to the ground.

Barns Burned.

Woodstock, Aug. 15.—A severe electrical storm passed over this district Saturday evening. The lightning was exceptionally severe and several barns in this vicinity are reported burned, including a fine new barn, 80 feet by 95 feet, belonging to William Clark of the second concession of Blandford. Mr. Clark's wife and two daughters were milking when it was struck. They were uninjured, though the fluid passed close to them. The building was totally destroyed. The loss was about $1,500.

Barn Destroyed.

Cooksville, Aug. 15.—As a result of Saturday's severe electric storm, the barn of John Hopkins, Dundas street, was struck by lightning and completely destroyed with contents. Loss $1,500.

Waves Around Guelph.

Guelph, Aug. 15.—In Eramosa the barn of Thomas Talbot, on the gravel road, was struck by lightning and the building, with all its contents, including some stock, was destroyed. The barn of W. H. Poole, Puslinch, below Galt, was also struck and burned, with the wheat, barley and hay. Samuel May's barn, Puslinch, on the Blatchford corner, on the Waterloo road, below Gourock, also fell a victim to fire caused by lightning.

Season's Crops Burned.

Grimsby, Aug. 15. — Lightning struck the barn on W. B. Russ' farm, south of this village, which, with the season's crop of hay and wheat, was destroyed by fire. Loss on buildings is estimated at $2,000.

Largest Pulp Mill in World.

St. John's Nfld., Aug. 15.—Sir Alfred Harmsworth and a number of newspaper proprietors of London have just closed negotiations for 1,500 square miles of timber areas in the interior of Newfoundland, on which they propose to erect the largest pulp mill in the world.

Turks Destroy Armenian Villages.

Constantinople, Aug. 15.—A band of Armenians has been attacked by Turkish troops in the village of Schamirun, five hours travel north of Bitlis, Asiatic Turkey. The villages are reported to have been destroyed.

Sentenced Boys to Whipping.

Kingston, Aug. 15.—The four boys guilty of theft of raisins, pop, candy and tobacco from the K. & P. Railway sheds were Saturday ordered by the magistrate to be thrashed, and the police carried out the sentence.

Gamey at Sundridge.

Sundridge, Aug. 15.—Saturday was Civic Holiday. Saturday evening R. H. Gamey, M. P. P., addressed a crowded meeting in the Orange Hall, which closed with cheers for Mr. Whitney and the speaker.

Fell Dead From Bicycle.

Ottawa, Aug. 15.—Fred Aldrich, clerk in the Militia and Defence Department, dropped dead last night while bicycling. He was about fifty years of age.

MUST FALL AT ANY COST

Mikado of Japan Has Ordered the Taking of Port Arthur.

Such Is a St Petersburg Report and Other Despatches Bear It Out—Hints and Jap Reports of the "Cutting Out" of the Ryeshitelai Do Not Agree, But the Cruiser Will Be Returned.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 15.—The Bourse Gazette has received the following from its Liaoyang correspondent:

"Twelve Japanese regiments have left in the direction of Port Arthur.

"It is stated on trustworthy authority that the Mikado has ordered that Port Arthur must be taken at any cost, even if it necessitates the suspension of operations in Manchuria, and it is quite possible that the main Japanese forces will proceed to Port Arthur within a few days. Rain has stopped all operations."

To Ask Non-Combatants to Leave.

London, Aug 15.—A despatch from Tokio Saturday, says: "Another sign that a general assault on Port Arthur is imminent is found in the fact that the Emperor of Japan has notified Field Marshal Yamagata, chief of the general staff, of his desire that non-combatants—women, priests, merchants, diplomats and officers of neutral powers—be allowed an opportunity to leave the fortress. The chief of staff consequently instructed the Japanese commander at Fort Dalny to accord the necessary facilities for their removal.

RUSS AND JAPS DIFFER.

Meanwhile the Captured Cruiser Ryeshitelai Will Be Returned.

London, Aug. 15.—The Che Foo correspondent of The Daily Telegraph, under date of Aug. 13, says: "Admiral Sah states that the Japanese promised to return the Ryeshitelai to-day."

The Russian Report.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 15.—The Emperor has received a telegram from Capt. Shestakovsky, commander of the Russian torpedo boat destroyer Ryeshitelai, in which he relates the attack of the Japanese cruisers and says his ship was unarmed.

As Told in Tokio.

Tokio, Aug. 15.—The Navy Department has issued a statement covering the Che Foo incident. It states that Capt. Fujimoto, anticipating its escape during the night, if possible, to attack merchant vessels, entered Che Foo with the two destroyers and found the Russian destroyer Ryeshitelai remaining undisarmed. Lieut. Terashima was then sent to the Russian vessel with a message to the effect that the Japanese commander expected him to leave by dawn or surrender. The Russian commander refused to comply with either demand, and while the conference was still going on he was heard instructing the men to blow up the ship. While this was progressing the forward magazine exploded, killing one and mortally injuring four of our men. We then captured the destroyer and retired. Lieut. Terashima and ten others were wounded."

France Asked to Act.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 15.—By command of the Emperor, Foreign Minister Lamadorff has instructed the Russian Ambassador at Paris to request that France, on behalf of Russia, shall lodge a strong protest with the French Minister at Tokio against what is described as an outrageous violation of Chinese neutrality and of universally recognized principles of international law. The foreign powers have also been informed of the Russian declaration.

British Cabinet Interested.

London, Aug. 15.—The cutting out of the Russian torpedo boat destroyer Ryeshitaini by the Japanese torpedo boat destroyers at Che Feo has eclipsed for the moment in the public mind the steamer Knight Commander incident. Both, however, are receiving the earnest attention of the Cabinet.

Must Pay Indemnity.

London, Aug. 15.—Besides restoring the Ryeshitelai, the Russian Embassy here says Japan will have to apologize to China and promise to pay an indemnity to the families of the Russian seamen killed in the fighting at Che Foo.

Booth's Automobile Tour.

London, Aug. 15.—General Booth, who has begun a great evangelistic tour by automobile, is meeting greater enthusiasm than has been known since John Wesley rode through England on a similar mission. It is likely to be the same during all his journey to the north, for since the King and Queen put their stamp of approval on the social and religious work in which the general is engaged, his path has been strewn with roses. He started the tour at Penzance. A few years ago he was actually stoned in these same Cornish villages, where last week he was feted.

Sealers Carried Firearms.

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 15.—A letter from Dutch Harbor, received Saturday, states that the sealer Teresa was seized on the 27th ult. for carrying firearms. The Teresa was followed by five other Victoria schooners and all are supposed to have been treated similarly.

China holds the world's record in the way of executions. There are at least 12,000 legal executions yearly.

Smokeless Fire.

If a sheet of paper be laid at the bottom of a grate so as to prevent air from coming up between the bars and a fire built on this and lighted from the top, such a fire will be practically smokeless.

Canadian Girl Suicides.

Orange, N.Y., Aug. 15.—Miss Ethel K. Pardoe of Norval, Ont., 25 years old, who was employed by Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, wife of the inventor, as a governess for the Edison children, committed suicide yesterday at the residence of Mrs. Annie G. Miller, by turning on the gas. She worried much in the discharge of her duties as governess. Three years ago anonymous letters were received by the Edisons, containing threats to kidnap the children, and Mrs. Edison frequently cautioned Miss Pardoe to be careful. Miss Pardoe was of a nervous disposition. Letters found in her room indicated that her father, a Canadian clergyman, died last winter.

Carberry Suffers From Fire.

Carberry, Man., Aug. 15.—A fire starting early yesterday morning in Harvey Gilmore's store, did $40,000 damage, and threatened at one time to destroy the whole town. It was stopped by the united efforts of the citizens. The chief losers are: T. D. Stickle, owner of the block destroyed, $15,000; insurance, $9,000; Harvey Gilmore, stock, $14,000; insurance, $9,000; Misses Jones and Dundas, $3,500, insurance, $2,000; J. E. Rowe, $325, covered by insurance; G. E. Richardson, $400, covered by insurance.

Marcus Smith Dead.

Smokeless Powder Gas.

Smokeless powder emits a most deadly gas which, if confined, works havoc. When used in the open field or battlements there is usually enough wind blowing to carry away the fumes, but when fired from turrets on board ship the gases are liable to be blown back into the compartment.

SEATHING FLAMING CALDRON

4s Port Arthur and Its Fall is Expected Any Minute.

JAPANESE ARE NOW BUSY

All the Russian Positions Are in Danger and Japs Threaten to Use Lyddite if the Returned Ships Are Sunk --They Save 600 Russians.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 16.—The expectation here is that Port Arthur will fall at any moment. Especial significance is attached to the fact that Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel's wife and children went to Che Foo on board the torpedo boat destroyer Ryeshitelni.

Threatened With Lyddite.

Che Foo, Aug 16.—Junks which arrived here yesterday, having left Port Arthur, Aug. 12, brought reports that the Japanese occupied new positions and that the firing was heavy, but intermittent and indicated that assaults were being continued. The Russians at Port Arthur are reported to be down-hearted.

The men who came on the junks declare that the commander of the Japanese fleet before Port Arthur informed the Russian commander of the place that if the warships which returned to the harbor after the sortie of Aug 10 were sunk by the Russians, the Japanese would shell the town with lyddite.

A Chinaman who has arrived here from Liaoyang declared that the casualties in the recent fighting in that vicinity have been enormous on both sides.

Attack Begun.

Chee Foo, Aug. 16.—That a general land and naval attack was made on Port Arthur yesterday is indicated by information from various sources. A statement that the naval attack was made at 4 o'clock in the morning comes from an authoritative, but not diplomatic, quarter.

Junks which arrived here yesterday say the Japanese recently occupied the Liatui Hills and Sushiyen, which is two or three miles north of the fortress.

Five warships and seven torpedo boat destroyers, according to the junks, returned to Port Arthur the night of Aug. 10.

A Seething Cauldron.

Paris, Aug. 16.—The Journal's St. Petersburg correspondent learns that the Japanese now hold all the positions which dominate Port Arthur. In the dark hours of early morning the great siege guns of the Japanese opened on all the hills around the stronghold, and a rain of fire fell on all the Russian positions, the town, dock yards and harbor.

The bursting of the Japanese shells, fires kindled thereby, and the flashes of the Russian guns in reply to the bombardment, made the space within the semi-circle of the Japanese lines visible a seething caldron of flame and smoke, as seen from surrounding hilltops.

Oku Sends Aid.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 16.—The general staff is inclined to believe the reports that a large contingent of General Oku's army has gone to Port Arthur and that in the meanwhile he does not expect decisive operations.

Pallada Gone, Too?

Tokio, Aug. 16.—Admiral Toro reports that a vessel of the type of the protected cruiser Pallada was torpedoed and sunk in the engagement of Aug. 10.

Saved 600 Russians.

Washington, Aug. 16.—The Japanese Legation yesterday received a despatch from the Foreign Office at Tokio saying that Admiral Kamimura reports that at dawn on Aug. 14 his squadron discovered the three vessels of the Vladivostock squadron off Ulsan, southern coast of Corea, steaming southward.

The Russian vessels on sighting the Japanese squadron attempted to escape northward, but were prevented, and fighting commenced at 8.23.

All the enemy's ships caught fire several times by reason of the Japanese shells and apparently suffered heavily, especially the Rurik.

Eventually the Russians fled at full speed northward, leaving behind the Rurik, which afterward sank.

Thereupon the Japanese squadron began the rescue of the drowning Russians, and picked up 600.

The Rurik Lunges.

Tokio, Aug. 16.—A despatch to the Asahi-Shimbun from the naval establishment at Takashika says: The Rurik sank by the stern, her bow standing up perpendicularly. The Rossia and the Gromoboi caught fire several times and were heavily damaged. Only one of the Japanese ships was hit. Two Japanese were killed and seven wounded.

Novik Reported Sunk.

Che Foo, Aug. 16.—An unconfirmed report which has reached here from Tsingtau says the Russian cruiser Novik, which put into Tsingtau after the battle of Aug. 10, off Port Arthur, and which coaled there and put to sea within her 24-hours' limit, has been sunk forty miles from Tsingtau.

Alexieff Leaves Mukden Hurriedly.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 16.—It is reported that Viceroy Alexieff has left Mukden hurriedly for Vladivostock on receipt of news that the illness of Vice-Admiral Bezobrazoff had taken a serious turn and that the admiral was not expected to recover.

Japs Driven Back.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 16.—The Emperor has received the following despatch from Viceroy Alexieff, dated Aug. 13:

"According to a report from Port Arthur, Aug. 10, the Japanese attacked Taku and Sahou Mountains in enormous forces during the night of Aug. 10. During a heavy rainstorm the Japanese attacked our east front, but were repulsed at all points. They also attacked simultaneously our whole front, from Wolf Hills to Taku Mountain, but everywhere were driven back. The fortress has been bombarded from the east side for four days."

Oku Out and Out Caught.

Tsingtau, Aug. 16.—The Russian battleship Czarevitch and three destroyers are now in the hands of the Local Government for repairs, but it is improbable that these vessels will fight again in this war. According to the regulations which govern such situations the destroyers will not be permitted to leave in a body, but must go out at intervals of six hours. It is believed here that the Russian cruisers Pallada and Diana have reached Vladivostock.

The Succession to the Throne.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 16.—Emperor Nicholas has issued a manifesto determining the order of succession to the throne. In the event of the Emperor dying before the Czarevitch attains his majority, the Emperor's brother, Grand Duke Michael, is to become Regent, the Empress assuming the guardianship of the Czarevitch. It is believed that this manifesto marks the curtailment of the hitherto dominant influence of the Dowager Empress.

A TRIUMPHAL TOUR.

R. L. Borden Gets An Ovation All the Way Home in Nova Scotia—Elections in Fall.

Halifax, N. S., Aug. 16.—Ten thousand people gathered at the station and on the streets in that locality to welcome R. L. Borden, the leader of the Opposition, back to his home in this city.

It was the biggest demonstration of the kind ever seen in the Province of Nova Scotia, and one which will long be remembered. The Montreal Express was half an hour late, but upon its arrival repeated cheers were sent up from the thousands in and around the station.

As Mr. and Mrs. Borden stepped from the train the little daughter of [illegible] presented Mrs. Borden with a magnificent bouquet of carnations and roses.

The leader was escorted to the waiting carriage by the Scottish pipers band, and a procession of carriages half a mile long, with four bands, was formed. The principal streets of the city were traversed, and it took hours from the time the train arrived until Mr. Borden's house was reached, almost every foot of the way being lined with a cheering throng. Stores and private residences along the line of march were illuminated, and fireworks and bombs were much in evidence.

At the house the procession, which had remained almost intact, drew up as compactly as possible and cheered their leader time and time again. Mr. Borden made a short speech, thanking them from the bottom of his heart for the many evidences of friendship shown.

During the whole journey through Nova Scotia the train was met at every station by large and enthusiastic crowds. Mr. Borden's ride home was a triumphal tour.

Elections in Fall.

St. John, N. B., Aug. 16.—R. L. Borden, who spent yesterday forenoon in St. John, said that he is confident from information which has reached him that the Government intends to bring on the elections the last of October or first of November.

A RECORD WHEAT CROP.

C.P.R. Bulletin Indicates That Fine Spell Assures Heavy Yield.

Winnipeg, Aug. 16.—The latest crop bulletin C. P. R. issued last night, says the indications for wheat break all previous records for abundance. Almost every station agent agrees that the fine spell assures heavy yield. Cutting will be general by the end of the week.

Latest reports on crops collected by the Dominion Immigration Department is favorable without exception. In the far west the dry spell had no damaging effect generally. Superb weather in the preceding part of the season has brought grain to a very advanced stage. Government agents, estimating on wheat yield, never get below 20 bushels, while some expect over 40 bushels per acre.

Reports on Northern Assiniboia and Saskatchewan are particularly encouraging. The following are characteristic: Battleford, every indication points to this crop as being a record-breaker, with an acreage this year fully 30 per cent. larger than last. With splendid weather all the season crops had advanced too far to be damaged by the hot spell during the latter part of July. This spell of warm weather had the beneficial effect of drying up the hay swamps and relieving the ranchers from anxiety.

Yorkton—The outlook for an average crop encouraging. The area of new land under cultivation has increased over the acreage under crop last year by at least 25 per cent.

Manitoba—The Government in preparing the crop report and will estimate the average yield over the province at 22.5 bushels wheat per acre.

THE GRIT RACIAL CRY

It is amusing to hear the Lauriers, Bournassa, Lemieux and Lavergnes crying that they have to be taken as loyal because of Chateauguay. What have they to do with Chateauguay? It is no heritage of their's. There were brave and loyal men at Chateauguay, but they were not of the stripe of these pretenders. Then, as now, the majority of the people of Quebec were loyal then, as now, they were Conservatives, but the Rouge minority was not loyal then any more than it is now, when their leader boasted that he would like to be a rebel with Riel and shoot our brave militia, or when he declared that no Canadian volunteer should go to South Africa, or raised a race cry against Charles Tupper for arming our militia, or calls the best general commanding we have ever had a dragooning foreigner, ignorant of our ways, because he protested against the force being turned into a political machine. It was no more loyal then than now, when Sir Wilfrid Laurier in Le Soleil, his organ, advertised as such within the precincts of Parliament, makes a vile appeal to racial and religious prejudices.

If any racial cry has been used in connection with Sir Wilfrid Laurier, it has been raised by himself and his friends in his interest. They abuse as traitors any in Quebec who do not aid in giving him a solid vote because he is a French Canadian. Did Ontario vote solid for Macdonald, Mackenzie and Howell, or the Maritime Provinces for Thompson and Tupper, or Quebec, even the English speaking portion, for Abbott? Mercier, with Laurier as his lieutenant, raised the Nationalist cry that the French Canadians were the only true Canadians, and must band themselves together. Then the Liberals of the other Provinces who had shouted "French domination" when Sir John Macdonald got a moderate majority from this Conservative province, saw that this Mercierism would give them a chance for a "pull," and sold themselves for office to the men they had been abusing.

There was no racial cry under Macdonald and Cartier, and none since till it was raised by the Rouges and Grits. Now with Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir Frederick Borden at their head they are renewing this nefarious agitation.

In addressing the Convention of Friends Premier Ross spoke of electors going conscientiously to the ballot box. What is the use of that when he and his colleagues employ agents to spoil the ballots or substitute others for them?

The Toronto News says that "this Province seems to have lost its old ascendancy in national affairs." Yes, that is why the Laurier worshippers made him chief, that he might bring a solid Quebec to dominate.

The Montreal Star says:—

"Ontario will not regain her old ascendancy until she breaks the bonds of mercenary and sordid party tyranny which now drives men of decent instinct out of the party which holds office at both capitals. Imagine Mr. Edward Blake leading a government with Stratton in the Cabinet, or rising in the House of Commons to defend the appointment of J. B. Jackson to an important representative post in England. Imagine Alexander Mackenzie making the office of Auditor-General untenable for Mr. Macdougall!"

Some of the independent papers seem to think that Mr. Borden is Premier of Canada. Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his colleagues stole about three millions of public money to share with grafters for their corruption fund and under pressure disgorged about a million. By blaming Mr. Borden in connection with this iniquity it is hoped to acquire a reputation for independence and ingenuity. It is not in accord with our system of responsible government, which holds the party in power to account for their misdeeds, not the Opposition for failing to prevent the robbery. The proper remedy is to turn the self-confessed rascals out.

THE JACKSON APPOINTMENT

Sir Richard Cartwright Defends Iniquity and his own Complicity.

Mr. J. B. Jackson appeared in an exceedingly undesirable role in the South Oxford election case. The charges laid against Mr. Donald Sutherland broke down. Certain of the evidence brought down upon Mr. Jackson's head one of the most scathing rebukes ever administered by the bench to a solicitor. Judge Street's words are worth recalling. "I must call attention," he said, "to the improper, reprehensible means which have been proved here to have been devoted to an absolutely improper purpose. We cannot — it is impossible — to follow ramifications of such extent. I feel that in this case I cannot get out of my mind certainly the possibility of the course of justice having been affected by this expenditure of money. I consider a counsel in arguing a case of this kind is certainly justified in referring to this fact.

"Here is a man of the lowest possible character (the witness). Mr. Jackson, of Ingersoll, has associated with men of the lowest possible character. It is evident he must have desired evidence to have been made to procure the proving of charges in this petition. There is no doubt of it. I have seen nothing like it in court in my experience before. How is it possible for me to trust it?"

The man whose conduct drew down this rebuke was appointed to a lucrative and important post in the Dominion service. He was sent abroad to represent Canada to the merchants of the North of England. Sir Richard Cartwright on the floor of the House of Commons has defended the appointment. The spoils system, the machine method of politics could have no greater triumph. A publicist of the rank and eminence of Sir Richard Cartwright has laid down the theory that the civil service is a fit means of paying for the dirty work which parties sometimes require.

Very little need be said of Mr. Jackson. Judge Street has said it, under particularly impressive circumstances. The man labors under an ineffaceable stigma. Sir Richard Cartwright's defence of him is that he played the part of a detective. In that capacity he performed the unpleasant, repulsive and morally degrading work which is popularly supposed to attach to the lowest grades of detective duty. Even in that he did not "act with discretion"—a remarkable euphuism. But anyway, Sir Richard continued, he had not been prosecuted.

Let us grant these things. Let us grant that thick-skinned persons are needed who are not too squeamish to associate with low characters. Let us grant that parties are justified in hiring and paying such persons. What has that to do with the civil service? Why should the people of Canada pay party detectives? The service controlled by Sir Richard Cartwright is in especial need of men of good standing. Englishmen are in the habit of looking for high character as well as for mental acuteness in their public servants. What must the merchants of Leeds think of the business morality, of the probity of public life in Canada? They are given to understand that the man sent especially to represent the Dominion to them was given as a reward for what, under the most favourable construction, must be regarded as the dirty work of the lowest party politics. Sir Richard might have found him a position that would have kept him in Canada. Better still, the man might have been given a cash payment from the party funds.

It is deeply regrettable to see Sir Richard Cartwright on the floor of the House of Commons enunciate and defend the brazen doctrine that the public service is the refuge of the party hack. His voice was loudest, his phrases the most biting, when Conservatives were guilty of such practices. Now he defends the very same iniquities.—Toronto News, Indep.

THE COBOURG CANAL ROUTE

A Claim that it is no more Feasible than any Proposed.

(Sentinel-Star.)

The vote in the supplementary estimates of $311,000 for the Trent Canal has passed the Committee of Supply and the Minister explained that the money was for the purpose of constructing a lift lock at Kirkfield, completing this work between Simcoe and Balsam lakes, and surveying the outlets to determine the route at both ends. This survey vote may be a mere election mirage to keep the plum dangling before the eyes of several constituencies so as to keep them in line for the government. But I am not starting in to be made war thing Cobourg should step in and claim that we have the best route and most outlet for this canal. The project has been discussed between the advocates of the Trent river route, and those of a big ditch into Port Hope. The advocates of the Trent river route claim that they have a sheltered harbor, and that barges can be brought down through the Bay of Quinte and to the unloading place for ocean voyage without withstanding the severe lake storms. The advocates of the Port Hope route contend that they have an easy route almost a natural channel from Rice Lake to Lake Ontario, with rock cutting at Port Hope, while in the Trent route expensive blasting will have to be done. They also claim that Port Hope has a good harbor, and the passage of barges down the lake will be safe. While we are not interested in the discussion between the two rival routes, we are interested in a route from Rice Lake to Cobourg. This is the best, the best and most feasible route, and should commend itself to the government. The reason we would push in advocacy of the Cobourg route is that we are seven miles nearer the Bay of Quinte than Port Hope, thus cutting down the danger from Lake storms almost to a maximum. Then we have the only harbor of refuge on the lake, and this alone should commend itself as one well worthy of government attention. No doubt before a very distant day our harbor will be taken over by the government, and be of more than ordinary use to the government of the day. By this route there will be no rock cutting, or expensive work, no overhead bridges, or obstructions, but one railway to cross, while the others have several crossings to make, entailing expensive bridges.

Our Port Hope friends have put up a big fight for this canal, their efforts are commendable, but while this has been going on we have watched events, and now that a vote for surveys has practically passed, we come upon the scene, and we think that Senator Kerr and Mr. McColl, M.P., should have little trouble in convincing the government that the route via Cobourg is the most feasible, the least expensive, and the best that can be selected for this canal from Rice Lake to Lake Ontario and the Bay of Quinte.

STAND BY "CONSTITOOSHIN"

Why Should Ministers and not Aldermen Interfere with Official Exports.

Why does not the great heart of the party organ go out to Ald. Frank Woods as he stands with both feet planted on the embattled rock of his country's "constitooshin."

"Cabinet Minister" is merely "Alderman" writ large and the fact that Hon. Sydney Fisher is in the Government and Ald. Woods in the City Council does not dislocate the analogy between their respective sets of interference.

For Mr. Woods represents the people just as truly as Hon. Sydney Fisher represents the people, and he represents a more populous constituency than Brome, P.Q.

There is no difference in principle between Ald. Fisher's interference with Chief Dumbrell's management of the Militia Department and Hon. Frank Woods' interference with Lord Thompson's management of the Fire Department.

Nor is there a great and profound difference in size between Mr. Woods and Mr. Fisher.

It is for the organs to explain why the Cabinet Ministers, who are the country's aldermen, rank as patriots upholding the "constitooshin" when they take control of the Militia Department away from its chief, and the aldermen who are the city's Cabinet Ministers, rank as disturbers of the peace when they take control of the Fire Department away from its chief.—Toronto Telegram.

DESTRUCTION OF WEEDS

SURFACE CULTIVATION IS THE BEST MEANS.

How to Restore the Fertility of the Soil and Make a Good Living off the Land.

In the older provinces of Canada the majority of the farms have been decreasing in soil fertility year by year. Many of the pioneer farmers assumed that the richness of the virgin soil was practically inexhaustible, a mistake that is all too frequently repeated by the settlers on our new lands at the present day. With the deep, rich vegetable mold of the virgin soil, and looking to the present rather than to the future, it seemed profitable to the early settlers to exhaust the available fertility of the upper layer, and then bring to the surface by deep ploughing a lower layer to suffer the same treatment. In this way the vegetable matter of humus has been largely exhausted, and the soil has lost its fine texture and mellowness, its capacity for absorbing and retaining water, its permeability to roots, its capacity for absorbing and retaining heat, all of which are regarded by scientists as more important than the actual chemical composition of the soil.

Restoring Fertility.—The problem to-day is how to restore the fertility of the soil and at the same time make a living off the land. What system of cultivation will enable us to obtain a fair amount of vegetable matter to the depth of at least a few inches? The Ontario and Dominion Experimental Farms seems to have solved the problem by adopting shallow cultivation, and a systematic rotation of crops in which clover occupies a prominent place. Under this method, as outlined by Prof. Reynolds, the land is ploughed only once in three or four years all the rest of the cultivation being done with harrows, cultivators, and other implements which cut, crush, pulverise and loosen, but do not invert the soil.

The Land in Summer and Fall.—To show clearly the method of summer cultivation, let us suppose that the second year's crop has been taken off a clover field. The sod is ploughed about August, as early as possible in order to take advantage of the summer's heat to decompose the roots. Then it is harrowed to loosen the surface and prevent the escape of moisture, which is also required in decomposition. After that it is cultivated frequently, without tearing up the sod, the objects being to destroy the weeds that may be growing and to enable the sod to rot by keeping in the moisture. As the manure is plowed in with the sod, it will be well decomposed before winter, thus ensuring a good supply of humus for the next crop. The last thing in the fall the land should be ribbed up in the same manner as for turnip drills. This is best done with a double moulding plough. This ribbing prevents leaching away of the plant food, most of which is heaped into the drills, exposes a greater surface to the pulverizing action of frost, and allows a more rapid drying in the spring, and consequently earlier working and seeding.

Probably the next crop will be ensilage corn or roots. In the spring the ridges are smoothed down and a good seed bed formed without using the plough. After the crop is sown, surface cultivation is continued to kill the weeds and conserve the moisture. In the fall the ground is again ribbed up for winter. The following year a spring grain crop may be sown and the land seeded down, completing the rotation.

When Weeds are Troublesome.—Surface cultivation affords the best means of destroying weeds. There are, of course, various ways of eradicating troublesome weeds, depending largely upon the sort of crops grown and the nature of the weeds themselves. One method is to prevent the seed from maturing, by growing a hoed crop, or an early maturing crop, such as clover. With a late maturing crop, which allows the weed seeds to germinate the same season, when the young plants can be destroyed. Under such circumstances it is a too common practice to bury the seeds by deep ploughing, leaving them in a condition to come to the surface and germinate in some future crop, in which very likely it will be impossible to destroy them.

Poultry Demonstration

Mr. Elford, the poultry expert, of Ottawa, will superintend the showing of a complete model hennery under the auspices of the Dominion Government at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, August 29th to September 10th. Poultry raising during recent years has become such an important industry, both with exclusive breeders and with general farmers throughout Canada that the Government wisely decided to demonstrate all that was most modern and most successful in incubation, brooding, rearing and feeding. For those who keep poultry, whether for profit or pleasure, the information derived from this exhibit will be extremely valuable.

TWO JEW MASSACRES

Czar's Subjects Slain in City of Ostrovitz and in Petzeveh.

Orthodox Christians Inhabitants Avenge An Alleged Crime, and After An All-Day Massacre Twenty Jews Were Killed—Clergyman Provokes a Riot and Over 100 Jews Were Severely Wounded—Telegram Minimizes the Results.

New York, Aug. 16.—The Jewish Morning Journal yesterday printed the following from its Warsaw (Russia) correspondent:

"On Sunday, July 31, in the city of Ostrovitz, Government of Rodom, a Jew was quarreling with a Gentile. The latter, who was an epileptic, fell during the encounter as a result of one of his epileptic fits. The Christian bystanders, however, raised the cry that the Jew murdered their comrade. In a short time all the Christian inhabitants of the town turned out and proceeded to avenge the alleged crime. The riot that ensued resolved itself into an awful massacre of Jews, of whom twenty were killed, and a great number were wounded. The massacre lasted all day.

"Another massacre occurred on Saturday, July 30, in the town of Potseveh, Government of Sedlitz, in the following manner:

"A local clergyman induced a small Hebrew girl to embrace the Christian faith. The parents of the girl went to the church where their daughter was confined, accompanied by some of their Jewish friends, and demanded her release on the ground that the girl was under age and could not act independently in such matters, and that consequently her parents had the right to interfere with her action. The clergyman, seeing that the Jews were determined to use force if necessary, called the mayor to his aid. The two incited the populace against the Jews and a fierce riot ensued. More than 100 Jews were severely wounded. The number of dead is unknown, because the police withhold the facts."

One Killed, Twenty Wounded.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 16.—The department of police of the Ministry of the Interior said yesterday that one person was killed and twenty wounded in a Jewish riot at Ostrovitz, and that a few persons were wounded in the Province of Sedlitz. The disorders in the latter part of the country arose from a Jewess having been converted to Orthodoxy.

ALLANS ON THE PACIFIC.

Will Run to Orient From Pacific Terminus of G.T.P.

Montreal, Aug. 16.—A big sensation was sprung in shipping circles here yesterday afternoon, when it was semi-officially announced that the Allan Line is going into direct competition with the Canadian Pacific Railway fleet of steamships on the Pacific by themselves establishing a Pacific fleet which will be run from the Pacific terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway to the Orient.

The fleet will be ready when the G. T. P. is completed and will make a strong bid for the business of the east. No announcement will be made as to the details of the project.

C.P.R. Lake Liners For Ocean Service.

New York, Aug. 16.—The Canadian Pacific Railway, at the close of St Lawrence navigation will put 17 ships on the New Orleans and Galveston service. In addition to the existing Atlantic fleet of 14 vessels, three liners will be brought through the canals from the lakes. Shipping circles fear disastrous competition this year.

BOUGHT THOROUGHBRED STOCK.

Hon. John Dryden, Home From England Tells of His Trip.

Toronto, Aug. 16.—Hon. John Dryden, Minister of Agriculture, returned yesterday morning from a nine weeks' tour of Great Britain, and was again at his desk in the afternoon looking as if the trip had agreed with him remarkably well. His visit was partly for pleasure, but he looked into a number of matters which are of interest to the farmers of Ontario. He has not yet reduced the results of his travels to writing, and had nothing definite ready for publication, but talked interestingly in a general way of agricultural affairs.

For the Model Farm.

Mr. Dryden purchased some thoroughbred stock for the Ontario Agricultural College, bringing back seven Polled Angus cattle and fourteen sheep, which will be used for breeding purposes.

Prof. Day of Guelph, accompanied the Minister of Agriculture to Britain, and went on to Denmark to look into the methods of curing bacon, which have given the Danish article the highest place in the British market. Mr. Dryden also made inquiries regarding the canned goods trade, which he considered could be materially assisted. In the dead beef trade also action could be taken that would greatly improve the present condition of the market.

STEAMER PENGUIN LOST.

Fifth Expedition in Search of "Kruger's Millions" Comes to Grief.

Durban, Aug. 16.—The coast steamer Penguin has been wrecked and twenty-five persons, who were on board of her, were drowned. The boatswain is the only survivor.

The Penguin was chartered to search for "Kruger's millions," alleged to have been sunk with the steamer Zululand, off the coast three years ago. Four previous expeditions with the same object in view has ended disastrously.

Building at Standstill.

Toronto, Aug. 16.—As a result of the strike declared by the builders' laborers on Saturday, the building trade of the city is practically at a standstill. It is estimated that at least 90 per cent. of the building operations are tied up. Over 500 laborers went out.

Winnipeg, Aug. 16.—J. F. Drummond, a young man, aged 21, from Edinburgh, Scotland, accountant in the employ of the Manitoba Mortgage Co., is alleged to be $6,000 short in his accounts. He is now on his way home to attend his sister's marriage, where he may be arrested. The manager says the prosecution rests in the hands of the head office, London.

Yacht Clubhouse Burned.

Toronto, Aug. 16.—The island home of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club was totally destroyed by fire last night. The loss on the building is $15,000. Most of the fixtures and contents were saved.

Anglo-French Bill Passed.

London, Aug. 16.—(C. A. P.)—The Anglo-French convention received its third reading in the House of Lords before the prorogation of Parliament.

Memory.

There are 100 different varieties of memory, and perhaps we cannot altogether choose which we will possess, though every sort, when we have the germs of it, may be cultivated. To learn anything by heart the best plan is to read a sentence and repeat it without a book, then read the next sentence and repeat the two, and so on. Repetition is of great importance, "line upon line." More is learned and remembered by reading through one book twice than by reading two books once. After a thing has been learned it must be recalled and gone over at intervals, or the impression will fade away.

Spats.

Where did spats come from? Highland soldiers wore them first. Because of the bravery of highlanders at Lucknow and elsewhere in India during the Indian mutiny the people of England looked about for some way to show their admiration. Scrutiny of the highland dress disclosed that spats were the most suitable for adoption, so they were adopted and have been commonly worn ever since.

WAIT FOR AN APPETITE.

You Should Never Eat Simply For the Sake of Eating.

A prolific cause of chronic indigestion is eating from habit and simply because it is mealtime and others are eating. To eat when not hungry is to eat without relish, and food taken without relish is worse than wasted. Without relish the salivary glands do not act, the gastric fluids are not freely secreted, and the best of foods will not be digested. Many perfectly harmless dishes are severely condemned for no other reason than they were eaten perfunctorily and without relish and due consideration.

Hunger makes the plainest foods enjoyable. It causes vigorous secretion and outpouring of all the digestive fluids, the sources of ptyalin, pepsin, trypsin, etc., without a plentiful supply of which no foods can be perfectly digested.

Wait for an appetite, if it takes a week. Fasting is one of the saving graces. It has a spiritual significance only through its great physical and physiologic importance. If breakfast is a bore or lunch a matter of indifference, cut one or both of them out. Wait for distance and unmistakable hunger and then eat slowly. If you do this you need ask few questions as to the propriety and digestibility of what you eat, and it need not be predigested.—Exchange.

THE PENGUIN.

It Is Awkward on Land and a Gymnast In the Water.

A kind of penguin, the adelie, is a laugh provoking bird. Adelies are most inquisitive and at times are in such a hurry to follow up a clew that they will scramble along the ice on the belly, pushing with their legs and using their flippers alternately like the paddle of a canoe. They get over the ground at an astonishing rate, and it is hard work to overtake a penguin when it takes to this means of locomotion, especially when it doubles. In the water the penguin is perfectly at home, diving and steeplechasing in grand style. It can jump clean out of the water and pop down on the ice exactly like some one coming up through a trapdoor on the stage and dropping on his feet. The penguins collect in enormous numbers and are sometimes seen marching about like a regiment of soldiers in Indian file, all acting in unison.

A much larger penguin, the emperor, weighs sixty or seventy pounds and stands well over three feet high. It possesses the most extraordinary muscular powers in its flippers. When presented with the end of the skee stick the emperor gives it such a smack that one's hands tingle. At the same time it utters an angry guttural exclamation.

SHEEP IN INDIA.

They Are the Favorite Beasts of Burden In Mountainous Regions.

In Tibet and among the mountainous part of India sheep are employed as carriers. The mountain sheep of these districts, true to its nature, is remarkably sure footed and can carry loads of twenty-five pounds, or even more, over steep crags and precipitous paths where hardly any other animal could find a footing.

In the inner ranges of the Himalayas the yak cow and the hardy mountain sheep are the favorite beasts of burden. Sheep withstand the intense cold of the higher parts of Tibet much more easily than the yak and can better face the stony roads.

Sheep carrying from seventeen to twenty-five pounds of baggage and living entirely on the scanty grass found growing by the way accompanied Nain Singh, the famous Indian explorer, on a journey of more than a thousand miles. It is very common in the Himalayas to load sheep, high up in the mountains, with borax and then to drive them down to the plains, where they are shorn of their wool and return laden with grain or salt.

THE FUNNY PUFFER.

A Fish That Blows Himself Up Into a Round Ball.

The funniest little fellow in salt water is the puffer or swell fish. Fishermen call him the blow fish.

When he is swimming around at ease with nothing to alarm him he looks queer enough, for the skin of his abdomen is all loose and wrinkled, and he has such a funny little tail and such ridiculous little fins and such a big, three cornered head that he looks entirely absurd. His mouth, instead of being big and gaping, as most fish mouths are, is only a tiny round hole at the end of a pointed, conical snout. Out of this circular mouth protrude his teeth, like those of a rabbit.

He would be about as homely a fish as could be made if it were not for the beautiful orange and yellow and silver colorings that play all over him.

But queer as he looks when he is at ease it is only when he is frightened or excited that he becomes really funny. If he is hooked, for instance, he comes to the surface grinding those protruding teeth so that the sound can be heard a good many feet away. And then as soon as the hand touches him he begins to grunt hoarsely, and with each grunt he swells a bit till within a few moments he has puffed himself so full of air that he is quite round and firm like a ball. So thoroughly does he distend himself with air that when the fishermen hurl him at the water with all their force, as they often do, he will bounce just like a rubber ball.

If he is dropped into the water after blowing himself full of air he floats on it as lightly as thistledown, and he will stay that way until he has assured himself that danger has gone by. He does the same when he is pursued by other fish. And as he floats almost entirely out of water, with only a little bit of his hard, spiny body sunk under the surface, very few fish can hurt him once he is inflated.

HIS CLEAR MEMORY.

The Witness Proved to the Lawyer That He Could Remember.

A story is told of an eminent lawyer receiving a severe reprimand from a witness whom he was trying to browbeat. It was an important issue, and in order to save his cause from defeat it was necessary that the lawyer should impeach the witness. He endeavored to do it on the ground of age in the following manner:

"How old are you?" asked the lawyer.

"Seventy-two years," replied the witness.

"Your memory, of course, is not so brilliant and vivid as it was twenty years ago, is it?" asked the lawyer.

"I do not know but it is," answered the witness.

"State some circumstance which occurred, say, twelve years ago," said the lawyer, "and we shall be able to see how well you can remember."

"I appeal to your honor," said the witness, "if I am to be interrogated in this manner. It is insolent!"

"You had better answer the question," replied the judge.

"Yes, sir; state it," said the lawyer.

"Well, sir, if you compel me to do it I will. About twelve years ago you studied in Judge ——'s office, did you not?"

"Yes," answered the lawyer.

"Well, sir, I remember your father coming into my office and saying to me, 'Mr. D., my son is to be examined tomorrow, and I wish you would lend me $15 to buy him a suit of clothes.' I remember also, sir, that from that day to this he has never paid me that sum. That, sir, I remember as though it were yesterday."

An Amplified Woman.

"The car was entirely empty with the exception of one man," said Miss Myra Kelly. "He was the reverse of the car. As I entered he rose, made me an unsteady but magnificent bow and said: "'Madam, pleashe be kind 'nough to asshept thish plashe.' There was nothing else for me to do, so I thanked him and sat down.

"And for twenty blocks that idiot hung from a strap, swaying in the breeze, with not a soul in the car but ourselves. Occasionally I have been taken for other women, but I never before had any one think that I was a carful."

Artificial Snow.

A curious instance of the formation of artificial snow was witnessed on one occasion in the town of Agen, in France. A fire broke out in a sawmill when the temperature was 10 degrees below freezing point. The water thrown upon the fire was instantly vaporised, and, rising in the cold, dry air, was immediately condensed and fell as snow. With bright starlight and a strong northwest wind blowing the whirling snow above and the raging fire below, a brilliant spectacle was presented.

393 GEORGE STREET

PRINTERS AND FRIENDS

ENJOYED THEIR ANNUAL OUTING AT JUBILEE POINT YESTERDAY.

Review lost Ball Game to Examiner by 9—5—Very Exciting Game—An Enjoyable Day's Outing.

Nothing but pleasant memories remain of the annual excursion of Typographical Union No. 248, which was run yesterday afternoon to Jubilee Point by steamer Sovereign. Not only the members of the union, but their friends, embarked on this pleasurable outing, and the party numbered about 200 when the last chunk of coal was thrown on board at Peterborough wharf and Captain Snyder shoved off into the loggy stream. The opinion of Typographical Union No. 248, is that the Steamer Sovereign is all right—one of the trimmest, speediest, steadiest and most commodious crafts they have ever had a sail on, and the members of the Union have been down the river a few times.

The waters of the Otonabee at this time of the year are full of bumps in some places. The level is very low, and at different points the going is necessarily slow. The day was a perfect one with a warm sun, and just enough cloud in the sky to make discussion of the weather excusable. The children and the ladies and the "hands" all enjoyed the outing. The boat pulled through Mr. Collins' lock at about 2.30, nosed her way past the Yankee Bonnet a few minutes later, and incidentally the members of the art preservative flagged a thoroughly domesticated member, who was toying with his "bairn" at Crawford's Grove, where there is a large sized party camping. In fact there are many camps along the river, and the tenants all appear as if they had thrown care and everything of a worrying nature to the winds. This was extremely so in the case of a number of young gaffers, who at certain points had taken occasion to bathe, their only habiliment being a somewhat questionable blush. It was somewhere around four o'clock when the steamer was flagged by Mr. Roland Tivey and Mr. Charlie James, who were standing in review order on the bank, having evidently just returned from a successful fishing expedition. It was not long after this when the crowd had an opportunity of viewing Johnny Howden's fine stretch of timbered land, from which, it is said, he has already begun to reap a fortune, there being some magnificent trees on the property—and these are just as good as money in the bank considering the price obtainable for timber nowadays.

The day was beautiful in scenery, for the stretches of the river, and its many windings unfolded a fresh and charming vista at every revolution of the screw. It can well be understood that considerable animation was given to the land and water scapes by the turtles which decorated the semi-submerged logs, and by the cranes which stood sentinels over the frog-ponds or unfolded their lanky limbs in ungraceful flight. Sometimes a flock of ducks would flutter away into the marshes and Paxy would perforce tell of his prowess with the rod and gun—and he knows a thing or two about the Otonabee. Here and there the progressive farmer had wiped from the face of nature sundry fields of golden grain, but taking it by and large there was enough scenery to satisfy the most exacting mortal and then leave several large "cakes" unappreciated. It would not have been a printers' picnic had there not been some music on board and this was dispensed to a most delightful degree by a Zonophone manipulated by Mr. R. S. Dudley, whose shop on Simcoe st., is the home of this excellent medium of acquaintanceship with world-famous bands and entertainers. The programme given included popular airs, familiar selections from opera and much amusing recitation, all extremely choice and conducing greatly to the pleasure of all on board. The zonophone appears to be a pronounced improvement in the reproduction business, performing its work in a realistic, clear-cut fashion that readily meets with approval. On the return trip also the zonophone was the thing, and selections were heartily applauded.

It was hardly tea time when the Sovereign rubbed up against the wharf at Jubilee Point, so a baseball match between the Examiner and Review was hastily put on. There were many interesting features about this game, which was of four innings duration, and when it was all over the Examiner was ahead by 9-5. Owing to circumstances which are well understood, not embarrassing to explain, the Review team went up in the air in the second innings, when Mr. Hutchinson's bunch scored six runs. In the other three innings the Review more than held its own. A feature of the contest was the twirling of Paxman who theoretically drew a circle of ten feet diameter around the plate and always endeavored to knock the edge from the side farthest from the batter. The umpire, being a man of fine discernment, appeared to appreciate the mathematics of the thing and based his decision on the proximity of the delivery to the outer edge. However, it cannot be said that the umpire's decisions were partial to a pronounced degree and when the dust cleared away everybody was satisfied, the reputation of the official still remaining as unsullied as ever. The umpire was Mr. James Lynch. His opinion is that with some practice in his back yard, and under his direction, the Review team might possibly hope to win some thing. Mr. Dredge and Mr. Bowers of the Times, and Mr. Hulf, the Modern Printer, figured on the Review team. Sensational features were Hulf's and Smith's two-baggers, Henley's catch of a fly with his bare hands and Wilson's fielding. Ten runs were scored by Glover 2, Paxman 1, Hutchinson 2, Long 1, Gilman 2, Reid 1, for the Examiner; Wilson 3, Smith 1, Moore 1. The teams were:

In the second innings Hubbs retired with a sore foot, and for the remaining two innings the Review put it all over the Examiner by 4-2; and that with 8 men to 9. Jolliffe the Examiner's regular twirler, was up the lakes yesterday, or the score would have told a tale that his team would have been heartily ashamed of.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Lynch for his services as umpire in the ball game.

Both teams and their friends took nourishment from various lunch baskets—or at the hotel, when baskets did not exist. The Sovereign turned her bow homeward about seven o'clock, and after an enjoyable trip reached the Peterborough dock at 10.30. Everyone felt that the day had been well spent.

Those constituting the committee in charge of arrangements which proved in every way successful were Albert Martin, chairman, C. H. J. Mitchell, Jas. Canniff, J. Perry, B. Canniff, W. Lewis, Walter Dredge, George Paxman.

WHERE IS MRS. NEWTON?

Inquiries by her Daughter from Butte, Mont.

Chief Rossel has received a letter from Emma Newton of Butte, Mont., inquiring for the whereabouts of her mother, Mrs. Geo. Newton, whom she thinks lives in Peterborough. She says that her mother formerly lived in Minden. Mrs. Newton is forty-five years of age and is of medium height. Any information will be gladly received by the chief or addressed to box 1,635 Butte Montana.

MARRIED IN CANADA

Miss Dora J. Irvine and Mr. Fred T. Griffin of Oil City Pa.

This morning, at 7.30, at the residence of Mr. S. Sager, McDonnel-st., the marriage of Miss Dora J. Irvine, of Oil City, Pa., to Mr. Fred. F. Griffin, also of Oil City, was solemnized. The bridesmaid was Miss Annie Griffin, sister of the groom, and Mr. Dale, of Franklin, was best man. The marriage was performed by Mr. S. Sager, who, although it may not be generally known here, is an ordained minister, having had charge of a congregation in the States prior to his removal here, and his change of vocation. The bride and groom are both very warm friends of his. Mr. Griffin is at present in charge of the pipe line construction for the Star of the East Gold Mining Co., upon the completion of which work he will return to Oil City, accompanied by his bride.

A HALLELUJAH WEDDING

Miss Bessie Borrman to Mr. Chas Gadd

The happy principals of a hallelujah wedding at the Salvation Army barracks last evening were Miss Bessie Borrman, daughter of Mr. Borrman, Cedar-st., to Mr. Chas. Gadd, of town. Both bride and groom have recently come from England, where they became devoted to each other, and here under the colors they were wed. The ceremony was largely attended, and great interest centred in the event, for the bride and groom have made many friends during their short residence here. Brigadier Turner, of Montreal, performed the ceremony. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Olive Borrman, and the best man was her brother, Mr. Borrman. Speeches of a very appropriate character were made after the ceremony by Deputy Bandmaster Northcott, on behalf of the band; Mr. R. C. Braund, on behalf of the corps, and by Staff-Captain MaNamara. The bride and her sister gave in effective manner a duet, "There is music in my heart." The band added to the pleasure of the occasion by several musical selections. A wedding supper was served at the residence of the bride's father after the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Gadd have taken up residence on King-st.

Have you tried our delicious Creme de Menthe Sundae, Maraschino Cherry Sundae, "Navajo" or "Hiawatha" If not, why not.? At HOOPER'S, George-st.

INCIDENT AT VIAMEDE

An amusing incident occurred a few days ago at Viamede. An American young lady who had been enjoying an outing there was leaving, and it was evident that a couple of young men were just a little bit sorry about it. One of them turned up at the wharf at six o'clock in the morning, perfectly attired — patent leather shoes, and all the rest of it—and he evidently took the parting seriously. Another individual—apparently one of those who can see the bright side of regretful circumstances—put in an appearance in his bathing suit. The boat had given its final toot, and the young men had arrived at that point when rash promises were being exchanged. As the boat moved off he of the bathing suit went one better than he of the patent leathers, and declared in a most tragic manner, "I will throw myself in the lake for you!" Suiting the action to the word, he did so, but in some manner became entangled with the gentleman in immaculate clothing, who likewise went into the drink. It was a most exciting climax, and besides cooling considerable of the ardor apparent on the occasion, created lots of fun, aroused the ire of one young man, and gave the other his early morning bath. And the lady sailed away.

DENNISTOUN WON FLAG

HIS WAS FASTEST SAILING CRAFT AT STURGEON POINT REGATTA.

He has two Challenges to Defend his Title—Ryerson won the Dinghy Race—Some Keene Contests.

(Lindsay Post.)

The regatta at Sturgeon Point, on Saturday was a great success, and well attended, in spite of the fact of the rain in the morning, which kept a number from a distance away. The Peterboro people came 400 strong, in a steamer, bringing three dinghies, and two sailing canoes, and entered heartily into all the events. Mr. Wm. McKenzie's handsome new yacht came from his summer residence, Balsam Lake, with Mr. and Mrs. McKenzie and a large party on board, and altogether there were about 4000 people.

Mr. R. M. Dennistoun's win of the Sturgeon Lake championship flag was popular and he was loudly cheered, as he sailed by in his handsome boat, flouting the flag, at the conclusion of the race. This flag is causing keen competition on the lake, and already Mr. Dennistoun has two challenges to defend his title.

There were seven starters and a keen contest in dinghy race—indeed every event was most keenly contested. The gasoline launch race was a feature, there being thirteen starters and all finished and came so close that they kept the committee busy.

The ladies' afternoon tea was liberally patronized. The committee deserve great credit for the way in which the Regatta was run, every person being pleased.

The handsome prizes were distributed at the close. The following is the result in the different events:

1. Championship Flag — Fastest sailing craft, R. M. Dennistoun, Chemong.

2. Dinghy, 7 starters — 1st, Ryerson, St. Point; 2nd, Nasmith, St. Point; 3rd, Hopwood, Chemong.

3. Sailing canoe, 5 starters — 1st Bruce Hopkins, St. Point; 2nd, Fred Hopkins, St. Point; 3rd, Dumble, Chemong.

4. Canoe, men tandem — 1st, O'Leary and Grantham; 2nd, Simpson and Gladman.

5. Canoe, ladies' tandem — 1st, the Misses O'Leary; 2nd Misses Neelands and Allan.

6. Canoe, boys under 17—1st Gladman and Parr; 2nd Wilson and Sylvester.

7. Canoe, boys under 13 — 1st, Knowlson and Warner; 2nd Dixon Bros.

8. Canoe, ladies and men—1st Miss Allan and V. Gladman; 2nd Miss O'Leary and Gordon O'Leary.

9. Crab race—1st Gordon O'Leary; 2nd Fred Hopkins.

10. Canoe men, single—1st Gordon O'Leary; 2nd Harry Grantham.

11. Water Polo — Sturgeon Point defeated Lindsay, 2 goals to 0.

12. Gasoline launch, 13 starters — 1st Needler's "Clipper"; 2nd Clarry's "Ethel."

There were five more events which could not be put on for want of time, but will be run later.

EVANGELIST KENNEDY

Will Join the Cuthbert Car Party—A Very Successful Year.

Evangelist H. D. Kennedy has been in town for the past few days, after having completed eleven months constant revival work. Mr. Kennedy says the last year has been the best of his life. He left this morning for Toronto, where he and his brother, M. S. Kennedy, will join the Cuthbert car party for a month's trip around the continent. They will visit the St. Louis Exhibition, San Francisco, Los Angeles and other American cities. After Mr. Kennedy returns he will open up a four weeks' campaign in Toronto.

DEATH OF MR. T. WALLER

Remains will be taken to Norwood for Interment To-Morrow.

The death occurred early this morning of Thomas Waller, aged 89 years at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. J. M. Barrie, 823 George street. Mr. Waller has been a resident of Peterborough for many years and his many friends will regret to hear of his death. Mr. R. J. Waller of town is also a son of the deceased.

The body of the deceased will be taken by C.P.R. to-morrow morning to Norwood, where interment will take place.

THE R. R. HALL CUP

On Exhibition in Gibson's Window To-Day and is a Very Pretty One.

The silver cup presented by Mr. R. R. Hall to the Trent Valley League is on exhibition in Gibson's window to-day. It is a very pretty trophy and is surmounted with two lacrosse sticks. The cup has the following inscription on it:—"The R. R. Hall Lacrosse Trophy, Trent Valley League. Championship." The winners to-morrow night will decide to whom the cup shall be presented, and it is quite safe betting that it will remain in town.

Brevities.

—The members of Eko Camp returned last evening from their outing at Stony Lake.

—Evangelist H. D. Kennedy preached to a large congregation in George Street Methodist Church on Sunday evening.

—The 57th Regiment will parade on Central Park this evening, with both bands. A full attendance of the regiment is particularly required as some ceremonial drill is to be performed.

—At the Police Court this morning Thos. Montgomery was remanded for eight days to allow him to sober up. He presented a very dilapidated appearance, and the magistrate remarked that he might have his photograph taken if it so desired.

—The funeral of the late Fred Winch took place this afternoon at 3.30 o'clock from the residence of his brother, Mr. R. J. Winch, 296 Stewart street to Little Lake Cemetery, and was attended by many friends of the deceased. The pall bearers were Messrs. Geo. Webber, Jos. Batten, J. L. Hughes, R. A. Morrow, Jas. PRONOUNCED HOLY VOWS

AN IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY AT MT. ST. JOSEPH.

Four Received the Holy Habit — His Lordship Bishop O'Connor Officiated.

Yesterday morning at Mount St. Joseph a very impressive ceremony was performed by his Lordship Bishop O'Connor. It was in fact of a double character, seven sisters pronouncing the Holy Vows of Religion, and four others receiving the Holy Habit. Though not of a public nature the ceremony was attended by many friends of the sisters, who were present on invitation. Those who received the Holy Habit were Miss Mamie Mahoney, in religion Sister M. Madaleine; Miss Lillie O'Brien, Sister M. S. Bernard; Miss Annie Coughlin, Sister M. Bertha; Miss Lizzie O'Brien, Sister M. Patricia.

The vows of religion were pronounced by Sister Mary of Lourdes, Sister St. Gerald, Sister M. Perpetua, Sister Mary Agnes, Sister St Cyril, Sister Francis Joseph, and Sister M. Eugenie.

The ceremony took place at nine o'clock, his Lordship Bishop O'Connor officiating, and those in the sanctuary were Rev. Father McCoil, Rev. Dr. O'Brien, Rev. Father Fitzpatrick Enniskmore, Rev. Father Vader of the Redemptorist Order, Rev. Father Frank O'Sullivan of Lindsay and Rev. Father McGuire of Hastings. A sermon appropriate to the occasion was delivered by Rev. Father Fitzpatrick

HIGH COURT OF FORESTERS.

It is Expected That There Will be Over 300 Visitors Here.

The High Court of Eastern Ontario, of the Independent Order of Foresters will open to-morrow in the Court House, when reports will be received and other business of importance will be transacted. There will be between 300 and 400 delegates present. To-morrow evening a public meeting will be held in Brock st. rink, at which men prominent in Forestry will speak, the 57th band will be present and other means of entertainment will also be provided.

To-night a meeting for Foresters will be held in the Foresters' hall on Simcoe street, at which the High Court officers will preside. Quite a number of applicants will, it is understood, be initiated. Court Chemong will entertain the visitors while here.

That is the benefit of going on the Foresters' Excursion Civic Holiday to Toronto and Niagara Falls. It gives a capital time, rain or shine. Comfortable coaches and fine steamers. If it pours rain at Peterborough it is likely fine at Niagara. Take in this trip. Only $2.05 to Toronto and $3.20 to Niagara Falls. G.T.R special at 6.30 a.m.

BRIGHT LIFE ENDED

Death of Hiram Preston Dobbin from Appendicitis.

Hiram Preston Dobbin, son of Mr. George Dobbin, of North Monaghan, died at the Nicholls Hospital this morning, at 10 o'clock. Death was the culmination of ten days' sickness from appendicitis. The boy underwent an operation yesterday, which, while successful, was followed by complications, and he succumbed. He was 13 years and four months old, and a particularly bright boy. His death will come as a great bereavement in the family circle of which he was a member and friends will deeply regret his death, as he was a general favorite.

The funeral will take place on Thursday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the family residence, Monaghan Road, to Little Lake cemetery.

FINAL CHAMPIONSHIP GAME

COMEDIAN SAM VALE.

He Was the Original of Sam Weller of Pickwick Fame.

The original of Sam Weller was Sam Vale, an English low comedian, who, in the early part of the last century, was quite popular in the south of England. In the year 1811, and for a few years after, he made quite a reputation in the musical farce called "The Boarding House," written by Beasley. In this he played the part of Simon Spatterdash, a person who indulged in odd and whimsical sayings. "Come on, as the old man said to the tight boot;" "I am down on you, as the extinguisher said to the candle;" "Let every one take care of himself, as the donkey said when dancing among the chickens," are fair illustrations of his witticisms in the course of that play, the resemblance between them and some of the sayings of Sam Weller being very marked. In private life Vale was a wit, and many good things in his own time were credited to him. A man of excellent temper, he had no enemies, and the good humor which pervaded every saying, together with the drollery of his manner, gave his witticisms unusual value. His sayings were called Sam Valerisms, and on the appearance of Pickwick in 1836 the character of Weller was generally recognized as a portraiture of Vale. The comedian died in 1848 at the age of fifty-one.

THE WILLOW TREE.

John Parke Custis Planted the First One In This Country.

When the south sea bubble in England collapsed one of the speculators went to Smyrna to repair his fortune. He was a friend of Alexander Pope and sent him a box of figs in which had been placed a twig of a tree. Pope planted the twig on his grounds on the shore of the Thames, not knowing of what tree it was. It grew and was a weeping willow. In 1775, when the tree was over fifty years old, one of the young British officers who came to Boston with the British army brought a twig from the tree, which he intended to plant on his lands after the rebellion had been crushed. John Parke Custis, son of Mrs. Washington, going on errands to the British camp under a flag of truce, became acquainted with the owner of the willow twig, which was draped in oiled silk, and obtained it from him, which he planted near his home at Abingdon, Va., where it became the progenitor of all the weeping willows in America.

Anemone Facts.

Naturalists have duly recorded that that if a sea anemone be divided in halves longitudinally a new animal will in time be reproduced by each half, assuming the anemone is kept in pure sea water. An old zoologist relates how he watched an anemone which somehow or other had contrived to half swallow one of the valves of an oyster shell. Practically the shell struck in its gizzard and gradually cut its way down through the soft tissues of the anemone until it halved the animal as by a partition. Perfect reproduction of two anemones through the division of one was noted to be the result of this accident. Even a fragment or two of an anemone body left attached to its rock may in due season reproduce a new body.—London News.

Soldiers' Superstitions.

Among the numerous superstitions of the Cossacks there is none stronger than the belief that they will enter heaven in a better state if they are personally clean at the time they are killed. Consequently before an expected battle they perform their toilets with scrupulous care, dress themselves in clean garments and put on the best they have. This superstition is not confined to the Cossacks alone, but is widely prevalent in all branches of the Russian army.

CHAPTER IX.
BACK TO CAMP.

AFTER a long rest, followed by water for our horses, the regiment started again, though as to where we were going we knew no more than when we left camp. I said to Cloyne that it would save a great deal of unnecessary worry if the colonel would post a notice before leaving camp for a scout or a fight to let us know where we were going, how long we were to be gone and what we were to do, but Cloyne replied that the colonel would first have to know all these things himself, which seemed a great deal to expect.

At any rate no such information had been given out about our present trip, nor did we ever get any about any trip on which we started afterward, so in time it came to be fun to ask when on the road, "Where are we going?" so as to get a pleasing assortment of improbable answers. At first it seemed too dreadful to take part in some movement about which I knew nothing—not even whether or not it was judicious. But when I saw the older members of the regiment calmly obeying all orders, asking no questions, I endeavored to be a veteran to that extent myself and let the government manage its own business in its own way.

As I had not made this resolve at the time of our first scout and charge I was curious and anxious about many things besides our probable route. What would we do with our prisoners should a regiment of the enemy suddenly strike us? Suppose we were to get into a fight and have a lot of horses shot; how would the riders reach camp? How were our disabled men to reach camp again, as it appeared we had no ambulances with us? Was any one sure that the colonel had calculated time and distance carefully, so that we should reach camp in time to save men and animals from starving? And, speaking of starving, where was I to get anything to eat during the coming day or more?

This question slowly but surely forced all others from my mind, for I had eaten all of my boecake that I had not given away, I had roasted my sweet potatoes at dinner time and felt, as I ate them, so full that I wouldn't want another morsel till morning, but an hour of trot and gallop had caused a radical change of opinion. I had no more silver with which to buy should I be able to find any native who would sell, and my morning's search for corn 'oft enough to eat had not been encouraging enough to justify me in trying again.

As I wondered darkness approached, and we halted to bivouac for the night. Brainard, whom I found in one of the straw filled country wagons which had been seized to carry the injured, was as hungry as I and very dismal about it too. How both of us wished we had kept the fat pork which had been dealt as a part of our three days' rations! We still agreed that a very little of it would go a long way, but that was just the sort of ration we most needed at that particular moment, for the void in us seemed to reach nearly down to our boot toes. While we pitied ourselves and endeavored to deaden the pangs of hunger by the time honored truant schoolboy trick of tightening our belts, a detail was suddenly made from our own company to guard the prisoners, and I was one of the noncommissioned officers named.

We were marched to the front to take the Johnnies from their captors and bring them nearer the rear. There being no building near by, we camped them in a cluster near the roadside, clearing horses away to make room for them. Their own horses were prudently tied a troop or two distant, so that none of them, should he attempt to escape, could get his mount. They were not bad looking fellows, though they did not appear very soldierly in their uniforms, no two of which were of exactly the same tint of gray and scarcely any two of the same style of button. None looked as if he might be a "fire eater," and the majority were men of middle age. Nearly all of our own troopers were young. None seemed very sad or angry. In fact, they didn't at all meet my ideas as to southerners and prisoners of war. They were ordered to sit or lie down, but were not bound or restrained in any other way, except that there were guards, revolvers in hand, in front and rear of them, and we were quietly ordered to keep a little blaze all night in the fires which were nearest, so that no one could attempt to get away without being seen.

As the sergeant—who chanced to be Hamilton—and I had nothing to do but post and relieve the guards, we lay on the ground and engaged some of the captives in conversation. We found they were all Georgians, most of them from small villages or plantations, and they did not know much about the war except that they were sorry it broke out, but they had felt it their duty to stand by their state.

"Seems to me," said one of them after we had chatted a little while, "that you uns was all to blame for the war, for we uns didn't want none. No matter which side whips, I'm a ruined man, for there's nobody to make the crops while I'm away op here. I don't own no niggers, an' my wife an' young uns cayn't do no more'n work the truck patch [kitchen garden] an' look after the pigs an' the milk critters."

I heard this story so many times during the war that I had to do a great deal of being sorry for the enemy.

Our prisoners had been told to bring their provisions with them, and as they had eaten nothing since dinner time they asked permission, which was readily granted, to do their cooking at the fires. Their rations were so different from ours that it was interesting to look on. Instead of boiled fat pork they had raw bacon, thin slices of which they fried or toasted on sharpened sticks. Some had white bread, others biscuit or boecake, while two or three mixed meal and water and made boecakes in the frying pans which several of them carried; others had sweet potatoes, which they baked in the ashes.

Oh, how hungry the smell of their cooking made me! I understood for the first time why it was that some of the poorly fed children in our town used to stand around the bakery while the bread, cakes and pies were being taken from the great oven in the cellar. Some of the Johnnies asked us if we wouldn't eat with them, but Hamilton and I, half starved though we were, declined until I noticed that none of them was making coffee. Then a brilliant idea struck me. I asked one of them whether southerners never drank coffee at supper time.

"Not unless they can git it," said he, "which is mighty seldom."

I went to the servant of our officer's mess and borrowed some ground coffee and sugar, promising to repay him when we reached camp. Returning, I distributed it among the prisoners nearest me. I wish I might ever again earn so much gratitude with so little trouble as that act cost me. These Johnnies became positively jolly, and they made haste to put cups of water to boil. Said one of them, a rough looking man with a huge yellow beard:

"Ev'rything I've got's yourn, my young friend. I'm 'most glad we got captured. Take all my stuff."

"Since you're so kind," said I in an absolute delirium of anticipation, "I'll accept a single slice of bacon. It has a more tempting odor than our fat pork."

"For good eatin'," said he as he cut several slices of bacon for me and put them in a pan on the fire, "there ain't no hogs like southern hogs. We never buy no'thern po'k, 'cept to feed to niggers."

I was quite willing to believe him. The odor that arose from that frying pan was delicious perfume to my nostrils. After the bacon had sizzled awhile the old fellow took some boecake from his haversack, split it with his knife and laid it in the pan inner side down, saying:

"You need to eat co'n bread with bacon to git the full taste of it."

"Bless your southern soul!" said I to myself, and I was sure by the manner in which Hamilton eyed the pan that his sentiments agreed with mine. Oh, what a supper that was! I've never tasted one so good since the war ended. It seemed to me that if President Lincoln and Jeff Davis could have sat there with us and shared the contents of that frying pan they would quickly have agreed to end the war on a basis of a general exchange of northern coffee for southern bacon and boecake.

The camp was soon quiet. Soldiers in the field fall asleep quickly after the evening meal and pipe, and our prisoners were all dozing by 8 o'clock. As I was not a smoker and was on duty I remained wide awake and, pacing to and fro in the road, spent much time in thinking how dreadful it would be to have to fight so good natured, harmless a set of men as the gray clad fellows slumbering near me. Then I put in some time being sorry for the families whose heads were so far from home. What would become of the Frost farm, I wondered, and how miserable would be the family if my father instead of his son was in the army?

Pretty soon the tenor of my thoughts was changed by a drop of water which struck me in the face. It was quickly followed by another and then by several. I was not long in getting far enough out of my brown study to discover that it was raining. I soon had my india rubber blanket over my shoulders and was wondering why the prisoners had not brought their own with them from their saddles—most of the sleeping figures were wrapped in blankets or quilts. It seemed too bad, even if they were rebels, that the poor fellows should be soaked by a cold November rain. Perhaps I could send two or three of the guard, who were not on post, to get them. I consulted

We engaged some of the captives in conversation.

Hamilton, who shook one of the sleepers and politely repeated the suggestion. The man was slow in waking and slower still in comprehending, but at last he said:

"What? Them gum cloths? Gosh! We ain't got none. Some of the army that drev you uns from round Richmond when McClellan was thar has got some that you uns left, but we uns wasn't thar."

"Oh, I see. I beg your pardon. May I ask what you do when you're caught in the rain while on duty?"

"Do?" said the man, with a mighty yawn. "Why, git wet, I reckon."

By Using Dr. Chase's Ointment and Hopes Others Will Profit by His Experience.

When you ask for an ointment, the druggist naturally hands you Dr. Chase's Ointment because it is the standard throughout the world. It is the only cure for piles.

Mr. Thomas Covert, Highland Grove, Peterboro Co., Ont., writes:—"For years I was a great sufferer from Piles, and sometimes the terrible itching and burning was almost beyond endurance. Though I tried all sorts of remedies I never found a cure until I used Dr. Chase's Ointment. In my opinion this Ointment has no equal, and I hope others will benefit by my experience."

ANXIETY.

Effects of This Form of Mental and Physical Derangement.

In a paper read before the congress of French alienists at Grenoble Dr. Gaston Lalanne pointed out that anxiety is a disturbance which is expressed by the entire being. The exciting causes are sometimes physical and sometimes psychical, and the symptoms manifested are both physical and mental. The physical symptoms comprise cold feelings and chills of the scalp and body, general lassitude, incoordination of voluntary movements far more apparent than real emotional coloring of speech, and vertigo, which is dependent upon vasomotor cerebral disturbances or upon digestive troubles. In the anxious states there are always circulatory troubles, such as accelerated heart beat, irregularity of the heart's action, heightened arterial tension and coldness of the extremities. Respiratory disturbances are also present.

The psychical symptoms of anxiety include various degrees of vague dread and apprehensiveness, often taking definite forms, in which case they are designated as "phobias" or "obsessions of fear," weakening the capacity of attention and of memory, and a tendency to confusion of ideas. Hallucinations of the senses are prone to occur.

IN EXERCISE OF RIGHTS

Government Will Energetically Support King's Subjects.

His Majesty Prorogues Parliament After An Admittedly Barren Session—Refers to Step in Direction of Self-Government For the Transvaal—Gives Credit to Small British Force Which Has Rescued Lhassa.

London, Aug. 16.—After an admittedly barren session, marked by no less than seven fruitless attempts on the part of the Opposition to turn out the Government on votes of censure, Parliament was prorogued yesterday afternoon, no more than twenty-five members being present, including one member of the Cabinet.

The King's speech, proroguing Parliament, was brief. After mentioning his visits to the King of Denmark and the German Emperor, at which, His Majesty said, his reception in each case was most cordial, and the agreement between France and Great Britain, which, he pointed out, will be advantageous to all concerned and materially strengthen the friendship uniting Great Britain and France, His Majesty said:

The War.

"Hostilities, I regret to say, are still in progress between Russia and Japan. Upon the outbreak of the war, I issued a proclamation declaring my neutrality and enjoining all my people to a strict observance thereof. Important questions involving the treatment of neutral commerce in the hands of belligerents have arisen in connection with these operations. The issues involved, which are of the gravest moment to the trade of the Empire, will, I trust, be amicably settled without prejudice to the vast commercial interests of this country. My Government will energetically support my subjects in the exercise of rights recognized by international law as belonging to neutrals."

Foreign Affairs.

The King said the scheme for the re-organization of the Macedonian gendarmerie under foreign officers promised satisfactory results, and expressed the hope that the introduction of the elective element into the Legislative Council of the Transvaal, which was a "step in the direction of ultimate self-government," would meet the united support of all his subjects in that colony.

In regard to Thibet, the King said that the arrival of the "political mission" at Lhasa afforded him the greatest satisfaction, and reflected credit on the officers and men of the small force. He hoped the conference at Lhasa would result in an arrangement of terms which would end the difficulties and friction on the northern frontier of the Indian Empire.

Parliament was formally prorogued at 6.05 p.m.

WILL ACCEPT ADEQUATE INDEMNITY.

British Government Considering Affairs of Normality of China.

London, Aug. 16.—The final Cabinet Council of the Parliamentary session was held yesterday. After the Council closed the emphatic statement was made that Great Britain feels it absolutely essential to her own interests and those of the entire world that the neutrality of China shall be observed by the two belligerents. Great Britain will make earnest efforts to secure this result.

In the Knight Commander case the British Government will instruct Ambassador Harding that it will insist that there was no justification in international law for sinking the steamer. The British note will be couched in the most conciliatory tone, and it is fully expected in Cabinet circles that the question will be adjusted by Russia paying an adequate indemnity.

The neutrality of China presents a more knotty problem to the London authorities, for the reason that they have to consider the effect upon their ally. The disposition of the Government is to go slow. In other words, while insisting that China shall continue neutral, the Government will give Japan every opportunity to show, if possible, a justification for the action of the torpedo boat destroyer in capturing the Ryeshitsin. Exchanges on the subject have occured between Great Britain and Japan.

British Subjects in Danger.

London, Aug. 16.—The Admiralty has instructed the British cruiser Tribune to proceed immediately to Venezuelan waters to protect British subjects and interests. It is understood that the request of the Government of Trinidad was based on reports showing that the British employes of the Bermudez Asphalt Company was in danger in consequence of the attitude of the Venezuelan Government.

Cruiser at Tangier.

Tangier, Morocco, Aug. 16.—The British cruiser Minerva arrived here yesterday in connection with the case of Hamed Jaiya, the British subject arrested by order of the Sultan.

TEACHER GAGGED AND ROBBED.

Miss Edna Frook of Alma College Bound Fast By Burglars.

St. Thomas, Aug. 16.—A daring burglary was perpetrated at the residence of Jesse P. Frook, a city assessor, on Wellington street, early yesterday morning. The burglars effected an entrance to the bedroom occupied by Mr. Frook's eldest daughter, Miss Edna, a teacher at Alma College, and before she could make an outcry had bound and gagged her with a clothes-line secured from the yard, and some rags which they carried with them. The room was ransacked, and two rings, a diamond and a pearl, and $15 in money were secured. There is no clue to the identity of the guilty parties.

The Scorpion.

The most quarrelsome creature in the world is the scorpion. Two placed in the same box will always sting each other to death.

French and Telephones.

French is more easily understood over the telephone than English. In telephoning between Paris and London during a storm conversation in English is impossible, but French is easily understood, because it has so many sibilant sounds and unequally accented syllables.

Bullets in Battle.

It is estimated that less than one in 1,000 of the rifle balls fired in a modern battle hits anybody, and if one is hit the chance is but one in five that the wound will be fatal.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

Another Death Reported From the Storm on Saturday—More Horses Also Reported in Several Districts.

Tilsonburg, Aug. 16.—John M. Hagerman, veterinary surgeon of Lyndoch, was killed by lightning on Saturday evening. He went out between 5 and 6 o'clock in the evening to get the cows, carrying a rifle with him for the purpose of shooting groundhogs. Other members of the family found his lifeless body, lying face downward, in a field a short distance from the fence, the rifle being under the body. The lightning had apparently struck the unfortunate man on the head, as his hat was badly torn, and was lying on the opposite side of the fence. It then ran down the body, both back and front, and into the ground through the right leg and foot, the shoe being torn to shreds. He leaves a wife and one child.

Horses in Guelph District.

Guelph, Aug. 16.—The barn of W. H. Poole of Puslinch, was struck by lightning and completely destroyed with the contents, including his whole crop on Saturday afternoon. The loss is $1,300, partly covered by insurance. James Near's small barn, Erin Township, was burned with his hay and fall wheat and seeding machinery. The barn of Thomas Cook, on the townline of Erin and Caledon, containing hay and a large crop of wheat, and also some implements, was completely destroyed. The loss is said to be $2,500, with $1,700 of insurance. Three children, living near Orton, were watching the storm out of a window when a foal, with a mare in a field nearby, was struck by lightning. The foal was instantly killed and the children were stunned. The new barn of the late John Kitching of Nassagaweya, near Corbhin, with hay, fall wheat and all the outbuildings was consumed.

Lightning Went Down Chimney.

Forest, Aug. 16.—Saturday afternoon a severe electrical storm, accompanied by a strong wind and heavy downpour of rain and hail, passed over this town and adjoining townships. At Ravenswood the lightning struck H. Ford's house passed down the chimney and out of the front of the stove. Mr. Ford's daughter, Hattie, who was sitting near the stove, received a severe shock, her right side being partly paralyzed for some time. In Bosanquet and Plympton Townships barns belonging to Wm. Culley, Jas. Moore, R. Mitchell and Thos. Thorn, and a house belonging to Jos. Slaughter were struck and more or less damaged. East of Arkona several barns are reported burned, together with the season's crops.

Drowned in Manitoba.

Winnipeg, Aug. 16.—Alain Lindsay was drowned while bathing on Sunday afternoon in the Assiniboine River, near Stockton. Lindsay was not a good swimmer and sank before assistance reached him. His mother resides at Trinity, Ont.

Swept Over the Falls.

Buckingham, Que., Aug. 16.—A man named Louis Paquette, who was working for the Jas. McLaren Company at the High Falls on the Lievre River, thirty miles north of here, fell off the dam and was swept over the falls. He was 35 years of age, and leaves a widow and six children.

Death List Reaches 94.

Pueblo, Colo., Aug. 16.—Two more bodies of victims of the Eden wreck have been recovered, one being the remains of Ray W. Ohmanon of Washington, D.C. The total dead recovered thus far is now 94.

A Westminster Abbey Oddity.

Among the monuments to great men erected in Westminster abbey, says the London Mail, in the holy quiet of the cloisters is a monument to a prize fighter.

Cornmeal and Water.

Sometimes the best water supplies in the world will get disturbed and the water become muddy. A little cornmeal stirred into a pailful of such water clears it rapidly by carrying the mud that is in suspension to the bottom.

A BIG FAMILY.

Now names have to be designed every year to accommodate the Disease Family, but they all revolve around one cause—The Stomach.

The receptacle of all you eat or drink cannot help but get crippled—very few escape. How can they? Just think of what lands in the stomach during a few hours—All sorts of things—sour, sweet, cold, starchy, light, heavy, vegetable and animal; all this raw material is tumbled into the stomach without much thought as to the order of its going, every particle of which has to be worked over, digested, and converted into food for nerves, blood, brain, kidneys, liver and bowels—for every tissue, cell and fibre of the body. Sometimes the stomach is overloaded, shocked and deranged and cannot do its work properly, and right here begins the starting point of disease, as no organ now receives proper nourishment, and usually the weakest try out their warnings. That's why a well stomach means a well body, and that's why ANTI-PILL has such a marked effect. It soothes the irritated linings of the stomach, and so aids on the process gumming that the necessary supply of gastric juice—the secure digestion is assured—ANTI-PILL, the great System Trademark makes a well stomach.

Good Chance For Canada.

Ottawa, Aug. 16.—D. H. Ross, Canadian trade agent at Stockholm, in a report to the Trade and Commerce Department yesterday, gives an estimate of the wheat crop of Europe, from which he deducts there will be a big importation trade with high prices affording an excellent opportunity for Canada

The Liver to Blame

So long as the liver is active in filtering the bile from the blood there is no biliousness and no constipation, because the bile is passed from the liver into the intestines where it acts as a cathartic in keeping the bowels active. Because of their direct action on the liver as well as the bowels, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills thoroughly cure constipation, the real cause of nine-tenths of the common ills of life.

Summer Prices FOR Winter Garments

The last month of Summer—August—is a good time to buy Furs. It is known to be a good time. Prices as a rule are lower, because the dealer is anticipating the season.

It is a good time—in fact the best—to order Furs. Because it affords time in which to make them up with care and without the haste that comes with the winter season.

Our show rooms are open. You can view the winter's styles. They are all here. Orders are taken based on the styles we show. It's worth a look at any rate, even if you do not buy, and you are never pressed to do so. All we know about Furs is at your service.

IN REPLY TO OBSERVER

MR. R. J. KIDD SHOWS WHERE HIS STATEMENTS ARE FAULTY.

Examined the North Star After the Fatality and Found That Stanchions Swayed Back and Forth.

To the Editor of the Review.

Dea Sir,—Kindly allow me space in your columns to take exception to a few statements made by Observer in Saturday evening's edition of the Review. Although not addressed to me, yet his statements are very faulty. The writer personally examined this part of the boat the morning after the fatality, and found the stanchions to sway back and forth to an alarming degree. Whether they were rotted or worn I do not know. Mr. Davis did not say in his evidence that he passed the railing and supports as being all right. What he did say was when he inspected the North Star there was no railing in place at the bow, but understood it had been removed for the handling of freight. Also that he had no conversation with the Captain about about that part of the boat this year, but had notified the officer in charge on former occasions that the rail was not what it ought to be. "Observer" states that the crews are often annoyed beyond endurance by passengers acting as though they owned the boat, &c. Now, sir, what do we find on this occasion? Some of the boat crew assisting in placing the planks in position to make seating accommodation on this same part of the boat, which is now claimed was forbidden to passengers, and which the inspector stated in his evidence the captain and mate are responsible for keeping clear. This occurred immediately under and in front of of the captain's post of duty. If the crew did not know the rules of the boat, is it reasonable to expect passengers to do so. I question very much if even our wise "Observer" would have the required knowledge to keep within the proper enclosure.

Who is responsible for this lack of discipline?

It appears to be rather a shakey defence for the jury to take refuge behind some minor points of differences in the testimony of the three young girls (who appeared for the first time in public on an occasion of this kind.) Such as whether it was the right or left hand side of the boat the child fell off at. The facts are these passengers were not only permitted, but were accommodated on this very part of the boat that night. According to the inspector's testimony, the captain and mate were responsible. Yet the jury say the captain and crew were not negligent. It looks like a transparent coat of whitewash.

It seems to me it is enough to suffer the consequences of this sad affair without having the unjust responsibility layed on the child by the rendering of such a verdict. The rail was a death trap as has been admitted by Captain Harris who stated to the writer that he fully expected to loose his papers on account of this occurrance. He held himself responsible and yet the jury practically places the responsibility on an innocent child. This jury that "Observer" claims needs no defence for their actions. How generous he appears to be. I do not make the above statement with any view of injuring the captain or his boat, but feel obliged to set "Observer" right by resenting the responsibility being placed where it does not belong. In taking this matter up it is not only in justice to ourselves, but also that the public interests would be safeguarded.

Thanking you Mr. Editor for space.

Yours very truly,

R. J. KIDD.

MOST FAVORABLE REPORT

ON THE STAR OF THE EAST GOLD MINING & MILLING CO PROPERTY

An Expert gives his Finding based on the Facts—As aye from six Samples of Ores—Evidences of a Profitable Venture.

The directors and stock holders of the Star of the East Gold Mining and Milling Company desire to place before the public the following report, made by Mr. John Klein, of the Laboratory Staff of the Buffalo Smelting Works, and who during the first week of the month visited the mine. On account of his ample experience and wide knowledge of mining under all conditions; he is competent to judge accurately, looking at the facts and the position of this property, now in course of development. Following is the report. It will be noticed that the four samples of ore taken from No. 1 shaft averages by the analysis, $31.90 of gold to the ton of ore.

To the Star of the East Gold Mining and Mining Company, gentlemen:

July 16 to 19, 1904, visited the Star of the East Gold Mining and Milling Company's property and surrounding country.

The property mine and mill are located about eighteen miles from Kaladar station in the township of Barrie, County of Frontenac, Ontario Canada.

Water.—There is plenty of water within easy access to both mine and mill. Lake McCausland, which is about (3,800) thirty-eight hundred feet from where the mill is to be built, and is about sixty feet higher than where the mill is to be located, giving an elevation of sixty feet and from which the water is to be used in the mill, and for other purposes, and which could also be used for power, affording water and power, for the cost of tying pipe, which is a great advantage, over many other mills, which have to have the water pumped, at a somewhat greater cost, Lake Massanoga, which is about two and one half (2 1-2) miles from the mine and mill, and which has a fall of about eight (8) feet, at Old Snyders depot at present, and where power could be generated for both mine and mill.

The mill is to be located on the hillside on the west shore of Lake Marble about one half (1-2) mile from No. 1 shaft, the hill will require but very little excavating for the mill, and a very small amount of trestling for the tramway from the mine to the mill and there is plenty of room for the tailings from the mill just below the mill.

There is a slight elevation from the mill to the shafts and it will not require much power for the tramway from the shafts to the mill and vice versa.

Veins.—There are two veins on the property which seem to form an acute angle and which could be traced for a distance of about two thousand (2,000) feet but could not see where they intersected.

Shafts.—There are four (4) shafts on the property.

On July 18, 1904.—No. 1 shaft which is on No. 1 Vein measured one hundred (100) feet deep to the drifts, nine (9) feet north and south and seventeen (17) feet east and west.

There were two drifts in No. 1 shaft one to the eastward and one to the westward, these drifts were at one hundred, (100,) feet, the drifts to the eastward measured six, (6) feet wide, seven (7) feet high and nine (9) feet to the eastward, the drift to the westward measured seven, (7) feet wide, seven (7) feet high and nine (9) feet to the westward.

No. 2 shaft, which is about two hundred, (200) feet to the west from No. 1 shaft and on the same vein, showed the same identical formation as the rock in No. 1 shaft. Did not measure No. 2 shaft but would judge it to be eight (8) feet by eight (8) feet by ten (10) feet deep.

No. 3 shaft, which is on No. 2 Vein which is about one hundred and fifty (150) feet from No. 1 Vein and about one hundred and fifty (150) feet to the north from No. 2 shaft, did not measure as sample No. 3 shaft but the ore is of the same character as the ore in No. 1 and 2 shafts on No. 1 Vein.

No. 4 shaft, which is on No. 2 Vein and almost north of No. 1 shaft and about one hundred and fifty (150) feet to the north measured thirteen (13) feet north and south, fourteen feet east and west and eight (8) feet deep.

Before passing on to the assays you must understand that I endeavored to get a good average sample from No. 1 shaft and in doing this took large sample's from the shaft, these sample's to my view are a fair average of the shaft and it would be only fair to state that had I sorted the ore the same as it should be assorted before going to the mill the assays would be much higher.

Assays.—No. 1 sample, sample taken from across bottom of No. 1 shaft, a blast was put in which measured nine (9) feet by five (5) feet and two and one half (2 1-2) feet deep, and samples taken from this weighed 600 pounds assayed for gold as below, gold, 34 oz. per ton, $30.70 per ton.

No. 2 sample, sample taken from west drift in No. 1 shaft, weighed one hundred (100) pounds, assayed for gold as below, gold, 0.40 oz. per ton, $7.95 per ton.

No. 3 sample, sample taken from east drift in No. 1 shaft weighed one hundred and twenty five (125) pounds, assayed for gold as below, gold 2.3 oz. per ton, $47.65 per ton.

No. 4 sample, sample from bottom east and west drifts in No. 1 shaft weighed eight hundred (800) pounds, this was sampled and assayed; assay for gold as below, gold, 0.40 oz. per ton, $8.20 per ton.

No. 5 sample taken from across pay streak in No. 2 shaft, which measured four (4) feet, weight of sample taken was ten (10) pounds, assayed for gold as below, gold, 0.15 oz. per ton, $3.07 per ton.

No. 6 sample, sample taken across vein in No. 4 shaft, weighed fifteen (15) pounds, assayed for gold as below, gold, 0.10 oz. per ton, $2.05 per ton.

At the surface of No. 4 shaft the ore or rock is well decomposed for a distance of eighteen (18) inches, and from this I was able to pan a good showing of gold.

The above assays were done by John Klein at the Laboratory of the Buffalo Smelting Works. No. 1 Austin street, Buffalo, N.Y., John Klein, 1 Austin street, Buffalo, N.Y., care of Buffalo Smelting Works.

IN THE REALM OF SPORT

CANOEING.

The Toronto paddlers made a splendid showing at the A.C.A. camp at Sugar Island on Saturday, when they won three events. Blomfield and Brent (the former a son of Mr. C. J. Blomfield, of Lakefield), are speedy, and their wins were popular in both the tandem and singles.

The other paddling events resulted as follows:—

Single tandem, half mile—1, Blomfield and Brent, Toronto; 2, Mather and Dey, Ottawa.

Special singles, half mile—1, R. Blomfield, Toronto; 2, Dey, Ottawa; B. F. Pouse, Rochester; H. Brent, Toronto.

Senior, double-blade—Hal Brent, Toronto.

Junior, single blade, half mile—James Hutton, Y.M.C.A., Brockville.

BOWLING.

Notwithstanding the absence of three rinks in Toronto there were three games played last night. The green was in fine condition and there was some good bowling done. There will be no schedule for to-night, but all who attend early may rely on a game. The following are the scores:—

G. Stevenson	J. Little
Rev. J. Wilson	J. McClung
G. A. Cox	F. Clarke
D. H. Moore	W. Smith
R. J. Frost, 10.	H. Armstrong, 14.

BASEBALL.

Sir,—In your account of the baseball game on Friday, the 12th, at the Peter Hamilton employees' excursion, you stated that the machinists had win the game by 17—9, which is incorrect, as the moulders won the game by that score.

No doubt you were misinformed, as the moulders not only played the machinists, but blacksmiths and carpenters, and played the same team on July 30th, and beat them 13—5 in a six innings game.

ONE OF THE MOULDERS.

The Charlotte-st. baseball team will accompany Mount Hebron Encampment, I.O.O.F., to Bobcaygeon on Civic Holiday and will play the Kawartha nine. The game promises to be a good one.

The Lindsay Post has taken many a hard drive at the Peterborough ball team, but now, when things are not just what they seem, and when all glory has departed, and that ball game with Galt is not a pleasant thing to remember, the Post makes the following remarks:—The Peterborough papers are coming down pretty hard on the Lindsay baseball team. They surely know that a team cannot always win. Why, Lindsay easily took Peterborough into camp this year, with Flaherty—whom they talk so much about, but who was too good for their team—in the box. Oshawa, Bowmanville, Varsity, repeated the trick. Peterborough do not always win, but talk enough to be constant winners.

THE "PONIES" HERE SATURDAY.

Chaucer Elliott and his herd of Kingston Ponies will be here Saturday to clash with the locals, and should prove to be the best attraction of the season. The local management are at considerable expense for this game, and when the public get an opportunity like this they should not let it go without taking a look at it.

The T. A. S. baseball team will go to Orillia Thursday to play the locals there. A double-header is on that day.

Toronto won yesterday, with Bruce in the box.

LAUNCH TRIP OVER CANAL

What a Lindsay Party Says on the Route—Arriving at Peterborough

The Lindsay Post continues the account of a launch trip through the canal as follows:—

The trip down this—the new portion of the canal from Lakefield to Peterborough—was most interesting. The Roy was here joined by the Viking, manned by Captain Fred and Messrs. Bruce and Bert. Hopkins, William and Robert Allen, and as the gate was being closed the clear notes of the bugle announced the arrival of another craft, which proved to be another launch belonging to Mr. Bickford, of Toronto, who with his wife, was making a tour of the lakes. They put their boat in the water at Port Perry, and after visiting Cameron and Balsam Lakes and Burnt River, had then covered the same waters as we had traversed, stopping each night at hotels en route. Enjoyment and appreciation was written on their faces, and a more comfortable family party could not well be imagined.

The cutting through the rocks at Lakefield is very deep, but the result has been one of the most substantial portions of the canal. The lock chambers and approaches are all made up of cement, which answers the purpose better than either stone or wood, and presents a better appearance; in fact, it is more satisfactory in every respect.

To reach Peterborough we had to pass through nine lock gates, all within a reach of nine miles, and as the locks had been very little used they were consequently rather stiff. The lockmasters are green hands at their jobs, so the labor was rather heavy on the working members of our party, and the long reach leading to the lift lock gave a welcome cessation of labor. As we neared the lift lock, crowds of sightseers lined its approaches, to whom the advent of the three launches was a welcome sight.

The men in charge of the lock gave the party the same attention as would be given to the largest boat on the inland waters, and the Roy and its escorts sailed into the big steel box with as much dignity and fuss as would any of its larger sisters. As a full description of this—the largest lift-lock in the world—was published in the Post in a previous issue, we will not repeat it. The sensation of being in the large tank, with many thousands of gallons of water, and of being lowered about 65 feet in about a minute was unique. After the end has been dropped down like the tail-board of a waggon, we were able to sail out and away; then, after a run of a few hundred feet, we encountered another gate lock, which was speedily put behind us. We then entered Little Lake, and were soon safely moored at Peterborough's town wharf.

To be a successful wife, to retain the love and admiration of her husband should be a woman's constant study. If she would be all that she may, she must guard well against the signs of ill health. Mrs. Brown tells her story for the benefit of all wives and mothers.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will make every mother well, strong, healthy and happy. I dragged through nine years of miserable existence, worn out with pain and weariness. I then noticed a statement of a woman troubled as I was; and the wonderful results she had had from your Vegetable Compound, and decided to try what it would do for me, and used it for three months. At the end of that time, I was a different woman, the neighbors remarked it, and my husband fell in love with me all over again. It seemed like a new existence. I had been suffering with inflammation and falling of the womb, but your medicine cured that, and built up my entire system, till I was indeed like a new woman.—Sincerely yours, MRS. CHAS. F. USELESS RUSSIAN SORTIE

Their Ships Return to Port Arthur without a Fight.

THE SCATTERED CRUISERS

Port Arthur Close Pressed and the End Approaching.—Kuroki still Advancing to the Westward and also Threatens Mukden.

London, Aug. 17.—A despatch to The Central News from Tokio says that a big oil warehouse at Port Arthur is blazing furiously and that the position of the besieged is such that the Japanese are urging them to surrender.

Humane Note Delivered.

Tokio, Aug. 17.—The Emperor's offer to release the non-combatants at Port Arthur, coupled with a demand for the surrender of the fortress was delivered Tuesday. An answer is expected to-day (Wednesday).

Sortie By Russian Ships.

Che Foo, Aug. 17.—The Russian ships at Port Arthur made a sortie early yesterday. They are now being pursued by the Japanese. A severe engagement is expected. The Russians, it is reported, did not encounter the Japanese fleet. Nevertheless they returned to Port Arthur.

Compelled to Leave.

Yesterday's sortie of the Russian warships from Port Arthur is regarded as a confirmation of the previous reports that the Japanese have occupied an important land position, the fire from which compelled the Russian vessels to leave the harbor. Junks, which left Port Arthur, Aug. 13, report that heavy fighting was continuing.

Kamimura's Report.

Tokio, Aug. 15.—(Delayed in transmission.)—Admiral Kamimura in his detailed report of last Sunday's victory of the Vladivostock squadron says:

"At dawn Sunday morning the armored cruisers Idsumo, Capt. Ijichi; the Adsuma, Capt. Fuji; the Tokiwa, Capt. Yochimatsu, and the Iwater, Capt. Taketomi, while engaged in a search off Fusan, Corea, discovered three of the Vladivostock squadron steaming southward. Seeing us, the enemy endeavored to flee northward. We immediately closed their retreat. The engagement opened at 5.23 a.m.

"The Rurik, being the slowest of the enemy's vessels, was constantly left behind, and she formed a target for our incessant fire. The Rossia and the Gromoboi gallantly attempted several times to protect the Rurik. They frequently returned to the Rurik, and, when united, the three advanced together.

"Our fleet thus had the advantage of pouring its fire from a formation in the shape of a letter 'T.' The enemy's ships were seen to be on fire several times, showing thereby that they were heavily damaged. The Rurik was finally disabled and her fire weakened. She began lowering in the water, listing to port. The Rossia and Gromoboi finally abandoned the Rurik. Just then our fourth detachment, consisting of the protected cruisers Naniwa, Capt. Wada, and the Tshachibe, Capt. Mori, having been seen attacking the Rurik, our squadron pursued the Rossia and Gromoboi. Severe fighting continued for several hours.

"The Rossia and Gromoboi escaped to the northward at full speed. At 10.10 a.m. our squadron changed its course to the starboard and went south in search of the Rurik. In the meantime the Rurik had been sunk. Our ships steamed over the locality and succeeded in saving 600 members of the Rurik's crew. Our damage was not serious. The spirit of our men was excellent."

Germans Will Fire.

Tsingtau, Aug. 17.—A Japanese destroyed entered the harbor a short time ago having on board the Japanese Vice-Admiral Dewa and his staff, for the purpose of calling on the governor of Kiauchou.

At the governor's mansion Governor Truppel assured the Japanese admiral that all the Russian ships were dismantled, that their guns had been disabled and their ammunition removed. The Admiral then departed, and as the Japanese destroyer left she was saluted by the German warships.

The Germans have notified the Japanese that they will fire on any ship entering the harbor at night without lights.

Pallada Sunk.

Tokio, Aug. 17.—It seems certain that the Russian protected cruiser Pallada was torpedoed and sunk during the naval battle of Aug. 10. She failed to return to Port Arthur, and has not been reported since Admiral Togo's fleet departed on various missions the night of Aug. 10, when the Russians retreated. One destroyer reports that she hit a vessel of the Pallada type, and it is thought the vessel foundered, and it is believed to be probable that the entire crew were either killed or drowned. Admiral Togo, in reporting to the admiralty, says it appears certain that the Pallada was sunk.

Alexieff Arrives.

Vladivostock, Aug. 17.—Viceroy Alexieff arrived here Monday. He was received at the railway station by Admiral Skrydloff, Gen. Linevitch, the governor of the maritime province, and other notable persons.

British Protest Delivered.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 17.—The formal British protest against the treatment of neutral ships was delivered to the Russian Government yesterday. It follows the lines of Foreign Secretary Lansdowne's and Premier Balfour's recent statements on the subject in Parliament.

Will Exact Reparation.

London, Aug. 17.—From a diplomatic source it was learned yesterday that England has taken an uncompromising attitude towards the action of the Russian warships in sinking the steamer Knight Commander. In her latest note to Russia, Great Britain informed the St. Petersburg officials that they must pay damages for the sinking of the Knight Commander. If this is refused, England will resort to extreme measures. Also, if there is a repetition of the sinking of a British ship, British cruisers will be ordered to exact reparation from the offending warships.

News From Liaoyang.

Liaoyang, Aug. 17.—The Japanese are reported to be much nearer Anshanshan on the southeast than 12 miles, and Lieut.-General Zassalitch's troops, who had a severe skirmish on the 13th, are having daily touch with the enemy.

ALL FOR PORTLAND ME.

Having, in participation with its allies, the grafters and corrupt politicians, secured the enactment of the evil legislation concerning the G. T. P. and the company being organized, the Globe now throws off the mask. When during the debate in the House members of the Opposition side pointed out that the G .T. R. was not bound by any contract or agreement, the Ministerialists, with the support of the Globe, urged that we had to deal in the matter with the G .T. P. and not with the G.T.R. Now the Globe admits that: "The railway is undisguisedly a Grand Trunk enterprise and the company is obviously in all but name a Grand Trunk corporation." We are further told of the Grand Trunk that:

"It owns and operates thousands of miles of railway now, mainly in Canada, but partly in the United States. It has through lines of its own from Chicago to Portland and Quebec, and has important and profitable affiliations with other systems. It will be of immense advantage to the western part of the Dominion to be brought into touch with such a system, and it will be of equal advantage to the Grand Trunk Company to be enabled to participate in the enormous trade which a few years more will develop in Manitoba, the Northwest Territories and British Columbia."

Now that it is too late to prevent the mischief we have this impudent admission of the truth. The Grand Trunk, with its system "partly in the United States," is to be free to divert the enormous trade which the G. T. P.—itself under another name—may acquire in Western Canada, to its old lines terminating in Portland. That this would be the case was pointed out repeatedly by the Opposition, but the Ministers and their supporters scouted the idea of binding the G. T. R. in any way, arguing that the G. T. P. had promised to give a preference as far as possible to Canadian ports. Now, however, the mask is cast aside. The G.T.R., not the G.T.P., is to control the great amalgamated enterprise and there is nothing to prevent their carrying every bushel of Western wheat to Portland, Maine. The promises of the G. T. P. not to adopt this route was felt to be of little value, and since then it has turned out that Mr. Hays, who would have the deciding voice in the matter, has abused his power by giving positions to engineers from the United States to the exclusion of Canadians, so he could not be expected not to favour his countrymen in other matters. But even this slight safeguard is now proved to be a delusion, for the control is altogether in the hands of the Grand Trunk, as is now confessed by the Ministerial organ.

This iniquitous railway scheme, with its heavy burden on the people of Canada, was not conceived for the benefit of the Dominion, but to make friends with the Grand Trunk by enabling them to enter the Northwest and obtain freight for their Portland line. Linked with this was a present of $25,000,000 to the associated grafters that there might be a big rake-off for the Ministerial corruption fund.

G.P.R. ASSUMES CONTROL

OF THE NEW LINE FROM BURKETON TO BOBCAYGEON.

Early Morning Train will Connect with the Local from Town — Also an Evening Train.

During the past few weeks—in fact ever since the formal opening of the L.B. & P.Ry.—many officials of the C.P.R. have visited Lindsay on business connected with the actual transfer of the new line to C.P.R. control, says the Lindsay Post. These officials represented the passenger, freight, express and telegraph departments, and as a result of the arrangements made by them the line is now actually being operated by the C.P.R. management. Mr. A. McAuley, Road-master of the Eastern Division of the C.P.R. is one of the officials who who has been here very frequently of late. In conversation yesterday with Post representatives, Mr. McAuley said:—

"You may say that this is the first day, (Monday) we have really assumed control of the new line known as the L.B. & P.Ry. Division of the C. P.R. What we found the road in as good condition as could be looked for, yet we intend to put on some extra work that will place it on a par with anything to be found in Canada. For some twelve or fifteen miles at the south end of the line we are starting in the morning to put on another coat of ballast from the Bobcaygeon gravel pits. As considerable sand has been used on the south end for ballasting purposes, we intend covering it over with a substantial coat of gravel which will make it practically a dustless road.

"As regards traffic arrangements, we are not in a position to state definately just what we propose doing, but will say that a passenger train service will be put on to meet the requirements of the traffic to and from the city. An early morning train will leave Bobcaygeon to connect at Burketon with the 7.10 a.m. train from Peterborough, which will reach the city sometime near 8 a.m. and will reach Bobcaygeon about 11. 0 a.m. We expect to run two evening trains in like manner.

"We are more than gratified with the expressions of appreciation meted out to us by the people whom we have met so far, and we hope to be able to merit their confidence by giving them an up-to-date service second to none on the continent."

A TRANSCONTENENTAL TOUR

Several Peterborough People Join a House Party.

Several people from town, and vicinity left Toronto by the C.P.R. at 7.40 Monday morning upon the transcontinental house party tour personally conducted by Mrs. Cuthbert, a lady who has had great experience in trips of this kind. The route lies through the States o. Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, California and Oregon from south to north and Washington. British Columbia, Alberta, Assiniboia, Manitoba and Ontario, through great variety of scenes. The party will have a day and a half at St. Louis, three hours and a half to see old Santa Fe; Sunday at Grand Canyon, five hours at Palo Alto, two days and a half at San Francisco, almost a day at Glacier, and short stays at Winnipeg and North Bay on the return trip.

The Peterborough taking in the the trip are Rev. H. B. Kennedy, Mr. M. S. Kennedy and Miss Irene Noble. Rev. S. C. Moore of Canton, Rev. E. B. Lancely of Port Hope, are also among the number. The trip will be for exactly one month, from August 15 to September 15. The party will pass over the following railroads in going: Wabash, Santa Fe, and Southern Pacific, and in returning by the Southern Pacific the Northern Pacific and Canadian Pacific.

THANKING GOD

The Laurierites Reason for Feeling Overcome with Gratitude.

Le Canada, the organ established by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, after Mr. Tarte broke away and took La Patrie with him, has the following appeal to the solid Quebec vote:—

"Our militarists, still heated with "the harangue of Lord Dundonald, "desire that by a simple requisition "of the Minister of War in London, "the government should be able to call "the militia to arms to take away "from our industries, from our com"merce, from our agriculture, the "arms which support them and to "send them away, at our expense to "fight in China, in Russia, in Africa, "everywhere that it pleases England "to conquer new territories."

"We challenge anyone to deny that "if the Conservatives were in the ma"jority power would be given to the Government to call under arms one, "two or three regiments of militia, "and send them to be killed to round "off the English territory at Thibet, "in the Transvaal, in Manchuria, or "elsewhere."

"What will Canada get out of it? "Nothing. But what is that to our "imperialists? Our militiamen are "nothing to them but food for cannon "like the professional armies of Eur"ope."

"God be thanked, the Tories are not "in power, and the soldiers of the Can"adian militia will be retained for "the service of Canada."

HUMILIATING EXPLANATION

The Rascally Plan of Sir Frederick's to Calumniate Lord Dundonald.

Weeks ago the Toronto Globe accused Lord Dundonald of recommending the erection of "great fortresses" along the national frontier at a "ruinous expense" of $30,000,000 to $40,000,000. Lord Dundonald gave an emphatic public denial to the accusation. After stubbornly resisting for many days the demands of several of its contemporaries to withdraw its accusation, the Globe, on the eve of Lord Dundonald's departure, boldly challenged him to deny that he had recommended a capital expenditure of $12,000,000 on military equipment and an additional annual expenditure of $2,000,000 for an indefinite period. Evidently this brave challenge was issued with the hope that it would serve in lieu of a withdrawal of the more serious accusation. But it was not successful. The more serious accusation was not forgotten. And now the Globe finds it expedient to make an attempt at explanation. It says to-day that it accused Lord Dundonald of recommending the expenditure of thirty or forty millions on "fortresses" "with the purpose of eliciting from the department or from Lord Dundonald a statement of the facts."

This explanation we regard as even more disgraceful than the original accusation or the Globe's stubborn refusal to withdraw it after Dundonald had denied the truth of it. A professional soldier with a great reputation to sustain is held up to public ridicule by having attributed to him a ridiculous scheme which he publicly repudiates; and it is explained that this is done in order to compel him to reveal the contents of official documents submitted by him to his superiors, but which his superiors suppressed! Does not this savor of the ancient method of torturing an accused person for the purpose of compelling him to give information?

If it was and is really the Globe's purpose to "elicit from the department or from Lord Dundonald a statement of the facts," why resort to the cruel expedient of slandering Dundonald? The documents containing the facts are in possession of the Minister of Militia. Why does not the Globe make a demand upon the Minister for the publication of the documents? The editor of the Glob would take it most unkindly if somebody should publicly accuse him of wholesale plagiarism for the purpose of compelling him to admit that the has occasionally appropriated to his use metaphors and phrases from the classics, such as "this gray spirit" from Tennyson's Ulysses.

But apparently the Globe doesn't require any information from the department or Dundonald relative to "the facts." A day or two ago it said, with regard to its statement about the $12,000,000 of expenditure recommended by Dundonald: "The statement stands unchallenged. The statement is true." That is apparently an authoritative assertion. But if the Globe knows that its statement is true it must know the contents of Dundonald's suppressed reports; and if it knows the contents of the reports, why did it consider it necessary to make a false accusation against Dundonald in order to elicit from the department or from Lord Dundonald a statement of the facts?"—Hamilton Herald, Indep.

CHAMPLAIN AND TRENT CANAL

The Great French Explorer Passed by this Route.

In the report of the discussion in Committee of Supply on the proposal to erect a monument to Champlain at St. John, N.B. Hansard has the following:—

Mr. Sam Hughes. Is there any special reason why this monument should be placed at St. John?

Mr. Gourley. He landed there.

Mr. Sam Hughes. No, his operations were more in Nova Scotia than New Brunswick. I do not object to it. I am delighted to see that this monument is going to be erected there but the point I want to impress on the right hon. Prime Minister is that in case he should be so fortunate as to be in charge of the government, another year I want the right honorable gentleman, or whoever may be in charge of the government, to remember the fact that Champlain visited the province of Ontario and that to this is due the inception of the Trent canal. It was from Champlain that the first intimation of the feasibility of the Panama canal came a fact which you will find recorded in Parkman's "Pioneers of France in the New World," as follows:—

Returning, he made his way to Panama. Here, more than two centuries and a half ago, his bold and active mind conceived the plan of a ship canal across the isthmus, "by which," he says, "the voyage to the South Sea would be shortened by more than fifteen hundred leagues."

We find that this intrepid soldier, who I am proud to say, fought under the white plume of Henry of Navarre at the battle of Ivry side by side with Sir Walter Raleigh, made himself useful in his explorations in the new world. Those of us who come from the Midland district of Ontario recall with a great deal of pride the fact that Champlain was the first European to cover the route of the Trent Canal which is now so much in favor with the people of this country. He ascended the Ottawa and the Mattawan passed through Lake Nipissing, descended the French river, passed down the shore of the Georgian Bay to the mouth of the River Severn thence proceeded to Orillia. Parkman in the same volume says:—

"At the outlet of Lake Simcoe, they all stopped to fish."

I may say to my right honorable friend that the fishing was good in those waters and in the early part of the seventeenth century when they were first visited by Champlain, and it is excellent to-day and that accounts for the brain and brawn possessed by the people of the city of Toronto who go there to spend their summers.

Mr. Clarke. Do I understand that Champlain suggested the Trent canal also?

Mr Sam Hughes. Yes, he is partly responsible for it. Parkman continues:

"It was the eighth of September and Champlain, shivering in his blanket awoke to see the bordering meadows sparkling with an early frost soon to vanish under the bright autumnal sun. The Huron fleet pursued its course along the bosom of Lake Simcoe, up the Little River Talbot, across the portage to Balsam lake, and down the chain of lakes which form the source of the river Trent. As the long line of canoes moved on its devious way, no human life was seen, no sign of friend or foe, yet, at times, to the fancy of Champlain, the borders of the stream seemed decked with groves and shrubbery by the hands of man, and mighty walnut trees, laced with gray vines, seemed decorations of a pleasure ground.

Trees and grapevines similar to those which Champlain gazed upon are to be seen there to-day. Then, Parkman goes on to describe the adventures, battles and hunts that took place in that locality. We know the locality. The vicinity of the village of Fenelon Falls between Cameron and Sturgeon lakes was one of the Indian hunting grounds. At all events Balsam lake where the late George Laidlaw had established his home and where his son who saw service in South Africa now resides was one of the camping places of Champlain and I want to direct the right hon. First Minister's attention to the fact. We do not want a $5,000 monument erected here but we will be very much pleased to see something to commemorate the adventures of Champlain in that locality erected in the county of Victoria.

THE BURLEIGH FALLS MORTGAGE

The Discussion in Lindsay on this Matter Continues.

(To the Editor of the Lindsay Post)

Sir,—Mr. Culverwell claims he is receiving unfair treatment here. Surely he will not deny us the right, as citizens of Lindsay, to do what we think proper to defend our town. I have said nothing against Mr. Culverwell personally; he has a perfect right to get all that he can, but on the other hand we would not deserve any consideration if we allowed him to take everything in sight, for a people who are not loyal to their own town cannot expect foreigners to do for them what they will not do for themselves.

Now, what are the facts, as we see them? Some years since Mr. Culverwell entered into a contract with the town to bring Burleigh power here, within a certain specified time. This he failed to do, and ever since then this power has been dangled before the people—I do not say purposely—but I do think that if we had not been placed in this position we would have made some effort to get either this or some other power before now, for I feel sure that the people realise that electric power has become such a necessity that the prosperity of any town or city will depend on the quantity and price of same, and I have such unbounded faith in Lindsay—situated as it is—that with a fair chance it would be able to use all the power in sight that could be reasonably brought here.

On his appearing before the Council Mr. Culverwell demanded that the mortgage be given up to him, saying it was not valid, and that we had no right to it, and failing to get possession of it he would enter an action against the town to recover same; and when this did not work to his liking he seemingly changed his tactics, making it appear that he always had a kindly feeling for us, that he never received any benefits, and that the town had not been damaged.

As to his claim that he received no benefit, unless he expected to get something for nothing, then the very opposite must be the case, for had he carried out his part of the contract, he was to have a twenty-five year franchise. Surely that was enough. Just think of it—he would have had the town tied up until the year 1924, and yet he calls that nothing! He seems to have drawn a herring across the track by bringing the Fenelon Falls transaction in and trying to couple the two together, but as I understand it, the Burleigh Falls contract was entered into about two years after the Fenelon muddle, so that it could not have anything to do with it, and if it had I think that any individual or company would consider—even at that time—a twenty-five years' franchise remuneration enough, and people's ideas regarding franchises have changed greatly since then. The mortgage is ours to do with as we see fit, subject, of course, to conditions of the first mortgage of $3,000, and the value of it is whatever the property is worth, which Mr. Culverwell told me was fifty thousand dollars.

As to the latest move in the matter—that we allow an additional mortgage of three thousand dollars to be placed ahead of ours, which with the one of three thousand already there — interest, etc., added would likely bring it up to between seven and eight thousand dollars. This would swamp our mortgage and should not be done. At any rate the thing should be settled now and forever. We want the goods, and if Mr. Culverwell is free, able and willing, then let him say the least that he will take and guarantee to deliver power inside of one year, but let it be done in a business way so that we will know just where we are at, and then we can act accordingly.

I have nothing but kind feelings for Mr. Culverwell—I consider him a keen, bright business man, a good fellow, and a man whom I would like very much to see a resident of our town. I feel sure that if he were one of us he would never rest so long as he could see something ahead that would be of benefit to this community, but unfortunately, not being with us, is compelled by force of circumstances to be against us.—Yours, etc.

R. M. BEAL.

DUNDONALD'S "RECALL"

Ministerial Agents in London Garbling the Record — Falsehood their Weapon

It is to be feared that the London agent of the Canadian Associated Press, in his despatch summarising the parliamentary debate on the Dundonald affair, deliberately garbled the language used by Arnold-Forster for the purpose of making it appear that the Imperial War Secretary had censured Dundonald's conduct and commanded his return. If this despatch had been accurate, the publications of Canadian Government organs over the supposed fact that Dundonald had been "disgraced" by the imperial authorities would have been justified. But the despatch was not accurate.

English papers just to hand contain verbatim reports of Arnold-Forster's speech, and if it had been cabled in full it would not have taken up much more space than the garbled summary did. Here is the important part of the War Secretary's speech:—

Nobody has ever suggested any misconduct other than want of judgment on the part of Lord Dundonald, who, I may say, did not go to Canada as the representative of the Imperial Government. As an officer on half pay, he had a perfect right to express his opinions, although, no doubt, what he has done has created a difficulty. The War Office, however, has informed Lord Dundonald that it is not desirable that he should continue to take part in public discussions in Canada, and has requested him to return home in order to account for what has occurred. Until Lord Dundonald has been heard in his own defence, I decline to express any opinion on what he has done.

Much criticism of Lord Dundonald is answered in these few remarks. It has been charged that, in attempting to "dragoon" the government, he was acting as the representative of imperial interests. Mr. Arnold-Forster says he was not the representative of the Imperial Government. It has been charged that, as a British officer on the active list, Dundonald had no right to make any public speeches on political questions. Mr. Arnold-Forster say she had a perfect right to express his opinions, although the war secretary questioned the expediency of his doing so. It has been asserted that Dundonald was ordered home in disgrace. Mr. Arnold-Forster says he has been "requested" to return home and make explanations. It has been asserted that Dundonald has been censured by the imperial authorities. Mr. Arnold-Forster says he reserves his opinion on Dundonald's conduct until Dundonald has been heard in his own defence.

There are probably few Canadians who really believe that Dundonald has done or said anything disgraceful, and it is extremely improbable that he will suffer any "disgrace" at the hands of the imperial authorities.—Hamilton Herald, indep.

THE JACKSON OUTRAGE

Liberals and Independents Condemn Sir Richard Cartwright's Complicity in Crime.

The Stratford Beacon and the St. Marys Argus, two Liberal journals that circulate in Mr. Erb's constituency, commend the action of the member for South Perth in voting against the Government on the question of the Jackson appointment. This is a hopeful sign, and both papers are entitled to credit. The Argus, referring to Mr. Erb, says: 'The fact that the Conservatives have made similar appointments in bygone days should be no excuses for the Liberals to do likewise. The appointments made by the Laurier Government to responsible positions have usually been admirable ones, and we are sure that if Sir Richard Cartwright had examined into all the circumstances fully he would not have recommended Mr. Jackson of Ingersoll for any preferment. The doctrine of lighting the devil with fire is neither new nor serviceable." It is to be feared, there is no loop-hole of escape from responsibility for Sir Richard such as the Argus suggests. The evidence given at the South Oxford election trial, and the comments of the Judges must have been familiar to Sir Richard. If he knew nothing further than was revealed by that trial he should have known enough. Yet the election trial was but an incident. It did not differ materially in moral character from many other incidents with which Sir Richard must have been more or less familiar. That Sir Richard must have been familiar with them is proven by the fact that it was Sir Richard made them possible. That Sir Richard was frequently deceived is probably true; that he was constantly lied to notorious, but that he was altogether ignorant nobody who knows anything about the facts believes. He probably did not know everything, but he must have known enough to take the responsibility of appointing Jackson to a government position in the easiest way of relieving himself of a burden. How deeply Sir Richard knew himself to be involved may be judged from the readiness with which he yielded. — Woodstock Express, Indep.

BUILT SEVERAL VESSELS

WHO THE LATE THOS. WALTERS WAS IDENTIFIED WITH NAVIGATION.

Assumed Charge of Many Dredging Operations in the Waters of this District — Was Superintendent of Public Works.

In its obituary of the late Thomas Walters, the Lindsay Post recalls the following facts of great local interest, as the deceased gentleman was well known here:

Thomas Walters was born in Blackdown, near Tavistock, Devonshire, England, in 1838. When 15 years of age he accompanied his parents to Canada, settling at Portsmouth, near Kingston, where a large shipyard was in operation. There he served his apprenticeship and became a master shipbuilder, and at the same time identified himself with the life of the place, and church work, serving as warden of the Church of England along with Sir Richard Cartwright. Later Mr. Walters removed to Port Hope, and after spending some time there, removed to Lindsay about 1865. Here the good qualities that had made him popular in Portsmouth and Kingston speedily won for him a wide circle of friends, and he quickly became prominent in many ways.

At that time the late Captain Crandell recognised the need of a fleet of steamers on these waters, and Mr. Walters was engaged to build a number of vessels—the Champion, Commodore and others; he also constructed the original steamer Victoria at Buckhorn for Mr. Shaw, then owner of a big saw mill at Ball Lake. Later on Mr. Walters was engaged by Mr. A. P. Cockburn in the early days of the Muskoka Navigation Co. to go to Port Carling and build the Sir Nipissing, which is still in active commission and until lately was the largest vessel of the now extensive fleet. All work undertaken by Mr. Walters was executed with a thoroughness that in time came to be recognised and admitted by everyone. About this time he purchased a dredge from the Dominion Government and assumed charge of many of the dredging operations that were necessary for the improvement of the navigation of these waters. This dredge he afterwards disposed of to Mr. Alex. Ross, who operated it for a number of years at intervals.

In 1879 or 1880 Mr. Walters was appointed superintendent of Public Works for Ontario through the instrumentality of Hon. S. C. Wood, then member for Victoria in the Provincial Legislature. He proved to be the right man for the place, and fulfilled the responsible duties to the end with credit to himself and the Government whose faithful servant he was.

As a citizen Mr. Walters was called on time and again to take a seat in the Council, and when he finally consented to assume the position he applied to the civic problems the thoroughness for which he was ever conspicuous. The result was that he was elected again and again, serving a number of times as deputy-reeve and reeve, and three or four terms as Mayor. He also served on the Board of Education for a number of years. In 1893 or 1894 he was nominated to contest South Victoria for the Commons in the bye-election, and again at the general election, and while unsuccessful the majority against him in each contest was very small.

WARSHIPS AT EXHIBITION

A Model of the Hatsuse to be on View in Toronto.

The decision of the great Armstrong shipbuilding firm of England to send to the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto a complete model of the Japanese battleship Hatsuse will be of much interest to those who have followed the exploits of the Japanese fleet since the opening of the present war. The news that this remarkable model was being shipped came in a cable from Lord Strathcona to Mr. McNaught Friday and as the ultimate result of his efforts to secure for the Exhibition a number of naval models. The Hatsuse is known as the premier battleship of the Japanese navy, and has taken a leading part in the evolutions before Port Arthur. It is stated that the model of this vessel in the possession of the Armstrong Company is really a magnificent effort in mimic shipbuilding and it is well understood that it is only by the personal kindness of Sir William Armstrong himself, backed by the influence of Lord Strathcona, that the company has consented to trust this model across the ocean.

As the same cable conveys the information that several other models of importance are being added to that which R was originally intended to send, it may be expected that the Exhibition will contain practically a miniature fleet, representing some of the best known warships in the world. Elaborate preparations are being made by the directors of the Exhibition for the reception of this exhibition and for the adequate display to the thousands of people who will desire to see it.

PULP WOOD

The Rise in Price and its Cause—The Value of Spruce.

In their advocacy of higher prices the papers manufacturers whose chief raw material is wood call attention to the gradual increase in the cost of pulp woods since 1896. At that time and for a number of years previous the price of logs was low. But beginning in that year there has been a steady increase in their cost to the paper maker. This advance, according to the Paper Trades Journal, amounts to at least 50 per cent., or, of pulp wood has been from 25 cents to 70 cents per year dependent on the locality. By way of comparison it is cited by U. S. papermanufacturers that, while previous to 1896 their supply of domestic pulp wood cost them, delivered at the mills, between $3 and $6 per cord, the present cost of wood is between $7 and $8 delivered. A corresponding advance has also taken place in the cost of Canadian pulp wood. Rough spruce logs that used to cost from $3 to $4 per cord f.o.b. cars, are now quoted at from $4.50 to $5. Peeled spruce wood, that sold for $4.50 to $4.50 per cord five years ago, is now selling at from $5.50 to $6 per cord f.o.b. cars. Poplar logs in the United States, that used to cost $6 per cord and has delivered, now cost the paper manufacturers nearer $9 per cord. Canadian poplar has advanced from $4 to $3.50 to $5.50 and $6 f.o.b. cars. Besides the increased cost of the wood freight rates have also advanced within the same time. But, notwithstanding the increased cost of their raw material, the selling price of wood pulps, has not advanced proportionately.

Speaking in regard to pulp wood and their increased cost, an authority on the subject explained the advance as follows:—'Previous to 1898 the situation in the various lines of trade for a number of years had been unsatisfactory. As a result of the depression the lumber business was in a bad way. Because of the low prices many sellers of lumber had to discontinue business. Pulp wood was, therefore, cheap, as every timber land owner who happened to need some cash, sold his wood. It was his best asset upon which to get a ready return in cash. Times were so hard that there was an over supply of wood for sale. Naturally the price of lumber and pulp wood declined. Beginning in 1898, however, the Spanish war gave an impetus to general business, and the price of lumber, in common with every other commodity, began to advance. Timber that had been costing $12 to $13 per thousand feet advanced to $16 to $20 per thousand feet. There has been more of an advance in lumber than in pulp wood. But the latter cost more also because after a time there was not a sufficient supply of pulp wood available to meet demand without including more or less spruce which was that particular class of pulp wood had to meet lumber prices. In this connection I want to state that the idea that pulp wood is not suitable for any other purpose than to be the ground into pulp is erroneous. In the absence therefore of a splendid supply of cheap pulp wood the buyers had to bid on the better material, and of course had to pay correspondingly for it.

Continuing this gentleman said:—"The advance supply of spruce timber is limited. The competition for it has naturally forced prices up. Each year the supply must be drawn from places still more remote than the year before. This necessity has gradually increased the cost to the paper manufacturer. The cut of wood this winter has been fairly large, but the increased demand more than offsets the increase in the supply. The two years previous, however, spruce and favorable lumbering, as the thaws came too early for the men to get logs out. The very deep snow this winter has of course increased the cost of lumbering operations because much shovelling of snow had to be done. The congestion of traffic on the railroads this winter and the inability to get pulp shipments through have helped to stiffen the market on pulp wood. The cost of pulp wood to the paper manufacturer this winter has been higher than for many years and there are no indications that the cost will be less in the future."—Canadian Trade Review.

PUSHING CROWDS

The Violence akin to Robbery — A Terrible Tragedy Invited.

Magistrate Denison of Toronto, has ruled that pushing in a crowd is an assault, and declares his intention of punishing people guilty of it. The case which was before him at the time was a charge of pushing at the Perry reception, which was followed by the collapse of the platform. Col. Denison said that some day great loss of life would come from the reckless manner in which Toronto crowds showed reckless of consequence.

This is a ruling which might well be copied by magistrates wherever crowds do congregate. A man who uses his strength to push himself into a better position when all present are striving to get as good places as possible, is no better than a man who uses his strength to rob a fellow being of anything else he values. And the offence becomes particularly brutal when it implies the robbery of women and children.

There there is the danger on which Col. Denison dwelt. It is not an uncommon thing for a woman to faint in a pushing crowd. Real harm may be done. Trail persons just by the excitement and pressure of such an experience. If the pushing should happen to be directed toward the edge of a wharf or a precipice, or against a weak railing guarding such a point, it might easily bring about a terrible tragedy.

It might be expected that common policemen would work a cure; but it is useless to wait for policemen when it shows no sign of even mitigating danger. A practice which puts life and limb in danger and destroys the pleasure of thousands, should be treated as a crime.—Montreal Star.

INDEPENDENT FORESTERS OF EASTERN ONTARIO

Holding Their Annual Meeting Here--Four Hundred Delegates--Year Has Been Very Successful--Eastern Ontario Has Twice Been in the Lead--Last Joint Initiation Brought in Over a Thousand Members--High Court Officers Initiated Twenty as Members of Court Chemong--First Session Opened This Morning--The List of Delegates.

The High Court of the Independent Order of Foresters for Eastern Ontario opened at ten o'clock this morning in the Court House, with the High Ranger, Dr. Herald, of Kingston, in the chair. There are between three and four hundred delegates in town, and as the jurisdiction of the Court extends from Northumberland County north to the Nippising District, and east to the boundary of the Province, a very large number of places will be represented here. It is an important gathering, and the feelings, not only of Court Chemong, but of the citizens generally, are those of welcome and hospitality. There are not a few distinguished gentlemen among the visitors, who have for many years been prominent in Forestry.

Most of the delegates arrived on the incoming trains yesterday afternoon, and were welcomed by the Reception Committee of Court Chemong, No. 530, the members of which are Messrs. G. W. Cowling, C.R.; H. Miles, W .H. Meldrum, E. W. Grey, David Wallace, J. W. Byers, secretary, and by the members of the Entertainment Committee, Dr. Greer, Messrs. A. Allison, G. W. Powell, G. F. Cowling and J. W.. Byers. Companion Court Queen also appointed a Reception Committee, Mrs. Smith, C.R.; Miss Bullen, Mrs. Dunsford and Miss Brewer, who assisted in welcoming the ladies. The hotel accommodation of Peterborough saw its limit last evening, when, it is said, all were filled, and several of the delegates were billited with local Foresters.

A meeting of Court Chemong was held last evening, at which the officers of the High Court presided, and many delegates were present. Twenty candidates were initiated by Dr. Herald, High Chief Ranger for Ontario East. At the close of this ceremony greetings were extended by Mr. Cowling, on behalf of Court Chemong, and by Dr. Greer, for Mrs. Harry Smith, on behalf of Court Queen.

In reply short speeches were made by the officers of the High Court. Mr. A. W. Fraser, K.C., Past High Chief Ranger, made reference to the lift lock here as a Canadian triumph which should be very inspiring as an example of the enteprise which Canadians were capable of. The Independent Order of Foresters was likewise a Canadian institution, and none would doubt that its progress was also strongly suggestive of Canadian ability. Mr. H. C. E. Pratt, High Counsellor, Ottawa, stated that he had often visited Peterborough, once as a lacrosse player, when he had been trimmed, and another time when he had been present at the presentation of a watch to the late Bro. Hetherington, who had been a most energetic Forester. Mr. D. E. DeHertell, High Journal Secretary, Perth, said some very nice things about the ladies. Speeches were also made by Mr. J. S. R. McCann, High Treasurer; Mr. G. L. Dickinson, High Secretary; Dr. W. E. Cain, Chrysler, High Vice Chief Ranger; Rev. S. A. Wood, Metcalfe, High Orator; Dr. Herald, High Chief Ranger, and Mr. A. Allison, of Court Chemong.

After the meeting the High Court Standing Committee met at the Oriental, the I.O.F. headquarters, and appointed the following Court Committees, the first named in each being chairman.

Finance Committee—G. S. Spence, Cobourg; W. H. Lowery, Russell; Thos. Lambert, Kingston; W. D. Cline, Cornwall; R. Caruth, Renfrew.

Press Committee—J. W. Londan, Belleville; W. H. Goodwin, Kingston; Mitchell Cabban, Ottawa.

State of Order—J. E. Davis, Brockville; W. H. Howe, Arnprior; Wm. Macadam, Vankleek Hill; W. A. Rose, Napanee; George Craig, North Gower; Robert Elliott, South Marsh.

Petitions and Appeals—Rev. D. A. Thompson, Hastings; Geoirge Spring, Deseronto; W. J. Mohr, Kilaloe Station; Rev. H. C. Horsey, Ottawa; S. J. Davis, Mount Sherwood; P. W. Robinson, Williamstown; T. C. Larou, Guigue, Ottawa.

Constitution and Laws—Col. S. S. Lazier, Belleville; Thos. Conley, Kamptville; Rev. A. H. Macfarlane, Franktown; Thos. Scott, Winchester; J. Johnston, Pembroke, J. C. Hudson, Cambermese; T. J. Bailey, Ottawa.

New Business—A. Pare, Ottawa; J. H. Grooms, Picton; C. Wellbanks, Newburgh; W. H. Lang, Merrickville; Wm. Bolte, Iroquois; C. J. White, Tweed.

Distribution—Col. J. B. Donaldson, New Edinburgh; Walter Currie, Ottawa; D. J. Grant, Moose Creek; Oscar Macdonald, Portland; S. T. Pringle, Thomasburg.

This afternoon at one o'clock the members of the High Court were the guests of Court Chemong in a trip by City of Peterborough over the lift lock. The afternoon session opened at three o'clock, when Ald. Morrison extended a welcome to the High Court on behalf of the town.

To-night a public meeting will be held in the Brock-st. rink, when addresses will be delivered by the High Court officers. The 57th band will play, and there will be other entertaining features.

The list of delegates is as follows: Stormont, Cornwall—M. D. Cline, W. H. Gallinger, Arthur Day, George A. Grant, John L. Campbell. Cobourg—Wm. J. Saunders, Maurice Jaques. Napanee—W. A Rose.
